As compared with steam production of electric power, hydro-electric power is worth $40 per horse power per year. Therefore, with a monopoly power of the existing power companies of this so thoroughly guarded by the act under consideration, these companies will under the necessity of furnishing power at a rate not lower than will be just sufficient to exclude the development of power by steam. Thus by this act we preserve a potential monopoly revenue for our water power companies of 40 times 8,500,000 or 340,000,000 dollars a year. It is quite obvious how strong the incentive was that secured the preparation of the bill and the passage and adoption of the act.

The excuse for this act is that it prevents the unnecessary duplication of public utilities. It is doubtful whether there is any calling in which there is not some duplication of human effort that some one and especially those already engaged in that calling of business, would not regard as unnecessary. If when the territory of Washington was organized, a certificate of Necessity had been required of any body seeking to engage in any business or follow any lawful calling, probably the population of this State would not now be greatly in excess of what it was when the territory was formed and what is now the State of Washington would serve as a great national park. The truth is all ability and progress are developed by competition and emulation and the fruits of progress are worth several hundred fold the so-called waste that they cost. The great use of the water power of the State of Washington will be in furnishing power for industrial use. The main expense is in developing the power, the cost of its distribution is relatively small. The so-called waste from duplication will be insignificant in comparison with the benefits to the people from competition among those who have power for sale and from relieving the industry of Washington from monopoly control.

Respectfully submitted.
JAMES A. HAIGHT

REFERENDUM OF HOUSE BILL 174 LAUNCHED

With representatives of civic, labor and commercial organizations meeting Thursday noon, James A. Haight, chairman of the referendum committee announced that plans were virtually complete for the movement to obtain a referendum on H. B. 174, the certificate of necessity measure passed by the last session of the legislature. It is expected that petitions will be printed and distributed within a few days, and actual work begun. The committee plans to rent suitable headquarters in the downtown section and will employ an executive secretary and such other persons necessary to carry on the important work.

That the act is obnoxious to the people of the State is indicated by the following resolution, passed by the City Council of Seattle last week:

RESOLUTION NO. 6758

WHEREAS, there has been transmitted to the City Council a resolution heretofore adopted by the City Council of the City of Spokane in support of the movement to refer to the people of the State of Washington House Bill No. 174, passed by the 1921 Legislature, which said resolution in its words and figures as follows, to-wit:

WHEREAS, House Bill, No. 174, the so-called certificate of necessity law, passed by the legislature just closed would, if permitted to stand unchallenged, create a virtual monopoly of the vast undeveloped water power resources of the State of Washington in the relatively few private corporations now in this field. Washington stands first among the states in the extent of its potential undeveloped water power, and while the state is third in the extent of its developed power, yet the amount developed is relatively small as compared to the whole, and this developed power is substantially controlled by two or three great hydro-electric organizations. The undeveloped water power of the state must, under the practical operation of this law, await for its utilization the pleasure and convenience of these organizations of private capital; and,

"WHEREAS, the avowed purpose to be accomplished by this law is in violation of the constitution of the State of Washington, which provides that no monopolies or trusts shall ever be allowed in this state, and that no law shall be passed granting to any citizen, class of citizens, or corporations other than municipal, privileges or immunities which upon the same terms shall not equally belong to all citizens or corporations; and,

"WHEREAS, this act not only violates the constitutional limitations imposed by human law, but as well contravenes the divine ordinances of God, who has set apart for the use of our people and the generations who are to come and make their home here 'a good land, a land of brooks of water, of fountains and depths that spring out of valleys and hills'. The certificate of necessity law ordains that these waters shall, except at the pleasure of a few privileged corporations, continue to pour their floods unharnessed to the sea; and,

"WHEREAS, this law is particularly and especially objectionable in its relations to the municipalities of the state in that it forbids their use of their own streets, except as they get consent thereunto from the director of public works residing in Olympia, and,

"WHEREAS, the veto of the Governor of section 2 of this act, which provided for the control by the director of public works of the municipally owned utilities of the state, in no way modifies or mitigates the vicious provisions of Section 1, embodying the certificate of necessity and convenience provisions; and,

"WHEREAS, a law of like import was decisively beaten at the polls in 1916, and we are advised that a movement is now under way to subject this law to a referendum in the exercise of the people to veto obnoxious legislation. Now, Therefore,

"BE IT RESOLVED that the city council of the City of Spokane hereby expresses its hearty approval of the movement to refer this act to the people of the State of Washington at the next election, and pledges itself to do everything that it may lawfully do to further this movement, and it urges the other cities and towns of the state, as well as all private organizations of citizens concerned in the public welfare, to likewise enlist in this campaign.

"RESOLVED FURTHER that copies of this resolution be sent by the clerk to the city councils of the principal cities of the state.

"Adopted by a unanimous vote of the whole city council this 18th day of March, 1921.

"F. W. KELLAM.

"City Clerk."

And WHEREAS, the provisions of Section 1 of said House Bill No. 174 affect the City of Seattle in the operation of its public utilities to an extent equal to, if not greater than, any other city in the State of Washington; and,

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City of Seattle believes that said House Bill No. 174 should not only be referred to the people of said State, but also defeated by them, Now, Therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SEATTLE as follows:

That the City Council of said City of Seattle does hereby concur in the said resolution heretofore adopted by the City Council of the City of Spokane.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Chairman of the Judiciary and City Utilities Committees of the City Council, the Mayor, and the Corporation Counsel be, and are hereby, requested to render all assistance legally possible in support of the movement to refer said bill to the people of the State of Wash-

SECRETARY'S COMMENTS

Election of officers of the Municipal League will be held the fourth Monday in May. The by-laws of the League provide that the Board of Trustees shall provide, sixty days before the annual election, a nomination committee of five members for the nomination of officers. The nominating committee must make known its nominees, which shall be of not less than two names for each office to be filled, to the members of the League at least twenty-five days before the date of the annual election. Any member of the League may be named for office upon the written petition of ten members of the League sent to the Secretary at least fifteen days before the date of the annual election.

The offices to be filled this year include that of President, Second vice-president, Treasurer and five members of the Board of Trustees, the retiring members being Fred W. Catlett, Walter S. Johnson, L. D. Lewis, Andrew W. Allen and M. L. Baker.

Just to show how easy it is to get members when a personal solicitation is made, the president and secretary in a two-hour period, secured eight new applications for membership, the same being C. J. Smith, 623 Lyon Bldg. Russel A. Farrell, 1406 E. Greenlake Way, Morris A. Robbins, 442 New York Block, A. E. Flagg, 1119 Yakima, W. E. Lovejoy, 4535, 8th Avenue Northeast, H. A. Owen, Jr., 239 County-City Building, Torfi Segurdsson, County-Auditor's office, M. G. Reugenberg, 1220 Post street and D. E. Ferguson, County Auditor's office, Local 96.

The committee on education headed by Lewis Schwellenbach, is meeting frequently and expects to report to the League in the very near future on the financial status of the Seattle School system.

The committee of the League which attended the luncheon given by the Port Commission in honor of the visiting Chicago councilmen enjoyed it immensely. There was some very plain speaking by the chairman of the delegation, Alderman U. S. Schwartz, and by one or two other members. The real objective of the trip, explained Schwartz, was to study the transportation problems of San Francisco and Seattle. In the former city municipal ownership was reported as having been successful, while in Seattle it was generally considered a failure. That if it were a failure in Seattle it was not due to improper management seemed to be the conclu-

How to insure the security of interest and principal of the investors in railway utilities, and how to secure better service for patrons were the problems of present day public utilities, stated Alderman Schwartz, Chicago, he said, was contemplating purchasing its street railways; and it was with the hope that a study of the situation as it exists in other cities that the trip was undertaken.

The visitors were highly pleased with the reception accorded them here and were especially appreciative of the frank way in which Seattle's public officials discussed with them the railway situation.

TAX EXPERT ADDRESSES LEAGUE

That the system of general property taxation in the United States is the most discredited in the world; that the United States is farthest behind of any country in taxation reform; and that the State of Washington is farthest behind of any state in the Union —was the statement made by Prof. F. J. Laube of the political science department of the University of Washington in his address to the Municipal League at its meeting Tuesday noon.

"Sections 2 and 3 of Article VII of the State constitution, a relic of the eighteenth century when everyone lived on the land, provides for a uniform and equal rate of assessment and taxation on all property in the state. This provision is the most serious obstacle in the way of taxation reforms; in fact the constitution must be amended to secure reform," declared Prof. Laube.

"84 4-10 per cent of the burden of taxation in Washington is being born by real estate and 13 4-10 per cent by personal property, thus showing that personal property, comprising great wealth of the state, escapes its due share of taxation. Our present system puts an invitation upon perjury," further declared Laube. "Business will not bear more than a tax of from three to six mills, while under present law, taxing personal property on a 50 per cent basis at 72 mills, means on the average a tax of 29 per cent of the income. This is not equitable."

Laube stated that experience has shown that retrenchment amount of taxation never cures; we shall spend more and more in the future, the problem being how to get new sources of revenue.

Prof. Laube expressed the hope that the commission working for a reformation of the problem would achieve success.

MUNICIPAL RAILWAY FOR 1920

Revenue receipts of the municipal street railway showed a gain of $567,249.05 over operating expenses during 1920, despite the fact that the system was operated under a 5-cent fare several months of the year, and a 6-cent fare the remaining five months, according to figures prepared by Supt. D. W. Henderson, approved by the city controller's office, and incorporated by Maj. Carl H. Reeves, superintendent of public utilities, in his annual report to the mayor and city council.

Notwithstanding this excess of receipts over operating expenses, a net loss of $986,327.67 on the year's business is shown by the statement, the revenues amounting to $5,451,174.64, against which are shown expenses, allowances and charges aggregating $6,437,502.31 listed as follows: Operating expenses, $1,883,925.59; interest on general bonds, $35,750; interest on utility bonds, $823,000; miscellaneous interest, $2.06; discount on utility bonds, $6,908.15; depreciation, $699,178.65; loss on auto operation, $10,737.86.

Including accrued losses of $3,559.92 and delayed losses from previous years of $256,670.20 the income and loss statement for the year shows a total deficit of $236,283.60.

Reviewing the new construction completed during the year, the report declares several districts of the city are in need of street railway service and calls attention to a list of proposed extensions recommended to the city council last fall.

"No action has been taken in regard to these extensions for the reason that it has been rated difficult to provide the necessary amount of money to purchase rails and other material for these extensions. Our recommendation is that as soon as possible some provision should be made whereby these extensions can be completed. We believe it would be for the best interests of the city in general that these be taken care of at an early date," the report states.

In referring to the jitney situation, the report recommends that "some action be taken whereby the jitneys may be regulated and compelled to live up to such regulation," and adds:

Would Bar Jitneys

"Jitneys should not be allowed to operate on the same streets in which car lines are located as we have sufficient amount of equipment in the railway department to take care of all traffic on any line which we operate, without assistance from the jitneys.

"There are a few outlying districts which at this time are not served by the municipal railway and such locations as these the jitneys could legitimately operate in, provided they are compelled to pay a certain amount of their earnings to the city for the right to operate over the streets, as they are operating for the purpose of making money and are not in the same class as the privately-owned machines."

Substantial decrease in the number of accidents on the car lines during 1920, as compared with the previous year, is shown by the report the total number in 1920 being 6,511, against 7,291 in 1919. The number of collisions with cars was 246; collisions with vehicles, 2,076; collisions with pedestrians, 205; injuries on cars, 317; step accidents, standing cars, 403; derailments, 231, and miscellaneous, 680. There were 106 ejections of passengers for which damage claims were filed, and six fatalities among passengers and trainmen, against 9 in 1919.

Damage Suits Filed

Suits for damages filed in the courts against the city as the result of accidents on the car lines totaled 100, the aggregate amount sued or being $701,771.69. Other claims for damages filed against the city for railway accidents numbered 662, the aggregate damages claimed being $1,038,- 552. Suits to the number of 35 were adjudicated in the courts, the total damages allowed being $43,652 while 308 other claims, aggregating $76,314.41 were settled out of court.

Trainmen in the employ of the department Dec. 31, 1920, numbered 1,344, of which 1,197 were regular and 147 temporary employees. There were in regular service 562 motormen, 586 conductors and 49 gripmen. Regular employees to the number of 147 left the service during the year, while 60 entered the service.

Since Oct. 1, 1919, the wage scale or trainment has been $4.75 a day for the first three months of employment and $5.25 a day thereafter. The employees' pay has been increased twice since the city took over the car lines.

City's Growth Indicated

Summaries of the year's work in other divisions of the public utilities department contained in Reeves' report are featured by statistics showing the total number of telephones in Seattle on Dec. 31, 1920, to have been 74,897, an increase of 8.3 per cent over the previous year. This, the report declares, indicates that Seattle is "maintaining a rate of growth presaging an assured future."

REFERENDUM PETITIONS READY FOR SIGNERS

By James A. Haight.

"House Bill No. 174 Referendum Committee" is the official name of the committee that is organized to bring about the referendum of the certificate of necessity measure. Headquarters have been established at 428 Railway Exchange Building; phone Elliott 4564, with Carl Brannin in charge of the office as executive secretary. An appeal for funds has been issued by Mr. C. E. Bogardus, treasurer of the committee. "It will cost at least one thousand dollars, and possibly more, for the committee to effect this referendum," stated Mr. Bogardus. "May I urge every member of the Municipal League to contribute as much as he possibly can to this splendid work. The League has made a contribution of at least fifty dollars, of which twenty-five dollars has already been paid. It is hoped that the Municipal League, which organization really initiated this measure, will contribute several times the amount that is subscribed."

President James T. Lawler of the League urges every member to contribute his mite. Checks may be sent to the secretary of the Municipal League at 510 Central Building as contributions by organizations save a good deal of bookkeeping by the referendum committee.

The petitions bear upon their face the following:

"Petition For Referendum"

MUNICIPAL NOTES BY THE SECRETARY

To the Public Safety Committee, headed by Jackson Silbaugh, has been referred the following communication addressed to the League by Mr. Silbaugh:

"Municipal League:
From late issues of the Times, it appears, that through the activities of certain business men's organizations, it has been learned that notwithstanding the pressing need of economy in public affairs, public officials have permitted the purchase of expensive automobiles (not needed for public use) to be used, and were used exclusively by employees and their families and maintained with tax payers' money.

The efforts to stop this misuse of public funds deserved the thanks of every tax payer and a committee of the League should investigate the matter and report at some future meeting.

JACKSON SILBAUGH".

The committee is expected to bring in its report at a meeting in the near future.

* * *

A special committee of five will be appointed by President Lawler to consider the matter of securing a uniform switching charge in Seattle. The matter was called to the League's attention by Mr. James A. Haight whose letter here follows:

"Let me call attention to the fact that the Seattle Merchants Exchange, through Manager Frank R. Hanlon is endeavoring to secure a uniform switching charge in Seattle.

"This is a matter that the Municipal League has long been endeavoring to help secure. I suggest that our committee on Harbor Development be instructed to co-operate with Mr. Hanlon and the Seattle Merchants' Exchange and make such reports

Mr. Arthur H. Hutchinson has been selected to act as chairman of the nominating committee of the League instead of Mr. Haight whose activities in connection with the referendum of House Bill No. 174 has been so extensive as not to permit any additional time for a matter of so much importance as that of chairman of the nominating committee. The other members of committee are: James W. Reynolds, S. M. Brackett, Claude H. Anderson and James A. Haight.

* * *

The president and secretary will be the official representatives of the Municipal League at a meeting which will be held in the near future under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of establishing the "community chest" in Seattle.

The following applications for memberships were acted upon favorably by the Board of Trustees at Wednesday's meeting:

To Prof. L. I. Neikirk, a professor of the University of Washington and a staunch member of the League, has been referred the matter of re-apportionment of the state, a matter in which Prof. Neikirk has been interested for a long period of time. An additional personnel of four committeemen will be selected by the President to act in co-operation with Prof. Neikirk in this important task.

The plans are already being initiated for the annual meeting which is to be held the last Tuesday in May, the meeting this year falling on May 31st. At this meeting the election of officers will take place. A program of unusual excellence is being planned by Mr. James Reynolds, chairman of the program committee. It is hoped that Dean Stephen I. Miller of the School of Business Administration will accept the invitation to address the League at that time. The Board suggested that the subject of "A municipal Research Bureau" be the main topic of Mr. Miller's address. This is particularly appropriate in view of the fact that the League now has a committee at work on that matter, and in view of the fact that Dean Miller has taken an active interest in such a movement. It is planned to hold an evening meeting and to secure the largest possible attendance of League members and their wives. Just where the meeting will be held this year is undecided, but in view of the success of last year's meeting which was held at the Washington Annex, it is more than probable that a meeting will be held at the same place. The present meeting place of the League, it is feared, will be too small to accommodate those desiring to attend. Further announcement will be made in the next number of the "News".

President Lawler hopes that a large class of candidates will be "initiated" at the annual meeting. President Lawler has been working hard, he, himself, has brought in something like fifteen members thus far. "Every member of the League is urged to bring at least one member so that the record of the League will be strengthened and the League placed on a sound financial foundation at the time when my term of office expires", stated Mr. Lawler. The members of the League certainly should support Mr. Lawler for he has given his untiring services in the interests of the League, sacrificing his own interest for this work. One applicant is easy enough to get. Let every member show his loyalty to the president and to the organization by doing his part in this work.

* * *

Next Tuesday's meeting will be given up to Prof. Oliver H. Richardson of the History Department of the University of Washington who will talk on "Immediate Causes of the World War". "Documents published recently by the Governments of Europe have revealed the immediate causes of the war", stated Prof. Richardson. "We probably know all the causes of the origin of the War—probably all that we shall ever know—stated Prof. Richardson. His address is awaited with keen interest. The week following, April 19th, Dean C. E. Magnusson of the University of Washington Engineering School will speak on "Hydro Electric Development in the State of Washington". It is expected that this address from an authority like Dean Magnusson will shed new light on the Skagit and other hydro-electric developments in the state.

Railway Exchange Building, Seattle, Wash.

A brief statement as to what House Bill No. 174 is contained on the reverse side of this bulletin of instruction and it states as follows:

This act in effect prohibits every new public service company from operating unless it gets from the State a "Certificate of public necessity and convenience." The existing companies of the State are expressly permitted to extend their plants without being required to get a certificate. While the new Company is getting ready for business and applying for the certificate and notice of the hearing is being given, the existing company can make its extensions and by the time the hearing comes on will be in position to make such a showing of capacity to serve all the wants of the locality in which the new company seeks to operate that the State will be obliged to refuse the certificate.

The water power of this State is estimated at 9,500,000 horse power, the largest possessed by any of the United States and larger than that of any industrial nation of the world except Norway and Canada. Of this water power 369,000 horse power have been developed, and Seattle and Tacoma are planning to develop 600,000 more, leaving 8,500,000 horse power which this act warns all except the existing water power companies operating in the State not to touch. In other words this act bids the people of the State of Washington to refrain from developing their own water power unless they first get the permission of their water power companies. The monopoly value of this water power is $40 per year per horse power as developed or potentially $340,000,000 a year, quite a reward for securing this legislation. Also a sum worth keeping by the people to aid the industrial development of their State.

In 1915 a "Certificate of Necessity and Convenience" act was passed in this state. A referendum was ordered and in the election of November, 1916, the people vetoed the act by a vote over 200,000 against and less than 47,000 for it.

Our municipal utilities have not been subjected to the difficulties presented by this act.

Article 12, Sec. 22, of the Washington Constitution declares "Monopolies and trusts shall never be allowed in this state." Should not all good citizens help enforce their Constitution?

Petitions may be obtained by League members from the referendum headquarters or from the secretary of the League.

DIMMOCK MAKES REPORT

PLANS FOR GORGE CREEK UNIT REVIEWED

City Light Revenue Will Pay Skagit Development Interest Engineer Declares

Revenues of the City Light Department will be sufficient to carry the interest charges on the Skagit hydro-electric development, City Engineer A. H. Dimmock says in his annual report to the mayor and City Council, submitted late yesterday.

The report reviews the plans for development of the Gorge Creek unit at a cost of $9,700,000, including an interest charge of $50,000, and says:

"Taxpayers need have no fear at the building of the Skagit power plant, large though it may be, will overload the light plant and add to the burden of general taxation."

The engineer, predicting the light Department will earn a surplus of $1,162,000 in 1921, and at the surplus earnings in 1930 will be $2,645,000, says: "If we now $500,000 a year for depreciation, there will be a cash surplus of $600,000 this year, which may be used for extension of the system or for retiring bonds."

"The ability of the system to carry the Skagit system is unquestionable. In fact, completion of the first unit of Skagit power will increase the cash surplus by $400,000 by eliminating the high cost of power developed from steam at the Lake Union plant."

The report also recommends starting construction this year on a third pipeline for the city's water supply, as contemplated in the Swan Lake reservoir plans, declaring, "It is extremely unwise to delay longer the enlargement and safeguarding of our water supply."

Local improvement work has been hampered by the low price obtainable for some local improvement district bonds, says the engineer, but $3,519,552.91 worth of work was completed in 1920, and $1,606,751.05 more is under contract.

DECLARE CITY LIBRARY MANAGEMENT NOT THE BEST

The Board of Trustees, at its meeting, authorized President Lawler to appoint a committee of five to investigate charges of mis-management preferred by an organization headed by Mrs. C. E. Bogardus, president, and Mrs. R. F. Weeks, secretary.

"Misuse of power over appointments, methods and the directing of money expenditures" by the present management is the alleged charge of the organization heads. The other charges, as alleged, are the failure to grant increase of salaries to subordinate employees; that the salary of the present librarian is disproportionately high; that he is allowed thirty dollars a month for upkeep of his private automobile, together with the use of a garage on the library grounds; that employees of the library staff have been discriminated against in the matter of promotion. A statement was issued Thursday by J. W. Efaw, president of the library board declaring that the charges alleged were untrue and misleading and that the library commissioners court investigation of their acts by any board of inquiry.

President Efaw also explained the allowance for the librarian's automobile saying that "The allowance made to the librarian for the use of his private automobile when used for library purposes was in lieu of the purchase of an automobile at the expense of the taxpayers, the arrangement being considered as much less expensive to the city than the owning of their own machine."

Mayor Caldwell's statement declared the complaint against the library management "evidently the result of the dismissal of a President James T. Lawler and Secretary Eimon L. Wienir were present at the meeting which was held at the Chamber of Commerce Assembly Hall Thursday evening at eight o'clock. Representatives of numerous charitable, philanthropic and civic organizations were present.

The chairman of the meeting, Dr. Park Weed Willis, directed the meeting to the tentative consideration of the constitution and by-laws which had been prepared by a committee headed by Rabbi Samuel Koch. L. S. Booth, also a member of the drafting committee, urged the representatives to discuss the provisions of the constitution freely, for the purpose of giving the committee more complete knowledge of the desire of the members. The meeting was marked by enthusiasm for the idea and plans outlined. Another meeting will be called in the very near future to lay before the rep-

Carl Brannin, executive secretary of "House Bill No. 174 Referendum Committee" reported this morning that signatures on the referendum petitions are coming in at the rate of five hundred per day.

Mayor Charles Fleming and J. M. Garrity, Corporation Counsel of Spokane, are at the head of the movement in that city. A large mass meeting, it is reported, was held last Tuesday evening and great enthusiasm aroused.

Word has also been received from Mayor Ben Hill of Walla Walla that the committee might depend upon Walla Walla to do its part in furthering the referendum. Requests have been received from various counties of the state for petitions and the promise has been made to have them circulated.

The financing of the committee is still the most serious obstacle to its success. Thus far, but few organizations have pledged them-

MILLER TO INVESTIGATE

University Professor After Exhaustive Inquiry Will Recommend Changes in Budget

With preparation of the 1922 budget scheduled to begin in July, prevision of the departmental expenditures have been taken by council finance committee.

Councilman C. B. Fitzgerald, chairman of the committee, announced that Prof. Stephen I. Miller, head of the college of business administration of the University of Washington, has consented to conduct, with the assistance of subordinates, an exhaustive investigation of the various branches of the city government for the purpose of recommending to the committee reforms that will reduce the cost of city government without diminishing its efficiency.

During the next three months each department will be examined carefully with a view to determining where duplications of work can be eliminated, consolidations effected, and other changes made tending to reduce cost and promote efficiency. The results of the investigation will be furnished the council budget committee when it commences its sessions next fall.

Has Done Good Work

Prof. Miller has already rendered the city service in connection with the administration of its government. He made an investigation of municipal government in forty of the leading cities of the country in 1918 and drafted the system of classification upon which the salary allowances of city employees are based. In his new work, Prof.

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

Miller and his assistants will serve without compensation, having volunteered to perform the service.

Indications at the city hall forecast the adoption of far-reaching measures in the direction of economy in the preparation of the 1922 budget. Departmental estimates, which under the city charter must be filed with the council not later than July 10 will be subjected to extensive overhauling and careful pruning.

For Tax Reduction

Fitzgerald has taken a pronounced stand in favor of reducing the burden of taxation for city purposes, as far as possible without impairing efficiency. In this attitude he has the support of the council. Already steps have been taken to keep down the budget by restricting deficiency appropriations that would make necessary the inserting of items in next year's levy to cover the deficits created. Only two efficiency ordinances have received the approval of the finance committee, one an appropriation of $3,000 to enable the street department to provide work for the unemployed, and the other an appropriation of $2000 to the park board for the same purpose.

"The Seattle Public Library stands second among the thirty largest cities of the United States in annual per capita circulation and it has attained this rank under the present librarian who has a national reputation as a librarian. He has been maintained in this position by successive library boards. While he has enemies, I do not believe that they can so influence the board as to destroy the confidence which they have in him.

"Concerning the building of a garage for the librarian and the allowance for the use and upkeep of the librarian's automobile in lieu of purchasing a city machine to perform library services, this is a matter that is up to the seven members of the library board. So also is the matter of salaries of the employees and I consider a disinterested board of seven members as well qualified to pass on these questions as any other individual or association.

"I shall ask those who filed the complaint to furnish some evidence or the names of witnesses who will substantiate the charge made and when such evidence is received I shall forward the same to the library board for its consideration."

It is expected that the Municipal League committee will bring in a report shortly.

OF WORLD WAR
Reported by Eimon I. Fienir.

Dr. Oliver H. Richardson of the History Department of the University of Washington addressed the Municipal League Tuesday on "New and Official Documents Disclosing the Responsibility for the Immediate Cause of the World War."

"The results of these documents," declared Dr. Richardson, "show that Count Berchdolt, the Austrian Minister for Foreign Affairs, is the greatest arch-conspirator the world has ever known and the person most to be blamed for the world catastrophe."

Under the head of Austrian Policy and relation to Germany between the murder at Serajero on June 28, 1914 and the reply of Serbia to the Austrian ultimatum June 28, 1914, Dr. Richardson said, among other things, "Austria's recuperation was vitally necessary for both Austria and the German Empire; the Greater Servian Movement, enhanced by the Balkan Wars of 1912 and 1913, was threatening Austria's dissolution."

On the 5th of July, 1914 Count Hoyes, bosom friend of Count Berchtolt, and the personal representative of Francis Joseph, arrived in Berlin and delivered to the Kaiser an autographed letter from his Emperor, the substance of which was "that the aim of my Government must henceforth lie in the isolation and diminution of Serbia." At a luncheon which took place on July 5th, the Kaiser assured Count Hoyes that the Vienna Government "might also in this event count on Germany's fullest support." On the evening of July 5th and morning of July 6th a series of conferences with Chancellor Zimmerman began. Action against Serbia was agreed upon, the Kaiser stipulating speedy action. Roumania and Italy were not to be informed.

"In other words," stated Dr. Richardson, "Germany at this early date signed a blank check and placed it in the hands of the worst character in Europe, Count Berchdolt, to fill in this check in any amount he chose. The knot of the drama was tied in the short space of five hours on July 5, 1914."

The key to Berchdolt's policy from first to last was the determination to crush Serbia by military, not by diplomatic means. The entire Government, with the exception of Count Tieza, was agreed that diplomatic victory would be practically useless.

Count Berchdolt deliberately suppressed information, concealing it from his own Emperor; from Count Tieza, his own colleagues, and from the German Government. He proceeded to formulate impossible demands. He allowed Europe no chance to investigate the docket to ascertain the charges against Serbia until after the Austria-Servian war had broken out. This justly aroused the anger of the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, and gave full scope to the intrigues of the Russian military party.

Berchdolt blocked all the proposals of Sir Edward Grey and all the pressure by the German Civil Government between July 29th and July 31st and until he had thrown the powers of Europe into the abyss of the War.

To summarize these documents:

1. They ignored Great Britain who proved the sincerest of some Eastern Crowns working for peace.

2. They exhibited the invasion of Belgium in its original and true light.

3. The Crown Council at Potsdam, July 5th is almost certainly a myth. The absence of leading personalities is now definitely ved. Germany was put at Austria's mercy and Austria was free to act in full assurance of many's support.

Berchdolt meant, by an impossible ultimatum, to force the stro-Serbian War.

These documents therefore place Austria in a far more unfavorable light than formerly and aid to clear the civilian Government of Germany, at least in so far as the charge is concerned that it deliberately plotted the all of this does not relieve Germany from the cloud and burden of full responsibility for: Germany gave a free hand to Austria and failed to assert control until it was too late. The Kaiser's responsibility is especially heavy. The completeness of Germany's deception is well illustrated by a dispatch of Von Moltke, chief of the German General Staff of Foreign Affairs under date of August 5th, wherein it is said: "The sentiment of America is friendly toward Germany. American public is indignant over the shameful way in which we have been attacked. It is important to make the most out of this sentiment. The influential persons of the Germany Colony must be urged to keep on influencing the press in our favor. Perhaps the U. S. can be induced to undertake a naval action against England with Canada as a prize of victory."

WASH. INDUSTRIAL SHOW OPENS TUESDAY

"Made in Washington" week, which will bring together in the arena the largest display of Washington-made products ever assembled, will be an eye-opener to thousands who will visit the show which opens at 4:00 p. m. next Tuesday afternoon to run a week, closing at 11:00 p. m. Saturday night. Every space offered in the big Arena by the Seattle Federation of Women's Clubs, under whose auspices the exhibit is being held, has been taken.

Hundreds of club women for weeks have been studying the industries of the city. Never before have the manufacturers of this state had such an army of willing and enthusiastic workers back of a buy-at-home movement. The Pacific Northwest products committee is giving hearty support to the work of the club women, who are being directed by Mrs. Clare Ketchum Tripp, director of the educational department of the State Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Henry Landes, president of the Seattle Federation of Women's Clubs, and her volunteer assistants.

Viewing this exhibit will make every Washingtonian not only prouder of his state but more familiar with the industrial progress made in recent years.

The week of May 9, has been designated as Merchants' Week in Seattle. At this time all the club women will ask for these products feeling that the retailer will have had time to stock them in order to care for the demand created by the exhibition at the Arena. Members of the Retail Trade Bureau should be prepared to care for the demand that will unquestionably be stimulated by the combined efforts of all the club women in Seattle.

The Pacific Northwest Products committee urges that an effort be made to get all employees to attend the show at the Arena, so that they may familiarize themselves with Washington made goods. Tuesday evening will be "Food Products" evening, Thursday "Home Furnishing," and Saturday "Wearing Apparel." No Admission Will Be Charged.

Roosevelt High School Report to be Voted upon by the League Tuesday

ROOSEVELT HIGH SCHOOL REPORT TO BE VOTED UPON TUESDAY

The following report was read before the League last Tuesday by Lewis Schwellenbach, chairman of the League's committee, and will be voted upon by the membership at the meeting coming Tuesday. The report was prepared by a joint committee of the Municipal League and the Chamber of Commerce.

The report follows:

9500 students have been enrolled in the High Schools of Seattle during the school year of 1920-21. The normal capacity of the six permanent buildings devoted to High School purposes is 7500. The 2000 students in excess of that number should be accommodated in these schools. Adequate provision has been provided for by the construction of portable and temporary one-story frame structures.

A survey shows that most of the lack of permanent space is to be found in the north end of the city. At Lincoln High there are 7 rooms in temporary structures, and at Ballard, 7. At Lincoln 36 percent of the students are accommodated by portables. September 1st, there will be 27 temporary rooms at Lincoln and 13 at Ballard, while all of the High Schools of the city have 62 such rooms now and will have a total of 88 in September. By September, 1922, if no permanent structure should be erected, 120 temporary rooms will be necessary.

Much has been said that the condition in the grade schools is worse than in the High Schools. The fact is, however, that 20 percent of the High Schools are accommodated by temporary buildings and only 12 per cent of the grade pupils are so cared for. Furthermore, grade pupils can be cared for in temporary or portable buildings with some degree of efficiency. These pupils do not pass from one room to another for different classes as is the case with High School pupils: they do not require laboratories, shops, gymnasiums and libraries; they do not require separate lunch rooms or common meeting places to the same extent as High School students, because grade school pupils generally go home to meals, the distance from home being much less than is the average for High School boys and girls. In this connection it is worthy of note that the Board has a building program for the grades that will provide for four new structures and four additions to existing buildings all to be completed by October, 1922, at cost of approaching $1,000,000 and providing for 3240 more grade children. Thus it will be seen that the board is not neglecting the grades.

The need for a permanent High School building, particularly in the north end of the city, seems manifest. The School Board proposes to meet this need by erecting the Roosevelt School at 15th Ave. N. E. and East 66th

St., on a plot comprising four blocks. The building is designed to house 1500 students and care for the overflow of Ballard and Lincoln High Schools. The estimated cost as announced is $1,240,000. We find that this cost includes a completely furnished building and finished grounds. The grounds alone will cost about $100,000, including grading, surfacing, and building of retaining walls. The fixtures, shades, desks, seats, etc., will cost approximately $150,000. The cost of the building alone will be less per cubic foot than any of the last three fireproof buildings constructed at the University. Any comparison with High School buildings previously constructed should take into consideration the following facts:

Only two of the other buildings are completely fireproof: Franklin and Lincoln could not be erected under the provisions of the present building code; the other High Schools were built during periods of low construction cost; present costs are 125 per cent above pre-war costs; adjustments made for difference in character of construction, in capacity, and in completeness and efficiency of equipment readily

POWER DEVELOPMENT

Address Delivered Before Municipal League Tuesday by Dean Carl E. Magnusson, of the U. of W.

Much valuable experience has lately been gained in the operation of extensive high tension electric transmission system. Due in part to new construction, but in most cases to electrical interconnection of two or three previously independent companies, the mileage of several transmission systems operating in synchronism have been greatly increased. In the past, independent long lines, connecting a hydro-electric power plant to some city or industrial load, formed the mile posts of progress. Thus the construction of the Big Creek line transmitting electric energy to Los Angeles, a distance of 242 miles, made both new high voltage and long distance records and was replete with new features of design. Lately the advance has been chiefly in the large mileage of high tension wires operating in synchronism, connected in a network spread over a great area or a chain of lines having a number of power plants and widely separated loads. Thus the Montana Power Co., in connection with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R. operates over a thousand miles of 100,000 volt transmission lines. In California war time conditions forced several of the companies to interconnect and operate in synchronism. The recently completed 110,000 volt transmission line constructed by the Inter-Mountain Power Co. in connection with the electrification of the Othello-Tacoma division of the

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

C. M. & St. P. R. R., formed a connecting link between the Washington Water Power Co. in Eastern Washington and the P. S. T. L. & P. Co. on Puget Sound. In August, 1919, when the interconnection was completed, the transmission lines of these companies and of the Pacific Light and Power Co. were merged into a single synchronously operated system having approximately 1500 miles of transmission lines.

As an illustration of one of the advantages gained by intercommunicating systems, it may be mentioned that in the fall of 1919, during the low water period on the Puget Sound, approximately 10,000 kilowatts were taken from the surplus water power of the Spokane River and transmitted 262 miles to supply the deficiency in Seattle.

The experience gained in operating these extensive combined systems in synchronism is of great value. The evidence is fairly conclusive that the operation of huge transmission systems presents no insurmountable difficulties; in fact, the increased mileage seems to more of an asset than a liability for securing satisfactory operation.

That transmission systems having an even larger mileage of high tension lines operating in synchronism will be in general use in the future is certain. With the completion of the electrification of the Western division of the C. M. & St. P. R. R.,—that is, by closing the gap between Othello, Washington and Avery, Idaho—all the transmission lines from eastern Montana to the Puget Sound may possibly be operated in synchronism, as one electric unit. Similar extensions may also be made north and south along the Pacific Coast. By the construction of a few comparatively short sections of high tension lines all the large Columbia, Washington, Oregon, companies operating in British California, Utah and Montana, at present totaling over 12,000 miles of transmission lines and over 2,000,000 horse power generator capacity, could be electrically united for synchronous operation as one system.

However, the mere tying together of two or more systems that were designed and constructed to operate as independent units, can bring only a small part of the advantages that would be gained if the final scope of the system had formed the basis of the original design. The present interconnecting practice is mere patchwork, a temporary makeshift by which comparatively small advantage may be gained. Interconnection in transmission systems is chiefly important as a mile post of progress in that it shows that we are on the eve of a new era in power transmission.

While the social and industrial unrest which naturally followed in the wake of the World War has temporarily delayed progress, it seems certain that in the near future the United States will enter on an unprecedented industrial development and intense industrial activity, which predicates a great increase in the electric power supply. Under the spur of international competition the production of each industrial workman must increase if American standards of living shall be maintained. The demand for power will be greater than the increase in the number of workers, for the assumptions seem to be justified that the output per worker is approximately in direct proportion to the power used, and that an increase in the use of power benefits both the workers and the employer. With a rapid increase in the demand for power it becomes increasingly important that national economy be exercised in the conservation of the available power resources. By an extended use of electric power transmission very great economies could be effected.

In the creation of a Super-power system for any extensive region, as the Atlantic Seaboard or the Pacific Coast, it may be found advisable to form new cleavage on the basis of the kind or service rendered, to limit the activity of each organization to a single business. Under present conditions, many electric power companies have a "Three in One" form of business organization—three distinct fields of industrial activity: manufacturing, transportation, and retailing of electric energy, are covered by the same company.

Electric transmission lines are analogous to railroads in that "the service rendered is strictly distributive and of a public service order," although electric systems transport only a single commodity, electric energy. With extensive transmission systems covering several states, the transportation of electric energy may well come under laws of essentially the same characteristics as obtain for the railroads. Thus it may be found advisable to apply "common carrier principles" to trunk transmission lines transporting electric energy to market. Several years ago it was found necessary to limit the activities of the railroads to the transportation field. With power developments on a comprehensive scale, based on natural geographic divisions, it may be advantageous to make the transportation of electric energy an independent business, separate and distinct from the generation and distribution divisions.

ROOSEVELT HIGH REPORT

explain the apparent marked difference in cost.

Your committee has inspected the plans for this building and discussed them with the school architect and with other reputable architects. They are unanimously agreed that the plans are not extravagant.

Assuming that the courses of study now offered in our High Schools are to be provided for, it is difficult to point out any modifications that will greatly reduce the estimate cost of construction. The only way to reduce the cost substantially would be to cut out the shops, laboratories and gymnasiums—in short to curtail scientific and mechanical construction. Your committee does not presume to pass judgment at this point, but merely wishes to observe that the educational plan involved in the construction of Roosevelt High School are well within the safety zone of educational program in similar cities elsewhere.

It has been suggested that the main assembly room or auditorium now provided for in the center of the building be eliminated by adopting the unit type of construction, and erecting at the time only the units including recitation rooms, laboratories, and heating plant. After questioning successful architects and builders on the subject of original construction costs and maintenance costs, we are convinced that the unit type will be more expensive in the end. Because the assembly room is located in the center of the proposed building, it cannot be eliminated without destroying completely the present plan. We therefore recommend the erection of the building as designed.

There are so many statements made regarding the proposed building that do not appear to be supported by evidence, that your committee feels that some points should be cleared up:

1. It has been said that level ground should have been bought so as to save the expense of grading. The Board took the best available unimproved tract of sufficient size to be found in the section north of Cowen Park. Level ground is not to be found in that general section. To have bought some tract slightly more nearly level but improved would have cost much more. This criticism of ownership and construction therefore does not seem well founded.

2. It is said that the building is equipped with two study rooms and therefore the assembly room is unnecessary. These study rooms, one seating 125 and the other 175, are little more than large classrooms and in no way suited for general student gatherings. The assembly room is needed as a place for general student gatherings. The assembly room is needed as a place in which all the students attending the school can be brought together for regular school exercises during the day and for evening gatherings. Your committee does not know of a reputable high school anywhere without such an assembly room, and it is the opinion of those who should know that the general morale and discipline of a school would suffer seriously in a building without such common meeting place.

3. The stage of this assembly room has been criticised. We find the stage not so deep as that at Ballard and not as wide in the proscenium arch, and designed only to make possible the seating of the ordinary graduating class in such a school.

4. The lighting of the stage has been criticised. We find that the stage footlights are equipped with dimmers as at Lincoln and in other modern school auditoriums, but there is nothing fancy about the lights.

5. There will be an asbestos curtain as required by law, but the architect says it will cost $1100 and not $4000 as stated in public estimates.

6: We find that no blueprint machine has been ordered and probably will not be. The manual training director had in mind one that would cost $400.00 and not $3000 as charged.

7. It has been said that a $4,000 ice plant is to be installed in connection with the lunch room. We find that this item is still undecided, but Mr. Eckhart says that if an iceplant is installed it will not cost over $1500. He installed one recently in the Hotel Olympian of a larger type for $2100. As a matter of fact the Board has not reached a decision on any of the mechanical equipment.

3. It has been said that too small a portion of the building is to be devoted to educational purposes. Leaving out of account what is meant by "educational" we find that the percentage of space devoted to direct instruction, not including gymnasium instruction, is larger than in any of the other high schools except Broadway.

9. It has been suggested that fireproof construction is not needed; that mill construction of slow burning quality would suffice. All the best architects are agreed that such construction would save only 5 per cent on such a job and greatly reduce the life of the structure. Where wood is brought in contact with masonry, at least 5 per cent must be charged off annually to depreciation. We find that the experience of the University on this point is conclusive as to the economy of permanent construction.

10. It has been said that the site is remote and difficult to reach. When the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. selected a site for a northside or Kenwood exchange, they built within 300 feet of the inside corner of the proposed school grounds. One of the street car extensions recently agreed on is to pass by the grounds on 15th Ave. N. E. and will probably be finished as soon as the school building.

11. It has been said that many of the items called for in the specifications are of an expensive character. Because of the limited time, it has not been possible for your committee to go over the specifications item by item, and it is possible that there may be some saving that can be made in this way. Mr. Eckhart of the School Board indicated to the committee, however, that he is looking over these items with due consideration for all possible savings.

The most serious objection to the present erection of the building is the argument presented that building costs may be reduced in the near future. In considering this argument there are three points; In the first place, the reduction is problematic; in the second place, there would be the added cost of temporary structures; in the third place, the educational disadvantages which will necessarily ensue from the delay must be considered.

Your committee after considering every alternative proposal recommends approval of the permanent fireproof building, as designed.

However, in the light of the present high taxes and the possible reduction in building costs in the near future, we urge the School Board to consider postponing such parts of the construction of the High School as may be done without seriously injuring the educational interests of the pupils. We refer particularly to the general grading of the grounds, construction of the athletic field, and interior finishing and furnishing of the auditorium.

Respectfully submitted.

League Committee Investigates Library Charges

Investigation of complaints against the administration of the public library will be transferred from the city council to the board of library directors.

Agreement to this method of procedure for settling the library dispute was reached by all parties to the controversy at the meeting Tuesday afternoon of the council judiciary and department of efficiency committee, called for the purpose of a public hearing on the charges against the library management.

Vivian Carkeek, who said he represented the civic betterment committee—the organization filing the library charges—stated to the library board in accordance with a suggestion made by Mayor Caldwell at the same time declaring an intention to carry the case further if necessary to get the results sought.

Upon motion of Councilman C. B. Fitzgerald, the council committee then ordered placed on file all communications bearing on the subject, after which Councilman Philip Tindall, as a member of the committee, expressed the hope that the library board would be able to settle its own differences and restore peace and harmony.

The three members of the library board, Mrs. O. B. Simmons, Mrs. Donna E. Baker and Mrs. W. S. Griswold, were in attendance upon yesterday's meeting although they took no part in the proceedings. Their participation in a public hearing by the same committee last week led to the issuance Monday by Mayor Caldwell of a letter to members of the library board warning them not to attend any more hearings on the library matter until the library board has investigated the charges and reported.

Asked To Attend Meeting

Carkeek asked the committee from the Municipal League, present for the purpose of hearing the testimony and forming a report to the league, to attend the hearing before the library board. He also declared that the complainants have certain testimony that "the witnesses would hesitate to present to the library board, but would be willing to offer to the Municipal League's investigating committee." He did not indicate the character of this evidence.

Civil Service Committee Reports to League

The following report will be submitted to the League, May 9th.

To the Seattle Municipal League Gentlemen:-

Last December the League referred to this committee six propositions relating to the city Civil Service, for investigation and a report. We herein respectfully submit such report.

We shall consider each of these propositions separately.

First Proposition: "A resolution should be proposed that would give power to the Commission to require each Civil Service employee of the city not to engage in a general strike so long as he remains an employee of the city."

We recommend that any city Civil Service who strikes be discharged, and also barred from becoming eligible for any Civil Service position in the city.

Our reasons: In a private industry, other things being equal, the less the wages and the longer the hours, the greater the profits to the employers, and vice versa. In public employment this is not true; it is to the political interests of the employers (the executive heads and City Council) to increase the pay of Civil Service employees and otherwise favor them. Our city Civil Service employees receive fair compensation, are not required to work an unreasonable number of hours, and are secure in their employment during good behavior. The real employers, the real employers, the tax-payers, are so unorganized and so divided in their opinions and preferences, that in these days they are more exploited than exploiters. Again, in private industry the two classes, employers and employees, are so numerous, so well organized, and society so permeated with their ideas and influence, that it is difficult to find a judge or commissioner that can decide their disputes impartially; and if public opinion is not in sympathy with the decision, such decision cannot be enforced effectively. Whereas in public service, there is no struggle between classes; and legal machinery can be found to settle disputes impartially, and to enforce them effectively.

Second Proposition: "Within each classification made by the Commission, there exists within that classification a graduated

Roosevelt High School Report

The Municipal League went on record at its meeting Tuesday as favoring the postponement of the construction of the Roosevelt High School for at least one year.

Recommendations to this effect to the School Board were adopted on motion of James A. Haight after the report of the educational committee, which investigated the High School project, failed of passage by a vote of 19 to 19.

The committee's report approved in a general way the school board's plan for the proposed high school, suggesting a few minor changes, but recommended "postponement of such parts of the work as may be done without seriously jeopardizing the educational interests of the pupils—particularly the general grading of the grounds, construction of the athletic field and furnishing of the auditorium."

Unnecessary Features, Charged

The decision to recommend postponement of the entire project was reached by the league after different speakers had charged that the plans propose unnecessary features and involve extravagant appropriations, and had declared that under the circumstances the least that could be done would be to defer the work for one or two years in the hope that building costs will be reduced.

Louis Schwellenback, as chairman of the special committee submitting the report, urged the league to signify its approval of the high school building planned by the school board, declaring that even if the organization should decide that the work ought to be postponed, the school board's views as to the type of building to be erected and the features to be provided should be indorsed. This, however, the league refused by a tie vote to do.

James A. Haight said in part: "A false issue has been raised over this issue. Those opposed to the construction of the school at this time are not opposed to the cause of education. There is a craze for extravagant expenditures of public money," he said. People like Seattle but high taxes deter its being built up as it have in Seattle but we cannot afford quoting figures compiled by a recent investigator, Mr. Jackson, says that "while it costs Seattle $91.15 per pupil, Portland's cost per pupil is $59.00 and San Francisco's cost is $58.00." Mr. Silbaugh said "there are a lot of things we would like to have in Seattle but we cannot afford them."

Other speakers were W. T. Butler, R. M. White, H. A. P. Willitsen and Fred W. Catlett. Mr. Catlett defended the report of the committee but stated that he was not opposed to Mr. Haight's motion urging the School Board to postpone the construction for at least one year.

A motion was made by W. T. Butler asking the Board of Trustees to refer to the proper authorities the entire study of the school district's building program for exhaustive study and report. This was done by the Board.

In pursuance of the action taken by the League, President James T. Lawler appointed James A. Haight as representative of the League to appear before the School Board and advise them of the action taken by the League.

CIVIL SERVICE REPORT

salary scale ranging for example from $180.00 to $225.00 per month. The City Council indicated that it would have the Commission act as a sort of an advisory committee as to salary increase within each of the classes. The council, however, has not acted officially and it may not accept the recommendation of the Commission. Mr. Kellogg suggested that the Commission is the proper body to have the power to determine the salary adjustment within each class."

Under the present system, the City Council acts upon recommendation from the heads of the departments only. In recommending higher salaries for particular subordinates, the heads of the departments are largely influenced, consciously or unconsciously, by the political strength and friendship of these employees. Thus the City Council in passing upon salary increase recommendations, acts blindly. Above all, the City Council is unprepared to meet intelligently the organized pressure of Civil Service employees for higher pay. This evil can be largely rectified by requiring the recommendations of the heads of the departments to be transmitted to the Civil Service Commission before being transmitted to the City Council.

We therefore recommend: That recommendations from the heads of the departments for salary increases be first referred to the Civil Service Commission for approval, and when endorsed by the approval of the Civil Service Commission, be then referred to the City Council; that in case of disapproval by the Commission, the matter be referred back to the head of the department, who may or may not then refer the same to the City Council. In this connection, we further recommend that the Commission be required to keep efficiency records, and that in passing upon the recommendations of the heads of the departments, it act upon the basis of these efficiency records and also competitive promotion tests, with due consideration to seniority.

Third Proposition: "The Corporation Council of this city made a decision last week whereby employees may be advanced from lower to a higher classification by the head of his department, delegating to him additional duties and without requiring the employee to take a civil service examination. If this decision is allowed to stand, the heads of the departments could evade the Civil Service rules and the Commission would be powerless to stop them."

This ruling of the Corporation Counsel, if adopted, would undermine the foundation of Civil Service. The effect of such a ruling can best be illustrated by considering the case of a clerk in the City Engineer's office being promoted, without examination, to Deputy City Engineer. We therefore recommend: That promotions be granted only upon competitive Civil Service examinations, taking into consideration, however, the applicant's previous service with the city, and giving Civil Service employees preference over applicants not under Civil Service when other qualifications are equal.

Fourth Proposition: "The salary schedule should be revised from time to time to meet the ever-changing cost of living. Power could be given to the Commission to study and revise salary schedules, and each year, before the budget is made up, to make a report to the said Council, asking them to approve the new schedules."

The Civil Service Commission is better able to obtain facts regarding the cost of living, and better able to devote the time for such investigation than is the City Council or any other organization of the city. We therefore recommend: That the Commission be authorized to investigate living conditions and make recommendations regarding salary schedules to the City Council.

Fifth Proposition: "The matter of the retirement of the superannuated employees (the possibility of giving the Commission the power to have an expert employment man on the job to weed out inefficient men)."

Let us first consider the effect of a retirement age without a pension. A man knowing that he is to die at a certain date is apt to be less hopeful or ambitious than one knowing he will die sometime. Similarly, a Civil Service employee knowing he is to be retired, with a pension, as soon as he reaches a certain age, is apt to become indifferent and inefficient. Further if all employees had to be retired upon reaching a certain age, it would work an injustice to those who were still efficient and would deprive the city of some of its most valuable employees.

Let us now consider the effect of retiring Civil Service employees with pensions.

As to the plea for pensions on the ground of humanity. The average industrious citizen in private business or employment is as useful and as much a part of his government as the average Civil Service employee. Therefore, to pension the latter on the ground of humanity would be class favoritism. Logically, if there is to be any old age pension, it should be made universal for all citizens.

As to the plea of inadequate pay. The following pay of Seattle Civil Service employees is presented to illustrate that the city Civil Service wages and salaries are fair.

Common labor, Street car conductors and Motormen—$4.75 to $5.25 a day.

Plumbers—$7.25 to $8.00 a day.

Machinist—$7.50 a day.

Carpenters—$6.50 a day.

Typists—$100 to $135 a month

Clerk-stenographers, Law-stenographers, Clerks, Registration clerks—$140 to $165 a month.

Bookkeepers—$170 to $190 a month.

Furthermore, the earnings of Civil Service employees are not depleted by periods of unemployment, overhead expenses and competition. Their employment is secure during good behavior. There appears to be no necessity for giving pensions to our city Civil Service employees than to our well paid school teachers.

As to the plea of pension stimulating efficiency. Most of the large railroads and a number of the largest corporations in the United States have retirement and pension systems for their employees. Their object is to create good will, essential for efficiency, and to induce permanent service. Experience shows that they largely succeed in their object. However, let us analyze. The business of these corporations is to create wealth; it is but fair to distribute a portion of the profits to the employees, whether in the form of wages or pensions. There is concentrated responsibility from the manager down to the foreman; all inefficient men are weeded out early. Let us apply these two points to municipal government.

First: The business of a municipal corporation is to serve the public, not to make profits. Even in such departments as Water and Light, there is no attempt to make profits. Furthermore, every Civil Service employee, high and low, who aspires to the same rewards as in private business and professions could realize that he must pay the price, viz., enterprise, venture, risks, losses, unemployment, competition, struggle—things that are unknown in Civil Service.

Second: Under our present system of government, responsibility is divided and scattered; inefficient men are not weeded out. Pensions were granted to our Civil Service employees under the present system, efficiency could be increased only slightly; taxes would be increased considerably. As to the plea that in the absence of pensions, heads of departments do evade and postpone retiring many subannuated employees, particularly those who are in need. Our recommendations are aimed largely to meet this difficulty. On the other hand if there were a pension system, heads of departments would evade and postpone discharging many inefficient men until they reach the pension age.

A certain per cent might be withheld out of each month's wages or salary, and this fund turned over to the employee when he is retired, either in a lump sum or in installments. Such a plan of compulsory savings would, theoretically, cost the tax-payers nothing and would be beneficial. But we do not believe it would work in practice. For although at first the budget makers would not increase salaries or wages, yet when the time came for changing or increasing them, the budget makers would naturally base the net salary or wage upon the proper cost of living, taking into consideration the rank of the employee, and simply add the extra amount to be withheld.

We recommend: That no one over 45 years of age be employed in the city Civil Service. That upon a Civil Service employee reaching 65 years of age he be retired, unless both the head of his department and the Civil Service Commissioners decide to retain him. And if he is retained, that at the end of each year thereafter he be retired unless both the head of his department and the Civil Service Commissioners decide to retain him for the ensuing year. That voluntary savings or insurance on the part of every Civil Service employee, regardless of age, shall constitute a substantial credit in the efficiency rating and reports.

As to the proposition of giving "the Civil Service Commission the power to have an expert employment man on the job to weed out inefficient men." Experience has shown that under our present system the heads of the departments retain too many inefficient Civil Service employees. Removals must be made easier. However, to employ an expert for this purpose would in our judgment lessen the responsibility of the heads of the departments, and would create friction between them and such expert and distrust on the part of the employees. This would result in the Civil Service employees and the heads of the departments co-operating in concealing any inefficiencies. We recommend that the Civil Service Commissioners in addition to and independent of the heads of the departments, be authorized to remove any Civil Service employee for cause and upon Civil Service procedure. The Civil Service Commissioners are not under the personal relationship that exists between the head of a department and his subordinates, for which reason they are freer to exercise this power. This proposed remedy was adopted by the National Municipal League, and is incorporated in its model charter.

Sixth Proposition: "Civil Service rules should be modernized and presented as amendments to the charter of the city."

It is the opinion of the Committee that Civil Service Rules should be modernized and presented as amendments to the Charter of the city.

Under the present system a mayor appoints and can, if so inclined, force appointments or discharges by the fact of his power to remove any of the members of the Commission disregarding his recommendations.

In modernizing the rules we suggest that the Civil Service Commission itself be placed under Civil Service. Removals from the Commission should be made by a majority vote of the Council upon charges being preferred in accordance with Civil Service rules. Appointments should be made by the City Council from a list of eligibles obtained by competitive examinations framed by the Commission with the approval of the Council.

We have no further specific recommendations to make. We hope that the foregoing recommendations, if adopted, may rectify some of the evils existing under the present system. We are of the opinion, however, that these recommendations can rectify but a small part of these evils. In our former report we pointed out that Civil Service in its nature is supplementary, and we still adhere to the belief, that in that report we recommend, and the only effective plan for checking the looseness and inefficiency now existing not only under the Civil Service system of our city, but throughout the entire municipal government, would be the City Manager plan.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN D. HALL,

N. C. WEGNER,

M. H. VAN NUYS,

Chairman.

I, the undersigned member of the committee, concur in the foregoing report, except that I favor pensions for Civil Service employees on principle; and I would recommend a pension-system for Seattle Civil Service employees providing the city adopt a City Manager form of government.

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT TOPIC OF ADDRESS TO LEAGUE

Reported by Eimon L. Wienir

Donald A. McDonald, Prohibition Director for Washington and Alaska, addressed the Municipal League Tuesday noon on "Prohibition Enforcement". He was introduced by President James T. Lawler who described his work as "blazing a new trail in the administrative functions of government".

That public sentiment is after all the chief element in the enforcement of prohibition was the statement made by McDonald. "This fact has been evidenced in this state. In eastern Washington where the sentiment is strongly in favor of enforcement of the law, the officers have co-operated to a far greater extent than in Western Washington and it is virtually dry. Not only a majority but an overwhelming majority must be in favor of enforcement. There is still need for a campaign of education along this line. There is no violate the fundamental laws more excuse for the rich to violate the liquor laws than there is for the I. W. W. to violate the fundamental laws of the land. Both are in the same class.

"Another obstacle to the enforcement of the law is the fact that Canada is wet. During the war, in Canada, an order of Council was made forbidding the importation into Canada for a period of three years. Thus, in 1920, when the law began to be enforced in the United States, the Canadian stocks were greatly depleted and, consequently, liquor was selling in Seattle as high as twenty-five dollars a quart at that time. Since then Canada has had a Government dispensary system; according to their law, exportation of liquor into the United States is not a crime. When it is borne in mind that there are fifty-two automobile roads along the Canadian border, the difficulty of enforcing the prohibition law will be appreciated. Unless the Government is prepared to spend more money for men and boats, the stopping of illegal traffic of liquor will be difficult if not impossible. Of course, when Canada goes dry, the problem will be simplified.

Mr. McDonald cleverly disposed of the "moon shine" drinkers when he said "Let moon shine do its work!"

Mr. McDonald believes that a law consolidating certain phases of the work of the prohibition director with that of the Collector of Internal Revenue will be passed. That is, the license and permissive features of the law will be merged with the Collector's office; and enforcement feature will be merged with that of the Department of Justice. "We shall get more co-operation with the District Attorney's office when the merger takes place," declared McDonald.

Entering into the history of the prohibition, McDonald pointed out that the Continental Congress recognized the evil, and that Washington, in one of his addresses, declared that, "strong drink is the ruination of one-half of the working men of America". In 1830 Congress passed a law forbidding the sale of intoxicating liquor to the Indians.

The W. C. T. U. the organization which perhaps helped the most in accomplishing the reform, was founded in 1876. In 1893 the strong Anti-Saloon League was organized and in 1907 a movement began in the southern states with Alabama, practically making the whole southern section dry.

In 1915 there were only three states that did not have some form of prohibitory legislation. "The war hastened prohibition but it did not cause it entirely", stated McDonald.

In the fall of 1917 Congress submitted the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution. This amendment is peculiar in that it gave concurrent power of the Federal and State Government to legislate on the subject. Within two years three-fourths of the states had ratified the amendment and it became in force on January 16th, 1920.

The Voldsted law, passed in pursuance to the amendment is divided into three parts:

1. The war time prohibition which provided for the gap between the war time regulation and the pending of the going into force of the Eighteenth Amendment.

2. National or constitutional prohibition.

3. The use of liquor for commercial purposes. (In a bone-dry state like Washington, a Federal Government cannot issue permits to druggists for the use of intoxicating or liquor beverages, while in states like Illinois and California, under the Federal law, prescriptions, when obtained from physicians, can be filled by druggists.)

As a whole the Federal Act is not as drastic as our state law.

CHARTER REVISIONS FOR NEW YORK CITY

From National Municipal Review.

Measures are being taken in three different quarters (one of them of official character) which have as their object the radical revision of the Greater New York charter.

Senator Meyer has introduced a resolution in the state legislature authorizing the appointment of a legislative committee to consist of five assemblymen and four senators, which shall inquire into the defects of the present charter and report back its recommendations and remedies before February 1, 1922. A non-partisan citizens' committee, composed of unofficial representatives of various civic organizations, is being formed with the intention of making a de novo inquiry into the administrative organization of the city, and of attempting to remove from the body of the charter those sections which properly should be incorporated in an administrative code. The Real Estate Board of New York already has initiated a detailed examination of the charter and announces its intention of making a determined effort for the virtual abolition of the county governments in so far as this can be accomplished without constitutional change. It also proposes to deprive the five borough presidents of their places in the board of estimates and apportionment, and to substitute in their stead the chamberlain and collector of revenue. Both of last named are at present appointive officers, but would become elective if the board's plan were carried out.

The creation, abolition and consolidation of various city departments and bureaus is contemplated. The most far-reaching proposal of this character is that a department of public works be created, which shall take over all public work, including docks and bridges and the construction of school buildings. This would involve the abolition of the department of plants and structures together with the public works departments of the five boroughs.

The situation thus presented is featured both by unusual opportunities and serious hazards in about equal proportions. There are few who will defend the present organization of the New York city government. On the other hand the several plans for relief which have been put forward are widely divergent. It is in this that the chief danger to early charter revision lies. With two voluntary groups at work, and the prospect of a legislative committee entering the lists at an early date, there is a possibility, too real to be taken lightly, that the great body of popular support, which readily could be enlisted in behalf of a single plan of revision, will be hopelessly divided against itself in sponsoring the adverse claims of three or more bodies.

BOARD EXTENDS WELCOME TO PERRY

By the Secretary

The Board of Trustees of the League extend to John H. Perry, the new publisher of the Post Intelligencer, a hearty welcome. There is a great need for a live newspaper in Seattle; one that will treat public questions without fear or favor. The new slogan of the Post-Intelligencer "Service, Accuracy, Sincerity and Justice" is certainly appealing. It is to be hoped that the P. I. will live up to these ideals for these four words express the aims and the ideals of a newspaper serving so great a city as Seattle.

Mr. Perry, in a recent address stated that the people own the P.-I. This certainly is true in sentiment, if not in fact. A newspaper can no longer be a private enterprise subject to the whims and call of one man. The public has a proprietary interest which should be respected. The Municipal League has, at various times in the past, suffered at the hands of local newspapers in that they have not given the League the publicity that it deserves both as to its committee reports and the reporting or addresses made before its membership. While such a condition has not prevailed to a great tent in the last year or so, vertheless more publicity for auge reports is always desirable. It adds strength to the league and it brings the needed information to the citizens of attle.

VIEWS AND REVIEWS

om National Municipal Review for April.

Mr. Hughes has resigned as president of the National Municipal League. He felt that the assumption of official duties at Washington would prevent his giving the necessary attention to League affairs and that he must therefore withdraw from its active headship. While the League loses a president the country gains a secretary of state, and the sincere good wishes of our officers and members go with him. He has been good enough to say that it has been a great pleasure to be associated with us and that he leaves our work with reluctance.

Mr. Hughes really believes in the League. His good humor, practical judgment and scientific attitude to governmental affairs will be sorely missed from our counsels.

Disinterested observers usually agree that county government superimposed upon a city of any considerable size is a useless extravagance. Political prodigality reaches its lowest level when numerous administration commissions, and elective boards with taxing powers are set up in the territory already under city and county governments. Multnomah county, Oregon, has eighty taxing authorities. At each regular election a voter of Portland is confronted by a ballot containing 87 separate public offices. The present legislature is considering a constitutional amendment consolidating most of the 80 taxing authorities into the city and county of Portland.

While Portland may be an extreme example, other cities are troubled in the same manner. Chicago, for example, or Seattle, St. Louis, Philadelphia or Cleveland. In Philadelphia, as was shown in the February Review, a number of independent agencies finance themselves out of city funds. If the council has not seen fit to appropriate money for some service, the corresponding agency, perhaps the county commissioners, secure a mandamus against the city treasurer ordering him to pay over the funds.

But whenever some exasperated citizens move to abolish the network of governmental units, politicians talk as if there were such a thing as a vested interest in the present disorganization. Access to the spoils of the existing system becomes hallowed by time, and interference is resented as an infringement upon a sacred right.

PERT TALKS ON THE BANKING SITUATION

Reported by Eimon L. Wiener. Prof. Vandever Custis of the School of Business Administration of the University of Washington addressed the League Tuesday noon on the subject of "The Banking Situation" touching particularly on the expansion of credit and the inflation of money. "Business today is in a condition of 'the morning after the night before'", stated Prof. Custis.

"During the first year of the war a billion dollars in gold was sent to the United States. This went into the bank reserves; as banks were able to loan more money and the increase stimulated business. After we got into the war, we imported less gold. It is my belief that the federal reserve system, as established, made for further increase of loans. In July of 1914, the per capita circulation in the United States was $34.64; in January, 1921, $59.12. In January 1914 the individual deposits in national banks amounted over six billion dollars. In July 1920, deposits totalled thirteen billions. It is evident that the amount of wealth produced between 1914 and 1920 could not have increased in the same proportion as is indicated in the per capita circulation and in the deposits in National banks.

"The contraction of credit was necessary after the war. The reserve ratio had decreased to such an extent that the Federal Reserve Banks said 'stop, put a check on loans.' This was simply 'advice' given by the Federal Reserve Bank to the National banks. It cautioned the National banks to loan only to the most essential industries but its words

PLEASE PAY YOUR DUES AT ONCE

The Secretary must make his annual report to the League on May 31st of this year. He is anxious to have the books in shape on or before May 20th when a certified accountant examines them. All remittances for dues should be in hand by that time. Naturally, the Secretary desires to make as good a showing as possible as to the financial standing of the League and your check will materially aid in making such showing. Checks should be mailed to the Municipal League, 510 Central Building, Seattle.

Capital Home of Secretary Weeks

The residence at Sixteenth and V streets, Washington, which has been leased by John W. Weeks, secretary of war.

TO VOTE ON REPORT TUESDAY

The report of the Civil Service Committee, which was published in full in the "News" two weeks ago, will be brought up for discussion and vote at Tuesday's meeting. The report, one of the most exhaustive written on the subject, was to have been voted upon at the last meeting but owing to the fact that Dr. Wilbur F. Craft of Washington was placed on the program at the last minute in addition to the speaker of the day, Prof. Curtis, the report could not be read in full. There promises to be a lively argument over certain sections of the report, the committee, itself, being divided in one or two instances over certain sections. If you are unable to find the issue of the "News" containing this report, a copy may be procured from the Brown-White Printing Company, publishers of the "News" at 1924 1st Avenue.

The annual drive for the increase of members will be made this coming week. The League always loses a number of members at this time of the year when the annual statement of dues are sent out and in order to show as good a record as that of last year, it is necessary to get many new members. It is hoped that every member of the League will aid the officers in getting at least one member. Whether you have an application card or not, if you will give the name of the prospective member to the Secretary a regular form of application will be sent him and some member of the League will be asked to see him.

was nominated for the presidency, has written to the Board of trustees a letter asking to have his name stricken from the list.

Mr. Helsell feels that other duties have a prior claim upon his time and that he would not be able to render such service, as President of the League, as is necessary. The letter has been referred to the nominating committee and the committee will fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Helsell's declining the nomination.

Mr. Fred W. Catlett, who has been nominated for trustee, has also declined to serve on the ground that his seven years of service as an officer of the League entitles him to a rest. "Some new blood in the organization," is needed, stated Mr. Catlett, "and it is my opinion that the League would be served better by having a new man in my Tuesday noon on the subject of place."

REFORMER URGES LEAGUE TO FAVOR ANTI-NARCOTIC LEGISLATION

Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts of the International Reform Bureau, Washington, D. C. addressed the League briefly Tuesday on the subject of "The Narcotic Bill" recently introduced in Congress by Senator Wesley L. Jones and Congressman John F. Miller. Dr. Craft pointed out the relationship between the morality and good business. "Seventeen nations have written in prohibition in the heart of the territory of Africa not because they desire to improve the morality of these nations, but because it was good business. So we should do likewise in China with reference to the exportation of narcotics. Last year the United States shipped more morphine into Japan for consumption in China than would be needed by the whole world for medicinal purposes for the period of one hundred years. A serious unfavorable impression has been left in China against the American trade for this reason."

The narcotic law, as introduced by Senator Jones and known as the "Seattle Bill", in substance, provides that exports of morphine, as well as other narcotics, can be sent only to authorized persons on proof that the narcotics will be used for medicinal purposes only and will not be exported.

On the conclusion of his address, a motion was made by Claude H. Anderson and seconded by James W. Reynolds to have the matter referred to the proper committee.

SEATTLE LIBRARY ISSUES ANNUAL REPORT FOR 1920

The Annual Report of the Seattle Public Library for the year 1920 shows substantial increase in all activities. There were circulated 1,828,496 volumes, an increase over 1919 of 202,363, being a per capita circulation of 5.79. The total registered borrowers Dec. 31, 1920, was 80,481, a gain over 1919 of 7,014.

This is the thirtieth report of the library and the fourteenth under the present librarian. The year 1920 therefore marked the close of the third decade in the library's history. Because of this fact the report draws some comparisons between the records for 1910 and the work of the library in 1920. A survey of a ten-year period is enlightening.

The following table and chart show in condensed form the progress made:

	1910	1920	% of Inc.
Volumes in library	128,309	335,509	161
Annual circulation	649,611	1,828,496	181
Circulation per capita	2.74	5.79	111
Number of borrowers	41,963	80,481	92
Population	237,194	315,652	33
Receipts from city	$146,538	$277,676	90
Salaries	$ 62,275	$192,740	209
Number of employees	94	158	68

The figures in the table and the chart which show the most striking contrast are those of circulation and appropriation. The circulation of books shows an increase of 181 per cent, while the receipts from the city have increased 90 per cent. This same contrast is shown in another way by that fact that the staff has increased in number 68 per cent as compared with 181 per cent increase in circulation.

In 1910 the library had six branches. It now has nine. Ten years ago only four of its branches were housed in permanent buildings belonging to the city. At the present time seven of the nine branches occupy their own buildings and a building for the eighth branch is under construction. The remaining branch occupies quarters in the old Georgetown City Hall, so that as soon as the Fremont Branch building is completed, all of the nine branches will be housed in buildings belonging to the city. The cost to the city for these buildings has been very slight as most of the funds were provided by Andrew Carnegie.

Since 1910 the following departments or features of work have been organized or greatly developed in order to promote the library's idea of service:

Municipal Reference division aids city officials and civic organizations in all questions of municipal legislation and administration.

Technology division supplies books and gives expert help to engineers, chemists, mechanics, and business men.

Schools division provides the best professional literature to teachers and puts class-room libraries in schools for the children.

High school libraries are supported and administered by the School Board, but the public library has aided in their reorganization and now maintains close co-operation with them.

Foreign-born residents are supplied with books in their own languages, with easy English readers, and with books which will inculcate in them the spirit of the true Americanism. The head of this work is familiar with a number of the languages.

Club women are given aid in preparing programs and papers.

Reports of heads of departments are printed in part giving in an interesting way a view of the work of this library as it is carried on from day to day.

NAVAL RESERVE CRUISE TO BE HELD SUNDAY

The First Naval Reserve Cruise which will last one day will leave the port commission dock at the foot of Bell street Sunday morning May 11 at 8:30 and will return that evening. ANNUAL DINNER PLANS BEING COMPLETED

Tickets are now available for the annual dinner which is to be held May 31st at 6:30 at Blanc's Cafe. The price is one dollar per plate. Blanc's have promised to furnish an excellent dinner. The program committee, headed by James W. Reynolds, is promising an unusually attractive program and this, together with the election of officers which is to take place that night, should form one of the most interesting meetings ever held by the League.

Dean Stephen I. Miller who was to have given the address of the meeting has written that he will be unable to attend. The program committee has in mind, however, other notables for the program and will undoubtedly be able to announce a speaker of unusual merit for that evening. The Board of Trustees passed a ruling that members only shall be permitted to attend this meeting. Space at Blanc's is restricted to one hundred fifty guests and, consequently, there is no room for outsiders. Reservations for the dinner may be made by phoning the Secretary "Main 476" or by writing to the office. Each member of the Board of Trustees is responsible for the sale of five tickets; and it is expected that at least one hundred fifty tickets will be sold. Please make your reservations as early as possible.

EXPERT TALKS ON THE BANKING SITUATION

of caution were not heeded. The Federal Reserve banks then raised the rates of discount and the Federal Reserve ratio began raising until now it has reached 59 per cent, a fairly conservative ratio.

"The deflation movement caused wholesale prices to be reduced first. Agricultural prices fell from the first. Banks found that they could not get their loans paid because the persons affected did not have the money to pay.

"I doubt as to whether there really was a buyers' strike. I believe that it was inability more than unwillingness to buy that created a situation called the 'buyers' strike'.

"The mere lending of money by banks to individuals is not necessarily the cause of rise in prices. If, however the Banks lend to individuals who employ the money for purposes of speculation and for purposes of bidding against each other, rise in prices is bound to result. The Federal Reserve has averted a panic of as great import as those of 1873, 1883 and 1907. By means of the Federal Reserve, we were able to stand the strain better. It has served as an organized agency to put a check on expansion of credit before it becomes of too serious a nature."

Touching on the labor question Dr. Custis said, "The attitude of labor must be taken into account in the present situation. The real complaint made is not that labor wants more pay but that it won't do the work."

ECONOMY PLEDGE MADE

Pledging economy in governmental costs, representatives of the city, county, port and school board, after conferring this week in the County Commissioners' office on ways to reduce taxation decided to create a committee to study tax reduction thoroughly.

Members of the School Board expressed the hope that a 4-mill reduction would be effected in that levy this year, and city councilmen held out hope for a possible reduction in the city's levy. County officials declared their intention to reduce expenses wherever possible, but members of the Port Commission said it might be necessary to levy a tax for the port for the first time in three years.

Dr. W. T. Christensen of the Port Commission was chosen chairman of the committee to study ways of reducing taxes in all four branches of government, and it was recommended that each of the bodies represented delegate one or more representatives as members of the committee.

WHAT HAS THE LEAGUE DONE?

Many members of the League who have been inactive during the past year but who sympathize with the League activities have made inquiry concerning the work of the League during the current year. A summary of the work will be given by the President at the annual dinner which will be held at Blanc's Cafe, May 31st at 6:30 P. M., but a busy resume will be given to satisfy those making the inquiry. First of all, there were the reports of the Candidates' Investigating Committee upon city, county and school candidates for office. The members compromising this committee gave all their time unselfishly during the greater portion of the week, questioning the candidates and formulating the report. If the League has not accomplished anything besides this during the year--which it has--it would be a sufficient excuse for its existence and would justify the support given to it by the citizens of Seattle; for these reports, rendered by disinterested persons and published in the daily newspapers of the City, have given information to the citizenry which is concededly invaluable.

The street railway situation has received the earnest study of the public utilities committee, headed by O. B. Thorgrimson; and various matters affecting the transportation problem have been touched upon in its reports. Mayor Caldwell favored the League with a thoroughly prepared report on this subject.

The financial status of the schools, the State School Code Bill as proposed, the construction of Roosevelt High School Building and the general school situation has received a great deal of

The Secretary must make his annual report to the League on May 31st of this year. He is anxious to have the books in shape on or before May 20th when a certified accountant examines them. All remittances for dues should be in hand by that time. Naturally, the Secretary desires to make as good a showing as possible as to the financial standing of the League and your check will materially aid in making such showing. Checks should be mailed to the Municipal League, 510 Central Building, Seattle.

MEIER TO BE SPEAKER AT ANNUAL DINNER

"Walter F. Meier, corporation counsel, will be the principal speaker at the annual dinner which will be held May 31st at 6:30 P. M. at Blanc's Cafe", announced James W. Reynolds, chairman of the League's program committee. Mr. Meier will take as his subject "Seattle's Greatest Needs". Besides the annual election of officers, the annual reports of the President and Secretary and the Treasurer, there will be a "session of the City Council". The import of this session as well as its novelty is being held secret by the chairman of the program committee.

He announced, however, that it would form one of the most novel program stunts that has ever been given by the League. A number of the younger men of the League have the stunt in charge. Though they are holding the details of the plans secret, promise has been given that it will be extremely interesting as well as entertaining.

The Secretary has issued an appeal to the membership urging it to take reservations for the annual dinner without further delay. The tickets are only one dollar per plate, the reservation being limited to one hundred fifty. Those desiring to attend the banquet should phone the Secretary at the earliest moment possible.

COMMISSIONER TALKS ON CIVIL SERVICE REPORT

Reported by Eimon L. Wienir.

The report of the Civil Service Committee of the Municipal League was the chief topic of discussion at the League's meeting Tuesday noon. After a reading of the report by the chairman of the Committee, M. H. Van Nuys, President Lawler called upon J. Y. C. Kellogg, one of the Civil Service Commissioners, to address the League on the report.

Mr. Kellogg said in part: "As to one of the report in effect prohibiting city employees to engage in a general strike, I believe in the conclusions arrived at by the Committee; an amendment to city charter is the way to get it."

As to the second part of the report: "It is not the desire of the Commission to have too much supervision of the employees. At present increase of salaries is granted only upon length of service. Increase of salaries should, however, be determined upon merit and efficiency as well as upon length of service. Efficiency dating does not mean very much at the present time. It can mean something, however, if there is more co-operation between the heads of departments and the Commission. The Commission has a new plan of efficiency rating but we desire a body like the Municipal League to aid in the preparation of such a plan and enforce its working out with the City Council. At present the relation between the Commission and the City Council is amicable. There may come a time, however when such friendliness will not exist and then an impartial body like the League will be needed more than ever.

"As to the third part of the report which deals with the ruling of the Corporation Counsel with respect to the head of departments being able to promote any employee without such employee taking Civil service examination. I may say that there has been a disposition between the heads of departments not to violate the city charter; so that for the present at least, the situation is not serious.

The Municipal League has accomplished from fifty to seventy five per cent of the civil service reforms of Seattle and it is therefore fitting that this body should recommend, as its Committee has recommended in the fourth part of the report, revision of salary schedules from time to time. Salary schedules once adopted should not stand for all time but should be modified from year to year. If the City Council does not want the Commission to make such revision, then some other expert body should do it; for, on the whole, it is necessary, it being apparent that living costs vary from time to time.

"As to the fifth part of the report, namely the retirement of super-annuated employees, the Commission now has the power to reurn super-annuated employees to their jobs. The Commission, however, has not exercised its power thus far. I believe, however, it is a good thing for the Municipal League committee to continue studying the question and, in thus doing, help the Commission to determine the age limit, etc. As to the plan of voluntary saving recommended by the Committee. I can say that the real test of that plan is: if the employees want that kind of "pension" system, they are entitled to it.

"Undoubtedly there is at present over-lapping in the work of the various city departments. Efficiency engineers could cut down the cost of Government greatly but an efficiency survey should not be made only every ten years but every year. The Commission can make such a survey if the people want it to do so.

"As to the next recommendation of the Committee that the city charter should be modernized with respect to its civil service provisions: I thoroughly believe in the recommendation of the Committee. Amendments to the City Charter should not be made piecemeal but should be revised as a whole. Many new amendments are needed and many old provisions in the Charter are out of date and should be eliminated."

Mr. James A. Haight, who followed Mr. Kellogg, attacked the first provision of the report by saying that penalty for engaging in a general strike is too severe. The penalty as recommended by the Committee is discharge from service of the city and from that time on becoming ineligible to any Civil Service position. Mr. Haight urged that instead of that provision that suspensory power be exercised by the Commission and that a man thus engaged in a general strike be suspended for such period of time as may be determined upon by the Commission.

Mr. Haight also attacked that provision of the report which fixed the age limit at forty-five when an employee could enter the City Government. "As city employment does not, as a rule, call for initiative as it does in private life, I believe the age limit should be increased to sixty. Many of the employees in the Civil Service to day of the age of sixty or over, are rendering their greatest service to the community for, by reason of their age and experience, such employees have become valuable indeed to the Department."

Mr. Haight further stated that he would discourage any young man from entering the Civil Service for, as a rule, such young men lose their initiative and their enthusiasm for a private career after being in the city service for a while.

R. M. White also directed an attack on the entire report on the ground that it restricts the number of employees to strike at will. "This is un-American," he declared.

NOMINATING COMMITTEE PRESENTS ITS SUPPLEMENTAL REPORT

In view of the fact that both nominees for office of President of the Municipal League have declined to accept the nomination, we, the undersigned committee, do hereby bring in a supplemental report and do nominate for the office of President the following:

Claude H. Anderson.

John D. Hall.

Respectfully submitted

ARTHUR H. HUTCHINSON

Chairman

JAMES W. REYNOLDS

JAMES A. HAIGHT

S. M. BRACKETT

* * *

Claude H. Anderson who was nominated by the Board of Trustees for President is at present the head of the Federal Board for Vocational Training, Thirteenth District, with headquarters at Seattle. He has been a resident of Seattle for four years and has been actively identified with the work of the League for the past two years. Last year Mr. Anderson was the chairman of the membership committee and was responsible for bringing in the sixty-five new members to the League. He is 35 years of age.

John D. Hall is engaged in the real estate and insurance business with offices in the Arctic Building. He was chairman of the committee investigating into the Port Commission Resolution abolishing the executive secretaryship at the time that C. France was the holder of that office. He has been a faithful and conscientious supporter of the League.

HOUSE BILL NO. 174 PETITIONS MUST BE IN AT ONCE

An urgent appeal is directed to the members of the Municipal League who are circulating referendum petitions House Bill No. 174. "All petitions should have been in on or before May 20th," stated Carl F. Brannin. An extension of time, however, has been granted to Municipal League members and such petitions must be in by Thursday noon of May 26th. The members of the Municipal League are urged to heed the appeal of the secretary of the referendum committee to turn in petitions by that time.

When it is recalled that the Act, in effect, prohibits every new public service company from operating unless it obtains from the State a "Certificate of public necessity and convenience", it will be appreciated how great a need there is for this petition to succeed, stated Mr. Brannin. The headquarters of the referendum committee is located at 428 Railway Exchange Building, Phone Elliott 4564.

LEAGUE TO VOTE ON CIVIL SERVICE REPORT TUESDAY

The League will vote on the report of its civil service committee Tuesday noon. The meeting Tuesday will be devoted to discussion of the report and a final vote will be taken at the conclusion of the meeting. The League membership is urged to read the report of the committee that was printed in the issue of the "News" on May 7th and come prepared to discuss and vote intelligently upon it. In another column of this paper is published the statement made Tuesday on the floor of the League by J. Y. C. Kellogg, a member of the Civil Service Commission. The report is one of the best that has ever been presented to the League on that subject and should receive attention of the members. Every League member should be present at Tuesday's meeting to participate in the discussion and to vote upon the report.

WHAT HAS THE LEAGUE DONE?

attention from the membership and from specially appointed committees.

The tax problems of our citizens have also received considerable study and a League committee is now at work in an effort to devise ways and means of lowering the tax rate.

At each meeting of the League interesting and timely speakers have appeared before the League at its Tuesday meetings and a variety of information concerning the affairs of the city, county and state has been given to the members.

We trust that the foregoing will give some idea of the activities of the League even though it is a hurriedly prepared statement.

Secretary.

Our examination embraced a verification of the bank transactions with the Northwest Trust & State Bank and the balance shown by the records as being on deposit in the bank as at April 30, 1921, is in agreement with the balance shown on the bank statement, and we have received written confirmation thereof from the depository.

We are informed that the outstanding accounts payable as at the close of business April 30, 1921, were as follows:

E. L. Weinir, salary	$725.00

Total	$941.30

An item of $240.00 due Mr. Wienir, Secretary of the League, as at April 30th, for office rent, has been, we are informed, waived by him, and he informs us that to the best of his knowledge the accounts set out above constitute the whole of the indebtedness of the League as at April 30, 1921, which has been decreased by the sum of $350.00 as already stated.

Respectfully submitted,

Claude H. Anderson, the newly elected President of the Municipal League, is a native of the state of New Jersey where, for a number of years, he was acting as executive secretary of a municipal research bureau for the federated cities in New Jersey. Immediately prior to the war President Anderson served with distinction as chairman of the National Council of Defense of the State of New Jersey and shortly after the signing of the Armistice came to Seattle as the

CORPORATION COUNSEL ADDRESSES LEAGUE ON CITY'S NEEDS

Necessity of team thought and action for the development of the community as a whole was emphasized by Corporation Counsel Walter F. Meier in an address on "Seattle's Greatest Needs" before the Municipal League at its annual dinner and election last Tuesday evening.

Meier declared a great city cannot be built on natural resources and advantages only, but by "inventiveness, a progressive spirit and team-thinking on the part of the inhabitants of the community."

Unselfish Community Spirit

"Individual gain is many times a community loss and we can never appreciate the result that may be accomplished in our community until we see the product of an unselfish community spirit having for its aim the development of the whole, knowing that when the entire community progresses there must of necessity be a corresponding individual benefit or advantage," Meier said.

Referring to needs of municipal government, Meier declared the elimination of politics essential.

"When a municipal corporation such as our city has become engaged in the conduct of great proprietary businesses, every tendency to exploit municipal enterprises for political purposes should be effectually crushed," he said. "Unless this attitude becomes a settled conviction on the part of our inhabitants, we may expect the public to suffer for want of proper service or to pay more for the service rendered than it is worth.

municipal government there must be an enlargement of constructive criticism and a minimizing of destructive condemnation. Destructive criticism is the meat upon which political Caesars feed. Our local government as constituted at present is particularly free from what is ordinarily denominated politics, yet it is for us to look to the future in order to protect our municipal football of politics.

"I trust that this organization may ever use its influence toward the end that constructive policies may be adhered to in order to ban effectually from public life the demagogue or 'glory grabber.'"

Discussing the necessity for retrenchment in public expenditure Meier urged the advisability of consolidating county and city governments. He pointed out the duplication of work under the present system and the saving that could be effected by combining county and city offices performing similar work.

Tells of Budget

Councilman C. B. Fitzgerald, called upon for a speech, outlined briefly the procedure under which the budget for the city government is prepared and declared that the amount raised for this purpose last year to have been approximately $7,000,000. This year, he said, it is hoped to reduce this amount ten per cent.

James T. Lawler, in his speech as retiring president, reviewed the league's work during the past year and emphasized the service rendered by the organization to the community, while Eimon L. Wiener, the league's secretary, pointed out the need of a larger membership.

The Municipal League exists to represent the citizens' interest in improving and extending the services rendered all of us by our city government," Lawler declared. "The organization informs itself on questions of importance through carefully prepared committee reports and then places before the public the information thus secured.

"Public opinion on civic matters can become crystallized for the public weal only after a thorough discussion of all phases of a question and for the purpose of facilitating such discussion the league functions through some twenty committees and able speakers upon subjects in their respective lines in addresses at the league's weekly luncheons."

Reports submitted at the meeting showed the last year one of the most successful in the league's history, with a membership of approximately 600.

OFFICERS ELECTED AT DINNER

head of the Federal Board for Vocational Training of the Thirteenth District.

Mr. Anderson, as President of the League, comes fully equipped with knowledge of Municipal affairs and problems, and the League is indeed to be congratulated on securing so capable leadership for the coming year.

The other officers of the League have been active in its work for many years.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMITTEE REPORT APPROVAL

Owing to the fact that last week's issue of the Municipal News was given up to the printing of the roster of membership, no announcement was carried of the fact that at the meeting of Tuesday, May 23rd, the report of the Civil Service committee of the League, which was published in full in a prior issue, was adopted in full with only one modification, the word "general" appearing before the word "strike" being eliminated.

THE ANNUAL DINNER AND MEETING A SUCCESS

It is indeed gratifying to announce that the annual dinner held at Blanc's last Tuesday evening was a complete success from every standpoint. The excellence of the food was generally commented upon while Blanc's String Orchestra rendered three excellent selections, and the Sigma Nu Quartette supplied very pleasing numbers. Mr. Meier's address, a report of which is given in another column of this paper, was one of the most forceful and inspiring ever given to the League.

PRESIDENT'S LETTER

By James T. Lawler.

To the Members of the Municipal League:

Herewith is my report as President of the League for the year about to expire. At the outset I wish to impress upon this gathering, and upon all of the League members the purposes of the League and in doing so I shall merely quote Article II of the League's constitution, as follows:

"The purposes of the League shall be to induce citizens to take an active part in municipal affairs; to secure the choice of competent officials and the faithful performance by them of their duties, to further wholesome legislation for and to disseminate information concerning the City of Seattle, to promote municipal improvements and to make living conditions clean, healthful and attractive."

The Municipal League exists to represent the citizens' interest in improving and extending the services rendered all of us by our City Government. Government comes close to all of us every day--in our homes, on the street, in our professions, in business. It makes a real difference to every one of us whether it is well or poorly run.

The Municipal League has a membership of about six hundred men. It is the only organization in the City that is devoting its entire energies to improving conditions thru better City government. It is clean cut, non political, non-sectarian. It listens to any of its members; in fact it is a clearing house of municipal information--also a leaning house; it gives practically every member a chance to serve on the committee that best suits his qualifications and enables him to furnish real citizenship service.

Service is rendered to the community--first, by the membership of the League informing itself on questions of importance thru carefully prepared committee reports; and second, by placing before the public at large the information thus secured.

Public opinion on civic matters can become crystallized for the public weal only after a thorough discussion of all phases of a question, and for the purpose of facilitating such education the League functions, thru some twenty-odd committees and thru able speakers, upon subjects in their respective lines, in addresses delivered at the League's weekly luncheons.

Seattle Municipal News

The League publishes the Seattle Municipal News, a weekly publication, devoted solely to the betterment of Seattle. The News contains weekly an accurate account of local happenings of civic interest, especially those dealing with our City Government. The paper also serves as the vehicle for the publication of the committee reports of the League. There are over twenty standing committees of the League, which investigate and report on practically all matters of public importance.

Who Should Subscribe To The Municipal News?

First, every taxpayer in King County should receive this paper. True, its circulation is practically confined to the membership of the League, but this membership should be greatly increased when the League's purposes are considered.

Second, everyone who is interested in the civic development of the community.

Third, those who merely want accurate information concerning what transpires in our city and county government.

To the taxpayer as well as to any other person interested in Municipal matters, the reports of the League committees which are published in the News from time to time are invaluable. Especially noteworthy are the reports of the committees upon the various propositions that are submitted to the voters and the reports of the investigating committees upon the candidates for municipal office. Every citizen ought to be interested in reading these non-partisan reports.

The League has in the past and is at present doing everything in its power to hold down the cost of government and it can be truthfully said that directly, thru the League's action, hundreds of thousands of dollars have been saved for the taxpayers of King County. The accomplishments of the League have been done without any flare of trumpets or brass band accompaniment, but in a cool, dispassionate, businesslike manner, often permitting someone else to receive the credit for the good work accomplished.

I have already stated that the League is not in any sense a political organization and never has been. When the League was organized in 1910, with our present mayor, Hugh M. Caldwell, as its first president, it was foreseen that attempts might be made to secure control of the organization for political purposes, and consequently it was provided in the by-laws that the "President shall be elected for one year and may not succeed himself in office." It has also been the policy not to re-elect members of the Board of Trustees. This body, which has the general supervision of the work of the League, is composed of the officers who are elected annually, and ten other members, five of whom are elected annually for a term of two years each. It will thus be seen that the majority of the Board of Trustees change each year. This same policy is followed out in a general way in the appointment of committees. It is further provided in the constitution that whenever an officer or trustee becomes a candidate for public office, he thereupon automatically ceases to hold such office in the League. In the League's efforts to assist the voter in selecting good men to municipal office, records of the candidates are given in full and in some cases recommendations are made. It is a fact that these recommendations have been made with absolute impartiality without fear or favor. Members of the Municipal League have run for office and yet have failed to secure the endorsement in the published report.

Brief Summary of the League's Activities During Current Year

Too much time would be required to review all of the League's activities during the year. Only the most important will be mentioned. It is customary to mention first of all the work of the candidates investigating committee upon city, county and school candidates for office. As our Secretary so well stated in a recent issue of the News, "The members comprising this committee gave all their time unselfishly during the greater portion of the week, questioning the candidates and formulating the report." Second, the report of the special committee on the school administrative code. This was senate bill No. 10, relating to the revision of the Common School Code of the State of Washington. Third, the report of the Special Committee (not yet complete), which is investigating charges of mismanagement against the present administration of the Seattle Public Library. Fourth, the comprehensive report of the Civil Service Committee on six propositions submitted to it for investigation and report. This report was perhaps the most complete and exhaustive ever presented to the League on the subject. Discussion and debate following a reading of the report consumed the time of three meetings. Fifth, Report of the special committee on the proposed construction of the Roosevelt high school building. Sixth, the matter now pending before the committee on public welfare, concerning the investigation of charges that our public officials are using the City automobiles for their private use and that public officials have permitted the purchase of expensive automobiles (not needed for public use) to be used by employees and their families and maintained with taxpayers money. Seventh, referendum on House Bill No. 174.

This matter was first brought to the League's attention thru the vigilance of one of our most active members, James A. Haight. Interest in the matter became at once widespread and resulted in an organized effort under the title "H. B. 174 Referendum Committee" to bring about the referendum of this Bill, known as the certificate of necessity measure. Eighth, other matters of importance include the street railway situation, which received the earnest study of the Public Utilities Committee. Mayor Caldwell favored the League with a thoroughly prepared report on this subject. A special committee of which Jas. A. Haight was chairman investigated and reported on five proposed amendments to the City charter and on two proposed bond issues, one submitting to the voters an issue of two hundred thousand dollars of general obligation bonds for the acquisition and improvements of play fields and play grounds and the re-surfacing of Park Boulevards and parkways. A special committee was also appointed to study the plan of establishing a bureau of Municipal Research. Mayor Caldwell during the year went on record as favoring such a bureau, stating that, "Observation of other places and accomplishments there, has impressed me with the desirability of some such plan for Seattle."

LEAGUE REPRESENTATIVE HEADS TAX REDUCTION BODY

Seattle's campaign for tax retrenchment was aggressively launched when thirty-eight citizens, representing as many city-wide fraternal and civic organizations, formed a tax reduction council at a representative meeting held last night in the Masonic Club rooms in the Arcade Building. J. T. Lawler, representing the Municipal League, was selected permanent president.

With organization details completed and officers and committees selected, the new tax reduction council is ready to embark on a tax retrenchment campaign, as launched by the Post-Intelligencer. Investigations of public expenditures and the perusal of reports alleging lavish use of public funds is the first task confronting the council; then follows the work of making conclusions and submitting insistent recommendations to tax-making bodies.

"This organization typifies the fact that the people of Seattle are masters—not servants" declared Lawler, after his election as president of the council. "We must put up a fighting front and storm the fort. If we don't get lower taxes, we'll control sufficient votes to drive those officials responsible out of public office."

Other officers elected were: P. C. Stoess, representing Voter's Information League, vice president, and Homer M. Hill, Taxpayers' League, secretary.

Comprising the executive committee are George C. Condon, Seattle Yacht Club; Frank C. Kean, Ballard Commercial Club; Charles A. Lunan, Seattle Lodge No. 10, Knights of Pythias; Arthur Gerbel, Master Builders' Association and Associated In-

PRESIDENT CLAUDE H. ANDERSON

Will have something very important to say to every Municipal League Member and to every taxpayer of Seattle and King County

Tuesday Noon, June 14, 1921

at BLANC'S CAFE (Opposite County-City Bldg)

The meeting next week should be the largest of the year. President Claude H. Anderson will be installed into office and will have an important message to deliver to the membership. He urges the members not to fail him in his attempt to build up the League into the most important factor for good government in the city. If you haven't been in the habit of coming to the meetings now, with the coming of the new administration, is a good time to begin. League meetings are not only a duty they are a genuine pleasure as some sixty to seventy faithful attendants will testify. You have the roster of the membership. Call up a friend or two and ask him to join you at Blanc's for lunch Tuesday. Should you desire an extra copy of the roster phone the Secretary at Main 0476 and he will get it over to you. Let's have a little pep!

THE SECRETARY.

dustries, and Mrs. E. E. Stewart. This committee will also have charge of financing the campaign.

The first step of the meeting was the adoption of an organization plan, presented by Stoess. "Its objects and efforts are to be confined for the immediate present to determining in each department of city, county, school and Port of Seattle where expenditures can be cut down without injuring or materially affecting the public service of such departments." It was stated this organization in its work will regard the conduct of public affairs and the spending of public money solely as a business matter.

The findings of the council are to be submitted to tax-levying bodies in their budgets for the 1921-1922 levy. Two issues—that of a budget law for Seattle and halting construction of the Roosevelt school—were submitted last night and will be considered by the executive committee for the next meeting, to be called in a few days.

Members of the tax reduction council and the organizations they represent are as follows:

Taxpayers' League, George F. Meacham; Seattle Retail Grocers' Association, F. Kainair; Voters' Information League, P. C. Stoess; Seattle Automobile Club John W. Roberts; Building Owners and Managers' Association, J. T. Curran; Seattle Chapter American Association Engineers, R. R. Montell; Danish Brotherhood, R. Rasmussen; Knights of Khorassan.

DEAN CONDON ADDRESSES LEAGUE ON HOTEL PROPOSITION

Reported By Eimon L. Wienir.

John T. Condon, Dean of the University of Washington Law School, addressed the Municipal League last Tuesday on the matter of the construction of a hotel on the University site as proposed by the Metropolitan Building Company of this city. Condon was introduced by President Claude H. Anderson.

Condon, at first, discussed the original lease entered into between the Metropolitan Building Company and the University Regents, he exhibited a map of the land included in the lease; he pointed out that the original lease expires on November 1st, 1954; that the Company was to pay forty thousand dollars per year from 1912 to 1922; from 1923 to 1932 it was to pay eighty thousand dollars; from 1932 to 1942, one hundred thousand dollars and from 1942 to 1954, one hundred forty thousand dollars.

Condon further stated that the University had recently sustained a damage loss of two million dollars, 40½ per cent of the Olympic tract being wiped out by the storm that swept through that section of the country, and that the University was principally concerned with the Seattle property because it was one of the chief endowments of the University, out of which it is hoped the University may be supported.

"When the Metropolitan Building Company was organized in 1907, its stock was not paid for; the lease had been assigned by James A. Moore to the Metropolitan Building Company who issued bonds and gave one share of common stock as a bonus for each bond sold; so that present holders of the common stock have paid nothing for their stock.

"Modifications of the original lease have been asked for repeatedly by the Company. The University Regents, for example modified the lease in so far as it effected temporary structures on Fourth Avenue on the West side between Union and University Streets by granting the company an extension for a period of ten years, practically giving a gift to the company of $500,000. This privilege enabled the company to build the Stewart Building without any cost to it."

Condon attacked the report of the Hotel Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, declaring that the committee did not notify University officials of their investigation nor invite University representatives to confer with the committee. "The report had been drafted, had been approved by the Trustees of the Chamber of Commerce, and was in the hands of the newspapers when the University was applied to for a special meeting of the Board of Regents to consider the offer. An immediate answer to the proposal was demanded. The company got it, and now they don't like it."

Condon pointed out that there were about two blocks involved in the requested extension, the Company asking for a nineteen-year extension on the property which the proposed hotel site includes, the Arena, the Metropolitan Theater, the block west on Fourth Avenue between University and Seneca. The latter extension is asked for on the ground that this area, some 34,000 square feet, is necessary for construction of a heating plant. The heating plant of the University of Washington covers four thousand square feet. Condon denied that more than eight times the space was necessary for the hotel heating plant than is necessary for the University's heating plant. He also ridiculed the idea of the Metropolitan Theater and the Arena being an integral part of the hotel, saying that even if the extension were needed for the property on which the hotel is to be erected, there certainly is no necessity for extending the lease on the Metropolitan Theater or on the Arena.

Further commenting on the Company's demand for the block west of the proposed hotel site, Condon said "The Company claims they must have the block across from the proposed site for the construction of a heating plant; that the hotel must have an alley way and that there is none such in existence or can be in existence according to the plans. But I want to call their attention to the fact that in leasing the Metropolitan Theater to Klaw & Erlanger for a period of thirty-two years, they contracted to maintain an alley way on the identical property they now propose for a hotel site; so that, to my mind, their argument that this large tract of ground is necessary for the proposed heating plant has no merit in it whatsoever."

Condon admitted that a hotel, such as proposed, would enhance the district but pointed out that under the proposal the University would be getting ground rent only on the entire area for the extended nineteen year period only. Condon made a comparison between the lease extended by C. D. Stimson to the Greater Theaters Company on the property located at Fifth and Pike with that extended to the Metropolitan Theater Co. Stimson leased two lots for a period of twenty-five years. For this he was to receive a consideration of $36,000.00 a year, the lessee paying all of the taxes, and at the end of the twenty-five year period the building erected by the Theater Company, at an expense of one quarter of a million dollars reverts to the lessor. "The Metropolitan Building Company does not pay enough rent to pay the taxes on the property today and they do not have to pay any taxes because the property is University property. What taxes they do pay is on the leasehold value and this is a comparatively trivial amount, $15,000."

"They say that it is necessary to have this nineteen-year extension because the hotel cannot be financed under fifty years. I want to quote Straus & Company who have financed hotels of character for many years. This Company finances all propositions on a fifteen to eighteen year basis for that, according to statistics, is the life of a first-class hotel; in other words the hotel must pay for itself within fifteen or twenty years, otherwise it is not a good financial proposition. And the reason for this is that first-class hotels within that period of time go out of date and become second rate." Condon pointed out that in the City of New York many of the largest hotels built but fifteen years ago are today being remodeled into office buildings, and in nearly every instance are no longer used for their original purpose.

"On January 31st, 1918 the Metropolitan Building Company, by its own statements, showed that it made a $213,000 profit that year, after amortising the bonds and paying bond interest. Since the bonds have still seventeen years to run from that date the Company will have earned at least, at the end of that time, approximately three million dollars.

"I believe that they will have made, at the expiration of the lease, a far greater sum than that, but grant that it will only be three million dollars, it seems to me that not the University should take the chance in the building of this hotel but the Metropolitan Building Company."

Lawyers Who Are Members of the League—Attention!

The publishers of the News, Brown-White Co., have offered to print the "News" without charge to the League if enough legals are obtained from the lawyers to cover the expense of publication. An average of eight legals a week are necessary. No greater charge is made by the "News" for publishing legals than is made by any other news paper. You can help the League by calling Main 6282 or mailing them to 1924 1st Avenue.

By a resolution adopted at the last meeting of the Board of Trustees the meeting day has been changed from Wednesday to Monday noon. The newly elected president expects every member of the Board to attend regularly each meeting. The board will continue to meet at the Elk's Club.

It is hoped that the member will save last week's issue of the "News" containing the complete roster of membership. This list will come in frequent use during the coming League year. Please save it.

Outlook And Suggestions For The Coming Year

The outlook for the coming year is bright. We have passed thru a period of apparent apathy and indifference on the part of many of our citizens in civic affairs. The League has stood by its guns all thru this period without wavering in the least from the high purposes for which it was organized. Members have dropped out, others have filled their places. The League is essentially a young men's organization. Older members will still continue to work and cooperate but if the League is to flourish and reach its full fruition the young men of this Community must take hold with vim and vigor and enthusiasm. My first suggestion therefore is that new blood be injected into the League by interesting in its affairs the young, sterling business and professional men in this community. Second, I believe that every trustee should assume the chairmanship of a committee. The trustees have the responsibility of directing the League's affairs and they are in closer touch with its needs. They meet weekly on Wednesday noons in addition to attending the regular meetings of the League. I would also suggest that they be given authority to select the members of their committee. Much more could be said but time will not permit.

In conclusion I wish to express my gratitude to all those loyal members who assisted and cooperated with me to make my administration a success. Without their aid and assistance I could not have succeeded and my work would have been in vain. Particularly do I express thanks to the chairman of our program committee, James W.

Reynolds, for it was thru his untiring efforts that we were permitted to listen to such splendid addresses during the year. Also to our worthy Secretary, Eimon L. Wienir, who so ably and efficiently performed the duties of his office. I wish also to thank the press of this City for the splendid publicity and particularly the Post Intelligencer for delegating one of its live wires in the person of Mr. Carl L. Cooper to attend and report the doings of our weekly meetings.

Respectfully submitted,

JAMES T. LAWLER

President.

LEAGUE TO PARTICIPATE IN TAX REDUCTION PROGRAM

That the League will take part in the tax reduction program which has consolidated a number of organizations as an agency for that purpose was decided last Tuesday when President Claude H. Anderson called the matter up for discussion and vote. Former president James T. Lawler was appointed by the chair to represent the League.

President Anderson, James Lawler, William Mann and Secretary E. L. Wienir attended the meeting held under the auspices of the Knights of Pythias last Friday evening. While these delegates spoke from the floor upon some of the questions which arose they did not officially represent the views of the League. A heated controversy arose over a resolution introduced by Jay Thomas calling upon the school board to cancel certain contracts let on the Roosevelt High school. One of the League delegates spoke against the passage of the resolution on the ground "that the matter had not received the study of any committee and that consequently there was danger of going off half-cocked on the proposition." Thomas finally withdrew his resolution.

It is expected that the League will be able, through its representative, propose some definite ways of reducing taxation. The League will avail itself of all

Municipal League Executive Outlines Program For Next Year

Reported by Eimon L. Wienir

Claude H. Anderson, Director of the Federal Board of Vocational Training for this district and president of the Municipal League, addressed the membership of the Municipal League Tuesday noon, outlining the program of the League for the ensuing year. Mr. Anderson said in part:

"It is true that the Municipal League is not as strong in numbers as it should be. We ought to have three or four times the membership that we have today, but on the other hand, what type of similar size in the United States has better organization than the Municipal League of Seattle? The ideals of our organization are high; it has no axe to grind; it is interested solely in better civic government; and, I believe, it is comparable with any organization of its kind in any city in America.

"There are three classes of citizens: First, that class of interested citizens which possess strong group consciousness and are alive to civic problems of all sorts: Second, that class of citizens which we shall call "concerned" citizens---concerned only with government when a governmental agency touches them; for example---taxation. This second group is a very much larger group than the first. And third, the disinterested citizen group against which a League of this kind must always struggle, must always labor to inspire and to take a proper interest in governmental affairs. By far the largest proportion of citizens belong to this third class."

Drawing a comparison between the Municipal League of Seattle and the National Municipal League, President Anderson said: "The National League was organized about twenty-five years ago. The organization was brought about largely by the fact that the public consciousness was aroused. James Bryce, the noted English writer, commenting on American institutions, said: "The one conspicuous failure of American government lies in the failure of its city government." Lincoln Steffens about that time wrote his famous book, "The Shame of the Cities," and other writers called the attention of the American people to the utter corruption and inefficiency of municipal government. The National Municipal League has contributed the only scientific and scholarly studies to the improvement of city government, excepting that contributed by the universities. Although it is only a small group, interested unofficially, the government of the cities of America today would not be what it is today excepting for the work of the National Municipal League. We must take to heart the lesson which that organization has taught us and make our own organization comparable with it in effectiveness here in Seattle.

"The complexity of modern life and the vastness of corporate business that is being conducted, makes it necessary for organizations like ours to exist; for we cannot depend alone on our official representatives. We are members of a gigantic corporation and it is neither right nor proper nor good business to leave out officials alone after once having organized the "corporation". We must ever be on watch to help solve the problems of our city life."

President Anderson made a plea that more of the public officials of the city be in attendance at the League meetings. He also urged the women of the city to take an interest in civic affairs and invited their interest and cooperation in civic problems. President Anderson in urging the establishment of a bureau of municipal research on Seattle, said:

"It is a disinterested, unofficial agency supported by the public having as its chief aim that of securing correct information concerning city matters. There are at least seventeen large cities of America to my personal knowledge who have such research bureaus and who can testify to their estimable value to their city. Such a bureau should consist of a director, an accountant, an engineer, a lawyer, an educationist and two or more secretaries. Its cost would be approximately forty thousand dollars a year. With such a bureau in existence in this city such questions as the reduction of taxation, consolidation of county-city government, the Skagit project, city zoning and numerous other problems that confront us would be studied, reported on with a degree of efficiency and an expertness that could not be questioned; and moreover, an organization like the Municipal League would not be lessening its own value. The League would be stronger because of it, in fact; for the League is an agency through which citizens express themselves.

President Anderson made a plea for electing public servants with a "public viewpoint"—that is a viewpoint that favors the public as a whole. "We must not only have honest men as servants; we must not only have men of special ability, but we must have men with a public viewpoint as against men with a private or private corporate viewpoint, for ultimately the policies of the city are affected, directly or indirectly, by men who have or have not the viewpoint that only that which is good for the city is the thing to be aimed at.

Jackson Silbaugh called the League's attention to the fact that the day, June 14th, was Flag Day. Silbaugh paid a beautiful tribute to the flag and at the conclusion of his address, the membership rose, saluted, and repeated its pledge to the flag.

ASKS LEAGUE FOR FUNDS

Mr. James T. Lawler,
Dear Sir:

Your organization has joined with some forty-nine other Societies to make a determined stand for tax reduction. The delegates from these organizations have perfected a plan for energetic work by selecting a governing body, of which the officers named on the heading of this paper are the executives.

It is our desire to make this entirely a democratic body. We do not wish to ask people to contribute any great amount, but we do wish to have help from every one. All must have equal rights, privileges and opportunities, and this condition can only be attained by assistance from all.

Our organization met Saturday, and after a full discussion, a committee consisting of Mrs. E. E. Stewart, Frank C. Kean, and myself was selected as a Finance Committee. We have calculated that it will cost not less than $2,000.00 to get the information we desire, and this is only for stationery, stenographic work, and preparations of petitions, etc.,—but remember, that the more we obtain the better and more satisfactory our results will be. The principal part of our work will be done entirely by volunteers.

Will you kindly take this matter up with your organization, and suggest such sum as they may think best to contribute, and immediately forward the same to the undersigned? If the By-laws of your organization are such that a contribution of this nature is not permitted, will you kindly raise this amount by individual subscription from your members? We have limited the amount to be subscribed at from ten to one hundred dollars. For your Club we leave the amount to be paid to fixed at your discretion.

A meeting of the delegates will be called within the next two weeks, when a full report will be submitted.

Kindly give this your immediate attention, as most of our work must be accomplished within the next thirty days.

Very truly yours,
GEORGE C. CONGDON
Chairman.

The officers and trustees of the Ruth School for Girls ask your co-operation in bringing before the various congregations on Sunday, June 19th, the announcement of the opening of the Ruth School on July 1st, in the building formerly occupied by the Girls' Parental School, 3404 East 68th Street. Also they would ask that you kindly emphasize, and urge attendance at, the Ruth School Mass Meeting to be held on Tuesday evening, June 21st, at 8 P.M. in the First Presbyterian Church. Judge Dykeman and the downtown pastor will speak, and Professor Isaac will lead the singing.

The object of the school is to provide a custodial institution for the care of girls who are beyond the control of their parents or guardians. It is to be strictly a Protestant institution and has been organized under the auspices of the Protestant Evangelical churches of this community. Its officers and Board of Trustees are composed of representatives of the various Protestant churches.

The institution is in no sense a competitor of the Y. W. C. A., the Rosemary club, or any other institution of the city or State that is endeavoring to care for dependent children and girls. As stated above, the object of this institution is and will be to save the group of girls who are progressive in their social misconduct. Training along educational, and religious lines is the ultimate aim of the School.

At the present time there are upwards of thirty one girls on the Industrial side of the House of the Good Shephard, who have been committed there by the Seattle Juvenile Court, nearly all of who are Protestant faith. This does not include the many Protestant girls who have been taken there by their parents, without Court action, and are there because of the absence of any Protestant institution in the community that is in a position to solve the social problems of the particular girls.

At its opening, the Ruth School will be equipped to care for thirty-five girls. The aim of the Board of Trustees is to secure, through the various church bodies and other organizations, TWO THOUSAND annual memberships in the corporation at Five Dollars each, and the amount thus raised will finance the School for the coming year. Groups of five, at One Dollar each, may take out one membership with the privilege of one voting member to represent the group. All clergy of the Protestant churches of Seattle are ex officio members of the corporation.

Will you kindly appoint a person from each of your memberships to receive subscription cards which will be forwarded to you. Arrangements can be made through that person to receive membership cards upon payment of subscriptions.

Very Truly yours,
REV. ABRAHAM VERIEDE
MRS. M. M. NULL.

FOURTH OF JULY OUTING Skagit Power Development

and 4, 1921.

Special Outing No. 50. Local Walks Committee, leaders. An especially attractive outing has been arranged over the holiday with a trip through the wonderfully picturesque Skagit Canyon. In addition a climb will be made, probably of Sauk Mountain. This peak towers about 5000 ft. above the valley. Its top with alpine meadows and jewel lakes is reached by an old forest service trail and is said to afford a view of unusual scope of valleys and canyons and peaks and ranges clear up to the Canadian border. Breaking all precedents for this holiday the Great Northern Railway will furnish us with a special train.

George E. Wright says:

"The Mountaineers cannot afford to remain unacquainted with the Skagit River, the largest and in many respects the most important, in Western Washington. In this region the City of Seattle is constructing what is destined to become one of the largest hydraulic power developments in the country. Through a branch range of the Cascades the river has cut a deep valley extending to the national boundary on the north and rivaling in magnitude the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. From the depths of the valley rise impressively massed rock ridges and far reaching timbered slopes broken at intervals by tributary streams whose canyons open vistas of snow-capped peaks, rugged and towering. It is truly a most wonderful country."

The special train will leave King Street Station at 1:00 p.m. Saturday, July 2, making a stop at Everett at about 2:00 p.m., arriving at its destination in time or dinner. Returning will arrive in Seattle about 10:00 p.m., Monday evening.

On either Sunday or Monday more leisurely trips may be made than the somewhat strenuous ones planned.

Bring sleeping bag or blankets, fly or tent, bug-net, plate, reuse dish, cup, knife, fork and spoon. All to be arranged to carry less than a half mile. Opportunity to change into outing clothes on the train. The cost of the trip will be $11.50 from Seattle, and $10.25 from Everett. Deposit of $8.50 from Seattle and Tacoma and $7.25 from Everett will be received up to June 25. Mail checks to Mrs. J. T. Hazard, Box 234, Seattle, and before date mentioned as is possible.

Our facilities will permit of taking a limited number of guests but only such as are equipped to keep out of doors and to take care of themselves as do Mountaineers.

THE SPIRIT OF AMERICA by Albert B. Lord

It is a wonderful spirit, this broad, long-suffering, kind and freedom-loving Spirit of America; a spirit never breathed before by any nation in the history of the world.

It is not a cut-and-dried spirit prescribed by a paternal government, but a spirit born and reborn daily as our men and women in these wholesome surroundings and atmosphere are creating it.

Thousands of foreign-born citizens who have lived on this soil for years, who have earned American fortunes, have raised American children, can not, for some reason, realize it, and enter into this "Spirit of America."

Here and there unscrupulous traders and tricky bargain drivers or mislead workers are putting a dent into it, but as a whole this Spirit is created by a nation giving and demanding nothing but a square deal and a people who are thoroughly imbued with the principle of "give and take."

In short "fair play" is the best definition for the "Spirit of America."

HART NAMES TAX COMMISSION

Will Report 6 Months Before Legislature Meets

OLYMPIA—The personnel of the committee appointed by Gov. Hart to investigate the subject of taxation under authority of the new 1921 state laws was announced by the governor's office.

Members of the committee are: W. Twohy, banker, Spokane; Alex Polson, lumberman, Aberdeen; George M. Elliott, real estate, Tacoma; Nathan Eckstein, wholesaler, Seattle; Frank D. Oakley, attorney, Tacoma; Robert H. Harlin, president of the State Federation of Miners, Seattle; Col. W. W. Robertson, publisher, Yakima; Peter McGregor, stockman and farmer, Hooper, and Dr. S. B. L. Penrose, president of Whitman college, Walla Walla.

A report of the committee is to be made at least six months before the next session of the legislature. They are to study the system of taxation here and make recommendations for revision as they deem advisable.

Government is now playing a more important part in daily life than at any time in our national history. The functions of government are broader, the work of administration more complex. The success of government in performing the increasingly diversified services now required depends upon the extent to which the day-to-day work of government is entrusted to men and women trained in the art and science of public administration.

As a nation we are on the threshold of a new idea in government. The demand for "more business in government" and the spread of the city manager idea forerun the general recognition of the place of administration in government and the development of a new profession—the trained public administrator.

From the Pamphlet of National Institute of Public Administration.

In 1820 there came to America 8,383 immigrants. Fairly regular increases brought the figure to 427,833 in 1854—a record that stood until 1873, when 452,803 arrived. The half million mark was passed in 1881, and the million mark in 1905. The record year of our immigration history was 1907, when over a million and a quarter newcomers arrived. There was heavy yearly immigration until the outbreak of the war. Then the figures decreased rapidly until in 1918 only 110,618 arrived, the lowest number since 1862. Since the end of the war immigration has been increasing rapidly.

Stories of adventure in the West are the class of literature most in demand by soldiers serving in our army in Germany. Next comes translations of "Caesar's Gallic Wars," which were fought partly in the territory occupied by our men. Legends of the Rhine are also popular.

REPORT ON LIBRARY

LEAGUE COMMITTEE REPORT CLEARS LIBRARY BOARD

Report Adopted by Membership
To the Municipal League:

The undersigned, your special committee appointed to investigate the charges made against the Library Board at the instance of the so-called Civic Betterment League, begs leave to report.

CHARGES

The Civic Betterment League or committee, as it was alternately referred to, made certain charges many of which it later dropped or announced that they considered unimportant. The formal charges which were addressed to the Mayor sought to bring to his and public attention what the committee considered the "misadministration of the affairs of the public Library under the present management to the disadvantage of the tax paying and supporting public," and petitioned the Mayor to have it changed and the institution placed under civil service.

That it was the practice of the Board to remove employees upon charges made by the chief librarian without giving them a chance to be heard.

That the Board had not adopted a system of competition or examination under which all appointments except that of the chief librarian shall be made, as provided by statute, and under which system the chief librarian shall have power by and with the consent of the Board to appoint all subordinate employees, prescribe rules for their conduct and remove them from office. And the general charge or inference that the library was in fact a one-man autocratic institution which maintained a system of espionage and at whose best secret star chamber proceedings or meetings were held and employees disposed of.

They asserted that the librarian's salary of $6500 and an allowance of $30.00 per month for the upkeep of his automobile was disproportionate to his usefulness.

That at his suggestion, three garages had been built at the Central Library for the use of his private car and that of the engineer, at a time when the cost of construction was at its highest.

That the University Library was discriminated against, in that graduates from Eastern Library Schools were given the preference when positions were to be filled.

The Civic Betterment League was represented by Mrs. C. E. Bogardus, its President, and Mrs. R. F. Weeks, its Secretary, women of the highest standing in the City and community, each of them leaders in Women's Clubs and always keenly interested in civic affairs and social betterment work.

The fact that they signed the formal charges should accord them a careful hearing and investigation and this your committee feels that it has given the matter before presuming to present this report.

They reported that the statement of charges had been adopted at a regular meeting of their committee, but of whom the committee consisted or of how many, they declined to state, the only information which they were willing to give about the league being that it had been organized about two months ago by members of various women's clubs for the purpose of presenting these charges. (St. of adjourned meeting before Board P. 4)

Aside from whatever view one may take as to the policy of the Library Board, we believe it must be conceded that the personnel of this Board is very high and all the members stand well in the estimation of the community.

We have tried in this report to avoid mentioning any individual but the whole matter, in our opinion, is so closely intertwined and involved around one Mr. Dubois Mitchell formerly an employee, that we are compelled to say considerable about him.

While it is undoubtedly a fact that for years many of the library employees have felt that their pay was too small, just as those in many other city department have, yet we have had no convincing evidence of other general dissatisfaction.

Mr. Mitchell was already on the library staff when the present librarian was employed in 1907, and according to Mr. Mitchell's own statement to us, he assisted him in familiarizing himself in his new duties and in the years that followed always felt free to offer his advice and to suggest to the librarian that this should be done, or that should be changed and frequently advised him as to what his conduct should be toward the employees. We have gained the impression, and we believe we had to reach that conclusion, that Mr. Mitchell gradually presumed so far in trying to have the library run according to his own ideas that his attentions, however well meant, finally became unwelcome.

However, there has been no evidence that Mr. Jennings asked for Mr. Mitchell's resignation. The facts are that the salary budget for 1921 was made up and Mr. Mitchell was listed by the librarian, among other employees, for an increase in salary.

After discussion, the budget was referred to the administration committee composed of Rabbi Koch, Mr. Swalwell, Mrs. Dona Baker and Mr. Efaw. This committee, with Mrs. Baker dissenting, reported that Mr. Mitchell's salary be not increased, but that his resignation be asked for and then the report came before the Board as a whole, and the four men

USE OF PUBLIC AUTOS

COMMITTEE INVESTIGATING MISUSE OF PUBLIC AUTO- MOBILES FAVORS CENTRAL GARAGE

To the Municipal League:

We your committee on Public Safety to whom was referred the question of the use of publicly owned automobiles by employees of the city and county, would respectfully report:

The question is an old one and difficult of solution. Councilmen A. J. Goddard first called attention to the matter of the misuse of public automobiles and performed a real service by securing the passage of an ordinance requiring that all city owned automobiles be lettered.

This helped but the enforcement of the ordinance has not been what it should be and ways have been found to use the cars for private purposes even though lettered.

Last year Mayor Caldwell brought the matter up again and went on record favoring a central garage where all cars owned by the city could be stored and kept in repair. The heads of the departments of city government were asked for a detailed report of all cars and the place where each car was kept. This report has been made and with the exception of Comptroller Carroll, the heads of departments have gone on record against a central garage. Each head of a department is assigned a car for his personal use, but your committee have no means of determining how much if any these cars have been in private use. Perhaps an exception should be made in case of Mr. Carroll. The car assigned to his department, is used almost exclusively by the license department. Also it should be mentioned that the law department has no car.

A majority of the cars owned by the city are assigned to the employees requiring their use and are kept at the homes of those using them.

The cars assigned to the street department are nearly all kept at the district headquarters and the same is largely true of the engineering department.

The county has 42 automobiles and about the same number of trucks.

The system in use in checking the cost and caring for cars is most elaborate and up-to-date and your committee feels that the county has a most efficient man in Henry W. Odom who has charge of this department. The sheriff's office and County Engineer's offices are necessarily the heaviest users of cars. Both offices, however, have practiced a great saving over their predecessors and have inaugurated a system of checking in their own offices that is bound to make not only a saving in maintenance but will result in better care and longer life for the cars.

Ramsay, Hull and Corson own their own cars, other county officers have public cars. Your committee feels that more small cars might be profitably used and make a saving in maintenance as well as in the original cost. The comparison is interesting.

Commissioner Smith's Buick cost for January was direct $67.67 and for direct and over head $80.12. Commissioner Dobson's Franklin purchased the beginning of this year at $3,098, cost for January direct $90.38 and overhead and direct $107.01.

A Ford used in the engineering department for January was direct $38.53 and direct and overhead $45.62.

Data collected and published by the Seattle Times a short time ago shows conclusively that cars are continually being used by employees both in the city and county, for other than public use. The necessity for rigid economy in government at the present time, requires that some way should be found to stop this. No lettering or any other system will eradicate this evil except to stop it. The heads of departments know or should know when employees are using cars for private purposes. If they are not willing to stop it, the voters or appointing power should take it in hand. We believe that there is no more reason for furnishing an automobile to a public official for his own private use, than there would be to pay his house rent or street car fare.

An exception should be made in case of the Mayor, however. He is the head of the city and officially is required to meet and entertain visitors and should have a car for that purpose.

Your committee believes that as long as cars are taken home, they will be improperly used. We are, therefore, in favor of a central garage. We believe it would result in a saving in the maintenance, the number of cars needed for public use, and cars would be kept in better condition and last much longer. This of course could not apply to the police and fire departments. They should have their own garage close at hand where cars are available for instant use.

Your committee would particularly recommend that before the people's money is used for the purchase of high priced cars, that the purchasing power ascertain beyond question that the car is needed for a public use.

Respectively submitted,
JACKSON SILBAUGH,
H. W. MASON,
J. WILL JONES.

voted to adopt it and the three women members to reject. The minority at that time, announced that they would appeal to the club women of the City.

It developed that an unfavorable written report in regard to Mr. Mitchell had been in the hands of the Board for over a year and that a further report to the same effect had been presented about that time, each by the department head over Mitchell.

This was in part the basis of the Board's action.

We believe as a general proposition that it would lead to better feeling and increased loyalty in the library for a hearing to be granted by the Board to anyone against whom charges had been made and would urge that this policy be followed without deviation in the future, but we think that no hearing was necessary in this case.

Upon Mr. Mitchell's own statement he had been disloyal to his superiors, insubordinate, guilty of attempted political manipulation in the board, of the opinion that the Librarian was unfit for the position he held and he did all he could to force his own ideas of how the library should be run. (St. last meeting 100 to 110.)

Mr. Mitchell felt that in a part of the library administration, Mr. Jennings represented certain ideals which he did not approve of. He said "My purpose was to secure certain reforms here in the library and I believed then, and I still believe that it can be accomplished if we can get a board here which is more critical of his action than the present," and that it was his purpose to do away with the present order of management.

He believed there were three members on the board who thought as he did and who would come to him for advice and who were in favor of bringing about the reforms he advocated and of introducing his principles of library management, so he set about in a very practical way to pick out a new member for the board and thus secure a working majority and told the man of his choice just why he wanted him. (St. adjourned meeting P. 108.)

The present board knew his record and at least the majority of it must have fully appreciated the whole situation.

There could be no working harmony with the chief under this state of things. As a matter of fact, Mr. Mitchell said they had been far apart and completely divorced for some time. It was an impossible condition that should have ended long ago in the interests of the library, and in our opinion, no purpose would have been served by giving him a hearing as either he or Mr. Jennings had to be removed.

As we have said before, we feel that as a rule it is better to accord an employee a hearing if there is prima facie reason for his discharge as he may be able to offer something in justification, or be brought to a comprehension of a weakness and given a chance to overcome it. The women members of the Board mostly believed Mr. Mitchell had been wronged and voted as a unit in his dismissal. It seems evident to us that Mr. Mitchell is very successful in impressing his grievances upon these women. As a matter of fact, he had for years lived at door to one of the minority members and the testimony shows that their respective families were very intimate and that he often discussed library matters with her and in affair in particular. Immediately after the division of the board on this matter, The Civic Betterment League made up of Seattle Club women, came into existence or began to function and these charges were entered in full sincerity by the league.

Our opinion is that they were overruled by Mr. Mitchell and that on cool reflection over the testimony given at the various hearings, they will feel that they have been misled upon.

The librarian's salary is 13th in the among American Cities and not proportionate to other heads of departments. We do not know whether the present librarian is worth that money or not.

If he is the right man, we feel that the salary is not too high, but if he is not, any salary would be too high. The Board we believe is qualified to judge.

If the librarian uses his automobile for library purposes to any extent, and he says he does, $30.00 is a moderate allowance. It is very much cheaper than for the Board to own the car.

We understand that the objection to the garage has been dropped. However we might say that it cost $100.00 and is large enough to accommodate three cars—the chief's, the engineer's and a truck the Board is out to buy.

At the last hearing before the board, Mr. Henry, Dean of the University Library School, was called and examined as to whether or not students from that school were fairly treated and considered by the City Library.

He said that the relations between the library and the school had been most cordial in every respect; that it had graduated its first class in 1903.

He said that it was not expected that its graduates should be given positions as heads of departments in the beginning but only after several years of experience.

It would seem that the head of the Library School would know pretty well about how the graduates were being treated; that it would be quite natural for any one of them to report to him if he felt that the city library was discriminating against University students, yet Mr. Henry reports that he is quite satisfied. We heard no other evidence.

Prior to 1909, the library was under Civil Service but it was removed from by the Legislature in that year.

The ladies who presented these charges insisted that the library statute makes it mandatory upon the Board and Head Librarian to choose employees and promote others in the service after subjecting applicants to a written competitive test.

It is enough to say that we do not so read the statute.

We believe the Board is complying with the law in the plan it now follows. The law nowhere says that written examinations must be given. It simply says that the Board shall adopt a system of competition or examination under which all appointments shall be made and that so far as possible all appointments shall be made for demonstrated fitness. The whole method is left to the Board and we do not believe any provision in it is mandatory.

Many of the applicants in later years are graduates from our University Library School and have demonstrated their fitness for a diploma. Others are from Eastern Library Schools with several years of service in addition. When there is a vacancy, the applications on hand are looked over by the librarian with the head of that department in which the vacancy exists. Full information is on file as to each applicant.

When there is a vacancy some one in the service is promoted if one can be found ready for the advancement. This is determined by bi-annual reports from the heads of each department. These reports are on file with the librarian.

The only near evidence of espionage we heard was the system of efficiency reports made by the heads of departments to the Chief. They are supposed to be secret and for the use of the Librarian and the Administration Committee of the Board.

One matter was raised at various times during the hearing, but never became one of the formal charges, and that is that the minutes of the Board meetings should show how each member voted.

We have no hesitancy in saying this should be done. They are public records and the people should be able at any time to see how each member voted. This method is followed by the School Board, the Port Commission, the Legislature and the City Council, and we believe by all public bodies but has not always been followed by the library board before the present trouble arose. This may have been, because until now the Board voted as a unit. Wherever there is a division the public is entitled to know how each voted.

This committee entered into this hearing with the feeling that there was considerable justification for a number of the charges made. In fact, we were embarrassed in going into the matter as we felt biased and that it would take considerable evidence to change us, but we now feel that the charges were almost wholly advanced through the subtle influence of an aggrieved and discharged employee who found sympathetic ears in influential quarters.

Regardless of the findings of this committee or of the final conclusion of this League upon this report, whatever it may be, we believe the city should feel a sense of appreciation that there is a body of such representative women as interested themselves in this library question, who have the good of the community so at heart, as to so whole heartedly use their time and influence to right what they were led to believe was a growing injustice and a misadministration of a great public service.

It is only when there is such apathy on the part of the public that no protests are ever registered, that public institutions can go wrong for very long.

SECRETARY'S CORNER

The proposed trip to the Skagit Project is drawing considerable interest among the members of the League. Thus far there have been received several inquiries, and the following have signified their intention of going: Prof. F. D. Hayden, of the University of Washington, A. H. Wiseman, Gertrude Morehouse, as well as several officers and members of the Board of Trustees. From the information available, it is understood that the trip will not only be valuable from the standpoint of interest in securing first-hand knowledge of the Skagit development, but will be very enjoyable from the scenic standpoint--some of the best views of the State of Washington are to be seen. The trip, to many, will be in the nature of a holiday or recreation, as well as educational. The expense is so trivial, approximately $10, that at least one hundred members should make it. The matter will be brought up at the next meeting Tuesday, and as many as possible should then signify when it would be most convenient to make it, and begin to formulate plans accordingly. Reservations may be made by telephoning or writing to the Secretary.

Whether the League will go on record as favoring the City Manager form of government or not, will depend upon the vote to be taken at next Tuesday's meeting. It is gratifying that the League is led in the movement. More than four months ago, the special Civil Service Committee appointed by the League brought in a report favoring a change in government to the City Manager form. The League at that time felt that the committee had exceeded its province in view of the fact that it had been asked to report on certain specific charges in Civil Service. It was felt that its report advocating the City Manager form of government should be reported upon at greater length, and as much time had been given to the study of its advantages and disadvantages. The report which was published in last week's "News" should be read by every one interested in good government, and members should be prepared to express themselves for or against the change next Tuesday.

Lawyers who are members of the League have been solicited to place their legals with "The News." It is needless to point out again that the charge made for publication of such legals is not greater than that made by other weeklies; and that by patronizing "The News" a direct benefit will be conferred upon the League. If enough legals are printed our "News" will pay for itself. In view of the present financial situation of the League it would be a decided boom for it to have its paper published without cost to it. Legals may be sent to the office of the Secretary at 405 Leary Bldg., or directly to the publisher, 1924 First Avenue, at any time before Friday, 5 P. M.

The estimates of the cost of operating city departments for the ensuing year must be submitted to the Mayor no later than next Monday. It is expected that the new finance committee of the Municipal League will be ready to scrutinize the budget and will make such suggestions and recommendations as the case may warrant. It is of course difficult, if not impossible, for any committee of businessmen, no matter how willing and able to help, to make constructive criticism without first making a complete survey of the department.

CITY MANAGER PLAN PROPOSED FOR TOLEDO

Discussion was renewed this week concerning the proposal made by the Public Research Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce that Toledo adopt the commission-manager plan.

There is no question that the present tendency in city government in this country is toward the commission-manager plan. Adopted at first only by small cities, larger and larger municipalities have been adopting the plan or are seriously considering its adoption. It has even been suggested for Chicago, and it came near being embodied in the new charter of Detroit. The charter finally agreed upon in Detroit is similar to the commission-manager plan in many ways, the chief difference being that the mayor is elected by the people instead of being appointed by the council. Now Cleveland is in the midst of a campaign in which the commission-manager plan is the issue. Akron, with 208,000, is the largest city having this plan.

It is true, however, that most of the cities that have adopted this plan of government have been cities that were suffering from the old, decentralized, many-headed organization so common to American cities a few decades ago. Toledo got rid of this old system when its new charter went into effect, January, 1916. Authorities on American city government consider Toledo's present charter as the most advanced form of the Mayor-Council plan of organization. Toledo has centralized responsibility, in an elected Mayor instead of an appointed City Manager. It has a single-chambered Council, of medium size, elected by wards instead of at large, as in the typical commission-manager form. Increase of its membership, however, to twenty instead of sixteen will make it a more cumbersome body. It has been found that a small legislative body is more responsive to the public will than a large Council, since it is easier to place responsibility.

There seems to be some confusion of the commission plan with the commission-manager or city manager plan of government. The former plan has long been discredited and is no longer in vogue. The commission-manager plan is fundamentally different, and has none of the weakness of the commission plan.

Much has been made of the fact that Kalamazoo, Michigan, recently voted to abandon its commission-manager charter. The fact is that this action was caused by a deep-laid conspiracy of some of the old line politicians of that city, who saw their opportunities go a-glimmering when the city-manager plan became effective. A similar attempt is being made in Dayton, Ohio. It has been universally true that the bitterest opponents of the commission-manager plan have been those persons whose only hope of power lay in a continuance of the old un-businesslike system.—Toledo City Journal.

ments. And this requires a great deal of time. However, such a committee can insist that the budget be trimmed here and there and in general insist upon reduction. It seems that under the present system, the council is completely befuddled when it comes to the budget. It really doesn't know what is going on in the various departments, and therefor cannot directly say to a department-head that this item or that item should be eliminated. As was said by a councilman at a Trustee meeting recently, "The burden of proof is upon the council to prove a reduction or cut in a budget item necessary. The department-head is supposed to know the needs of his department; the councilman does not; consequently with no first-hand information we must accept the department-head's figures." The City Manager form of government may be a solution of this perplexing problem or it may be that by a more systematic division of the departments of government among the present councilmen, that in due course of time a councilman would know his department as well as the head of it--that that seems to be nearly impossible. One thing we do know, and that is that the entire budget procedure must be changed. The Mayor, and the comptroller must have a voice in its make-up and must be partly responsible for it.

There have been so many requests for the by-laws of the League that the Secretary has deemed it expedient to have them published in the League issue of the News. It is hoped that members will keep this issue on their files.

ATTORNEY DEFENDS SUPERVISED STUDY

Lundin Protests Against Publishing Taxation Reduction Council Report On Schools In "Municipal News."

Defending the system of "supervised study" and the efficiency of the Seattle schools in general, Alfred H. Lundin, an attorney, addressed a letter to the Municipal League of Seattle. The letter was a protest against publishing in the Municipal News the report of a sub-committee of the Citizens' Tax Reduction Council.

This sub-committee recently presented to all its member organizations, of which the Municipal League is one, a report of its survey of the executive staff and supervisory staff of the Seattle schools.

In the report, the recommendation was made that a "young, virile superintendent" replace Frank B. Cooper as head of the Seattle schools, the Roosevelt school was characterized as a "colossal blunder," the abolition of forty-eight heads of departments in Seattle schools was urged, and the "supervised study plan" was condemned. A portion of the letter follows:

To The Municipal League of Seattle:

As a member of the Municipal League, I want to object to the publishing in the Municipal News of reports of committees of any organization other than the League, unless authorized by a committee of the League or the trustees, after an investigation of the report. The immediate occasion for this objection is the publication of a political report under the guise of a report on tax reduction by a sub-committee of the Tax Reduction Council, attacking our most efficient Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Frank B. Cooper, and our able School Board.

The reports of committees of the League are made after a fair and impartial investigation. No person has ever been attacked by a committee of this League without being given the opportunity to be heard. No committee has made findings without having both sides to the controversy. This course was not pursued by the said sub-committee. The committees of the League are appointed and consist of fair and impartial persons, as a rule. This sub-committee volunteered, and a reading of their report clearly shows their bias and prejudice. They have a political purpose in volunteering, or they have been influenced by political supporters of defeated candidates for the school board. They have an axe to grind, or have been the tools of those who have had an axe to grind. Under the guise of tax reduction, a great injustice has been done Mr. Cooper and the School Board by the publishing of the conclusions of this sub-committee's malicious and false report in the Municipal News. The so-called sub-committee did not interview the Superintendent whom they attempt to crucify, not any assistant superintendent. Out of an organization of 1600 teachers there are some who are disgruntled, peeved and sore. This sub-committee must have listened to them. The report starts out by recommending the selection of a younger, cheaper man for superintendent of schools. "Mr. Cooper is entitled to credit for all that is good in the system," yet they want a younger, cheaper man, with less assistants and fewer helpers. They object to the cost of supervision and administration.

LEAGUE POSTPONES CITY MANAGER VOTE

ACTION ON REPORT FAVORING CHANGE OF CITY GOVERNMENT PUT OFF UNTIL NEXT FALL

Reported by the Secretary.

The report of the Civil Service committee of the League favoring a change of the present form of municipal government to the City Manager form as advocated by the National Municipal League was presented to the League at Tuesday's Meeting. Voting on the report was postponed until the first meeting of the League in September.

Fred W. Catlett's motion that the reference to the need of a constitutional provision made in the report be eliminated was accepted by the committee. The reference was objected to on the ground that it might tend to confuse the issue, Catlett arguing that the need for constitutional modification might be brought up after the League approved the change advocated by the committee.

Councilman Fitzgerald opposed the report stating among other reasons that changes could be made in the present city charter giving such additional power to the mayor as the people wanted to. "The man who gets the votes is the man who has the power. He can get the things put over that he wants to. A city manager not being an elected official would meet with difficulties all along the line," declared Fitzgerald.

James A. Haight pointed out that while the city-manager would not be a popular idol he would have the time to devote to his business and would be helpful to the body politic. Such a man would necessarily be re-

It is more than probable that the committee will re-draft its report during the summer and will present it in better shape in the fall.

and "the percentage of failures is greater than ever before," Mr. Lundin offered the following figures on Broadway high school:

	Percentage or Failure.
1915.....	8.2

Mr. Lundin said that the "supervised study plan" had been put in during the year of 1915, 1916 being its first full year, and he declared that the dropping to 6.9 per cent of failures in 1916 was due to the new plan. He explained the rise of failure percentage in 1920 to an epidemic of the "flu."

He classed as "absolutely untrue" the sub-committee's claim that "supervised study" had resulted in a demoralization of the work in mathematics and languages, and possibly in science. He took the University of Washington's report showing the percentage of A, B, C and F grades in different subjects made by freshmen attending for the year 1919-1920.

"In four of the five different standard subjects," Mr. Lundin's letter reads, "the Seattle high school pupils were above the University average. The University percentage of failures for all subjects was 8.9, compared with 6.0 for Seattle."

He declared that comparisons of Seattle's high schools with San Francisco recorded in the sub-committee's report were greatly in error, in claiming that San Francisco "with 60 per cent more pupils than Seattle, ran its schools in 1920 for much less than Seattle."

He said that San Francisco, with a population of 506,000 last year, enrolled in its high schools only 6,704, while Seattle with a population of 315,000, had enrolled in its high schools 8,766.

"Would the sub-committee want Seattle to have the same record as San Francisco?" asks the Lundin letter. "If they do, their report shows the way, but if the present high standard of our public schools is to be maintained, our efficient superintendent should remain on the job. Of course he will, because he has been recently employed on a three-year contract."

His letter closed with a declaration that the school board was practicing and putting into effect reductions in costs and economy, and that the board "ought not to be harassed and annoyed in their constructive work by such malicious, untrue, destructive statements as those made by this so-called sub-committee."

Note: The Board of Trustees will take note of the protest at its next regular meeting.

LEAGUE TO AGAIN INVESTIGATE SKAGIT PROJECT

By Eimon L. Wienir.

A special meeting of the Board of Trustees was called by President Claude H. Anderson Friday noon for the purpose of deciding whether the League should at this time again investigate the advisability of going ahead with the development of the Skagit project. The action of the Board was favorable and it voted authorizing President Anderson to appoint a committee of five. James A. Haight was named chairman of the committee, the names of the other members will be announced later.

The calling of the special meeting was the result of the insistence on the part of the newspapers as well as of many representative citizens and civic organizations that the work on the Skagit should be halted. It was felt that it would be of considerable benefit to the citizens of Seattle for an impartial committee to make an analysis of the situation and report at an as early a date as possible.

At the suggestion of Councilman Erickson of the Public Utilities committee the meeting between that committee and the Finance committee of the council which was to have taken place last Friday was postponed for one week. This was due to the fact that two or more councilmen who were members of these committees were out of the city. Councilman Fitzgerald, who is chairman of the Finance committee stated today that if the joint committees were not ready to report next Friday they would of course ask the council for more time. So that it is more than likely that the League committee will have time to make known its report to the joint committees of the council at its next meeting, and in any event before final action is taken by the Council as a whole.

The pith of such plants as the sun-flower, rush or elder is advocated by a scientific writer as a good material for cleaning the lenses of scientific instruments.

SECRETARY'S CORNER

There will be no meetings of the League during the months of July and August. The first meeting of the fall will take place the first Tuesday in September, September 8th. Should the Board decide to call a special meeting, as it is not unlikely it will do, due notice will be given in the public press and in the "News."

* * *

The League's trip to the Skagit is crystalizing. Thus far the following have signified their desire to go, if the time set is agreeable: President Claude H. Anderson, Jackson Silbaugh, Dan Earle, William G. Mann, J. Eddy Franklin, Chas. J. Ryan, Prof. F. D. Hayden, A. H. Wiseman, and the Secretary. Unless the officers of the League are informed within the next few days that others desire to make the trip, plans will be made by those who have signified their intention. As stated in a prior issue, the trip will take about two days, and will cost not much over ten dollars per person. It ought to be very interesting and enjoyable from every standpoint. Chief engineer Uhden has promised to guide the party and to provide accommodations for it at the Skagit.

PRESIDENT TELLS WHY LEAGUE FAILS TO TAKE PART IN CONFERENCE

League Does Not Participate in Chamber Conference on the Skagit

The League did not participate in the conference called by the Chamber of Commerce to consider its report on the Skagit for reasons which will appear in the letter of President Anderson. The correspondence as set out gives the invitation of the Chamber and the President's reply:

Mr. C. H. Anderson, President,
Municipal League,
15119 Arcade Building,
Seattle, Wash.

Dear Mr. Anderson:

The Board of Trustees of the Chamber of Commerce requests that you appoint a committee of three from your association to meet at the Assembly Room of the Chamber Thursday, July 14, at 4 p. m.

The object of the meeting is to obtain the views of the different civic organizations on a report on the Skagit Power Project submitted to the Board of Trustees by a committee of the Civic Bureau of the Chamber.

Yours very truly,
ARTHUR R. PRIEST,
Assistant Secretary.

July 13th, 1921.

Mr. Arthur R. Priest,
Assistant Secretary, Seattle
Chamber of Commerce and Commercial Club, Seattle,
Dear Mr. Priest:

Yours of the 11th inst., inviting the Municipal League to appoint a committee of three to meet at the Chamber of Commerce July 14th, has been received and considered.

Mr. Oles of the Civic Bureau of the Chamber called me about the matter Monday morning and I presented it to the trustees at our regular meeting Monday noon, July 11th. The action of the trustees was a decision to not send the committee. I regret that we cannot do so but you must surely agree that it is impossible when you consider the difficulties in the situation, as it has unfortunately developed. You state:

"The object of the meeting is to obtain the views of the different civic organizations on a report on the Skagit Power Project submitted to the Board of Trustees by a committee of the Civic Bureau of the Chamber."

In order to co-operate with the Chamber, as we would like to do in all such matters, the Chamber should have submitted the report to the League in time for the trustees, and probably the membership of the League, to take action, by proper parliamentary process, in expressing and recording its judgment on the report. Since Mr. Oles tells me that the report was approved by the Civic Bureau of the Chamber last Friday, July 8th, this could have been done if it had been transmitted to us at that time or within a day or two thereafter. The trustees of the Municipal League hold their regular weekly meetings on Mondays and could have passed upon the report Monday of this week,

July 11th, and, if considered advisable to submit it to the membership of the League, this could have been done at our regular weekly meeting yesterday, July 12th. This was the last meeting of the League until the first Tuesday in September.

Mr. Oles today called me on the phone again and said he could submit a copy of the report to a committee this morning. Even if a committee were appointed I could not with proper regard for regular procedure and the desires of the members of the League, empower it to express the views of the League on the report, a copy of which had not been before either the trustees or the members of the League.

I feel that you will share with me, as Mr. Oles has said he does, a special regret at this aspect of the situation for two reasons:

FIRST:—The Skagit Project is a matter of such importance that it would be highly desirable to have an accurate expression of the will of the different civic organizations of the city based upon accurate and unbiased information.

SECOND:—Co-operation by the Municipal League and the Chamber of Commerce would be a decided advantage to both, and to the city as a whole, on any and all such matters.

Very truly yours,
CLAUDE H. ANDERSON,
President.

ENGINEERS FOR EARLY SKAGIT DEVELOPMENT

The American Association of Engineers, Seattle Chapter, of which Albra Gardner, Jr., is president, at its last meeting July 15th, passed the following resolution relative to the Skagit: Be it resolved:-

That we, the members of Seattle Chapter American Association of Engineers (A. A. E.), a National organization representing all branches of the engineering profession, and speaking for the great majority of the professional engineer residents in Seattle, do hereby urge the Municipal authorities to complete, at the earliest possible date, the development of the Gorge Creek unit of the Skagit Power Project.

We are convinced that the immediate development of this first unit is a sound engineering and business undertaking. The development of this unit has been approved by engineers in whom we have the fullest confidence; namely: A. P. Davis, Chief Engineer of the United States Reclamation Service, under whose direction some of the greatest dam building and power development in America have been brought to a successful completion; D. C. Henry, a consulting Engineer of nation-wide reputation, and M. M. O'Shaunessey, City Engineer of San Francisco and Chief of the great Hetch Hetchy water and power project. The professional achievement of these men give us the assurance to state that any project on which they have made a favorable report is worthy of full public confidence.

As a business proposition, we believe the development of the Gorge Creek unit is fully warranted for the reason set forth in the statement issued by Mr. R. H. Thompson and published in a recent issue of the Seattle Times (June 19th, 1921). This statement which has been confirmed shows that a market for the bulk of the power developed in this first Gorge Creek unit is assured.

We further believe that a very desirable market for electric energy will be furnished by electro metallurgical and electro chemical industries, that are certain to locate here if a plentiful supply of electric energy is assured.

At Niagara Falls alone, such industries have developed within the past twenty years and now turn out products annually worth over $75,000,000.00 and have a pay roll of over $15,000,000.00.

Abundance of power has lead within the last five years to a great electro-chemical development in the San Francisco Bay region.

If the City as well as other great business organizations whose credit is practically unlimited were to stop all constructive work in periods of general business depression, it is evident that general economic disaster would follow.

Therefor, it is good engineering, good business and good policy for the City to continue with the immediate development of the first or Gorge Creek unit of the Skagit Project.

Be it further Resolved:-

That in view of the very great size of the complete Skagit Project and the lack of information on the part of the citizens covering the engineering and business features involved in the complete project; therefor, we, the members of Seattle Chapter, A. A. E.,

LET'S GO SEE THE SKAGIT

According to a tentative plan, the Municipal League trip to the Skagit Project will be made Saturday and Sunday, July 30th and 31st. The party will leave Seattle at 8 o'clock in the morning and will return Sunday evening. The expense of the entire trip will be in the neighborhood of $10. There is still time to signify your intention of going, by phoning the Secretary, Main 0791.

SECRETARY'S COLUMN

As announced in the News last week, a committee was appointed by President Claude H. Anderson, to investigate the Skagit with special emphasis as to whether work should proceed or temporarily stopped to enable a survey to be made of it by a board of business men and experts. James A. Haight is chairman of the committee, and the remaining members are: J. L. Baldwin, Dr. E. C. Kilbourne, James W. Reynolds, and Clifford Wiley. This committee has met several times since its appointment a week ago Friday with public officials and various business men, and has given profound and serious study to the question. At this writing, it is not unlikely that the report of the committee will be presented before the joint meeting of the Public Utilities and Finance Committee of the Council. It is hoped that the report will be published in full in the next number of the "News."

Committees for the ensuing year have been tentively selected by President Claude H. Anderson, and the Board of Trustees. A letter is soon to go forth from the President's office to those selected, notifying them of their position, and in the name of "Public Service" inviting them to accept appointment. Members may rest assured that a good deal of thought and conscientious effort was put into the matter of the selection of committees: for committees are the life blood of the League; whether they function or not, and how well they function determines to a large measure the success of the League's work. The officers and the Board hope that those who receive the call to service, will heed it, and signify, immediately, their acceptance. The budget committee will organize this week, announced its chairman, J. L. Baldwin. A plan of attacking the problem is being devised by the chairman, and it is expected that at this year's hearing of the budget the Municipal League will have a definite and constructive plan to urge upon the council. Other committees will begin to organize during the summer, so as to have their work well under way at the time the League meetings begin in the Fall.

* * *

The matter of a suitable meeting place is again one of the problems for the officers of the League. There are four or five places available: Blanc's Cafe, opposite the County-City Building, the present meeting place of the League; the new 42-story L. C. Smith Building Restaurant, which will be ready the latter part of August; Masonic Club Rooms; and Meves Cafeteria. A committee is investigating the best available meeting place and will have its report ready before very long. In the meantime, the officers of the League invite suggestions from the members. The preference of the majority of the members will of course control the action of the officers.

One of the things which the League should accomplish this year is the bringing together of the various good-government organizations of the state. Other commonwealths have long ago discovered the value of such state-wide organization. Washington needs such inter-communication even more than other states do, because its municipalities do not have complete home rule. They are constantly subject to the danger of legislative interference. A strong and united organization of municipalities can arouse public opinion and resent such interference. Then again, to a large extent, the problems of the three large cities of the state are in many respects, similar. The solution of these problems could more easily be effected by counsel and interchange of ideas between them. To the Legislative Committee will be referred this matter.

The work of the Tax Reduction Council of Seattle has undoubtedly received nation-wide attention. A letter was recently received by J. T. Lawler from the Institute for Public Service, in New York, stating that Mr. Lawler's statement had appeared in the Duluth City Journal of June 25. The letter goes on to say that the Institute could be of quick and extensive use to Seattle, as its representatives are qualified to make a survey of the City Government.

The Toledo (Ohio) City Journal of July 16th contains a column digest of the League's committee report on the City Manager Plan of Government.

AUTHORIZED OFFICIAL STATEMENT

By James T. Lawler

The Tax Reduction Council represents fifty-three civic and fraternal bodies organized for the purpose of conducting a campaign for tax retrenchment. It represents approximately thirty thousand citizens and tax payers. The movement was the result of conditions in our body politic, which were rapidly becoming unendurable and intolerable. Those who conceived the idea of arousing public sentiment to the imminent danger which threatened us from a continuance of our ever increasing tax burden had in mind only our present necessities, knowing full well that once the work was started public spirited citizens would put it on a permanent basis.

Its objects and efforts therefor are confined for the immediate present to determining in each department of city, county, school and Port of Seattle where expenditures can be cut down without injuring or materially affecting the public service of such departments. The Tax Reduction Council has from its inception regarded and will continue to regard the conduct of public affairs and the spending of public money solely as a business matter. Every member of the Council wants good government and good educational facilities but does not want to pay more than they are worth. They believe that the people are paying inordinately high prices for such service as the various branches of government are providing.

With this thought in mind and believing that they could render a valuable service to this community they volunteered their services during the entire budget making period, and have secured a large list of names of volunteer workers to investigate the different departments of our tax levying bodies.

A wrong impression exists in some quarters that this organization is not constructive in its purposes, but that it exists for the sole purpose of harassing our public officials. If these misguided individuals would attend one of the regular meetings of the Council, they would quickly reverse their opinion. It requires no argument to prove the business throughout the country has had to do without a number of things it earnestly desired. Business men have been compelled to keep their expenditures within their income. This same rule must be adopted in connection with our Government in all its departments. We believe that the people represented by the Tax Reduction Council will insist upon the most effective handling of public business with the least outlay of public funds. Unless this is done these same people will at the proper time elect men to office who will consider public interest as well as the own.

It has been well said that a discussion of high taxes and high living costs begins and ends with the existing determination on the part of elective public officials to hang on to top heavy organizations and pile up expenses instead of reducing. It has also been truly said that someone in authority must determine the smallest amount with which departments, --- State, County, City, and School --- can get along during the coming year. If those who are to expend the money cannot lop off as much as taxpayers insist is necessary, budget officials must.

Gratifying news appears from day to day in our local papers showing that our public officials are beginning to realize the necessity for real retrenchment. This is what the people demand. They will not be satisfied with "camouflage retrenchment." They will not be satisfied with merely shifting the burden, but only with lifting the burden.

The total taxes levied for State purposes in 1920 for 1921 was $72,665,820.00. Of this sum $21,736,007.26 was levied upon the tax payers of Seattle and King County. This represents the total of taxation from every source, local as well as State.

It may not be out of place to briefly explain the method of procedure adopted by the Tax Reduction Council. In the first place the number of departments to be investigated was determined upon and then followed the important matter of selecting suitable committees to do the work. The attitude assumed these committees was that absolute impartiality and a zealous endeavor to bring to public's attention the actual concerning the conduct and of the respective departments of our tax levying with special emphasis upon the expenditures of public. The men and women who up the various sub-committees do not consider themselves but they are selected reference to their fitness for particular work undertaken. Tax Reduction Council believes that the "outside point of" is always beneficial and there are in private life just capable men and women to be in all lines of endeavor as our public servants. There is no intention or desire to bring obloquy upon any of our public officials. Of course, they are satisfied that an office is no longer fit for the position he holds or does not measure up to his responsibility they not hesitate to recommend removal, but the dominant behind the whole movement to cooperate with those officials who want to do what is right, who are in a position to know what should be done and who will do it if backed by the people.

Some objection has been raised that the sub-committees have taken snap judgment in that they did not give those they were investigating an opportunity to be heard before the findings were published. The answer to this is simple. The Tax Reduction Council is an independent body making an investigation on its own initiative into the different departments of our local government. They receive their information from the only sources available. It is true that all of their findings and recommendations may not be exactly correct. If not it is easy to point out any discrepancies or to indicate wherein the same is based upon mis-information. If only a portion of the findings is correct, let this be admitted; the rest can easily be changed or altered to meet the actual facts. As the Chinese proverb goes, "If a log is bad at one end don't throw away the whole log." "The big idea" to be kept in mind in any discussion of the merits or demerits attaching to any particular report is that the particular committee which prepared the report was doing a work for the community without pay and without any hope of reward except to take pleasure in the good thought, that "SOMEONE MUST DO IT." It is this thought and this sentiment, kept fresh in the memories of those public spirited citizens who are connected with the Tax Reduction movement, which causes them to neglect their own affairs for the public good.

hereby instruct our President to appoint a committee of three, no one to be in the employ of the municipality or of private power enterprises. This committee is to cooperate with the City Authorities and with like committees from other civic organizations appointed for the purpose of employing expert advice and securing and making public all information in regard to the complete Skagit Project.

In order to meet our share of the expense of securing and making public this information we hereby authorize our Executive Board to appropriate ten per cent of the Chapter income for this purpose, provided that civic bodies appropriate a like percentage, it being manifestly unfair to call on the city authorities to appropriate money for these additional investigations.

COMMITTEE REPORT ON SKAGIT PROJECT

REPORT FAVORABLE ON SKAGIT PROJECT

Report of the Special Committee of the Municipal League on the Skagit Project.

Seattle, July 25th, 1921.

An analysis of the problem "Is advisable for the City to proceed with the Skagit Project," resolves itself into a few fundamental questions, the answers which can be determined from data available, with sufficient accuracy to enable anyone with experienced judgment to decide the main problem.

The first of these fundamental questions is;—will the City require in the near future, additional hydro-electric power?

This depends upon whether Seattle goes ahead or not. If anyone is pessimistic enough to think that Seattle has reached the zenith of its growth, let him Camber of Commerce during the past thirty years, and especially during the last few months, regarding Seattle's prospects, and he will be convinced, even if he did not have past history to judge by.

As a matter of fact, those who have given the subject careful study, whether in favor or against the City's going ahead with the Skagit project, admit that the City will require years, although they may differ as to just how long we can safely depend upon our present plants to supply the grow demand.

Investigations pursued along independent lines convince your committee beyond a reasonable doubt, that within three or four years, the City will require a large additional supply of water power to profitably carry its known requirements, and the normal increase.

Furthermore, we would consider those in charge of the City's affairs, as derelict in their duty if they did not take proper means to provide for these requirements.

Therefore, the question next to be considered is, where may we best secure a water power, sufficient for the City's needs, not only for five or six years, but for ten, or twenty, or more years, if possible? No single available power project seems to offer as many advantages, as the Skagit.

While the first 50,000 Horsepower unit of the Skagit may cost more than others that might be secured, yet the fact that succeeding units can be added at greatly decreasing cost per horsepower, and it can be additional power within a few

PETLEY SPEAKS BEFORE COMMITTEE

PETLEY APPEARS BEFORE
COMMITTEE

Mr. Benjamin Henry Petley, consulting engineer, who appeared before the Skagit Investigating Committee of the Municipal League on Friday, July 29th, presented charts and figures purporting to show cost of power delivered to high-tension buses in Seattle when operating with the present Cedar River and Lake Union plants as compared with the cost of power when the Gorge plant is completed.

Mr. Petley stated that the maximum load for the year 1920 was 24,000 K. W. with a total plant capacity of 30,000 K. W.; that with the completion of the new units now being installed at Cedar Falls and Lake Union the plant capacity is increased to 75,000 K. W. at a cost of $9,700,000 or about $650 per K.
W.; that the completion of the Gorge plant at this time will cause a loss, by adding to the cost of power delivered to Seattle, beginning at $643,000 per

SECRETARY'S COLUMN

SECRETARY'S NOTE TO SKAGIT REPORT

The report of the special committee of the Municipal League on the Skagit Project was read at the last meeting of the Board of Trustees of the League, Monday, and was concurred in by the Trustees. Later in the afternoon, James A. Haight, the chairman of the committee,
read the report before the City Council just prior to its voting on the five million, five hundred thousand dollar bond issue. Mr.
Haight explained that the League meetings were not being held at this time, and that therefor, the report of the committee had not been, as is the custom of the League, submitted to its membership. The report was received with decided interest on the part of the Council, and with applause on the part of the lobby.

Every member of the League must realize his indebtedness to this committee for the earnest and conscientious efforts made by the committee in the preparation of this report. Appointed a week before final action was to have been taken on the bond issue, the committee met daily, its sessions lasting frequently late into the evening, and arrived at its conclusions after a thorough study of the situation, and after an exhaustive consideration of the arguments, pro and con.

The vote of the council was seven to two in favor of the bond issue. Councilmen Erickson and Cohen voting in the negative.
The ordinance was approved by Mayor Caldwell.

Report of the Special Committee of the Municipal League on the Skagit Project.

expended up to a maximum of 500,000 horsepower, makes its acquisition by the City not only very desirable, but in our opinion the wise and prudent thing to do.

Regarding the Skagit project, it must be understood that the City has spent $225,000.00 or more in making surveys, borings, and studies, securing advice from such experts as Arthur P. Davis, M. M. O'Saughnessy and D. C. Henny, so that there is now engineering data on which to base estimates of cost and there is also competent expert advice on which to determine plans of procedure.

No such thorough information was available two years ago, nor are such full data now available on any other suitable power site.

Furthermore, the City has sold $4,875,000.00, bonds, and expended about $3,500,000.00, which latter amount, (if the project is abandoned), will be lost to the City. The work done would inure to the benefit of the next concern getting hold of the project.

The abandonment of the Skagit would put such a serious handicap on the City's lighting plant, that it would be years overcoming it.

But even this loss should be accepted and written off, and the work abandoned, unless it can be shown that the additional $6,200,000.00 to $7,500,000.00, proposed to be expended is a business like proposal.

In other words, that by the expenditure we shall secure a plant which in connection with the City's present plants, will enable the City to generate power at a cost low enough that can materially reduce rates and yet leave a safe margin of profit.

That this requirement will be met in the construction of the Gorge Creek unit, is proven by figures taken from actual operating results of our lighting plant, to which are added the Skagit costs, as shown in Mr. Dimöcks letter to Mr. Fitzgerald of July 20th, a part of which is quoted as follows:—

"The revenue of the Light department for the first six months of 1921 was-----

The revenue for the first six months averaging 46 per cent of the total revenue for the year. On this basis the total estimated revenue for the year 1921 will be

The estimated expenses are as follows:

Operation	$840,000
Oil	220,000
Interest charged to
Operation	310,000
Depreciation	350,000
Totals	1,720,000.00
Cash surplus for the year.....

.....	$ 960,000.00
Interest paid out of revenue and charged to construction.....	150,000.00
.....	$ 810,000.00
Leaving a net balance of	$ 810,000.00
Forward	$ 810,000.00

When the Gorge Creek unit is in operation there will be added expenses as follows——

Depreciation	$250,000
Interest	$450,000
Operation	130,000
Total	$830,000
Saving in fuel oil	200,000
Net increase in expenses

----- 630,000.00
This will leave a balance of -----
----- $180,000.00

This balance of $180,000 is computed on the theory that all of the expenses, including interest and depreciation, which are now in force and that the revenue is that for the current year. In other words, the Light Department has today sufficient business to pay all interest and operation charges on the entire system, including the Skagit, to set aside $600,000 to the depreciation fund, which may be used for bond redemption or betterments, and to have a balance of $180,000 which may also be used for bond redemption. This is an unusually strong showing following so large an increase of capital investment.

Dependent on New Business

The ability of the system to stand a reduction of rates is therefore dependent on the amount of new business which may be obtained. The average rate of increase in the total light and power business of the city for the last ten years, including both the city and the Puget Sound Power & Light Company, has been about 6 per cent a year compounded annually. The increase of the business of the Light Department has been about 15 per cent a year compounded annually.

It seems entirely reasonable, therefore, to assume a rate of increase of 6 per cent. This rate will yield an increased revenue for the year 1924 over the year 1921 of $510,00. If notice is given to the Puget Sound Power & Lighting Company at the end of this current year that the city will take over, beginning January 1, 1923, street car load the maximum amount of 5,000 kilowatts, as provided in the contract for purchase of the street car system, and will take over an equal additional amount in 1924, the total revenue in 1924 from this business, at the rate now paid to the company will be $250,000. The total added business will therefore be $860,000. The expense account will be increased about $150,000, so that the net increase will be $710,000. This added to the balance of $180,000 as shown above, will make a total of $890,000 available for bond redemption and for reduction of rates."

We have given the whole subject very careful study, being aided in our investigations by the unbiased criticism of an able engineer, thoroughly familiar with it, who is entirely independent of the City officials.

We have had access to the data in possession of the City Engineer and Superintendent of Lighting, and by them have been promptly furnished with all information asked for; have heard the arguments and reasons of the most active engineers and others advocating delay; those opposed to the project itself, and those for it.

After careful deliberation, we have reached the conclusion that it is advisable to proceed with and complete the Gorge Creek 50,000 horsepower unit, of the Skagit project.

Summarized; our reasons
this conclusion are;

1st.—The acquisition of Skagit power project places City in an absolutely independent position, in regard to power requirements for many years to come. Incidentally helps eliminate during these years, controversies and political intrigues regarding power supply. The project can be developed as requirements warrant, at decreasing costs per unit of capacity, and lowering costs of current delivered, thus securing substantial reductions in rate. The chief reason for the City going into the business.

2nd.—The total costs for carrying the proposed Gorge Creek unit, including Cedar River, and the Steam plant, can be maintained from present revenues, without recourse, to taxes; and as added resources, we have the 18000 K. W. Street Railway load, and the normal increase in business, which makes a safe business proposition.

Regarding delay, if we allow the Puget Sound Power Co. to carry the Street Railway load, and Seattle does not have one of its periodical booms, the present City plants recently enlarged will probably be able to take care of the demand for three or four years, but the increasing risks, as the load grows. But if, from the power point of view, a delay of a year or two, could not be serious, what could be gained?

With nearly all the principal copper and gold mines in the country closed, the very best of hard-rock miners and power-drill men can now be secured at reasonable rates. Copper is lower than it has been for twenty years. Lumber will be cut by the City's mill. Steel may or may not be lower, common labor the same. Bonds may be higher or lower. We do know that as business improves and new enterprises are started, the demand for capital increases and with it the interest rate.

On the other hand it will require two years to complete the job, if there are no unforeseen delays; meantime the bonds already issued on the project, are drawing interest at the rate of $30,000 per day, or $292,500 per year; this is a sure expense, working night and day, including Sundays, dubiously offset by a speculative decrease in construction cost. Delay also puts off the time when we may safely and profitably take over the Street Railway power load.

Moreover, if the work is interrupted, the present organization which it has taken long to build up is disintegrated and great and wholly unnecessary loss will ensue. We therefore recommend that the work on the 50,000 horsepower unit of the Skagit project be continued without interruption or delay.

We ought not to close this report without emphasizing the good fortune of the City of Seattle in having always had at the head of its engineering and public utility departments, men of marked ability and the highest integrity and devotion to the City's interest. We little realize how great a blessing to our city and its people has been the freedom of these important departments from the tragic scandals that have so frequently elsewhere soiled the Public utility history of our nation. We feel that the people of this city are justified in having the highest confidence in the fidelity and good judgment of the officials in charge of the Skagit project.

Administrative Consolidation In California.

After more than two years of agitation, mainly on the part of the Taxpayers' Association, for administrative consolidation in California, Governor Stephens sent a special message to the 1921 legislature recommending the passage of a series of bills designed to regroup and consolidate the majority of the statutory administrative agencies of the state. To carry out the governor's wishes, nine separate bills were enacted by the legislature.

The first bill creates a department of finance with the three members of the state board of control at its head. This department takes over general accounting, budget-making, purchasing, printing, motor vehicle regulation, and custody of buildings and grounds. The second bill creates a department of professional standards headed by a director who receives $5,000 per year. This department issues licenses for the practice of all trades and professions, such as, medicine, dentistry, embalming, pharmacy, accounting, optometry, etc. The third bill creates a department of labor and industrial relations which brings together the industrial accident commission, the commission of immigration and housing, the industrial welfare commission, and the bureau of labor statistics under as many divisions. The executive head of this department is a board composed of a representative from each of the four divisions. The fourth bill creates a department of education with the state superintendent of public instruction (a constitutional officer) as director. The board of education, consisting of seven members, is continued in connection with this department and is given certain powers over normal schools. This board is in reality the head of the department, and the director is its executive officer. The fifth bill recreates the department of agriculture established in 1919, and adds to it the state superintendent of weights and measures and the state market commission. It is headed by a director at a salary of $5,000 per year. This department will have at least five divisions: plant industry, agricultural industry, animal industry, markets, and weights and measures. The sixth bill creates a department of public works under a director at a salary not to exceed $10,000 per year. It will consist of at least five divisions: highways, engineering and irrigation, water rights, land settlement, and architecture. A board of public works, established in connection with this department, consists of the director and the three members of the old highway commission continued in office at a salary of $3,600 each. The seventh bill creates a department of institutions under a director at a salary of $5,000 per year. This department takes over most of the charitable and correctional institutions of the state. The local board of trustees are continued as advisory boards. The eighth bill relates to the civil service commission which formerly consisted of three commissioners at $3,000 each per year. Hereafter, the commission is to consist of a single executive officer at an annual salary of $4,000, with two assistants who receive $10 per diem for their work not to exceed $500 per year. The three are appointed by the governor for four year terms. The ninth bill sets certain general provisions relating to the newly created departments. It provides, among other things, that the appointees of the governor shall hold office at his pleasure.

A large part of this work seems to be a rearrangement of existing administrative agencies rather than a genuine reorganization. The department of institutions and the department of professional standards apparently offer the greatest possibilities under this plan for better service.

City-Manager Campaigns

During the past month, Miami, Florida; Benton Harbor, Michigan; New London, Connecticut; Michigan City, Indiana; and Bluefield and Morgantown, West Virginia, have all adopted city-manager government.

In the elections which have been held in Indiana under the new optional charter law, the city-manager plan has met with seven defeats and one victory. Other cities are voting on the plan in June. On June 7 the nounce results. On June 7 the plan was defeated in Anderson, Kokomo, New Albany, Muncie.

LIBRARY'S ANNUAL

There has just been received the Thirtieth Annual Report of the Seattle Public Library.

The following table in condensed form purports to show the progress made:

Vols. in library,	128,309	335,509
An. circulation,	649,611	1,828,496
Cir. per capita,	2.74	5.79
No. borrowers,	41,963	80,481
Population,	237,194	315,652
Receipts, city	$146,538	$277,676
Salaries,	$ 62,275	$192,740
No. employees,	94	158

The report goes on to state that ten years ago four of the library branches were housed in permanent buildings belonging to the City; that at the present time seven of the nine branches occupy their own buildings, and building for the eighth branch is under consideration. "The cost to the City for these has been very slight, as most of the funds were provided by Andrew Carnegie," states the report.

An increase of 209% is shown in the total salaries paid. The average salary in 1910 was $662, in 1920, $1219, being an increase of 84 per cent. The average low salary is partly explained by the number of boys and girls employed as pages, many of them being high school students who work part time. The beginning salary for pages in 1910 was $25 and is now $50. The beginning salary for regular library assistants with training was in 1910 $50 and is now $100. In both cases the initial salary has in-

QUESTIONS FOR YOU TO ANSWER

The question that is confronting the officers of the League is: Will the rank and file of the League stand ready to answer any call for service that may be made? The League is the only civic agency in the city that is undertaking exclusively the discussion and promotion of municipal matters and because it is so thoroughly democratic in its personnel and its method of conducting business, it has gained a reputation for expressing the will of the great majority of the citizens and residents of Seattle. This year with all the problems that are facing the City, there is a greater need for its activities than ever before. This seems to be a thread-worn phrase, but thread-worn phrases usually express truth as it has been experienced.

The League has a definite problem this year. One of the big things which it is going to try to accomplish is that of establishing a Municipal Research Bureau for this city. Other things of nearly equal importance will be attempted by the League, and perhaps one of the most vital things will be that of increasing its membership. You, league member, will be called upon to help. Are you going to do it, or are you going to say "let George do it?" Are you going to give excuses for not participating in committee work or are you going to cheerfully accept the assignments, and attack your problem with the same energy and ability which characterizes your business endeavors? Are you going to attend League meetings and by your very attendance make those meetings more interesting and attractive to the others, or are you, when Tuesday comes, going to forget all about the luncheons and go elsewhere? Are you going to see to it that those of your friends who are not members of the League apply for membership, or are you going to be indifferent to this duty? These are some of the questions the writer would like to propound to you, and which are in the minds of your officers who are working faithfully to make this year's work the best that it has ever been.

This article is not being written in a pessimistic vein. We believe that the League is coming to its own; that the inertia of civic activities caused by the war has now gone; that a new vigor, a new interest in our city's problems has seized upon all of us, and that we are looking forward to the year's work not only with a sense of profound duty, but also with the eagerness of enthusiasm for something which we know will be a genuine pleasure and inspiration. The questions remain unanswered, however! In the final analysis, Mr. League member, it is up to you.

EIMON L. WIENIR.

NO MORE LEAGUE MEETINGS IN JULY AND AUGUST

In accord with its usual custom the League meetings for the summer have been suspended. The next regular meeting will take place Tuesday September 6th.

SECRETARY'S COLUMN

Committees have been appointed by the officers and the Board of Trustees of the League for the ensuing year. Letters notifying committee men of their appointments have been mailed. It is hoped that we may be able to publish in the next issue of the News a complete roster of committee assignments. Members receiving notifications of appointments will please signify without delay, their acceptance.

The Board of Trustees at its last meeting discussed informally the jitney situation. There is no doubt but that the jitneys have served as the rapid transit agency in Seattle. Thousands of persons living in outlying districts have saved from fifteen to twenty minutes on rides to and from their homes. With the jitneys off the streets, will the street railway improve its service to such an extent that the jitneys will not be missed, or must there be some other form of rapid transit conveyance devised which will accommodate a large portion of our residents? This is the question that has been referred to the newly appointed Public Utilities Committee for study.

The League, several years ago, had a very strong County Affairs Committee who were in close touch with problems affecting the County. For the past two years the work of this committee was taken over by other committees; but at the last meeting of the Trustees, it was decided to again re-establish the County Affairs Committee, with the main object of investigating the possibility for the reduction of County expenses.

The proposed trip to the Skagit was postponed until some further date when more members of the League could make the trip together. Last week, the date fixed tentatively for the trip, the majority of those who signified their intention of going could, for one reason or another, not take advantage of the opportunity. Perhaps the fact that the Skagit matter had been settled by the Council had something to do with it, but more likely it was the fact that during this time of the year so many men planned their vacation periods far in advance, and hence there was a conflict of dates. It would seem a pity to let an opportunity like this go by, since from all sources comes the information that the trip is not only exceedingly instructive but very enjoyable. It is hoped that more members will signify their intention of going, and that the latter part of this month will be a con-

LIBRARY'S ANNUAL REPORT

creased 100 per cent. Library salaries, although better here than in most libraries, are far from commensurate with the service rendered. They should be equal to those paid teachers as the requirements in education and personal qualifications are fully equal. The librarian recently served as chairman of a Special Committee on Salaries of the Pacific Northwest Library Association. This committee issued a report in 1920 that has been mentioned as the most comprehensive publication on library salaries yet published.

Perhaps the most interesting phase of the report is that concerning the Municipal Reference Division. This division, headed by Mary Kobitich, is reported upon as follows:

The outstanding feature of municipal reference work during 1920 has been the steady increase in the number of inquiries for information on civic subjects on the part of city officials, civic organizations, and the public. Particularly was this true with reference to requests for data from city officials, which numbered five in January as compared with thirteen in December.

Among Seattle city officials, the Mayor, the Corporation Counsel, and the Civil Service, Engineering, and Public Utilities Departments, in particular, have taken advantage of the library's facilities. Among the civic organizations, both the Seattle Chamber of Commerce and Commercial Club and the Seattle Municipal League have been active in requesting data for investigations. The letters of appreciation which the various city officials and members of civic organizations have taken time to write to the librarian on different occasions, have served to indicate the value of the library's services in such instances.

The work of the Division for 1920 may be grouped as, first, investigations; second, collection of municipal data; and third, publicity of the civic resources and research work of the library.

Investigations

Investigations were made both on the initiative of the Division and by request. The reports involved work varying from several days to a month, and usually took the form of an annotated list of selected references or a chart tabulating the data. On account of the number of requests of city officials and civic organizations for information, time did not permit many investigations on the initiative of the Division. However, among these may be recognized important civic problems of Seattle during the past year, such as: Blue Sky Legislation, Building Codes, Controlling the operation of Jitneys, Daylight Saving, Location of Slaughterhouses, Methods of Garbage Collection, Methods of increasing Street Railway Revenues, Work for the Unemployed.

Reports on the following subjects were prepared in response to the direct request of either city officials or members of civic organizations: City-County consolidation, City Zoning, Classification of Municipal Positions, Cost of living in Seattle, Cost of operation of street railways, Longshoremen, Municipal Budgets, Municipal Research bureaus, Police arrests, Psychological tests for municipal employees, Rapid Transit, Street cleaning, Street Railway fares, Street Railway Franchises.

Collection of Municipal Data

Correspondence with officials of other cities and various municipal reference librarians formed a prominent feature of the work of the Division. Much valuable information, such as data on the merger of city and county governments, the use of psychological tests in city employment, and the operation of street railway systems, was collected through this method.

After corresponding with officials of various cities in an attempt to secure a complete file of the general ordinances of the larger cities in the United States, the Division finally obtained the ordinances of the following fifteen cities, which are now on file with the city documents: Baltimore, Md., Boston, Mass., Buffalo, N. Y., Chicago, Ill., Cleveland, Ohio, Denver, Col., Indianapolis, Ind., Milwaukee, Wis., New York, N. Y., Newark, N. J., Oakland, Cal., Pittsburgh, Pa., San Francisco, Cal., Spokane, Wash., Toledo, O.

BALTIMORE PLEADS FOR JUST REPRESENTATION

Recent numbers of the Baltimore Municipal Journal, issued by the city government, contain accounts of Baltimore's efforts to secure just representation in the legislature. In May the Just Representation League was organized with what appears, from all accounts, to be much enthusiasm.

A fair plan of representation for every political unit of the State has been worked out by Mr. DeCourcy W. Thom, Chairman of the Just Representation League of Maryland. Under this plan Baltimore will be redistricted into twelve legislative districts; the counties will have increased representation as the increase in population; and Baltimore City can never have more than forty per cent of the representation in either the House or the Senate.

On the basis of the 1920 census and under this plan, Baltimore City would have fourteen Senators instead of four and thirty-seven members of the House instead of twenty-four; the Counties would have twenty-three Senators and eighty-four members in the House of Delegates.

Specific examples of the present condition of affairs is pointed out by John R. Bland in the last number of the Journal:

The counties keep on increasing their representation but more City does not; its representation has not been increased by act of the Legislature since 1900.

The disparity in representation can be shown by a single comparison from the Eastern Shore, which has been the steady opponent of equitable representation for Baltimore City. According to the census of 1920 Wicomico County, the largest on the Eastern Shore, has a population of 28,114; and Baltimore has a population of 733,826. This population of 28,114 Wicomico will have 1 Senator and 4 Delegates in the Assembly, while Baltimore for a population of 733,826 has 4 Senators and 24 Delegates. That is, a Senator from Baltimore City represents 183,456 people, while a Senator from Wicomico County represents 28,000 and a Delegate from Baltimore City represents 30,000 while a Delegate from Wicomico County represents 7,000.

This discrepancy is still more marked if we take one of the smaller counties on the Western Shore. Calvert County has 1 Senator and 2 Delegates for a population of 9,744, as compared with Baltimore City's 1 Senator and 4 Delegates. Expressed in another way, 83,000 and 1 Delegate for the vote of a citizen of Maryland in Calvert County in the election of a state senator have about 18 times the weight of the vote of a citizen in Baltimore City. And yet the citizen in Baltimore is expected to vote in the state in civil or military duty with the same zeal and loyalty as a citizen in Calvert County and pays as much in taxes for the support of the State.

Our statutes in effect say that no many thousands of population in a county shall have a representative in the House of Delegates, the total representation in one county at no time to exceed six. Potentially, therefore, the representation of the counties in the House of Delegates can be increased from 82 to 138. But in Baltimore City there is no potential increase. Each legislative district is limited by the maximum as the counties, 1 Senator and six Delegates. The inequality could be remedied by increasing the number of legislative districts, but for the last twenty years all attempts to do this have been resisted by the counties. Notwithstanding the great increase in the city's population there has been no increase in representation since 1900.

Baltimore City has more than one-half the population of the State of Maryland, and about sixty per cent of the taxable property of the state. If, to the amount paid in direct state taxes, there is added the amount paid by the people of Baltimore in various fees and licenses it will be found that Baltimore pays three times as much as the rest of the state; but in the face of all this Baltimore is represented in the General Assembly by less than one-fourth of the House of Delegates and by less than one-sixth of the Senate.

The attitude of those opposing the claims of Baltimore to a fair and equitable representation has been an unjust and insulting one. The counties have a voice at Annapolis out of all proportion to their population and they propose to maintain it. Will the people of Baltimore City sit supinely while this condition exists.

New York City with fifty-two per cent of the population of New York State has forty-one per cent of the representation in the State Assembly, San Francisco with seventeen per cent of the population of California has sixteen per cent of the State Legislature's quota.

Oregon's New Budget Law

The legislature of Oregon in its 1921 session adopted a budget law which was prepared and fathered by Senator I. L. Patterson. Governor Olcott gave active support to the plan. The Oregon plan is what is known as the administrative plan.

Certain features of the law may not be all that could be desired. It might be contended that the budget commission should exercise greater control during legislative action. The amount appropriated to prosecute the work is small. The time given by experts will necessarily be limited.

On the other hand, there are certain obvious advantages. The commission is particularly well constituted, because the board of control has immediate supervision of all charitable and penal institutions of the state. The governor and secretary of state are members of the board of regents of three state educational institutions. Their term of office is four years and together they make a continuing body, because the secretary of state is elected at one election, and the governor and treasurer at the succeeding election. Therefore this body will be in an advantageous position for securing pertinent data at all times relative to the income and expenses. Also, there is every reason to believe the joint committee on ways and means will be glad to have these authoritative and systematized data placed before it, instead of being compelled to collect the same. Much will depend on the spirit of co-operation between the legislative and the administrative offices. Judging the future by the past, it is fair to presume the departments will gladly co-operate, and that the advantages of the system will be so apparent that the later legislatures will gladly strengthen the law and see the advantage of spending more money if necessary in securing the necessary data for scientific budget making.

BUDGET COMMITTEE AT WORK

The newly appointed budget committee, consisting of J. L. Baldwin, Chairman, Prof. W. E. Cox, Samuel F. Racine, Matthew W. Hill, J. P. Robertson and Robert A. Tripple has met and organized. Mr. Baldwin has been in attendance at the council hearings last Tuesday and Wednesday. At the present the committee is to touch only the "high spots" in the budget. Reduction of salaries, the bonus, the Police and Fire departments will receive special consideration. Prof. Cox and Matthew Hill were appointed by the Chairman to report on the Police department estimates while Messrs. Racine and Tripple will act as sub-committee on the Fire department budget.

It is expected that this committee will continue its investigation throughout the course of the year so that it may be able to make an exhaustive study of costs of operation in cities of the size of Seattle. The committee also expects to go into detail concerning each department of government in Seattle.

Seattle Should Read the Story of City-Manager Government Plan

AS PRESENTED BY THE NATIONAL MUNICIPAL LEAGUE

During the last ten years, 140 American cities and towns have changed their municipal charters and adopted the city-manager form of government.

This plan has aroused wide attention and the results are already so striking that city managers are being seriously advocated in such cities as Chicago, Cleveland and Kansas City.

The development of city managership as a new profession is well under way. Thirty-seven times, men who did well as managers of small cities have been called to large cities at increased salaries. Of these managers, several have gained promotion twice and three are now in their fourth city;—for instance, Mr. E. A. Beck started in 1914 as manager under ordinance powers in Edgeworth-Sewickely, Pa., won promotion to Goldsboro, N. C., thence to Auburn, Me., and finally to Lynchburg, Va., where he is now, each step in the ascent involving larger salary and opportunity. When a new managership is created, or an old one vacated, the successful managers of smaller cities are usually the candidates who receive first consideration. Over half of the cities have chosen their manager from out of town. The managers have had conventions for interchange of technical experience every year since 1914.

How It All Started.

In 1908 the Mayor and Council of Staunton, Va., in disgust over the inefficiency of government by councilmanic committees, hired Mr. C. E. Ashburner and passed an ordinance delegating to him all administrative detail and responsibility, giving him the title of "general manager." He made good and became somewhat famous for his novel title. (Since then Staunton has changed over from the makeshift ordinance arrangement to the real city manager plan.)

In the fall of 1910 Lockport, N. Y., was looking for a chance to get aboard the commission government movement, which was then sweeping over the country. The Lockport Board of Trade accordingly had to prepare legislation and proceeded to improve on the regular commission plan by combining its single-elective-board feature with the Staunton idea of an appointive manager. Lockport did not succeed in getting its bill passed by the legislature, but the "Lockport plan" was talked about all over the country.

In the summer of 1912, Sumter, S. C., a city of 8,000 inhabitants, adopted a new charter embodying the Lockport idea and began operating under the new system early in the following year. This was the first city therefore to have the city-manager system. Two neighboring towns, Hickory and Morgantown, N. C., copied Sumter immediately.

Dayton, O., had been through a long siege of wasteful, inefficient administration headed by spoils politicians. When the charter commission had thoroughly investigated all the prevailing and proposed types of city government, they concluded that Sumter had the best on the market. Then came the big Dayton flood of 1913, and the incapacity of the old government was emphasized anew. When things became normal again, the people adopted the new charter by a big majority.

Springfield, O., took similar action a few weeks later, the councils of both Springfield and Dayton taking office in January, 1914. Eleven other towns, small cities in Texas and Michigan also installed the plan that year. Since then, an increasing number of cities have adopted it every year, the 1920 list of accreditations being by far the largest. The pressure on the legislators became so widespread that twelve states—Massachusetts, New York, Virginia, Ohio, Oklahoma, Kansas, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, North Carolina, Wisconsin and Louisiana—have passed statewide laws permitting their cities by a simple referendum procedure to adopt the city manager plan.

Some Typical Results.

The city which first made the commission-manager plan famous is Dayton, O. When the first Dayton commissioners took office in 1914 they realized that the success of the new government depended largely upon the personality and equipment of the man whom they would select to fill the City Managership. The job was offered to Colonel Goethals, the builder of the Panama Canal, at $25,000 a year. He declined. The commission then discovered H. M. Waite, the city engineer of Cincinnati, and right hand man of young Mayor Hunt, whose brilliant reform administration there was just closing. Waite had had a long and important engineering experience. He refused an offer of $15,000 a year from a private corporation and took the Dayton managership at $12,500.

During the next seven years the new government reduced the death rate and infant mortality; inaugurated free nursing, medical services and clinics, and extended food inspection; passed pasteurization ordinance; eliminated seven thousand dry vaults; house; abolished prison contract labor; established parole system; enlarged Summer and Winter recreation program; supervised over five thousand vacant lot, home, school, and boys' and girls' gardens, furnishing free seed; increased park area from twenty to five hundred and forty-one acres; increased public charities; inaugurated free legal aid bureau handling one thousand cases a year; eliminated eleven loan shark companies; operated free employment bureau for women; reorganized police and fire departments; established training schools, and members incorporated an educational society; organized crime prevention bureau and juvenile police; employed police women; abolished segregated district; motorized all fire apparatus; passed building code and provided inspection of buildings, sanitation and smoke prevention; established eight-hour day for all city labor; constructed self-supporting garbage disposal plant; bought water supply and lands for $67,000 as against an earlier bid four times as high and gave abundant supply for the first time; operated a municipal garage; saved several hundred thousand dollars per year to gas consumers by securing universal natural gas at 34c instead of artificial gas at 85c; contracted for better street lighting at lower rates despite modern costs; provided adequate budget procedure; central purchasing; central billing; reduced floating debt from $125,000 to $50,000 first year; put civil service on honest basis; provided annual audit of accounts; publicity on all city matters; appointed city plan commission and numerous other citizen advisory boards;

Norfolk, Va., (pop. 115,777) had doubled its population suddenly during the war yet the new government, dating from September, 1918, reduced the inherited deficit $2,000,000, added $1,500,000 of public improvements, made the police and fire departments the best paid in the country, established a juvenile court, employed visiting nurses, opened free medical and dental clinics, and established a city hospital. Through co-operation between the city-planning commission and citizens, a street extension project which would ordinarily have cost the city $250,000, was completed for $20,000. 50-acre water frontage worth $750,000 was acquired for $250,000. Fourteen new playgrounds were opened and recreation developed for adults, a municipal tennis tournament, for instance. Infant mortality was radically reduced.

Wheeling, W. V., (pop. 54,322) adopted the plan in 1917 and when the first manager died in 1919, this was what they said of his regime, Raised all wages of all city employees. Saved $12,000 by combining jobs. Motorized the fire department. Wiped out the red light district and gambling. Gave city a new electric light system without extra cost. Negotiated new contracts that saved the city $9,500 on gas and $20,000 on electricity per year. Made the traction company pay half the cost of two new bridges. Settled garbage problem. Discovered old government signed away city's rights in a telephone merger, started suit and recovered cash and privileges worth $110,000. Sold old city gas plant to good advantage. Defeated street railroad fare increase by proving over-valuation.

Kalamazoo, Mich., (pop. 48,487). The new government found $2,000,000 more real estate values by equalization and $82,500 of property that had escaped taxation. Established a budget and lived within it. Cleared off inherited deficit of $82,000. Centralized purchasing. Saved the people $100,000 annually by earning better fire insurance rate. Established venereal disease clinics. Sold coal from city yard at cost. United private and city nursing under full-time city physician. Enlarged the parks 30 acres. Made the government more understandable by a municipal exhibit by a bulletin periodically distributed to every home and by a readable annual report.

Alameda, Cal., (pop. 28,806). Adopted modern zoning ordinance excluding business from residential areas. Enlarged parks. Cleared streets by direct labor at one-third of the old contract price. Now cleans principal streets twice a day instead of three times a week. Makes a profit on garbage. In 1919 carried through street construction at 10 per cent less per mile than the old government did at pre-war prices.

Waltham, Mass., (pop. 30,897). Although labor went up 54% and materials 82%, the tax rate went up only 8% in the years from 1917 to 1919. Combined service of water and engineering department, saving salaries and increasing efficiency. Avoided $300,000 expenditure for new water supply by stopping leaks and waste of 33%. Central purchase and cash discounts. Community street dances and free movies.

St. Augustine, Fla., (pop. 6,192). Paid off inherited floating debt of $37,000, and put $16,000 into a sinking fund on water bonds. Adopted full instead of quarter valuation. Modernized the accounting system which has since been widely copied. Crime practically eliminated. Weekly street dances. Concerts, bowling greens, quoit pitching and other recreations established.

Cartersville, Ga., (pop. 5,810). Council under this plan has now twice been re-elected without contest or a single dissenting vote%

Griffin, Ga., (pop. 8,240). Saved $43,000 the first year while improving every department. Did more street work in one year than in any previous five years.

Sandusky, O., (pop. 22,897). Since this plan took effect reduced bonded debt $230,000 and paid off $25,000 of floating debt. The 1919 operating expenses, despite ascending wages and materials, were less than under old plan in 1914 and 1915. Saved 180,000,000 gallons of water leakage.

Ashtabula, O., (pop. 22,082). In the recent period when costs increased 50%, lived within its income from the old tax rate. Municipal ownership of street car line voted.

Grand Rapids, Mich., (pop. 1337,634) All sidewalks in city brought up to standard. Sewage problem solved. The city has assumed care of all destitute families. School dentist and medical inspector work extended. Large public works carried through effectively.

Jackson, Mich., (pop. 48,374). All public works planned for fifty years of growth on basis of complete topographical survey. Public health nurses visit every new baby, rich or poor. Seven clinics. Pre-natal clinic has reduced infant mortality. Restaurants rated for cleanliness. In coal shortage, city bought abandoned coal mine in neighborhood, pumped it out, operated it successfully and profitably till shortage was relieved, then leased the mine at a profit.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., (pop. 12,096) saved $67,000 in two years. Conducts municipal entertainments, concerts and lectures.

Manistee, Mich., (pop. 9,690). New government found $80,000 authorized for new trunk sewer, but spent $1200 cleaning tons of debris from old sewer which was then found adequate.

Tyler, Texas, (pop. 12,085). For the first time in many years operated without a deficit.

Coalgate, Okla., (pop. 4,000). Found departments badly run down, water supply so meagre that it was only available for household use six hours a day. Street lights "refused to burn without constant coaxing, sewer system was stopped up in several places and disposal plant was out of business."—All of which was speedily corrected.

San Jose, Cal., (pop. 39,604) ran in 1919 with less expenditures than 1916 despite doubled costs. Fire loss only 50c per capita. Finances in order. Surplus in the city treasury.

Alhambra, Cal., (pop. 10,000). Purchased the water system and ran it for $14,000 a year less than the private company did.

Auburn, Me., (pop. 16,985). First year in over twenty years which closed without a deficit or a floating debt.

Watertown, N. Y., (pop. 31,263). New government January, 1920, found $75,000 of unpaid accounts, some of them five years old; 3,000,000 gallons of water, enough to supply the city, wasted daily; decentralized and questionable purchasing and bookkeeping; ridiculous red tape; police department 50% undermanned; fire department unduly costly;—all of which problems are being vigorously and effectively corrected by the experienced manager, Mr. Bingham, formerly manager of Waltham and Norwood, Mass.

Wichita, Kans., (pop. 72,128). New government reelected after two years with slight contest; first time any administration had unanimous press support. Built sewer with direct labor for $214,000, when lowest contractors' bid was $316,000. Began long-needed flood prevention work. Municipal entertainments, admission 10 to 50c, with grand opera singers, etc. Venereal disease clinic started. Tax levy not increased despite modern costs.

Hays, Kans., (pop. 2,339). Old government had never lived within its income. New government increased revenue of electric plant 134% while decreasing cost of operation 11%. Increased water receipts 116% while cost decreased 71%. Overcame deficit of $22,000. Modern budget and no deficits.

Webster City, Iowa, (pop. 6,000) saved $36,000 a year since adoption of the manager plan.

Phoenix, Ariz., (pop. 29,053) despite rapid increase in costs, the valuation and tax levy were not increased in 1919.

These are instances. So many such accounts are in evidence that the cumulative mass of them is overwhelming. That does not mean that there are no exceptions. There are and always will be. In a few of the towns the change in the form of government has not altered the prevailing complacent stagnation and the improvement has been slight. There have been a few odd cases where the people have elected the old political crowd to the Council and the Council has either chosen a local chronic job-holder as manager or has made miserable the life of an imported experienced man by petty nagging and cheap politics, but even in these cases there has been a cold air that blew with the Council's clear-cut responsibility for all results and there has been an unexpected amount of progress. In some towns the business crowd has dominated the new government, in others it has been labor.

The city managers are not miraculous experts; the great majority of them are hard-working full-time and then some practical men with alluring chances of promotion ahead of them if they make good and a rather unusual opportunity to do it. Many a mayor has wished he had their freedom from red tape, and at the annual conventions of the City Managers' Association when anecdotes are told of the ineptitudes and follies of the older regimes, it is often observed and freely admitted that the officers of the old-style tanglefoot governments never had the manager's chances to give good administration.

Labor and Civil Service.

One of the favorite political maneuvers to defeat city manager charters is to stir up the municipal employees by the assertion that they will lose their civil service protection and become subject to the whim of a new manager who will discharge them all including the uniformed fire and police forces. In no manager-city has any thing of this sort ever inspired. On the contrary it happens that the record of the manager cities in dealing with labor and the civil service is particularly good. They have been quick to adopt the eight-hour day and to advance the rates of pay. Promotions have been by merit and as to most of the cities it is fair to claim that politics has disappeared from the administrative personnel. These results are natural enough in a government freed from red tape and headed by an executive who can work almost as freely as a private business executive. Just as it is the lightened progressive business house which treats its employees generously and gets, in return, high-grade service and low labor turnover, the manager-cities are the ones which have contrived to adjust their budgets most promptly in order to eat their workers right.

The Underlying Principle.

The reason why the manager plan averages so markedly higher in quality of government is because it is more democratic; i. e., more sensitive and obedient to public opinion. Ten unusual basic features explain its superiority in true democracy, namely:

1. The "Short Ballot" principle.
2. Unification of powers.
- (1) The "Short Ballot" principle is the doctrine that only a few offices could ever be scheduled to be filled by election at any one time so as to permit adequate and unconfused popular examination of the candidates. In other democratic countries the plan of government usually calls on the people to fill just one single office in a given day, e. g., member of Parliament or member of a city council from a ward. We really hold not an election but ten, twenty, even fifty, elections in a single day! Our complex American ballots frequently deserve to be labelled: "For politicians only, not for the people." The slogan of the Short Ballot movement runs "The long ballot is the politicians' ballot; the short ballot is the people's ballot."

The commission manager charters respect this Short Ballot principle. It would be a violation of principle if the council were made so large that the typical voter was called upon to vote for more than five officers simultaneously. When the duty of making more than five selections at any one time is thrust upon the voter, the voter ceases to make an individual choice for every office and begins to fall back upon ready-made tickets prepared for him—by corruptible cliques or machines. Obviously, when the ballot thus requires more choices than his majesty, the voter, cares to remember, power gravitates away from the voters into the hands of the ticket-makers (politicians) who thus acquire opportunities which are open to great abuse. But when politics is made clear, simple and understandable by a very short ballot, the voter can protect himself—and usually he will.

In most of the cities which have thus far adopted the plan, the number of councilmen is five. In the larger cities the number can well be more than five, providing, however, that terms expire in rotation so that not too many would be chosen at any one election, or provided that the ballot, as the voter sees it, is shortened in some other way, as by dividing the city into wards, each of them electing a portion of the council.

(2) "Unification of powers" (the other basic merit of the manager plan) means the reposing of all power in a single place—the council. This gives to the whole mechanism the single controlling composite mind which is essential to the success of any organism. (The mayor-and-council plan, for example, lacks unification of powers and permits dead-locks and "passing the buck," since the mayor and the council are prevented by the charter from getting together and composing their differences by so simple an expedient as the taking of a joint vote.) It would be a violation of the principles of the city-manager plan, for instance, to give to a separate mayor the power to veto the acts of the council. It would then be a two-headed city instead of a one-headed city.

It is easier for the people to control a unified government than a ramshackle one. For example, the council in the manager plan has power to raise the taxes and hence has power to yield to a public demand for better service; but at the same time, it has power to reduce service and yield to a public demand for low taxes. It cannot say in the first case—"we haven't the money" nor in the second case—"We can't make the administration economical." It must always accept the complete responsibility, as there is no one else on whom blame can be thrust.

Advantages of a City Manager

The advantages of having a city manager are obvious to any business man. For counsel, many minds are needed; for execution, a single directing head is required. Universal business practice demonstrates this as does also the superior success which we have had with our typical public school systems where a school board does all its work through a hired superintendent.

It is essential to the plan that the city manager shall be appointive. Even the freak feature of one city-manager charter, which subjects the manager to direct recall by the people is damaging to the principle involved, since it diverts responsibility from the council. He must be completely the servant of the council, else it is cannot fairly be forced to take responsibility for his acts. He must in no way be independent of it.

Making it possible to hire the city manager from out of town not only has been helpful in getting trained service, but is highly important to the growing profession of city management. If a city manager could not look forward to similar positions elsewhere in case he is displaced or outgrows his town, a powerful incentive toward the development of personal efficiency would be lost. The fact that the city manager is not necessarily involved in local politics, or in disputes on matters of general policy, permits comparative permanence in the office of the chief administrator of the city, a most important thing to the development of a smoothly running mechanism. In all plans involving elective executives long tenures are rare. To rid us of the amateur and transient executives which our present mayors are, and to facilitate the substitution of experienced executives in municipal administration, is enough in itself to justify the coming of the city-manager plan.

For the first time the people have gotten their own corporation into such shape that it can hold it own with private corporations in competition for competent executive talent, providing these attractive conditions: tenure for as long as the man "makes good," chance for advancement and professional reputation and a chance to achieve things by familiar straightforward unincumbered business methods.

Democracy of the Plan

A generation ago reformers exercised their wits to devise complications of governmental machinery in a vain endeavor to prevent bad government. Thereby they made government so complex and roundabout that no one but professional politicians could operate it and the rank and file of the citizenship were left almost helpless spectators. Government by a compact ruling class variously called "the politicians," "the ring," "the machine," etc., was the result. But such government by politicians is not democracy; it is oligarchy. The old idea was intended to be democratic but it didn't "democ!"

Today the winning principle is to simplify and clarify the processes of government so that everybody can and will understand and take part effectively without special attention or effort. Politics under the manager plan becomes so primitively bare and simple that there is nothing for a politician to be a specialist in. Every citizen can and does pick out his own favorite five candidates without the aid of a party label or ticket and without letting interested persons guide his pencil for him. There is no one for the candidate to appeal to but the voters; the old intermediary "machine" with its ready-made ticket has no function. The busy ordinary non-political citizen who counts for so little in the old politics, finds himself exercising his full share of control in the new plan.

That is democracy and it explains why the plan works better. For the old government obeyed a party machine which was wide open to the intrusion of new members whose motives might be corrupt whereas the new government connects direct with the masses who are usually ready to applaud and reward those who serve them well, and, who at any rate are the best base to build upon.

Manager charters are usually primitively simple and short. They safely extend municipal powers in the most free-handed way. More things are done by flexible administrative rulings, and less and less by wordy, inelastic ordinances. The corporation counsels have little to do in digging up ancient ordinances or in interpreting or stretching the charter. Red tape simply disappears, and actions that once took weeks are attended to in a few minutes.

REPORTS ON COUNTY FERRY LEASE

When the residents of the various communities living across Lake Washington, appealed to the Municipal League to hear its arguments against the County Commissioners leasing the ferries to private concerns, President Claude H. Anderson appointed a special committee consisting of Robert Howes, chairman; Joseph Jacobs, W. C. Morse, William G. Mann, with Eimon L. Wienir as secretary to the committee, to investigate and report the matter at once, so as to be in time to present the committee's report to the County Commissioners on the morning of August 22. The committee favored:

1. That the ferries be leased by the county to private interests;
2. That the time for receiving of the bids be extended for a period of sixty days, and that the matter be broadly advertised in newspapers along the coast, as well as in marine journals; and
3. That the County Commissioners give serious consideration to allowing of bids for the operation of the ferry system in units as well as of the whole.

The following is the protest received from the delegation representing the East Shore Communities. The communication was presented by A. B. Newell, Mayor of Kirkland; F. J. Ogden, of Mercer Island; M. A. Reese, of Bellevue; and W. E. Chambers of Kirkland.

Many of you gentlemen have heard the cry, "A thousand dollars per day lost by the ferries," and have possibly been influenced thereby into taking a stand antagonistic to the continuance of their control by the county. Many have not taken the time and trouble to investigate the cause of this great loss in the face of the fact that the receipts of the system are today the largest in their history. They have condemned our ferry system and demanded that the county get from under.

They have assumed an attitude which upon its face would be ridiculous if applied by one of our big local merchants to a department showing a deficit in his store. This merchant would first seek channels of waste and look for methods of more economical management in order to put the department on its feet before quickly abolishing it.

This is exactly what should have been done with our ferry system, but was not done.

Twice have the transportation rates been increased in a wild effort to cut down this deficit but for every additional dollar income received, new channels of expenditure were opened, consuming this dollar and many more.

Briefly permit us to call your attention to the fact that on the Ferry Lincoln, with which I am personally more familiar, wages are now 109 per cent greater than before the war. This same boat is comparatively new, less than five years old, yet over 50 per cent of its original cost has been expended in repairs, under circumstances that in some circles are looked upon with suspicion.

The overhead and management expense of the ferries has increased from nothing to the present rate of $27,000 per year within the past three years. Larger crews are employed than ever before and in many cases employees sit idly smoking and entertaining friends while extra hands do the work they formerly did.

Along with the 109 per cent increase in wages comes special lay-offs and vacations until now our deck crews and captains are paid for nearly two months' work never performed.

Political favoritism has had its influence. For example an engineer on one of the largest ferries was discharged for incompetency, but such political pressure was brought to bear upon the Commissioners that he was reinstated and regardless of competency is now holding one of the most important positions in the system.

A large and commodious waiting room was built at the Leschi Park Terminal providing space for a confectionery store and cold drink business, the rental of which appears nowhere in the receipt columns of the system. We are reliably informed that it has been leased to one of the superintendent's relatives, who sweeps the portion devoted to a waiting room in return for his rent. This same work is done by the crews of other vessels without expense

RAPID TRANSIT SYSTEM FOR SEATTLE

Commented on by Fox in the National Municipal Review for August.

Report on Proposed Rapid Transit System for the City of Seattle. By A. H. Dimock, City Engineer, Carl H. Reeves, Superintendent of Public Utilities, and D. W. Henderson, General Superintendent of Railways.

While there is urgent need today in American cities to have local transportation revised and future lines provided in accordance with the broadest principles of city planning, at the same time there are certain principles of transportation which should not be ignored, and especially the experience of cities which have rapid transit systems in operation. Interesting as is the St. Louis report in some ways, it is very disappointing in its recommendation of subways for surface cars, especially in view of the drawbacks of such subways in Boston, after a trial of twenty-three years, as both extravagant and unsatisfactory in cost and operation, merely transferring many of the street car troubles underground. In the light of John A. Beeler's conclusive report of 1917 on the Boston situation, it is difficult to understand why subways for surface cars have been so persistently recommended for Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, and now St. Louis.

A marked contrast to the action of these cities is found in the rapid transit report of the city of Seattle, which is unique in many ways for the breadth of the principles adopted and the avoidance of the mistakes of other cities. Train operation alone is provided for on the proposed rapid transit lines, and such co-ordination with the latter

BALDWIN REPORTS ON BUDGET HEARINGS

To Mr. Claude H. Anderson, President of the Municipal League:

Dear Sir:

As chairman of your Budget Committee recently appointed, I attended some of the sessions of the Finance Committee of the City Council, engaged in budget making.

I believe some of the council are sincerely anxious to reduce the allowances for next year, and thus to relieve the burden of taxation. Particularly courageous and helpful towards this end have been the suggestions of Councilman Drake.

As illustrative of the human frailty by which the City is governed, however, there was an incident occurring at the hearing on the Fire Department budget. Mr. Drake called attention to the fact that the firemen had been given free rides on the street cars under the franchise of the Electric Company, which was quite proper when they were on duty twenty-four hours a day; but after they had been given a two-platoon system, he saw no more reason for this privilege to the firemen when not on duty, than to the street department employees or any others, and moved that the allowance of $20,000 for this purpose be stricken from the proposed budget--thus requiring firemen to pay their own car fare to and from work and on private business; but allowing their fare when on the reasonable and about to be passed, when Mr. Erickson, who was sitting with the Committee, interposed, and called on Chief Mantor of the Department to speak for the men. The Chief, who had made no protest theretofore, then, of course, said that he thought the practice should not be discontinued; and some of his men who were present became very emphatic that the six hundred forty members of the Department would resent being deprived of this accustomed gratuity. Thereupon Mr. Fitzgerald, the chairman, said he would vote to allow it, and put the question -- resulting as follows: City's business, the same as other employees. This seemed Those voting to cut out the free rides were Drake, Tindall and Carroll; those in favor of the $20,000 appropriation for free rides were Fitzgerald, Erickson, Moore, and Cohen.

So, notwithstanding the professions of the Council that they were going to undertake to reduce the taxes wherever possible, in the case where six hundred forty organized Civil Service employees demand a free pass, the majority vote to obey the six hundred forty rather than to favor the tax-payers and adopt just business principals to City affairs.

Respectfully,
J. L. BALDWIN.

SECRETARY'S COLUMN

Howard A. Adams, chairman of the program committee, called the first meeting of the committee at the Elks' Club Thursday noon. Several suggestions were made by the various members of the committee and by Mr. James W. Reynolds, who though not a member was invited because of his experience as chairman of the program committee under Arthur H. Hutchinson's administration. The plan which was tentatively adopted Thursday calls for each League standing committee to prepare one program during the year and be entirely responsible for its presentation. A meeting of all committee chairmen will be called for Monday to confer with the trustees as to the working out of this plan. Largely responsible for this idea is President Claude H. Anderson who earlier in the summer told the writer of this and similar ideas

The rental value of this property is conservatively placed at $75.00 per month.

The county has a few signs for ferry schedules. It cost $590.00 to make a slight change of schedule on these signs this spring.

The office of Superintendent of Transportation has had $993.96 auto upkeep expense within the past six months and the autos are new.

The large docks are now being constructed to take the place of others in prime condition. It has been reported that the cost of repairs on the Leschi this year exceed the original cost of the boat.

Extravagance in purchasing, wastage of supplies, too many employes, excessive overhead, needless expenditures and the operation of boats that never have and never will justify this maintenance by the system have brought it to a point where the ferry problem has become a serious one.

We concede that there has been a collapse, not of the system but of the management, and we now have the spectacle of men selected to handle these affairs of the county throwing up their hands and confessing their inefficiency.

But the people of the county can only see the deficit and instead of demanding a new and better management they cry, "Away with the ferries," and we would not gain-say them.

But the ferry system was established for the benefit of King County, to bring in proximity of Seattle the large trading area across the water, to bring business to Seattle business concerns and to open up a suburban residential section for this great and growing city.

What has been the result?

A careful listing of freight over a given period which was at the time when we felt our recent financial depression the worst gives us these figures upon a yearly basis on one ferry only: Freight to Seattle, 10,800 tons. From Seattle, 17,232 tons, not including retail business.

A trading population now peoples the Eastern shore of Lake Washington greater than the City of Everett.

The tax valuation of property in the twenty-two school districts affected by ferry transportation has increased 80% while the remaining 94 county districts show 18% increase and the entire county an average of 30% increase, all within seven years.

Last year this territory paid $109,524 more than seven years ago.

The 1921 estimated deficit of the four ferry routes required by this resolution made by a committee composed of L. J. Coleman, C. J. Smith, C. E. Horton and R. H. Thomson, is $17,260. The remaining deficit to be charged to mosquito fleet and excessive overhead.

The people of the east side are confident that under proper management this system can be handled to much better advantage.

We do not wish to see it pass into the hands of private individuals contracted to maintain the present high rates even after conditions no longer justify them.

The taxpayers of the County have spent over a million dollars developing the ferry system and it is a miscarriage of justice to turn it over to private individuals to commercialize because present commissioners are competent to manage it.

We on the East Side would be glad to take up the work. We will organize community corporations and take over our ferries. We would do this on a non-profit-making basis. All profits would be turned back to the community or else devoted to giving the people better service and lower rates.

We would conduct the ferries for the benefit of the taxpayers and not to provide positions for political hangers-on.

We would be willing to go down into our own pockets and meet any deficit existing under the present call for bids we cannot do so. It is claimed by some that the conditions of the present call were deliberately made to prevent such action.

We today appear as representatives of Eastern King County requesting that you cooperate with us in a request that the commissioners throw out the present bids and issue a new call under the same conditions but so worded that the respective communities can bid on their own terms.

to permit the largest possible mileage of surface tracks to be moved from the streets, and so to get such real economy of operation as would make the rapid transit lines pay. Seattle also profiting by the experience of other cities in planning to have all elevated structures balanced, following Philadelphia in this respect, and avoiding the obsolete and noisy construction found in New York, Chicago and Boston.

Even the Seattle plans, and still more those proposed for St. Louis, appear open to the suggestion, based on the experience of New York, that every large city should be provided at an early date with real rapid transit service, by means of express trains, operating out from the existing business center along one axis chosen as the best for spreading out the business district, with local service to be furnished, either by surface cars, as along the route of the Cambridge-Dorchester subway in Boston, or else by local trains in a four-track subway, as in New York. It is curious that the advantages of spreading out business along the four-track subway routes in New York has been so little recognized, and especially the growing opportunity for walking to work afforded to all classes, living along the length of Manhattan Island.

It appears very difficult for either the city planner or the transportation engineer to get away from the idea that all cities should be round, and that all transit lines should radiate from a business center. But the more one studies the effects of rapid transit on the growth of New York, the more one is convinced that the real aim of rapid transit should be to spread business and industry out so that more and more people can live in outlying sections and walk to their work, rather than that transit lines should be laid out so as to try to force all workers to ride farther and farther between their homes and a congested central district.

JOHN P. FOX.

SEATTLE SHOULD READ THE STORY OF THE CITY-MANAGER PLAN

The Most Democratic Plan

The first-thought objection to the commission-manager plan is that it is undemocratic to make its most important single official appointive instead of "directly responsible to the people by election." Democracy, however, consists in controlling public officers, not necessarily in electing them, and that way is most democratic which gives the people the surest control. The most effective way for the people to get a firm grip on the neck of the governmental organization is by sending a representative group of citizens down to city hall to see what the executive is doing, with power to fire him and get another any day of the week if he is unsatisfactory or insubordinate. Compared with that method, direct election and recall are crude, clumsy, insufficient and relatively undemocratic.

Furthermore, a capacity in government for vigorous effective execution of policies is essential to true democracy. A policy desired by the people and obediently voted for by their representatives may yet be defeated by jelly-fish inefficiency in execution. Administration by a trained manager is therefore more democratic, (i. e., obedient) than by Tom, Dick or Harry.

This new government is not a cure-all. It is capable of going in the wrong direction like any other human organization. A city charter is like an automobile—nothing mechanical can be devised that will keep the owner from driving it up the wrong fork of the road. The makers must strive to make the car infallibly obedient to the steering-wheel and completely under the driver's control. The city-manager automobile is of all kinds the one that is least able to defy public sentiment or escape popular control. It is the best make and the easiest for the general public to drive without the help of politician chauffeurs.

STANDARD CHARTER DETAILS

The city-manager plan, (or council-manager, or commission-manager plan,) provides for a single elective governing board of popular representatives usually called a "council." No other elective officers. The title of Mayor is often given to the chairman of the council, but he has no veto or separate administrative powers. The council receives nominal salaries, or none, and the members give only their spare time to municipal work, and thus are left free to continue their private careers without interruption.

Their functions are to hire and supervise an appointive chief administrator, the city manager, who holds office at their pleasure; also to pass ordinances and to contribute to the city government the amateur and representative element.

The city manager, as chief executive, appoints, directs and can remove the rest of the administrative staff, subject to the usual civil service restrictions. He is not necessarily or usually a local resident. Supposedly he is an expert in matters of municipal administration. In small cities he is frequently a practical civil engineer, thereby making a separate city engineer unnecessary. In large cities broad executive experience is, of course a major requirement. The city manager's salary is the largest in the city's service.

A logical exception to the appointive power of the city manager is a civil service commission appointive directly by the council.

Non-partisan ballot. All nominations are made by petition and appear on the ballot at the primary election in alphabetical order or in an order determined by lot or by rotation, without party labels. The highest names in the primary election go on the ballot at a final election two or three weeks later. If a political party endorses a candidate, the action is apt to be denounced as contrary to the spirit and intent of the charter as adopted by the people and the partisan endorsement becomes an unwelcome handicap to the candidate. Under both the old commission plan and the manager plan, the non-partisan election feature works exceedingly well.

Several cities combine the two elections into one by various methods of which the Hare plan of proportional representation used in Ashtabula, O., and Sacramento, Cal., is considered the most promising.

Initiative, Referendum and Recall. Nearly all the city-manager charters include these much-discussed features, but as yet they have been little used in any of these cities. In cities, at least, these devices do not seem to have proved to be as important as their supporters assert nor so dangerous as their opponents fear. The city-manager government is so promptly responsive to public opinion that "the gun behind the door" stays there.

A GOOD EDITORIAL ON KING COUNTY'S FERRIES (From the Seattle Post-Intelligencer of Aug. 26th)

Having some time ago declared itself opposed to the grant of a bonus or subsidy to any private parties who might undertake the operation of the King County ferry system on a lease, the Post-Intelligencer finds itself confirmed in that attitude by the nature of the two offers that have been submitted to the county commissioners. Regardless of the heavy losses that the county has sustained in giving ferry service, neither of the propositions for relief that have been made is worthy of consideration.

Boat service on Lake Washington was furnished by private parties for many years, presumably at a fair margin of profit. Private parties maintained ferry service across the bay during the same years, also presumably profitable, until the port commission put them out of business. There was then no talk of subsidy or bonus, for there was no source from which extra compensation could be expected. The boats plied their various courses, passengers were duly delivered at their destinations, and all seemed to be going well.

With the tremendous increase in population and in patronage possibilities, the losses incurred, first by the port district and latterly by the county, seem incredible. The county's deficit last year ran to more than $400,000; and since the county superintendent of the ferry system now offers to operate the ferries under a ten-year lease for a county bonus of only $75,000 a year, it is but natural for the public to critically inquire why he has not heretofore reduced the county's loss to somewhere near the amount of the requested bonus.

The inquiry and the implied criticism may not be entirely fair, since they presuppose a condition that does not exist, a freedom of action on the part of the ferry superintendent that he has not fully enjoyed.

Like most other appointed agents of state, county and city administration, the ferry superintendent is a "boss" in name only. He is expected to keep things going, but he is by no means master of all the circumstances of public operation. Politics always intervenes; contrary "outside" and "inside" influences are constantly at work.

In spite of the huge disparity between the county's losses and the suggested subsidy, the ferry superintendent should not be condemned without thought of the conditions that have been beyond his control. But the disparity proves this—that the county cannot continue to operate the ferry system unless the commissioners set their faces against every political consideration and determine that this business shall be done in a businesslike way.

If the ferry superintendent knows how the county's loss can be cut from $400,000 and more to $75,000 or less, let the conditions be made right for him to do it. And if he doesn't do it, after showing by his offer that it can be done, let someone else take up the work.

First of all, of course, the commissioners will reject the propositions that have been submitted.

AN ABRIDGED CROSS-SECTION OF THE COMMUNITY

(From a letter of W. R. B. Wilcox, Seattle citizen, to Claude H. Anderson, President of the Municipal League)

The League originally was made up of men of similar trends of thought with reference to municipal affairs, whose judgments as to policy were, therefore, quite generally in agreement, whatever differences might appear as to procedure.

Its pronouncements, consequently, were accepted as the voice of the League and their value assessed by reference to its personnel.

Subsequently, the membership was so increased and became so diversified, that agreement upon committee reports was infrequent, which led to confusion as to what the League stood for, and a serious weakening of its authority and influence.

While not in position to judge accurately today, perhaps, I am of the opinion that the League still resembled an abridged cross-section of the whole community, with all the later's confusion of effort and cross purposes, and consequently is not constituted to take a unanimous and unequivocal stand upon any point at issue in a fashion to carry conviction to any section of the public.

TO DECIDE FERRY BIDS ON TUESDAY

Two proposals for the ten-year lease plan on the county ferry system, both based on the receipts plus bonus plan, are being considered by the Board of County Commissioners, one asking for receipts and $75,000 subsidy and the other receipts and $149,000 subsidy. The board will either enter into a lease or reject both bids at its session next Tuesday.

After deciding against the requests of different Sound and lake communities that they be permitted to bid on portions of the system with the view of establishing their own service, the commissioners called for the two sealed bids submitted Monday morning.

Capt. John L. Anderson, superintendent of the ferry system since January, 1919, offered to operate the ferries to January 1 on this year's budget and thereafter for the receipts and $75,000 annually.

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

Knudsen proposed to operate for the receipts and $149,000 bonus.

Although Captain Anderson's bid was considered the best, the commissioners announced they would take both proposals under advisement for one week.

The receipts of the ferries in 1920 were $235,566 and the operating expense of the boats, without repairs to either vessels or docks and without considering overhead and depreciation, was $391,241. At the courthouse it was estimated that the revenue this year will be $250,000.

Should the county reject all bids and continue in the ferry business it would be compelled to levy this year between $400,000 and $425,000. During the first four months of the year the boats lost $119,289.

Opinions of members of several taxwatching bodies were favorable to the Anderson bid, although they, in common with numerous other citizens, were puzzled to know how Captain Anderson expected to operate the boats at a profit for himself when under his management they are losing $1,000 a day for the county.

"With my bid before the County Commissioners, I am in no position to discuss the proposal," said Captain Anderson. "If the board enters into a lease with me I shall be only too glad to let the public know how I am going to do it."

Grosvenor Folsom, a member of the tax committee of the Building Owners' and Managers' Association, and who has delved deep in the ferry system during the last few years, said that on first blush he believed the county has a golden opportunity to do a neat stroke of business. He declared he believed the Anderson bid should be accepted.

Should Captain Anderson's bid be accepted he will have the unexpended balance of the present ferry budget of $730,033 upon which to operate until January 1. This balance, it was said at the auditor's office, is somewhere around $200,000, unless there are heavy bills and contracts outstanding that have not been forwarded for audit.

By the terms of the lease the successful bidder will not be permitted to raise the rates as they now exist and he must maintain adequate service on four runs, Madison Park to Kirkland, Seattle to Vashon Heights and Harper, Leschi Park to Medina, Leschi Park to Mercer Island.

The county owns six large vessels, the Lincoln, Leschi, Washington, Vashon, West Seattle and Robert Bridges; four steamboats, Fortuna, Atlanta, Aquilo and Dawn, and two launches, Mercer and Dr. Martin. For the maintenance of the system for this year the commissioners last fall made an appropriation of $730,033. It has been repeatedly said in public gatherings this summer that the system is going behind financially at the rate of $1,000 a day.

Huge Investment

The detailed budget under which the system is being maintained this year, shows the following allowances:

Superintendent of transportation, $8,787.50; ferry general (tickets and miscellaneous overhead), $10,702.60; Lincoln $117,200.87; Leschi, $106,833.33; West Seattle, $56,264.04; Washington, $89,558.10; Vashon, $34,896; Fortuna, $49,925.06; Atlanta, $29,537.48; Aquilo, $25,392.58; Dawn, $22,940; Dr. Martin, $108.55; Mercer, $108.55; Leschi terminal, $7,928.65; oil barge, $800; wharves and docks, $169,050. The Robert Bridges was not in commission on account of worthless engines.

The construction costs of the boats, except those of the Fortuna, Atlanta, Aquilo and Dawn purchased from the Anderson Steamboat Company for the lump sum of $88,000, were:

Washington, $77,873.63; Lincoln, $104,417.47; Vashon, $54,080.19; Leschi, $99,224.57; West Seattle, $60,005.16; Mercer, $11,278.78; Robert Bridges, $33,527.33; Dr. Martin, $10,362.06.

Monday morning the board room was filled to capacity when the commissioners met and in the lobby were many men who have sharply criticized the board on the ferry operation and some who have openly denounced the members personally for their decision to lease the boats. Before permitting any one to speak, Chairman Claud C. Ramsay served warning that the board was not in session to hear any political talks, nor would it tolerate insinuations against its members or an attack upon its integrity.

"If anyone here has any charge of wrongdoing, or allegations of squandering public money on the part of this board," said the chairman, "let him put them in writing and submit them to the courts through the prosecuting attorney's office. We do not propose to sit here and hear vilification and abuse, but we are here to accord you all a respectful hearing and to welcome any."

The board then was asked to defer opening of the bids until the different speakers could be heard.

It developed immediately that the out-of-town portion of the audience was present to ask that the two bids be rejected and a new call issued that would give the different communities opportunity to bid upon parts of the system. Some speakers favored that the system be divided and bids called for operation of the lake ferries and others for operation of the Vashon and salt water boats.

Some suggested delay for discussion of the different proposals of leasing, but other speakers pointed out that this would mean that the county would have to include the ferries in the budget for 1922 which has to be made up within the next ten days.

Wants Bids Rejected

R. H. Collins of Kirkland, the first speaker, asked that the bid be rejected and a new call be issued as Kirkland resident would like to take over the Lincoln and operate it.

Alexander Stewart of Vashon Island said the people of his section were satisfied with the ferry service they are receiving and asked that no change be made. He opposed, he said, clauses in the proposed lease which would make Fauntleroy Park the eastern terminal of the Vashon ferry instead of the dock at the foot of Marion street, that would maintain a one boat schedule in winter, and that would maintain for ten years the present wartime rates.

Capt. D. Thomas Davies presented verbally the resolution adopted last Saturday afternoon by the King County Democratic Club, which opposed the principle of leasing the ferries at a rate but which advocated, if the boats were leased, an opportunity for the separate communities to bid for boats with which to establish service of their own.

Leasing Favored

E. L. Weiner, secretary of the Municipal League, said his organization is on record as (1) favoring the leasing of the system, (2) deferring action for 30 days so that the proposals may be advertised in the marine journals of the Coast, and (3) giving consideration to the requests of communities to be allowed to operate their boats.

M. A. Reese of Bellevue was against the leasing of the system, declaring that he believed with economic management it could be made to pay, or to at least break even. He favored calling for bids for operation on Lake Washington and for separate proposals for operating on the Sound. He said he thought ten years was too long a time to tie the people to wartime rates of fare.

Commissioner Ramsey said at this juncture that he believed some of the speakers were under a misapprehension as to the wording of some of the clauses in the lease.

"For instance," he declared, "there is nothing in the lease that definitely fixes the east terminal of the Vashon ferry at Fauntleroy instead of Marion street, and there is nothing in the lease that compels the maintenance of the present fares. There is a clause, however, to the effect that fares cannot be increased.

James R. Chambers, the next speaker, who owns two ranches on Vashon Island, told the commissioners that he himself and the people of his community, he believed, were perfectly satisfied with ferry conditions under the administration of the board. He opposed any lease of the ferries, but felt that if they were leased the communities affected should be offered an opportunity to bid for them. Leases to private interests or to communities would, in any case, be under the control of the board, and while the communities would operate for the public benefit, corporations must of necessity operate for gain, he said.

SECRETARY'S COLUMN

I received a letter from Mr. Lawler the other day, a portion of which is as follows:

"I will be pleased to accept the chairmanship of the Taxation and Revenue committee. I hope the other members of the committee will be disposed to 'dig in'.

"I don't think we will get very far with any taxation program under our present form of city government. We must adopt a new system. Too much 'camouflage' permitted now, and they get away with it.

"The plan of having a Municipal research bureau is fine in theory and is entirely practical if we can interest a sufficient number of our citizens who will be willing to finance the personnel required to make the bureau a success... However we will not get anywhere in anything if we expect smooth sailing all the way!"

* * *

Good old Jim! After carrying the heavy burden of the presidency of the League all year and just as vacation time sets in, along comes the Taxation Reduction Council making him chairman! Come additional daily burdens; come daily noon meetings; come nights of endless work revising committee reports; and yet our Jim is able to accept the chairmanship of the Taxation Committee and a place on the Research bureau committee. That is a public-spirited citizen for you, Mr. League Member!

* * *

In the next issue of the "News" there will appear a complete list of committee appointments. It was hoped the announcement could be made in this issue, but at the last moment some resignations occurred necessitating various changes to be made. Chairmen of committees who for one reason or another are unable to accept their assignation should inform the secretary immediately; the list as it will be published next Saturday should be final.

* * *

An interesting letter has been received by President Anderson from A. L. Brown, at present associated with the Federal Board for Vocational Training, in response to an invitation to serve on the Educational committee of the League. It is as follows:

Dear Mr. Anderson,

I am pleased to accept appointment on the Education Committee of the League, if the problem of this committee is really educational: the betterment of courses, facilities, and personnel. If it is merely the side lines of a tax reduction movement, I question my fitness for the task.

In order to make clear my position, for example, I will say that I feel the continued use of "portable" schoolhouses at nearly every school site in Seattle a disgrace to our city and a real menace to the lives of our children. I am in favor of good substantial school buildings, suitably planned and built with graft of any sort. The construction of such buildings may increase our tax, but is decidedly necessary.

Money spent for education, unlike other city expenditures, is an investment, not an expense. Our main object is not to decrease the investment, but rather, to guarantee suitable returns.

If the platform I have indicated conforms to the plans of the League's committees, I shall be pleased to serve.

* * *

The City Club of Chicago has addressed a circular letter to many civic organizations, including the League, asking for information concerning their activities. "Since there is nowhere in print a compendium of that information the staff has undertaken to gather the material by circulating a questionnaire," the letter states.

The splendid spirit and enthusiasm of the younger men of the League in accepting committee appointments is shown in the typical instance of Charles (Chuck) Moriarty, who wrote to President Anderson:

"I accept with pleasure the appointment by the Board of Trustees to membership on the Bureau of Municipal Research Committee. I am, under even date, writing to Mr. Haight, Chairman of the Committee, advising him of my acceptance.

It gives me pleasure to be appointed on this Committee, and I assure you that it will be my earnest desire to properly discharge the trust that has been placed in me."

* * *

M. L. Baker, one of the trustees of the League, owing to a conflict of duties and lack of time, has sent his resignation, and it was accepted with regret by the Board. The vacancy will be filled at the next meeting of the Board.

SEATTLE IN MINIATURE

By Claude H. Anderson

I find myself in the position of general agreement with the analysis of Mr. W. R. B. Wilcox as published in the last issue of the Municipal News, but at the same time unable to agree with his conclusion that the Seattle Municipal League is not worth-while or that service on its committees is ineffectual.

It is quite true, as Mr. Wilcox indicates, that the Municipal League is made up of men of diversified experiences and ideas and, therefore, it is clear that the judgments expressed by the League will quite often not be a unanimous expression. Since, however, this is true of Seattle as a whole, the state as a whole, the nation as a whole, and all sub-divisions of our government at all times, it does not seem to logically follow that service in diversified groups is ineffectual. We are governed by majorities rather than unanimities. Often we are governed by very small majorities and sometimes we are governed by minorities. Government by minorities is possible only because of the lethargy of the majority mass and their disinclination to interest themselves in government. Because of such lethargy and lack of citizen interest in public affairs, minorities of like minds who band themselves together for certain very specific purposes are able, as Mr. Wilcox says, to render definite and unanimous judgments. The value of such judgments can, as he further states, be "assessed by reference to its personnel."

We have so many groups, organizations, clubs and societies of various kinds made up of people of like minds interested only in certain limited and specified objects, that a real question can be raised as to whether or not we do not have too much influence by such organizations and too little judgment resulting from discussion of citizens with different experiences and ideas and upon matters not immediately affecting their personal lives or businesses. Therefore, I regard it as wholesome, refreshing and very much worth while for an organization of this kind, which is clearly typified by the Seattle Municipal League, to exist and function.

Governmental action, local, state, or national, resulting from minority expression, is not as desirable, however wise it may be, as action resulting from majority expression, and the larger the majority the better. Instances are exceedingly common of laws, the enforcement of which are exceedingly difficult, if not altogether impossible, because they are not supported by the majority. The only antidote for ruling minority opinion is education and greater citizen interest. Groups of different-minded individuals bringing different experiences and backgrounds to bear upon public questions is creative of citizen interest in public affairs and exceedingly educative. This function, the Municipal League performs. The value of the Municipal League, therefore, cannot be assessed by the number of unanimous judgments rendered by its members throughout a given period. The history of the League shows that many of its judgments have resulted in action by public officials and betterment in our municipal government, but this is only a part of the value of the League. The educational value of its discussions and the citizen interest resulting therefrom is of as much or more value than the judgments of its majorities. A definitization and limitation of the League's purpose from "the betterment of Seattle" to something more specific, attracting only certain like-minded individuals, would leave the League very little, if any, excuse for existence. It would then be only another one of many such organizations throughout the city.

SECRETARY'S COLUMN

Tuesday sees the opening of the League year.

A great many things are expected from the League by the public this year. And the League expects a great deal from every one of its members. It is only in this way that good will be accomplished. How to induce the vast majority of the members is a task of no small proportions; but indifference which lurks unseen in the hearts and minds of many must be fought and conquered. Let the opening meeting be largely attended so as to encourage the officers and give them faith in themselves and the League.

The death of George H. Walker has taken from the rolls of the Municipal League a man of the highest public spirit. Always a worker in the public interest Walker alligned himself with civic organizations, preferring to throw his weight with that of others rather than standing alone. He was deeply interested in the League; and was only because he gave so freely of his time and energy to other civic enterprises that, for the last year or two, he was not able to take a greater part in our activities. But he was solicitous for the League's existence and had a high respect for its work. His was the type of citizenship which founded and perpetuated the League. In his loss the League has sustained a loss.

The Bureau of Municipal Research committee has begun its efforts along the lines necessary to establish a Bureau for Seattle. James A. Haight called a meeting of the committee last Thursday, the following being present: Claude H. Anderson, Eimon L. Wienir, ex-officio members, James T. Lawler, Dean John T. Condon, W. E. Henry, Judson T. Jennings, and Charles P. Moriarty. After outlining the purpose for which the meeting had been called and the objects hoped to be accomplished, Mr. Haight called upon Dean Condon for suggestions. The Dean recalled his experiences with the Home Owners Associations in 1914 and 1915 and pointedly declared that unless at least $15,000 a year was forthcoming for the purpose the League could not get anywhere with the idea. Other members voiced their opinions concerning the method of operation. It was decided to invite other civic organizations and prominent citizens to a conference meeting Thursday, September 8th, 4:30 P. M., at the Masonic Club rooms. Mr. Haight will send the invitations in his own name. A general invitation has been extended to the Taxation Reduction Council inviting the organizations therein represented to participate in the Conference Thursday.

Some times the writer wonders how effective these columns are in the way of giving publicity to the various activities of the League. Do the members read this paper? Do they look forward to its coming? Do they save some of the issues? Is the paper good or is it bad? These

Dr. W. T. Christensen,
Chairman Port Commission,
Bell St. Dock, Seattle.

Dear Sir:

I herewith offer for your consideration a business plan for the handling of publicly owned and operated automobiles which will, writer---would welcome an expression of opinion. He would welcome any suggestions tending to make the News a better publication. And, moreover, he would welcome articles on municipal matters for publication.

When the County Commissioners meet October 3rd to consider the budget for the various King County departments they will have the difficult task of satisfying the public and satisfying the department heads and employees. None of the County officials has indicated that he favors reducing wages, and, as there are no substantial reductions over last year in operating costs the unpleasant duty of wielding the axe falls directly upon Messrs. Ramsay, Dobson and Smith. And it looks as though they will have to do it. Mr. Lawler has a formidable looking crew behind his back ready to spring at the aforementioned gentlemen, in the event they waver. It certainly ought to make some difference. There are fifty-three organizations amalgamated in the body known as the Taxation Reduction Council. And they are determined to reduce taxes or reduce certain public officials. The Municipal League, too, has intimated on several occasions that the temper of its membership is for a decisive reduction of taxation. But more than these factors there is the matter of the "common peepul" to be considered. Small homeowners are mad. They not only have a suspicion that taxes in this city and county can be reduced but they are convinced beyond any shadow of a doubt. And they are watching with narrowed eyes what the gentlemen on the "bench" marked King Co. will do.

in my judgment, if properly worked out, result in a saving of fully $100,000 a year to the taxpayer of the City of Seattle and King County on automobile maintenance. In order for this plan to bring the greatest possible saving it will require united action on the part of the port district, the city of Seattle, King County, and the school district, and I am therefore addressing this same letter to the chairman of the school board, chairman of the county board of commissioners, chairman of the finance committee of the Seattle city council and the mayor of Seattle.

The Port district, the city, the county and the school district should enter into an agreement to standardize all public owned and operated automobiles and establish a central garage to purchase parts, tires, oils, gas and other necessary supplies for all machines.

It seems to me that it is unnecessary to submit any argument on the business possibilities of this plan. At the present time a wide variety of makes of machines are in use in the public service and there is no consolidated buying of tires or supplies. Some of the county machines are repaired in the county garage while others go to private repair shops. Tires and supplies are purchased here and there at random. The same thing is true of the port district, the city, and the school district.

King County expended, in round figures, $100,000 last year in automobile maintenance. The records of the city of Seattle do not show details of all expenditures for automobile maintenance. By going through the vouchers for one month, however I was able to obtain an estimate and find that the expenditures for that purpose last year exceeded $150,000, exclusive of the fire and police departments. From such data as I have been able to obtain, $50,000 would seem to be a conservative estimate of the amount expended by the school and port districts for this purpose last year. From this data I feel justified in estimating that the total amount expended annually for maintenance of publicly operated cars in Seattle and King County is in excess of $300,000.

If one standard type of car was adopted for the public service, the repair work, under a properly operated central garage, could be cut at least one half and consolidated buying of all supplies would accomplish the same result.

In establishing this system, the method of using publicly owned automobiles should be completely revised. First a survey should be made to determine the actual number of automobiles necessary and a record should be kept of the use of these machines. No high powered, high priced cars are necessary, except in police and fire department work and for the use of the county sheriff.

It is a matter of common knowledge that publicly owned automobiles are continuously used for private purposes. Under the present system no check can be kept on these machines. The central garage system, however, would provide a complete check.

I submit that this plan would do away with one of the most flagrant abuses prevailing in the public service and would make a substantial saving in public funds and urge that you take steps to confer with the county, the school district, and the city of Seattle on this matter.

Yours truly,

JAY THOMAS

MAYOR HUGH M. CALDWELL WILL ADDRESS THE LEAGUE
TUESDAY NOON, SEPTEMBER 13TH
AT BLANC'S CAFE—OPPOSITE COUNTY-CITY BUILDING ON THE SUBJECT OF "CITY MANAGER FORM OF GOVERNMENT FOR SEATTLE"

REPORT OF SUB-COMMITTEE ON ESTABLISHMENT OF BUREAU OF MUNICIPAL RESEARCH IN SEATTLE

By John T. Condon, James T. Lawler and Claude H. Anderson.

Proposal.

It is proposed that a bureau of municipal research be established in Seattle. Such bureaus have been found by a considerable number of American cities to offer the best modern method of meeting certain needs of large cities as hereinafter explained.

Origin And History.

Bureaus of municipal research have been established in American cities for about fifteen years. The first one was established in New York City and proved so efficacious in bringing about the results for which it was organized that the example was rapidly followed by other cities and a training school for public service was maintained in connection with the bureau in order to supply trained and experienced personnel which would meet the demand created by such efforts. Today there are about twenty such bureaus in the United States and the movement has spread to Canada where at least one large city, Toronto, has established such a bureau. The chief American cities that have established such bureaus are:

- 1 New York City
- 2 Chicago
- 3 Philadelphia
- 4 Detroit
- 5 Cleveland

- 6 San Francisco
- 7 Indianapolis
- 8 Rochester
- 9 Minneapolis
- 10 Denver
- 11 Akron
- 12 Niagara Falls
- 13 St. Paul
- 14 Des Moines
- 15 Kansas City.

Necessity.

The necessity for the establishment of bureaus of municipal research goes back to conditions existing in American cities twenty and more years ago at a time when the government of many cities was not only grossly inefficient but even corrupt. It was such conditions that caused James Bryce, the noted English authority, to state in his American Commonwealth that "The one conspicuous failure of American government is the government of its cities," and called forth the volume from Lincoln Stephens which certain American cities have never lived down, on "The Shame of Our Cities." Progress in the management of municipal affairs since that time have been such that it is a fact today that little or no corruption exists in municipal affairs. There is still, however, a great deal of inefficiency. Municipal corporations have yet a long way to go before they approach the efficiency of private corporations. Bureaus of municipal research are one of the means for securing greater efficiency.

One of the reasons why the same efficiency is not attained in municipal corporations as in private corporations is that the chief parties at interest in the municipal corporation do not manifest enough interest and give enough attention and supervision to the affairs of the corporation. The citizens of a city, unlike the stock-holders of a private corporation, are inclined to elect their officials and then dismiss all matters connected with their municipal corporation from their minds until officials are elected again. In fact, too large a number of citizens do not even manifest sufficient interest to vote for those who are to manage their business.

Modern municipalities have grown so large and the activities, practically all of which vitally affect the daily lives of citizens of the cities, have grown so multitudinous and varied that so much complexity and intricacy is associated with city affairs as to confuse the public mind and make it difficult for citizens to keep properly and adequately informed on municipal matters even when they have a conscious desire to do so. Seattle has reached this stage in municipal growth. The activities of the corporation of the city of Seattle are even more varied than those of many larger American cities. The budget just adopted by the City Council of Seattle for 1922 carries appropriations aggregating $18,799,874.57.

Nature, Purposes And Methods

The idea back of bureaus of municipal research is two-fold. First, adopting the plan now followed by practically all large efficient businesses --- It is conceived that cities should operate with more knowledge and accurate information regarding municipal affairs generally and specific activities in particular. Second, that there should be a citizen agency disassociated with the municipal government itself, whose function it would be, after supplying such information, to carefully and continuously watch the management of municipal affairs, keep the citizens informed of matters about which they should be informed, and carry immediately to the citizens ship of the city any particular mismanagement or inefficiency that the servants of the citizens might have declined to correct.

BUREAU OF MUNICIPAL RESEARCH

The purposes to be accomplished by bureaus of municipal research are in general greater efficiency and increased citizen interest and intelligence in and on all the varied activities and affairs of the city.

The methods by which this object is sought to be attained are: First, scientific research into the activities of municipal governments, particularly the activities of the individual city in question. Second, close and sympathetic co-operation with the officials of the city in putting the knowledge to work. Third, conveyance of reliable and accurate information to the citizens when necessary and in all cases when public opinion must be aroused and focused on some deficiency or proposed action inimical to the public interests.

Large private corporations, and many corporations and organizations not so large, have discovered that in order to be thoroughly efficient they must know the last word throughout the world on matters connected with their particular business. Accordingly they have established bureaus of industrial and business research which function for executives by placing at their disposal accurate information on all matters relating to their particular activities. The need with cities is just as great, the issues at stake are many times greater, and those affected are greater in number. Seattle needs not only to have officials who are honest and efficient but those officials need to know the exact experiences of other cities of similar size in such matters as utility operation management and control, paving, questions connected with fire and police systems, park management, school administration and all other activities of the city. Furthermore, such information, as well as information concerning the details of any particular local project, can only be obtained by research and compilation of results obtained by presentation of such matter to those concerned.

Plan of Organization.

The plan of organization adopted and followed by other cities in establishing and maintaining bureaus of municipal research has become somewhat standardized. The period of experimentation has very largely passed and it is now well known just what such activities involve and what is needed to accomplish the desired results. Such a bureau can only be established and maintained by voluntary contributions of interested private citizens. The funds so contributed must be given without any conditions in order that the bureau may be absolutely dependent except as controlled by the duly constituted controlling body. Those contributing should elect a controlling body of directors or trustees which should be small in number. The budgets of such bureaus vary throughout the country, the largest, so far as is known to your committee, having been provided for the New York Bureau of Municipal Research, being $100,000.00. It is also known to your committee that the Philadelphia Bureau, which is one of the most efficient in the country, has an annual budget of $75,000.00 and the Detroit Bureau, which stands in the same class with that of Philadelphia, maintains a budget of about $60,000.00.

The trustees, or directors, should select a staff about as follows:

1 Director, 1 Accountant, 1 Engineer, 1 Educator, 1 Statistician, 1 Secretary, 2 Stenographers.

It is the judgment of your committee that an annual budget of not less than $40,000.00 would be needed for proper functioning and in order to secure satisfactory results.

It would seem, notwithstanding the disinclination to provide money for any purposes not demanded at this time, that it would be a wise expenditure and, by reason of the results to be obtained, actual economy, to establish a bureau of municipal research in Seattle immediately. Conditions have never more clearly demanded such action. Not only has the city grown to such proportions that its intricacies and complexities baffle the citizens but, with an annual budget of more than eighteen million dollars just voted, it seems nothing less than gross neglect to fail to provide some accurate supervision and check upon this vast expenditure of the people's money. It is well known that taxation in Seattle has always been far too high. Moreover it is recognized that there will probably be no reduction in the number of activities undertaken by the city. Therefore the greatest hope seems to lie in greater efficiency. It is the judgment of your committee that this can be most satisfactorily brought about by the establishment of a bureau of municipal research along the lines indicated above. In the midst of present conditions certain problems demand the application of scientific method and accurate research if we are to progress within the next few years. Foremost among such matters in addition to taxation are, utility management, involving a satisfactory solution of the street railway problem, city county consolidation, and the question of charter revision, involving the form of municipal government.

Recommendation

Your committee recommends that this conference take such action as will result in the early establishment and proper maintenance of a bureau of municipal research for the city of Seattle.

THERE IS NOTHING ELSE LIKE IT

A clever little booklet has been issued by the National Municipal Review calling attention to the value of that journal. The following extracts from the booklet are here reproduced in the hope that many League members will be inspired to subscribe to the paper of the National Municipal League.

* * *

For Citizens, as Such—

In every town there are, praise Heaven, a certain few thoughtful effective citizens—men and women—who co-operate promptly and generously in efforts to better the local politics, government and public affairs.

They work on committees, they serve as officers of Chambers of Commerce, civic leagues, community clubs; they have found the high fascination that lies in joint efforts to make the town cleaner, better, more efficient.

Their national association is the NATIONAL MUNICIPAL ASSOCIATION and their magazine is the NATIONAL MUNICIPAL REVIEW.

The LEAGUE is twenty-six years old. The REVIEW is ten years old, having been a quarterly and bi-monthly until recently when it became a monthly.

The REVIEW is to the civic field what the "Survey" is to the field of social work—it is the single central clearing-house of information and ideas of the whole fraternity of those whose patriotism takes the form of civic activity and leadership the whole year round.

The NATIONAL MUNICIPAL REVIEW has no competitor. There is nothing else like it. You are not getting the same stuff by any other route. It is not published for profit, but as an essential and scientific service to those who fight against antiquated systems of government, corrupt political gangs, ship-shod public finance, fragmentary city planning, reactionary legislation, improvident utility franchises and lax standards of public administration.

The fight against such things is nation-wide. It is going on all the time. Its victories are frequent and permanent. And beautiful fighting it is, well worth knowing about and enjoyable to watch, especially after you have watched long enough to catch the spirit and comprehend the general strategy and technique of the reformers' tactics.

For example:

The City-Manager Movement

The leaders in 170 cities and towns have secured adoption of this simple, workable modern short Ballot form of government in place of a devious old-style political machinery. And it works well and is spreading fast. The REVIEW has articles and notes about it in every issue. The League's Model City-Manager Charter is accepted as a guide by almost every charter commission.

Proportional Representation

The reformers in three cities in the United States and in several others in Canada have secured a just and scientific scheme of all-party representation in their city councils. Practically nothing is in print about how it works except in our REVIEW.

Short Ballot and

State Administrative Consolidation

Three states have been induced to follow Illinois in consolidating their chaotic array of bureaus, offices and commissions into an orderly series of departments with a radical saving of jobs and salaries. In four other states efforts are on foot. The movement means the regeneration of state governments and it is still in its infancy. All about it monthly in our REVIEW--and nowhere else.

County Government Reform and City County Consolidation

In several cities county government with its petty jobs and politics has been abolished and more cities must follow--yours, perhaps. And county managers are on the horizon. No place to get the story except in our REVIEW.

CIVIL SERVICE IN THE CITY-MANAGER PLAN

A great many city managers that, as they are not political appointees, they should not be restricted by civil service regulations.

These city managers argue that if they are to run the city's business as an industry, they should not be hampered by regulations that do not occur in industry.

On the other hand, industry is developing more and more along civil service principles. Through shop committees and employment officers, everything is being done to reduce turnover.

Industry is more careful at the present time than in the past in the selection of its employees. If a man does not succeed in one position, he is tried out in others to ascertain where he best fits. An employee of a modern operated shop is not discharged until the employment office is satisfied he will not fit in any place in the organization.

In a well-governed city, where you have co-operation between the civil service commission and the administrative head of the government, the same results are being accomplished. Civil service, properly regulated, fairly enforced, can accomplish many of the things in public work that industry is now attempting.

The public in this country today is educated to the use of civil service commissions in public business. They expect fair treatment to be given the city employes and a continuation of office. The public looks to civil service to protect their public affairs from political control and the spoils system.

The civil service rules recommended by the National Municipal League in its model charter, properly handled, furnish the protection the public expects.

They also give the city manager all the freedom that he requires for an efficient administration.

The civil service commission should be appointed by, and be responsible to, the city commission or council. This point is arguable. The trend of improvement in city government, however, is all toward providing machinery that will exclude politics in the administration of city affairs.

The theory of the city-manager form of government is that the commission is the elective or political body. The administration of city affairs is to be under the manager and divorced from politics. The prime object is to keep both the commission and the manager from building up a political organization.

If the civil service commission, for example, were under the city manager, there would be too much power in his hands. If the civil service were under the commission and the employment of all employes were also under the commission, there would be too much power in the hands of the commission. By putting the civil service commission under the commission or council, and certifying lists to the city manager, an effective compromise is reached.

The National Municipal League charter allows the city manager to discharge employes, but he must employ them from civil service lists. This is good theory, and it so works out in practice, as it protects the city--as far as it is possible to-day--from either the commission or the manager building up political machines.

The city-manager form of government in operation is carrying out the theories that prompted the manager charters. The city manager is anxious to build up an efficient organization. The manager's success locally depends up on it. Managers around the country are working for a reputation so that they may be called to other cities. The wise manager leans strongly on the civil service commission. He sees that they get the efficiency records. He knows that these records are being used for the advancement of his men. He builds up the confidence of his organization in civil service. He reaps his reward, as does the city.

To make civil service in government a success, there must be a pension system in connection with it.

The theory of civil service is to keep men long in office. If employes are to be kept in office, there must be some fair and just means to take care of them when they are too old to carry on their functions. Again, the analogy between public affairs and industry holds. Industry, however, is leading government in providing pensions and sick funds.

With the daily increase of city managers throughout the country, there may develop later some procedure that will replace present civil service methods. This, however, will only occur after a long demonstration of the fact that the city manager remains free from political control and can demonstrate that there is some other method that will insure the employment of capable men in public office and keep such men in continuous service.

FRANK J. LAUBE, PROFESSOR OF MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT AT THE U. OF W.
WILL DISCUSS "COMMISSION AND CITY MANAGER FORMS OF GOVERNMENT"

TUESDAY NOON SEPTEMBER 20,
AT BLANC'S CAFE—OPPOSITE COUNTY-CITY BUILDING
100% ATTENDANCE REQUESTED

MAYOR H. M. CALDWELL FAVORS COMMISSION FORM OF GOVERNMENT

Mayor Hugh M. Caldwell addressed the Municipal League Tuesday noon on the subject of "Commission form of Government". Expected to talk on the City Manager plan, Mayor Caldwell devoted most of his time to a consideration of the points in favor of the Commission plan as opposed to the City Manager plan.

He was introduced by President Claude H. Anderson, who said in part: "We need not apologize for considering a change in the form of government. Those who happen to be concerned with governmental organizations appreciate that form can mean the difference between efficiency and inefficiency; that it may mean the difference between oligarchy and democracy".

Mayor Caldwell pointed out that Seattle is different from any other city in the United States, in that it has gone in the utility business on so large a scale. A City Manager plan for Seattle would be a desirability provided Seattle had only governmental functions to be administered, but when, to these functions are added three going utilities which must be operated on a business-like basis, and which amount to over forty million dollars of business, it is too much of a job for one man to take care of would fall short somewhere and we of Seattle would be making a change", declared the Mayor.

Another thing Mayor Caldwell emphasized was that under the City Manager plan it would be impossible to employ a man big enough and run it under Civil Service. "Are you going to have your manager or are you going to get rid of Civil Service?" asked Caldwell. "Civil Service is an improvement, yet it has its disadvantages and adds to our tax burdens".

The Commission form, declared Caldwell, centralizes responsibility and enables the voters to centralize upon individuals—thus shortening the ballot and secondly, it enables the commissioners to do their work properly "without having the right arm interfere with the left".

Following is a complete transcript of the Mayor's address:

I presume the reason I have been asked to speak on the commission form of Government is on account of the recommendation made in my Annual Message to the Council on June the 6th, as required by the City Charter. I recommended the adoption of a resolution, in form to be prepared by the Corporation Counsel, submitting at the election next spring a charter revision adopting the form of government in effect in Portland, Oregon, since 1913.

Perhaps it would be well to refer to the reasons for the proposed change and then consider the form recommended for adoption: The present charter of the City of Seattle was adopted in 1896. It was amended in 1900, 1902 - 4-6-8-10-11-12-13-15-16-18-19-20-21. In other words, during the past twenty-five years it has been patched sixteen times, and "patched" is the word, I believe, that more accurately describes the present condition of our charter than any other that might be used. You will remember that prior to 1911 we had eighteen Councilmen—one from each of the fourteen wards, and four at large. They were paid $1500 each per annum. At the election in 1910 the people adopted a charter amendment cutting the number in half, providing for their election at large and not by wards, and doubling the pay, making it $3000 a year.

Under our Charter the legislative powers of the City of Seattle are vested in the Mayor and City Council subject to the power, reserved to the people of the city, to propose for themselves any ordinance dealing with any matter within the realm of local affairs or municipal business; an initiative measure requires a petition of a number of qualified voters equal to not less than ten per cent of the total votes cast for the office of Mayor at the preceding municipal election. The further power, reserved to the people, to refer to a vote of the qualified electors any ordinance or any section, item, or part of any ordinance which may have passed the Council and Mayor. To invoke a referendum requires a petition of qualified voters equal to not less than 8 per cent of the total votes cast for the Mayor at the preceding election. A minority of the City Council of not less than three members may invoke a referendum vote on a franchise ordinance without any petition.

The Mayor is thus made a part of the Legislative Department but has no power to introduce bills or vote with the Council. Within five days after a Council Bill is passed it is submitted to the Mayor, who must return such Bill to the Council within ten days after receiving it, and if he does not disapprove of it, it becomes an ordinance. If he disapproves it, or vetoes it as it is generally termed, he must state the reasons therefor and the Council may, within thirty days thereafter reconsider the same and pass it over the Mayor's veto by a two-thirds vote of the members elected. In other words, six councilmen may run the city in any manner not in conflict with the Charter or state laws.

The Charter provides that the Council may have certain powers by ordinance, and not otherwise. The powers enumerated are rather extensive and leave a few which may be covered by resolution. A resolution is not submitted to the Mayor and does not require his approval or disapproval.

In view of the fact that the Mayor appoints, subject to the approval of the City Council, the various department heads he is popularly at least charged with the responsibility for the proper conduct of the various city departments. Yet, when it is considered that six members of the Council may absolutely control the policy of such department, regardless of the Mayor's ideas or his appointees', it is apparent that the responsibility and authority is divided. The Council is divided into various committees. These committees of three or more Councilmen work with the heads of the departments, visiting the various projects or utilities, and, through their authority to secure the introduction or withholding of legislation and the appropriation or withholding of funds, really control the policy of such departments. As a matter of fact, the Mayor is merely the nominal head of the City Government. While now made a part of the legislative body in one sense, yet under the present system he functions entirely separate, and does not have an opportunity to act or vote until the members of the Council have already committed themselves to some theory or measure. The very natural result of this is resentment on the part of the Council should the Mayor, by his veto, undertake to set aside the action which the Council has already taken. This is particularly true under our non-partisan system of government, where the officials elected are independent individuals, responsible to no particular organization and having no policies to carry out unless it be their own or one voluntarily adopted by the individual.

In some cities a similar form of government authorizes the Mayor to preside at Council meetings. This at least tends to a full exchange of ideas before the individuals are committed by voting. The controversies as to matters of policy that have arisen during the past year and a half between the Council and the Mayor are like those that have arisen during previous administrations under our present form of City Government. The Mayor, as the executive head of the City, is not empowered to vote in the preparation of the budget, and consequently is deprived of the control or vote as to items being included in or excluded from any tax levy for a particular department.

The City of Seattle is engaged in the utility business to the extent of over $40,000,000 dollars in capital invested or bonds outstanding, but the policy and control of this business are determined partly by the nine members of the Council, partly by the Mayor and partly by the Board of Public Works, whose members are appointed by the Mayor, with the consent of the Council. There should be some centralized authority and consequent responsibility for the operation of this enormous business.

The Mayor, through his power of appointment and removal of the heads of the various city departments, is supposed to have some control over such departments. Yet in practice some committee of the Council really has more power in this regard than has the Mayor.

Commission Form of Government

The proposal to adopt the Commission form, as distinguished from our present system, is not a new, untried, or visionary plan. It was adopted thirteen years ago in Des Moines, Iowa; and at the present time there are fifteen cities of 100,000 population, or over, according to the 1920 census, that are governed by a Commission, as follows:

Buffalo, N. Y.,---505,775---Jan-1, 1916; Newark, N.J.,---414,524---1918; New Orleans, La.,---387,219---Dec. 2, 1912; Jersey City, N. J.,---298,103---June 17, 1913; Portland, Ore.,---258,288---July 1, 1913; St. Paul, Minn.,---234,698 June 1, 1914; Oakland, Cal.,---216,261---July 1, 1911; Birmingham, Ala.,---178,806---April 10, 1911; San Antonio, Tex.,---161,379---June 1, 1915; Des Moines, Ia.,---126,468---April 1, 1908; Nashville, Tenn.,---118,342---Oct. 14, 1913; Salt Lake City, Utah.,---118,110---Jan. 1, 1912; Spokane, Wash.,---104,437---Mar. 14, 1911; Kansas City, Kan.,---101,177---April 8, 1910; Tacoma, Wash.,---96,965---May 2, 1910.

Of the foregoing it will be noticed that there are three larger than Seattle, namely, Buffalo, Newark, N. J. and New Orleans; seven, including the three last above named, and Jersey City, Portland, Oregon, St. Paul, and Oakland, have more than 200,000 population. At the present time there are about 300 municipalities, including the cities above named, that are governed by a Commission.

Aside from those governed by Commissions, about 188 municipalities are governed under the City Manager plan, the largest two being Akron, Ohio, with 208,435 population, under a City Manager since January 1920, and Dayton, Ohio, with a population of 152,559, in effect since January 1914.

Portland, Oregon.

In my annual message I recommended the submission to the people of a charter amendment adopting the form of government in Portland, Oregon, since 1913. Under this plan, the only elective officers would be the Mayor, four Commissioners and the Comptroller. All of said officers would be elected at large for a term of four years. The salary of the Mayor would be left as at present and each of the Commissioners paid $5000 per annum, or a total of $27,500.00 per annum as against $34,500.00, as at present.

Under our Charter the government of Seattle is divided into fourteen departments, as follows:

1. The Legislative Department.
2. The Executive Department.
3. The Clerical Department.
4. The Department of Police.
5. The Department of Public Works.
6. The Department of Finance.
7. The Department of Sanitation.
8. The Fire Department.
9. The Harbor Department.
10. The Department of Parks.
11. The Library Department.
12. The Law Department.
13. The Judicial Department.
14. The Civil Service Department.

Under the Portland plan there are five departments, as follows:

1. The Department of Public Affairs.
2. The Department of Finance.
3. The Department of Public Safety.
4. The Department of Public Utilities.
5. The Department of Public Improvements.

The distribution of the work among these departments is made by the Mayor and may from time to time, by order which shall be filed and preserved as an ordinance, be changed, and the names of the departments may be changed in like manner. This places considerable power in the hands of the Mayor, carrying with it the corresponding responsibilities, and it is difficult to see how the present municipal indoor sport of "passing the buck" could survive.

I believe the designation to the respective departments by the Mayor is preferable to this being decided by the Commission itself, as in Spokane, Jersey City, and New Orleans. In the latter instance, if some Commissioner aspires to fill some particular department he will do a little log-rolling or vote-trading with the others, as a result of which the various departments might be filled by the men least experienced or qualified for the work and the responsibility for this would not exist in one man, it would if the Mayor were given this power, as in Portland.

In adopting the charter amendment providing for nine councilmen, as at present, and increasing their pay and eliminating sectional lines, the people decided to centralize the authority in a fewer number, with the idea that the Councilmen elected would devote their entire time to the City's business. In some instances this has worked out in practice; in others, it is noticeably not the case. Regardless of this element, it can be said that the present nine member transect the City's business as effectively as the eighteen formerly

It is true that no system of municipal government has been devised that is perfect. I personally believe that centralizing the authority and responsibility, and shortening the ballot and holding the elections less frequently, would have the effect of focusing the Public's attention on the officials who fail to serve faithfully. At the present time we elect the Mayor for two years, the Councilmen for three years, and the Comptroller, Treasurer and Corporation Counsel for four years each. We have a municipal election each year; one-third of the Council is either just been through an election, and stands more or less recently committed to certain policies advocated, with more or less regard for the number of votes to be thereby corralled; another third is always approaching election—where some individuals or minority may feel aggrieved at the fearless performance of public duty and accordingly register their disapproval at the approaching election.

THE NATIONAL PARKS AND REORGANIZATION

For years the American Civic Association has carried on educational work to explain and extend the national park principle. It led in the long fight to secure an organized national park service. As a result of the combined efforts of those interested, there was established about four years ago, a national park service in the department of the interior, with Mr. Stephen Mather at its head. Mr. Mather has been responsible for a liberal policy which has meant a wide-open door to the people that they may have every facility for enjoying their parks so long as they recognize and observe the social law of equal treatment for all and special privileges for none. Appointed under the last administration, Mr. Mather has been continued under this, and the people are thus assured that their national park service will continue to be directed by an experienced park man.

The national park service is directly responsible for the administration of nineteen national parks and twenty-four national monuments. In the war department, under the quartermaster-general, the Antietam battle field is administered, and under an officer in the office of the secretary of war two national monuments are directly administered. The battlefields of Chickamauga and Chattanooga, Shiloh, Gettysburg, Vicksburg and Guilford Court House are administered by one or more commissioners each, as is the birthplace of Lincoln. Under the department of agriculture the forest service administers ten national monuments.

This situation should be corrected in the reorganization of the federal administrative service.

SEATTLE'S TROUBLES IN VERSE

The following article "Seattle's Troubles in Verse" is taken from the August number of the National Municipal Review:—

It will be remembered that a Seattle grand jury has decided that the city paid three times too much for its traction system, and the mayor's engineer believes that the price was 100 per cent too high. This plus the short term in which the purchase bonds are to be paid off imposes a very difficult task on municipal ownership. The situation has inspired the Seattle Post-Intelligencer to verse addressed to the former owners:

We're in an awful mess, alas! Remember back a year or two we bought a street car line from you.

Your demonstrator failed to show us how to make the blamed thing go, and thus, although it gives us pain, we'll have to ship it back again.

You showed us figures you'd prepared. "A child can run it," you declared. "You'll like your little plaything fine, just decorate the dotted line."

You let us heft your one-man cars and monkey with the nickel jars; you showed us how to throw the switch and said, "No hurry for the pay," and so we bought it right away.

And having bought, we looked around, and to our deep dismay we found, by placing sleuths upon the trail, that we had spent a lot of kale.

We had a jury probe the deal, we paid three times too much, we feel; and so your kiddy cars and track we're wrapping up and shipping back.

To own it wasn't any fun. It didn't leave us anyone to roundly cuss when things went wrong.

You see, we'd cussed you boys so long it sort of left us in the air. We really were not treated fair.

So take your car line, we implore, so we can razz you boys once more.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT FAVORS CITY MANAGER PLAN

Delivering one of the best addresses that has been heard by the members of the Municipal League, Professor Frank J. Taube, of the Political Science Department of the University of Washington, unequivocally recommended the City Manager plan for Seattle.

"A body of voters can always, with fair intelligence, select officials for policy-making—law makers—almost as well as it can select general administrative officers. But democracy cannot select expert service. That must be secured by commissions of men, or by an administrative head." This, declared Taube, was a fundamental rule which has proved to be true in the years of America's experience. He continued:

"The City Manager form of government provides the commissioners with those powers which they can do, namely—legislative powers, policy fixing powers—and places all of the administrative work in the hands of a trained executive. That is the great virtue of the City Manager plan.

"As to the charge that the City Manager Plan cannot be effective under civil service: we could be going straight backwards if we did drop the civil service. The civil service is the best protection of effective administration; for it is based on the merit system. And moreover, civil service applies in the main, only to employees doing clerical work. The heads of departments and those men who must be relied upon for their judgment in executing the policies of the department head, are not under civil service.

"In effectiveness the City Manager plan would mean everything. It is up to Seattle to put its house in order. The stage is set for a new act. The future of the industrial and commercial world is on the Pacific Coast. Here we have the richest back country. If we are to profit by the era of industrial and commercial expansion, we must be ready for it with an efficient governmental machine

"The injection of sound "traditionalism" with much change in the form of government served to secure the English good government. England won't stand for an incompetent public official in governmental life; and hence, England hasn't got bad government; and when we won't stand for bad government, we will get the other kind.

"The older form of Municipal government was very simple; the people elected a group and that group administered the affairs of the city. In the early 19th century a wave swept over our country for the adoption of the Federal system in our municipal affairs; and this system, wherever adopted, resulted in the dispersion of responsibility and the confusion of administrative authority. We tried to remedy this condition first by making the Mayor's power strong, and later weakening that power; but the rotten conditions continued to exist until at the end of that century we had the worst municipal government in the history of the world.

"And then something happened. In 1900 Galveston had a tidal wave. Galveston at that time was a bankrupt city, when the disaster befell them and so the people turned over all their affairs to a commission. Galveston's experience showed that you must concentrate responsibility and tell your commissioners that if they can't possibly do their work they must quit. The system was effective—so effective, indeed, that in ten years time over 350 cities in America adopted the Commission form of government. Its effect, however, was the result of its newness. "It is a new broom that sweeps clean".

"The Commission form, however, has proven a failure in America. It lacks the quality of administrative competency—though in legislative matters it has been successful; and the reason for its great failure is the bickering and quarreling of its commissioners. There isn't much legislative work in a city

The Municipal News is the organ of the Municipal League, an organization devoted to the best interests of Seattle. The purposes of the League are to induce citizens to take an active part in municipal affairs, to secure the choice of competent officials and the faithful performance by them of their duties, to further wholesome legislation and to disseminate information concerning the city of Seattle, to promote municipal improvements and to make living conditions clean, healthful and attractive. The League is your organization whether you are a member of it or not. It is not organized for profit or for selfish aims. You can help the League and through it every resident of the city if you will help its publication by giving to it your legal advertisements. The cost for publication of the notices are fixed by law. Send them to the "Municipal News" and make this paper—the League's paper, sustain itself. A call from you to the office of the League, Main 0791, will bring a messenger at your office.

and whatever laws or ordinances must be made concern themselves only with the city's affairs. It is administrative work that is needed, and there is where the Commission form has failed.

"The City Manager form exists today in one of the most efficient departments of the country's life--the Educational Department. The voters elect a Board of Education; the Board of Education elects a superintendent of schools, an expert by profession, and the superintendent of schools is responsible to the Board of Education for the conduct and management of the schools. That is the ideal form, for it centralizes the responsibility, and makes for an effective administration."

WHAT SEATTLE NEWS-PAPERS THOUGHT OF A RESEARCH BUREAU

The League's present endeavors to secure a municipal research bureau for Seattle calls to mind the efforts it made in that direction in 1915. The general principles laid down at that time, an outline of the work of such a bureau, the endorsements and the Press comments it received then would be of great interest to us now. For that reason a portion of the pamphlet issued by the League on that subject is here reprinted. The newspaper comments are particularly interesting in view of the comparative silence of the press at this time.

An extract of the pamphlet follows:

* * *

Bureau of Municipal Research-- Its Purposes Proposition I.

The cost of local government in King County and Seattle is excessively high.

There are many places where inefficiency exists.

Proposition II.

It is urgently necessary to secure more efficiency, and therefore a lower cost.

No concerted effort on a large scale has been undertaken in Seattle to secure the desired results.

Proposition III.

The organization of a Bureau of Municipal Research is highly desirable at this time.

This bureau, organized along the lines of similar bureaus in other cities, notably in New York City, would secure expert service for the purpose of investigation and to make recommendations to secure more efficient government. It would not consider the question of governmental policies.

An Outline of the Work

1. To scrutinize the systems of accounting in the four local governments of Seattle.

2. To suggest improvements in the budget system of these four governmental bodies.

3. To examine the method of purchasing materials and supplies and letting and executing construction contracts in these bodies.

4. To examine the pay rolls of these local governing bodies with the view of determining the efficiency of such expenditures.

5. To make constructive suggestions for improvements in the directions indicated under 1, 2, 3, and 4, and to co-operate with public officials in the installation of these improved methods.

6. To furnish the public with exact information regarding public revenues and expenditures.

Method of Carrying on Work.

Such an organization would ultimately, if not immediately, maintain a staff of expert accountants, investigators and engineers to carry on continuously an analytical and constructive study of public expenditures and the general administration of municipal departments.

The very fact that such organization was in existence would strengthen the hands of those officials desiring to secure better results in their departments and would restrain those whose only interest in public expenditures is for their own personal advantage.

Go Slow at First.

In laying the foundation for this kind of work, it is always well to make haste slowly. The adoption of too elaborate a program is apt to result in little accomplishment.

It will be found that most city officials are willing and anxious to co-operate in any movement of this sort, provided the men directing the work approach the question with an open mind and a real desire to help the departments to solve their difficult problems. Anything in the nature of an investigation with a preconceived idea of bringing criticism upon a department will meet with failure and will deserve it.

What the Bureau Might Do.

With the passage of the Renick bill, relating to the bond and trust funds of the city, and the budget bill, making every item in the city budget in effect a trust fund, and the loss in revenue which will ensue in 1916 when the prohibition law takes effect, there is urgent need for a general survey of the financial condition of the city by men who have had extended experience in dealing with large financial problems.

Next year's budget should be worked out in the minutest detail so that the emergency warrants provided for under the new bill for all expenditures not specified in the budget will be issued only in extraordinary cases, especially in view of the fact that it will take the unanimous action of the city council and the mayor to issue them.

Work on these problems should begin immediately.

Endorsed by Robert Boyns.

I believe that we could have no more beneficial an organization than a corps of disinterested experts, unhampered by political activities, and without prejudice, to work out for us plans to increase the efficiency of the various city departments and I heartily endorse the movement to establish such a bureau here.

ROBERT S. BOYNS,
President Seattle Commercial Club.

PRESS COMMENT Would Save Millions

"Citizens overburdened with taxes are as helpless as sheep when it comes to the point of diagnosing their troubles. They are unfamiliar with the intricacies of municipal bookkeeping and with the ordinary processes of public business. They only know that they are paying too much for government, and the need is for a specific pointing out of the leaks. This may only be accomplished by intelligent research under the guidance of experts in government. A commission of Seattle citizens should undertake this task at the earliest moment.

"Little help is ordinarily extended by people who are in office in formulating reforms, and a research bureau would be an impartial source of information. Its finding would be valuable in the comparisons between the old and new systems, and constitute the anchorage for wise and economical government.

"Such a committee should have the guidance of an expert in city governmental affairs; a man who knows how a great administrative body should handled and who has a knowledge of its complicated affairs and an ability for organization. Seattle citizens should by voluntary subscription, contribute the expense of research and give impetus to the movement that is to relieve them from careless and extravagant government. A few thousand dollars thus expended would save millions of dollars of waste in the future and constitute an investment for the general welfare. --- Post-Intelligencer, Jan. 30, 1915.

"Good!" Says the Star. The Municipal League is working on plans for the establishment in Seattle of a Bureau of Municipal Research, modeled something after the bureau established in New York in 1907 by Henry Bruere, and on the lines of more that have followed.

Good! A research bureau is the safest bet on lower taxes and greater efficiency in city government we have seen for some time.

In a word, the bureau is good. A staff of disinterested experts, unhampered by political considerations, and absolutely unprejudiced, are imported and set to work studying how to "prune" city departments. They do not to criticize city officials, but to help them. Practically every place the plan has been tried it has been a great success. City officials welcome Dayton's city manager, for example, has used Dayton's bureau to good advantage ever since he took office"---Star, Mar. 1, 1915.

THE MAYOR'S ADDRESS

Just why the daily papers did not report Mayor Caldwell's address to the League, last Tuesday, is a mystery. The address is one of the best that has been heard before the League. It was from a man who had had prolonged and intimate experience with the problems of municipal government in Seattle, and was particularly with bias because of the fact, as announced by Caldwell, that he would not be a candidate for Mayor at the next election. His address showed that he had given the subject a good deal of study, as well as thought, and coming as it did from the chief official of the City of Seattle, the newspapers should have given it full publicity. Fatty Arbuckle's difficulties in San Francisco, and Roy Gardner's antics in the wilds of McNeil's island, had something to do with this, for unquestionably the newspapers had to give very much space to these two gentlemen also society women attending the opera had to be photographed, and the photographs had to appear full sized in one of the newspapers. This perhaps accounts for the 6...MUNY fact that the address was not reported. It certainly is a sad commentary upon the character of the newspapers of this city. Anything which is vile, salacious and degrading must be featured in head lines a foot high. Everything else--and particularly serious matters must be relegated to the waste-paper basket.

MUNICIPAL RESEARCH COMMITTEE ACTION

On Thursday, September the 8th, at the Masonic Club rooms, there was held a conference of various civic organizations and prominent citizens, together with the committee of the Municipal League on the Municipal Research Bureau. The meeting showed conclusively that the people of Seattle needed educating along this line before it could be hoped to establish a bureau. Many individuals urged that "we go slow" at this time in the establishment of such a bureau; and others urged that the time was "inopportune." That the majority of those present misconceived the idea of the bureau and believed that it meant simply the establishment of another civil agency like that of the Municipal League or the civic bureau of the Chamber of Commerce and similar organizations, was evidenced by the fact that four of the speakers urged that the organizations above referred to were capable of meeting the exigencies of municipal life. The Seattle Times editorial also took the same attitude. At a meeting of the committee which was held last Thursday, it was unanimously agreed that before any additional steps are taken by the committee, a campaign of education must be lodged; and facts must be shown. The accomplishments of bureaus in other cities will be published from time to time in these columns, and thus lead the way in convincing Seattle of the necessity for a similar organization.

It is, of course, to be deplored that Seattle cannot take immediate steps for the establishment of the bureau, but a beginning must be made somewhere, and the Municipal League has made it. Whether established now or later, the time is ripe for Seattle to give serious consideration to the necessity of such an institution. Is there any doubt but what a bureau of this kind could save the tax-payers twenty times the amount of its cost?

The report of the sub-committee submitted by Dean John T. Condon, James T. Lawler, and Claude H. Anderson was one of the most succinct, as well as satisfactory pieces of work that has been presented by a League committee. The issue of September 10th is well worth reading, and reading again. It should be saved by every League member, or sent on to a Seattle friend for the purpose of helping the committee carry on this work of education.

WHAT OUR CITY MANAGER COMMITTEE MUST DO

In view of the strong address of Mayor Caldwell, presented in full in last issue, favoring a Commission form of government at this time, as against the City Manager plan, our City Manager Committee, reporting in favor of the City Manager plan, must now reconstruct its original report and either bring in a new report or prepare a supplemental one taking into account the Mayor's statements. Otherwise the committee will be accused of having presented a fully theoretical plan and one which does not squarely meet the issue. The League must shortly decide this matter; that is, it must decide whether it favors the Commission form of government under such a plan as Portland's, or whether it favors the City Manager plan as that proposed by the League committee and by the National Municipal League. This is indeed an important matter and the League was the first organization in Seattle to take the initiative in it.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR HAT

No more lost hats. A bright young man in the Wall street section of New York, who had lost several hats, conceived the idea of sticking his girl's photo in the crown of his latest purchase. So far, although he has invited the gentlemen who take "better hats for bad ones" to get his, they have left it strictly alone.

A Weekly Publication Devoted Solely to the Betterment of Seattle

VOL. XI. NO. 40.

SEATTLE, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1921.

PRICE 10 CENTS

October 8, 1921.
City Council of the City of Seattle,
County-City Building,
Gentlemen:
The Board of Trustees of the Municipal League, at a special meeting held at noon today, have passed the following resolution, and it earnestly requests that you give serious consideration to the same:
"RESOLVED:— That the Board of Trustees of the Municipal League request that the City Council, before taking any action on the proposed ordinance reducing the carfare to five cents; — cause a thorough investigation to be made of what the result in revenue and expenditures will be:—
"And also:—that the Corporation Counsel's opinion be secured as to whether in case such reduction of fares results in a less revenue than is necessary in order to comply with the terms of the contract of purchase, defray operating expense and all proper charges against the railway, the city would incur any general liability on the bonds or for breach of contract or otherwise; and whether any such deficit must be met out of general taxes:—
"And that their reports be made public records."
Very truly yours,
EIMON L. WIENIR,
Secretary.

TUESDAY'S MEETING

Owing to the confusion of a meeting place, the attendance at last Tuesday's meeting was small. The confusion resulted from the fact that Blanc's was suddenly closed Saturday, and a new meeting place had to be provided in the interim.
A discussion was begun by President Anderson as to a new meeting place, and it was decided

MAYOR OF MOBILE INVITED TO SPEAK

Mayor Harry Pillans of Mobile, Alabama, who is a delegate to the Tenth Annual Convention of the American Association of Port Authorities which will be held in Seattle, beginning next Tuesday, has been invited to address the Municipal League at Tuesday's meeting. It was felt that because of Mayor Pillan's official position, and the rare opportunity which we have of knowing something about the city government of Mobile, that the talk would be particularly interesting to the members of the League.
Should Mayor Pillans be unable to address the League, plans are being perfected whereby a full consideration of the 5c carfare problem will be had. The Public Utilities Committee, headed by Robert Howes, has met this week and has presented a request to the City Council, which appears in this issue. Its report will be presented to the League. Councilman Fitzgerald has also been asked to talk to the League.

HIGDAY RESIGNS CHAIRMANSHIP

Regret is expressed in the resignation of Hamilton Higday, Chairman of the Harbor Development and Commerce Committee of the League. Mr. Higday bases his resignation on the fact that he has accepted a salaried position in the Chamber of Commerce—that of directing the work of the Industrial Bureau—and feels that it is "inconsistent and inappropriate to devote the necessary energy and time required to properly study and report upon matters before your Harbor Development and Commerce Committee". LEAGUE TO MEET AT MEVES CAFETERIA

Blanc's Cafe, for more than a year the meeting place of the League, was closed the first of October. The letter announcing the closing was received by the Secretary late Saturday afternoon, October 2nd, and owing to the fact that the News had already been mailed, no announcement was made of the change of meeting place could be made except in the public press.

The League is now meeting at Meves Cafeteria, and will continue to meet at that place until further notice. Members of the League who attended Tuesday's meeting were agreeably surprised to find the meeting room so pleasant and so free from noise. The room is large enough for an attendance of 150, and should prove altogether to be a desirable meeting place. It is hoped that a sign will be placed "reserved for Municipal League only", and, in this way to keep out of the meeting the guests of the place who come into the room without any interest in the meeting. Members should take note of the change of meeting place, and advise their friends accordingly

A work has been received from the National Municipal League that it is able to help the League in promoting the City Manager plan by mailing to leading civic organizations and representative men of the city the pamphlet known as the "Story of the City Manager Plan". This pamphlet was published in the News last August, and the League received favorable commendation for publishing it. This booklet, it is stated, has been used in large quantities for campaign purposes in other cities. It is said to have great educational value,

The Seattle Chamber of Commerce and Commercial Club has issued an invitation to the League to send a representative to a Forestry Conference which will be held in the assembly room of the Chamber on Friday, October 21, 1921, beginning at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. "This conference is held under the auspices of the Forestry Committee of the State Development Bureau, and is designed to lay the foundation for a state forestry policy", states the letter. The letter goes on to say that: "The program includes papers on the following subjects: Land Classification in Washington, by Dean Henry Landes; Forestry Protection, by C. J. Joy; Needed Reforms in Forest Taxation, by Mr. J. J. Donovan; Practicability of Forest Management on State and Private Lands, by Prof. B. P. Kirkland; A suggested State Forestry Policy, by Mr. Geo. S. Long.

"Each paper will be discussed by from one to five men of authority in lumbering and forestry so that the matured thought of many of the best minds in the state will be presented in the conference.

"It is proposed to continue the work begun at this conference through the coming year, with the view of having a sound policy crystallized and put into effect by the legislature in 1923.

"We feel sure you are interested in this conference and you are ordially invited to be present and take part in the deliberations!"

resident Anderson also started a discussion on the proposed plan for reducing carfares.

V. Bert, Jr., said as follows: "I was on the committee of the League last year that advocated the increase of fare and before know something about the situation. Of course there is action against the high fare and gross earnings fell off. But it doesn't follow that we should go from one extreme to the other. If there is a deficit under the 5 cent fare it will fall upon the tax-payers to make up that deficit. Do we want to make a different contract with the Stone & Webster Company—and make the general fund liable for part of the operating costs?"

goes on to say that: "I have not only sold my time to one quasi-public institution, but on occasions there might arise a decided conflict of opinion and purpose, when a employee of the Chamber could not with propriety or sufficient force be directing policy as a chamber in a sister association."

By virtue of his long association in Port work, it had been felt by the Board that Mr. Higday would make a strong chairman of the Harbor Development and Commerce Committee. It is indeed to be regretted that Mr. Higday is unable to continue with the work.

A request has been received from the New York State Bureau of Municipal Information, asking for copies of the report of the League committee which recommended a central garage for all city owned cars. The Bureau states that it is making an investigation regarding city owned motor vehicles, and their use by the city.

SECRETARY'S COLUMN

Lower Car Fares.

The Post-Intelligencer has launched a "movement" to cut down street car fares from the present rate of 8 1-3 to five cents. It attributes the two million passenger loss over last year to the higher fare and argues that better business would result by decreasing the fare. It also points out that other coast cities are paying only from five to seven cents for their service, and leaves the inference that there is no reason why Seattle should not have the same low rates.

There is no denying the fact that Seattle would welcome with joy the return to the old nickel fare. Everyone without exception. But it is hardly likely that this can be done now. Cost of operation must first materially decrease and thus far there has been no indication that there has been such a material decrease. Councilman Fitzgerald, as chairman of the finance committee, has stated that he is working out a solution of the matter; and it is earnestly hoped that the announcement of a reduction can be made.

Mere popular demand for reduction will not do unless that demand can be backed up by figures to prove that a reduction is feasible. The Public Utilities Committee of the League has been asked to give careful study to the question and report upon it as soon as is possible.

Relieving Unemployment.

While estimates of the number of men unemployed as present in Seattle vary from 5,000 to 17,000, it is generally agreed that the situation here, while worse than that of last year, is not as bad as in other cities. William Short, president of the State Federation of Labor, quoted estimates before the Unemployment commission appointed by Mayor Caldwell, showing that there were approximately 9,000 unemployed here. These men, he said, are practically all American citizens and owners of homes in Seattle. A public wood yard has been suggested as an emergency plan to meet the situation. It is said that there is a tract of land near Kirkland available from which approximately 100,000 cords of wood could be cut.

The commission certainly ought to provide some public means of aiding the unemployed. It has long been recognized that public improvements made at a time when serious conditions of unemployment exist are to the best interests of the community. For when work is plentiful men can find it easy to obtain in private enterprises; but at a time such as this, it can be had by a large proportion of the working men only when the state provides it. Altogether it is humane and just that the community should do something to alleviate the conditions of unemployment. Better this than charity.

FITZGERALD FAVORS CITY MANAGER FORM

As a concluding statement to his address to the League Tuesday, Councilman Fitzgerald came out flatly for the city manager form. He confessed his mistake in being against the proposition previously, and said that he was now converted to the idea. So long as we are engaged in business other than governmental, and particularly since we are engaged in large public utility operations, we must have the city manager form. If adopted in this city, it will be, to my mind, the biggest piece of constructive legislation that we have ever passed."

Councilman Fitzgerald stated that he would do all in his power to have the city manager form put into effect in Seattle.

Chicago Traction Situation Discussed.

Joseph B. Strauss of the Strauss Bastule Bridge Company, Chicago, who is in Seattle as a delegate to the International Port Convention, delivered a short address to the League Tuesday. He said in part: "Due to the excess of the population and increase of operating costs the City of Chicago, too, has its transportation problem. The service lines have just rendered a report showing that they have earned a dividend of about 30 per cent. The fare charged is 8c. The Illinois Commission is now making an investigation at the request of Mayor Thompson (in order to make good his pre-election promise) as to the entire railway situation.

The problem in Chicago is mainly physical—the streets are congested. There has been talk of re-routing the cars. The general opinion seems to be to take

REPORT ON SKAGIT BONDS

The following report was approved by the Board of Trustees at a special meeting Thursday noon and was presented to the Board of Public Works Friday.

To the President of the Municipal League:

Dear Sir:

The Budget Committee was requested to ascertain the facts in regard to a purported statement, that, in offering the Skagit Bonds in payment for the work of boring the tunnel, etc. in the Skagit Project, it would involve a loss of 23 per cent off the face of the bonds, consisting of 15 per cent discount and 8 per cent interest lost by issuance of the bonds long before the payments were due on the contracts. We have made such investigation as we are able, and beg to report as follows:

1st. The bonds will not be issued until the payment are due, so there will not be the loss of interest feared.

2nd. The bond dealers in the city are nearly all considering the purchase of these bonds, and want to get them at the lowest figure obtainable, and therefore will not talk on the subject of their value, except to depreciate it, as is natural.

4th. We have consulted Superintendent Ross of the Light Department, and learn that there are several contractors of large financial ability bidding on this work and who asked that the bids be postponed two weeks—until Friday, the 14th, which was done. Also, that he and the City Engineer have made very careful estimates and know within very definite limits the amount which the work should cost at this time.

5th. The bonds now to be issued are to be approximately $2,000,000 of 8 per cent bonds running six to twenty years, issued in $1,000 denominations, and secured by the net revenue of the City Light Department. There are various issues outstanding, amounting to $10,5027.00, which are prior to these.

6th. Two million dollars worth of these bonds was issued in April of this year when interest rates were high and the general average of bonds much lower than now, and we cannot find that there are any of them seeking buyers in this market at the present time. They were taken by contractors, at what figure we are unable to ascertain, but doubtless at a much greater discount than should be allowed at the present time. At that time, four to six months prime paper in New York was discounted 7½% to 7 3-4%, the pre-war average being 4% to 5%. Today the rate

COUNCILMAN SPEAKS ON FIVE CENT FARE

Councilman C. B. Fitzgerald addressed the Municipal League last Tuesday on the subject of the 5 cent car fare ordinance introduced a few days ago, action on which was postponed.

Secretary Eimon L. Wienir first read Mr. Leghorn's letter, which is reproduced in this issue, and Fitzgerald began his address by commenting on it, saying: "No doubt Leghorn's report shows that the operation of the Municipal Railway by the City is a colossal failure, especially when you take into consideration the fact that the City has been relieved of many charges which the private company bore formerly.

"But this is the extreme view of the situation: that the public utility should bear all charges which had formerly been borne by the private company. To my mind many items now charged to the railway account should be charged to the general tax account;—thus the cost of paving between tracks is a general benefit to the city and should be charged to the general fund. We can't drive the bargain with our car riders which we could with a private company; to charge the car riders all of the expenses and burdens which had formerly been borne by the private company would be to defeat municipal operation of the railway.

"The City's difficulty has been in not having expert managers of the railway, and the only reason that the system has been able to run at all is because it is used to being run.

"To my mind the important thing is not what the rate of fare shall be, but the character of service to be rendered by the system—though in my estimation a five-cent fare would be sufficient to bring a car rider in from the suburbs to the City. Experts differ of course as to whether or not there will be a deficit on the basis of a five-cent fare. In my opinion there will be a deficit.

"In conclusion, then, my stand is midway between those extremists who would have the Municipal Railway assume all of the burdens which the private company bore, and those who would have it assume none of the burdens—but charge it to the general fund.

"As to the auto-bus situation, I don't believe that the auto transportation has superseded the street railway situation, as was shown by Mr. Strauss in his address to the League today. It is not right to take $50,000 from the sinking fund of the railway and use it for auto-bus transportation.

"The truth of the matter is, that the situation is so "scrambled" that is hard to get anything out of it at present."

Mr. Leghorn's letter, above referred to, follows:--

I am in receipt of yours of the 7th extending an invitation to me to meet with your league next Tuesday at Meves Cafeteria and give a brief talk on the subject of the Municipal Street Car Line and its present difficulties.

I am sorry to state that it will be impossible for me to be in Seattle on that date on account of other engagements. So that you may clearly understand our position, however, will state that the law requires us to provide uniform classification of accounts for cities and their utilities, to install said classifications and to see that the accounts are kept in accordance therewith. This we have done with the different utilities of the city of Seattle and we are prepared at all times to give the public the exact status of those utilities and show whether or not they are being operated according to the law of the state of Washington.

The law creating this department further provides that we shall inquire into whether or not the laws of the state and the ordinances of the city are being complied with. For this purpose we make periodical examinations of these departments and require monthly reports as to their financial operations.

I am sorry that I have not the September report at hand yet but can give you the figures as of August 31st, 1921. These eight months' operations show that the total revenue was $4,170,763.23 from operations; that the operating expense for the same period was $3,416,715.45, leaving an income from operation of $754,047.78. There were miscellaneous revenues, other than operation, amounting to $34,567.77 making a gross income of $788,615.55. The accrued interest for that period amounted to $578,490.89. This left a net income of $21,124.6. There were losses accrued—current annual period—$1,395.68 and delayed gains accrued in prior periods $117.49, delayed losses due to retirement of property from service—$150.

563.80 and unearned increase of surplus—$2,700.00 leaving a net income profit and loss for the period of $60,982.58. This is without taking into consideration any reserve for the meeting of contractual obligations, namely, the redemption of bonds.

The enclosed balance sheet might be of interest to you and your members. It shows a deficit as of August 31st, 1921 of $1,753-180.16.

The total number of passengers carried during the eight months of 1920 was 66,655,248 and during the eight months of 1921 was 50,304,011.

We have been criticised somewhat for the amount set aside to take care of depreciation and obsolescence but from an actual examination and inspection of the elements of the plant we feel that this 4 per cent on the fixed assets is low if anything.

As to the best method of reducing the existing deficit and putting the street car system on a sound financial basis, that is a problem for the management of the plant to work out. It cannot be worked out intelligently by hysterical demands for unreasonable reductions; and any changes should be made after careful investigation and study, taking into consideration all contractual relation and the liability of the city.

Respectfully,
JAMES T. LEGHORN.
Inspector.

PRESIDENT ANDERSON CALLED TO WASHINGTON

President Anderson was suddenly called to Washington, Thursday afternoon and will be gone for three weeks. Vice-president J. L. Baldwin and Robert Howes will preside at the meetings in his absence.

DR. CHRISTENSEN INVITED TO ADDRESS MEETING

Dr. Christensen, Chairman of the Port Commission, has been invited to address the League Tuesday October 25th. He has been asked to give a resume account of the First International and Tenth Annual Port Convention held at Seattle, as well as the Pacific Coast Convention held at Vancouver, B. C.

SECRETARY'S COLUMN

MR. PETER WITT.

In the absence of Mayor Caldwell the agitation for the 5 cent fare began; in his absence the ordinance was introduced; in his absence a telegram of inquiry sent; and without consulting him (so the mayor stated) the Council passed a resolution employing Mr. Witt. The Mayor neatly retaliates by advising Mr. Witt not to "undertake the employment until the same is authorized by ordinance and money appropriated for your services".

A pretty neat stroke, what?

Whether the move on the part of Caldwell was simply to show that he is still mayor of the city of Seattle or whether for the good and sufficient reason that the procedure taken by the council was not a proper one matters not. In any event we think he is right. In the first place the council should have waited until Henderson, the superintendent of railways who was east on official business returned. In the second place it was not an emergency matter and Mayor Caldwell should have been consulted before the expert was invited some here. As to the passage of the resolution without embodying its terms in an ordinance we shall leave that for the council, the mayor and the corporation counsel to fight out.

In any event it was a neat stroke.

Report on Unemployment.

The outstanding features of the report by the Mayor's committee on unemployment are as follows:

1. That immediate conditions of unemployment are not critical but that provisions must be made for the winter months.
2. That the unskilled resident laborer constitutes the large problem.
3. That the public must assume its share of the burden as conditions causing unemployment go beyond the control of the laborer.
4. That a strong executive committee be selected, presided over by the mayor, to promote public works, employment in industry, centralizing relief among unemployed, assisting women to find employment, centralizing all el-payment agency activities.

5. That there be as much as possible public and private construction this winter.

6. That local banks encourage buying of local bonds and assist in the legitimate industries and merchants now in the city.

7. That the proposed wood-ward be utilized.

Altogether the report is a thorough and able document and should be carefully studied by the citizens of Seattle.

Chamber Research Bureau.

Announcement was made in the press last Sunday that the Chamber of Commerce will conduct a municipal research department and thus keep the public informed on matters of taxation and efficiency or lack of it in municipal and county affairs.

This is indeed welcome news to the League which has been working for some months to create interest in the establishment of a municipal research bureau. No matter where the beginning is made so long as there is a beginning. If the Chamber of Commerce and not the League can best accomplish the purpose, no matter. A start in the right direction has been made.

Disarmament Conference.

Chapin D. Foster, Editor of the Grandview Herald (Wash.) has sent out a circular letter enclosing his editorial on the Conference—in which he calls upon the citizens of the State of Washington, through their various organizations, to take the lead in making the conference a success. His editorial should be reprinted in full in every newspaper in America. But of course it will not be; of course it will reach but a comparatively few. The effort is worthwhile, however. It is only when the great hearted and minded people of the world make the effort that such a conference as the Washington conference will be a success.

City Manager Plan.

Students of government (perhaps it would be better sounding to say "governmental experts") have agreed that the city manager plan is the best for the government of our cities --- best in the efficient manner of operation as well as the more economical in cost; and it is more important still, the more democratic. Apparently the newspapers are indifferent to the idea. Why they should be so is not clear. Perhaps there is a gap between the city editor who has charge of the "news" and the editorial writer who comments upon the news and expresses the policy of his paper. It may be the editorial writer, seeing only a small item in his paper that the League (or this or that organization or person) is in favor of the plan does not regard it of sufficient popular importance to comment upon it. It may be that the present system is considered good enough by the policy makers of the papers (as indeed it is considered good enough by many persons in the city). And because of this indifference, it is up to the League to work all the harder to "put it over." That is where a large membership would help. The League ought to have so great a membership that its "clientele" could not possibly be ignored by any organization, individual, or institution within our gates. But even without so vast a membership the League not only has rendered excellent service but its opinions in course of time will be felt. It is up to each of us to boost for the plan, to explain it to our friends and neighbors, and to have arguments at our finger tips ready to convince them that it is the logical thing for the city to adopt.

of discount on this paper is $5\frac{1}{4}\%$ to $5\frac{1}{2}\%$. Then everything was still near the bottom and the future was all unknown. Now the financial depression has passed the bottom and bonds are steadily on the upgrade, with the corresponding element of safety and certain profit.

7th. The bond market has been rising steadily for several weeks, and especially tax-exempt bonds are in great demand, as is shown by the fact that the returns from income taxes have been reduced more than 50% because the owners of the largest incomes have been placing their property in exempt bonds.

8th. Tax-exempt bonds of undoubted security sell in the East to yield 4.75% to 5.15%, 6% Port District bonds of Grays Harbor were recently offered to the public by the brokers at a premium. Call money in New York is down to $4\frac{1}{2}\%$. Liberty Bonds are selling to realize $4\frac{3}{4}\%$

9th. While these bonds cannot be placed on the same plane with Liberty Bonds or general taxation bonds as to the extent of the market for them, yet they are on the same, or better, plane with them as being tax-exempt.

10th. The likelihood of these being paid when due and of their interest being paid when due is of the highest degree, in the first place, because the Light Plant is a remarkably prosperous and well managed institution which has been built up entirely on its own merits and earnings and without any resort to general taxation, and has grown by leaps and bounds, and its annual surplus last year, after payment of interest on all outstanding liabilities and $300,000 depreciation, is far more than sufficient to take care of all the interest charges on the whole authorized issue of $5,500,000 of new bonds; and the estimate of income for 1921 is $300,000 more than last year; and secondly, because no bond issued by or under the authority of the City of Seattle, either general obligation, local improvement or utility bond, has ever been allowed to default --- which cannot be said of all general tax obligations of every locality.

11th. The work under these contracts is very definite and the facilities are largely provided by the city, so that the element of speculation is at a minimum; and in the slack conditions of business and scarcity of large operations, this should be a very attractive project for any contractors able to undertake it, and labor should be plentiful and comparatively cheap. It is therefore thought that the contractors will find it to their advantage to bid pretty closely for the work, and as the bonds are to be paid for in trade and not in cash, they should bring more than at a cash sale; just as merchants buy produce from their customers, paying them in trade the same price at which they sell it, making their profit on the goods with which they pay for it.

12th. The further fact that there is a great deal of agitation to make municipal securities subject to the income tax should enhance the value of these securities, which are issued now, before the law is changed, and which will therefore always be exempt.

13th. The fact that the payments on the contracts will not be due until various times in the future, when the bonds will be steadily rising to a higher level, should also bring the bids nearer to a cash basis, as the contractors will stand a chance to make a handsome profit by the constantly increasing value of the bonds, as well as their profit out of the contracts themselves.

Our opinion is, therefore, that, all things considered, the contractors could well afford to absorb any discount that they may have to allow in selling such bonds as they need to sell; and that we may reasonably expect the bids to be practically on a cash basis.

Respectfully submitted,

BUDGET COMMITTEE

Chairman.

CITY MANAGER FORM

some of the cars off the surface lines. While the natural tendency is to speak of subways in cities, and while it is entirely practical from an engineering standpoint,---it is not so from the financial standpoint, as the costs would be about $4,000,000 per mile for a double-track line. Chicago's peculiar condition revolves around the 'loop' system which is located adjacent to the Lake and River, and which brings to the loop a tremendous amount of traffic. One plan is to extend the loop. Chicago has one main boulevard running north and south---the Michigan Boulevard---and another, east and west boulevard, known as the Jackson Boulevard. All traffic must pass along these two main thoroughfares. As an illustration---traveling by auto, it took me about one-half hour to go a distance of three-quarters of a mile. We must increase the number of boulevards, decrease the degree surface traffic, and increase the number of elevated roads."

An interesting side-light was shown by Strauss when he pointed out that Chicago receives 5 per cent of the net returns of the railway operations. "That fund", he said, "is to be used for extension purposes".

Chicago has not yet determined whether municipal operation of street railways has been successful, and therefore will not try it out at this time.

Strauss stated that in spite of all reports to the contrary, Chicago has very efficient city administration, and has done some splendid things during its term in office.

ALDWELL VETOES APPROPRIATION BILL

Declaring the $680,000 bond issue for the retracking of First Avenue to be of doubtful validity, and likely to endanger the general fund of the city, especially if the proposed 5-cent fare should be adopted, Mayor Hugh Caldwell vetoed the ordinance and sent it back to the City Council.

The mayor took this action after receiving a legal opinion from First Assistant Corporation Counsel T. J. L. Kennedy, who voided passing on the question whether the First Avenue retracking should be considered new construction or maintenance. Besides providing for the First Avenue project, the ordinance would have furnished funds also for the purchase of 25 new street cars and for the payment of the Western Washington Power Company for the Greenwood street car line in allard.

Favors Buying 75 Cars.

As to the 25 new cars, Mayor Caldwell said it would be better to use the sum of money provided for them as a first payment on 75 new cars, paying for the remainder of their cost in yearly installments.

The mayor said he had no knowledge of any contract existing with the Western Washington Power Company, or that any proper appraisal had been made of the Greenwood car properties. In his letter to the Council the mayor said:

This Council bill recites that it provides for certain additions and betterments to and extensions of the municipal street railway, and for the construction and acquisition of certain other street railway lines, and for the purchase of certain equipment, and estimates the total cost at $680,000, in which sum utility bonds are authorized, payable out of the receipts from the street car lines.

Revenue Not Sufficient

Since these bonds if issued will be subsequent to the $15,000,000 delivered to Stone & Webster interests, and also to other outstanding utility bonds aggregating in all $16,430,000 I cannot agree with the recital in Section 2 that the gross revenues derived and to be derived from the operation of the municipal street railway system will be sufficient to meet all the expenses of operating and maintenance, and to provide for all payments of interest and principal on these and the other bonds now outstanding. The receipts will certainly not be sufficient if the proposed 5-cent carfare ordinance now pending in the Council is passed.

In brief, this proposed Council bill does three things:

First. Authorizes the laying of new lines, etc., on First Avenue and First Avenue South.

Second. Provides for the purchase of a street railway line owned by Western Washington Power Company.

Third. For the purchase of 25 additional street cars.

The Council bill does not undertake to say how much shall be spent for the new street railway tracks on First Avenue and First Avenue South, to replace the existing ones, nor how much we are to pay for the street car line of the Western Washington Power Company, nor how much we are to pay for the 25 additional street cars. Under this form of ordinance it would be possible to do any one or more of these things at such a high cost as to prevent the doing of the other things provided for in the same ordinance. Since the amounts are not segregated, I cannot approve the ordinance in this form.

Knows of No Valuation

I know of no contract for the purchase of the Western Washington Power Company's street railway line, which I understand is located in the Ballard district. I know of no competent valuation having been made of the lines, and influenced by our former experience I am unwilling to approve of the purchase of any railway lines without a proper and competent valuation of the same.

3-CENT CAR FARE PLAN PRESENTED

Councilman Oliver T. Erickson, before the League Tuesday noon, presented his plan which will be voted on in the spring, for the operation of the railways on a 3c carfare. In a general way he showed that in paying, by general taxation, the operating costs of the railway the greatest possible benefit would be derived by the City. Taking up arguments against the plan, he tended to prove that it would not be a burden on the small home owners;—that the large property owners would be benefited because of increased business; and that, while vacant property holders might be hard hit; they deserved little particular consideration.

Erickson said in part:—

"We have the street railway on our hands now; we must put it in such shape as to have it render the greatest possible service and make it an asset to Seattle. By charging a low fare, I believe we would have an abundance of money for such purpose.

"Co-operation is the basis of civilization, and transportation is the greatest factor in co-operation. In the early days there were toll roads, some still in existence, owned by private individuals. The municipalities and states began to take over these toll roads and, instead of charging a toll for each time a person walked over the road, they saw it was wiser to charge up these tolls at the end of the year to taxation.

"Then under private operation of utilities the plan of paying for each ride as it was used grew as against the older idea of paying for it 'once a year' by means of taxation. When the municipalities began to take over private utilities, they followed the system used by the private company—that of charging for the service rendered at the time it was rendered.

“And then Johnson, one of the greatest railway experts in the world, evolved this theory—that a street railway is simply a horizontal elevator. Owners of office buildings do not charge for elevator service — except once a month in the form of rent. Street railways are as much a necessity to community life as is an elevator to an office building—the idea is identical, he argued.

“The cost of the transportation system can be divided into two parts—first, operating costs and second, bonds, interest, depreciation, extensions, etc. My plan is to pay, by taxation, the operating costs and have the car riders pay for the bonds, the interest, etc. And my reason for this plan is that the contract with Stone & Webster provides that the operating expenses shall first be liable to the payment of the bonds, interest, etc; and even if the contract did not so provide, I would prefer to have my plan as it is, because it will enable us to reduce fares from time to time as the bonds are paid off, and thus lead, eventually, to the system of paying for car rides ‘once a year’ by taxation.

Erickson tended to show that there would be no burden on the small home owner, for in reality, in paying for his transportation by means of taxation, he would be saving money. Thus a home owner assessed on the basis of $1250, and taking three car rides daily, would enjoy an actual saving of $33.40 per year. To large property owners, he held out the inducement that nothing is so beneficial to the City and business as to have residents of the City move about freely.

“There is, it is true, one class of property that will be hit severely by my plan—and that is vacant property. However, I do not feel that property owners who hold property for speculation are entitled to any consideration, and such owners should also take into consideration that when the City raised its rate of carfare, their property was only worth 50c on the dollar.

“Superintendent Henderson has had to lie awake nights to take service away from the street car riders in order to save money. This is a condition which would not exist under my plan.”

ACTION OF LEAGUE ERRONEOUSLY REPORTED

A resolution was introduced by the committee on Parks, Buildings, and Grounds, of which Dr. E. C. Kilbourne is chairman, favoring the endorsement of the action of the Park Board to secure adequate supply of pure water for Green Lake to maintain it in a sanitary condition, and urged the City Council to appropriate funds required to carry out this undertaking. Passage of this resolution by the League was delayed by the membership for the reason that J. E. Dove, the engineer in charge of the project, had not as yet submitted data showing the exact amount of money required for this undertaking. The newspapers gave publicity to the resolution as though it had been approved by the League. This was erroneous. Mr. Dove will not be able to submit figures for at least two weeks yet, and the action of the League will not be taken until the figures are submitted.

SECRETARY'S COLUMN

Carrying the League to the Public

It has for some time become apparent to the writer that matters of such importance as a change to the city manager form of government, the street railway situation and allied transportation problems, should be brought to the attention of the people at large. And so, at the last meeting of the Board of Trustees, a committee consisting of H. A. Woodcock, chairman, W. E. Henry, and the Secretary, was appointed to consider the advisability of holding a series of public evening meetings. The committee will report at the next meeting favorably. Many people are deprived of the opportunity of hearing and of discussing public affairs because of the fact that the League's meetings, as well as the meetings of other civic organizations, are held during the noon hour. An evening meeting should give thousands in this city the opportunity of becoming actively identified and interested in public affairs.

Perhaps the most important of all matters that would come before the people shortly is that of the city manager form. It is indeed gratifying to note that such public servants as Councilman Fitzgerald has come out openly for that form of government. It is hoped that Mayor Caldwell, too, will see the advantages of that form as against the commission form, and will throw his influence in favor of making the change. But the public will have to be educated to the meaning of the city manager form, to its advantages, to its paramount importance to the city. Such evening meetings would lead the way to the accomplishment of this purpose. It is hoped that the plan, if approved by the Board of Trustees, will not only have the support of every member of the League, but the support of the newspapers as well. And if given sufficient amount of publicity, no reason is seen why such meetings should not prove valuable.

The Federal Board for Vocational Training.

The members of the League are undoubtedly taking an interest in the conference of the heads of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, which was held in Washington this week not only because of the general interest in the subject of the rehabilitation of the disabled soldier, but also because of the fact that the President of the League Claude H. Anderson, has been the head of the 13th district of the bureau for Vocational Education. It is gratifying to note that the district of which President Anderson is the head, did not receive the scathing denunciation which the districts of New York and California received. While newspaper reports were meager and contained neither praise nor condemnation of the work of this district, it is believed by those familiar with the work here that when more detailed reports become available it will show that Colonel Forbes considered the work of the Federal Board for this district in a very favorable light. In a statement made to the writer by Thomas N. Swale, commander of the American Legion for the State of Washington, Swale stated that the work in this district had been satisfactory from every standpoint. This, it is believed, is the general sentiment in this State. President Anderson is expected back in Seattle the early part of November. In his absence, Vice-presidents Julius L. Baldwin and Robert Howes will preside.

In another parts of the "News" contained the announcement that Mayor Caldwell has vetoed an ordinance providing for a $680,000 bond issue to finance reconstruction of the car tracks on First Avenue and other railway expenses. The Mayor's reasons for vetoing the ordinance are stated, also, in this article. The public utilities committee of the council has indicated that it would urge the passage of this ordinance over the veto. In view of the opinion of Corporation Counsel Kennedy that the ordinance was of doubtful validity it is more than likely that even if the ordinance is passed over the veto there will be considerable litigation over it. The League has not studied the matter and consequently the writer is unable to say what the attitude of the League should be on the proposition. But Mayor Caldwell's statements appeal to him: The matter will be brought up before the Board of Trustees Monday when it is hoped the question will be referred to the League's public utilities committee for report.

The Elevated Line Trestle.

The elevated railway trestle on Whatcom Avenue and Spokane Street which was built in 1917 at a cost of approximately $750,000 as a result of war time conditions, particularly to provide more adequate facilities of transportation for shipyard workers, is said to be in an unsafe condition. It is expected, at this writing, that the trestle will be condemned—or, at any rate that work will be begun to make it safe. The structure, it will be remembered, was not completed until the latter part of 1918 or the early part of 1919. Is this another of the city's mistakes.

The Public Utilities committee of the League has been requested by the Board of Trustees to investigate the matter. The committee was instructed to find: (1) Who recommended the building of the trestle; (2) why was it selected; and (3) what views were held with regard its durability.

This investigation should prove helpful; for whether safe or not, whether a mistake to have built it nor not, the city, if it knows the facts, may profit by them in the future.

FIVE-CENT FARE MEANS BIG LOSS SAY HENDERSON

Five-cent car fare on the Municipal Street Railway would result in a deficit in the year 1922 of $2,453,726.80, declared General Supt. W. D. Henderson in a report he handed to Mayor Hugh M. Caldwell.

This figure was based on an estimated increase of 3 per cent in the number of car riders resulting in the proposed car fare reduction, taking into consideration Councilman C. B. Fitzgerald's proposal of transfer privilege on 8 1-3-cent tokens.

The estimated revenues, under the Fitzgerald plan, according to Mr. Henderson's figures, would be $4,452,033.24, while the estimated cost of operating the railway next year is $6,905,760.04.

The report Mr. Henderson prepared for the mayor and councilmen follows:

CALDWELL VETOES BILL

advises me that the present method of purchasing equipment, in effect generally in the United States, is to make an initial payment on street cars, execute a trust agreement, and provide for the payment of additional amounts from year to year. He recommends that the city should therefore purchase 75 cars, make an initial payment thereon for such amount as was intended to be used in the outright purchase of 25 cars, and that the plan above mentioned, now being followed by other railway lines, be followed by us.

I do not believe that the present bonds can be sold, since they are subsequent to more outstanding bonds than the present railway system now justifies. I apprehend that these bonds once being authorized an attempt will be made to loan money from the general fund to such bond fund in anticipation of the bonds being sold. There being no market for the bonds, it would be impossible to repay the general fund, and an amount thereby added to the $83,000 owing the general fund since last December. When $790,000 of railway bonds were issued on 1919 on ordinance No. 39492, they were sold at a discount of $62,893.81, and only by lumping the same with certain light and power bonds which were discounted more than $88,000.

I attach hereto opinion of corporation counsel showing the use of utility bonds for replacing existing railway on First Avenue and First Avenue South to be of doubtful validity.

DR. CHRISTENSON TO ADDRESS THE LEAGUE

Dr. W. T. Christenson, chairman of the Port Commission, will address the League Tuesday noon, October 25th, at Meves Cafeteria. Dr. Christenson will give a resume account of both the National and Pacific Coast Conventions of Port Authorities held in Seattle and Vancouver, B. C., respectively. In view of the tremendous importance of these conventions to the port of Seattle, it is felt that this announcement should receive the interest of every member of the League. A large attendance is expected.

Grandma Heard

It was the week before little Willie's birthday, and he was on his knees at his bedside petitioning Providence for presents in a loud voice.

"Please send me," he shouted, "a bicycle, a tool chest, a - -"

"Why are you praying so loud?" his younger brother interrupted. "God isn't deaf."

"I know He isn't," said little Willie, winking toward the next room, "but grandma is."

Too Much Caution

Mrs. Casey: "Me sister writes me that every bottle we sent her in that box was broken. Are yez sure yez printed 'This side up with care' on it?"

Casey: "Oi am. An' for fear they shouldn't see it on the top. Oi printed it on the bottom as well."

ATTACK SKAGIT PROJECT AGAIN

Eimon L. Wienir, Secretary of the League

Again the interests who have been opposed to the development of the Skagit project have launched a vigorous attack upon it. This time the propaganda is to the effect that the "secrecy" in the disposal of the bonds is fraught with fraud and collusion. Simultaneously with the announcement that the Board of Public Works had negotiated the deal by which Storrie & Co. were induced to buy a million dollars of the bonds at par in order that their low bid might be accepted one of the newspapers came out with an editorial demanding that the grand jury which convenes November 14th--probe the deal. It left the impression that the public officials who had carried through the deal had committed a crime.

Major Douglas, prosecuting attorney, whose wisdom and sound public acts deserve the highest praise, has announced that he will not ask the grand jury to investigate the transaction unless it is furnished with some evidence that would indicate that a crime had been committed. That certainly is a display of good judgment.

While, undoubtedly, the transaction may have some element of secrecy about it there is no reason for crying fraud. It is, in our judgment, commendable that our public officials consummated the transaction in the way that a private company could carry through negotiations with another private concern; they made the best bargain possible; and the facts are now available to any one who honestly desires to know them.

Is it true that there are in-

PROGRAM FOR TUESDAY NOON, NOVEMBER 1

Peter Witt, Famous Traction Expert, who has taken a prominent part in the movement for the City Manager form of government in Cleveland, will address The League on that Subject Tuesday Noon, Nov. 1

A MATTER OF MONEY

Statements for dues are being mailed by the secretary to reach the members the first of the month, and every member receiving such statement is appealed to, at this time, to make a prompt remittance. The League dues are very nominal; the League's budget has been trimmed to the bone; and every cent outstanding for dues is needed to defray the current expenses. The secretary sincerely hopes that it will not be necessary to send out another batch of statements this year. Members in arrears can save themselves and the secretary considerable time and annoyance by paying their dues promptly.

Peter Witt to Address League on the City Manager Government

Peter Witt, the Cleveland transportation expert, who, it is understood, has taken a very important part in furthering the city manager form of government in Cleveland, will address the Municipal League next Tuesday noon on that subject. Owing to the limited capacity of the meeting place, members are advised to be in attendance sharply at noon. Extra tables and chairs have been arranged for, and every member of the League is assured that he will be able to hear the noted speaker.

About November 10th Mr. Witt has consented to talk to the League on Seattle's trans-

PORT OFFICIAL ADDRESSES LEAGUE

Dr. W. T. Christensen, president of the Port of Seattle, addressed the Municipal League Tuesday, giving a resume account of the Tenth Annual National Convention and Pacific Coast Convention of Port Authorities. That the convention held in Seattle tended to establish a closer relationship between the various ports of the country and Seattle, and that, in coming to Seattle, the delegates learned at first hand the vast resources of the northwest were the outstanding benefits of the convention, declared Dr. Christensen. The speaker traced the history of the National organization of Port Authorities, declaring that it was started in 1912 in the City of New York, the purpose being to create more interest in terminal affairs, and to promote water transportation. "The convention meetings are devoted," he said, "to an exchange of information concerning port management, operation and finances."

Dr. Christensen said in part: "Seattle, the gate-way to the Orient, Siberia and the vast territory across the Pacific, will derive benefits by commerce with this territory which will develop beyond all expectation."

It was good to have these men, leaders in their own communities, come to Seattle at this time; for they will bring back with them—to the various sections of the country—a more active interest in Seattle and in the Pacific Northwest.

This spirit was exemplified by Mr. Coles of Boston, who said at the close of the meeting, "I have seen the West. I am convinced that we cannot establish terminal facilities for the handling of Washington lumber in Boston too soon."

Commenting on the papers read and discussed at the Seattle convention, Dr. Christensen said that one of the most valuable was the paper on "The Economic Value of Lumber", in which the writer came to the conclusion that wood construction was not only cheaper than concrete construction, but that it afforded the best means of rebuilding to meet changed conditions.

As an example of the truth of this conclusion, Dr. Christensen pointed out that the city of Vancouver, B. C. is just completing the building of a concrete pier, smaller than pier B of Seattle, at a cost of $6,000,000, while Seattle's largest pier of wood construction was built at a cost of only $2,500,000. Already, the speaker stated, certain types of ships found it impractical to use the Canadian city's pier. "That is simply one instance of the good that a convention of Port Authorities can accomplish. Perhaps Vancouver would not have built its pier of concrete had it had the benefit of this paper before undertaking the work."

One of the outstanding features of the convention, the speaker stated, was in taking the delegates to the plant of the Snoqualmie Falls Lumber Company, where a large part of work is done by electrical apparatus. The delegates, he said, were much impressed with the exhibition made. They saw everything from the cutting of the logs to the finished product. Some of the delegates, the speaker stated, expressed a feeling that that trip alone was worth going across the continent.

Another feature of the convention was in taking the delegates through the locks. They appreciated the great natural advantages of Seattle in that it had a salt-water as well as a fresh water harbor.

The speaker commented on the beautiful booklet published by the Seattle Port Commission under the direction of Frank Waterhouse. This booklet, which contains in interesting form the high-lights of Seattle's commercial and educational institutions, was sent out in hundreds by the delegates to all parts of the world.

Commenting on the Pacific Coast Convention held at Vancouver, B. C., Dr. Christensen stated that the chief paper discussed there was "The Relation of Aerial Navigation to the Navigation of Ships". The paper was presented by a San Diego man, and already, it appears, the subject is of considerable interest in that city which has an aerial base of the Navy. Dr. Christensen stated that the subject would undoubtedly assume more considerable importance in Seattle as aerial travel was further developed.

"One of the things that the Seattle convention did, was to bring the business men of Seattle and the Port Commissioners together. The Port needs the support of Seattle's business men, and in return for that interest and support the Port is trying its utmost to protect local industries."

Vice-President Julius L. Baldwin, who presided at the meeting, expressed the thanks of the League to Dr. Christensen for his very interesting address.

THE SAN FRANCISCO CIVIC LEAGUE

The secretary's office has received a bulletin from the Civic League of Improvement Clubs and Associations of San Francisco. This number is particularly interesting to our own League. Among other things, it contains a history of the organization which dates back to 1906. Seventy-eight organizations in San Francisco are associated with the Civic League. It was organized after the San Francisco earthquake which destroyed the major part of San Francisco, and numerous improvement clubs of the city were combined into one central organization for the purpose of rehabilitating the structures and supervising all urgently needed public betterments. Each of the organizations associated with the League is represented by ten delegates to the Civic League, and the League thus functions through its standing committees and Board of Governors; the latter comprising the chairmen of the fifty-four standing and special committees which report to the delegates. Final action always lies with the active delegates and members.

The Civic League at this time takes a prominent part in the election of proper candidates for public office. Experience having taught its executive officers that "many of the projects and improvements advocated (by the Civic League) were dependent upon action of the city's legislative body . . . and the city's officials."

The Civic League lists a very formidable group of achievements. As announced by it, its policy is "to advocate such improvements as will cause the creation of values thereof, thereby increasing the assessment roll sufficiently to keep the tax-rate down, and even reduce it." Some of the things attempted to be accomplished by the Civic League are: tax reduction, business administration, charter revision and a solution of San Francisco's transportation problem.

Its comment on tax reduction is particularly interesting, and is as follows:

"Despite the earnest and unremitting efforts of the League the tax rate in San Francisco has risen to an alarming height and careful consideration of the entire subject shows, that with proper regard by public officials for economy in expenditures and efficiency in service, the government of the City and County could be conducted for a sum far within the present demands. We therefore believe that the tax rate should be kept at the lowest possible figure consistent with the requirements of the Charter and the economical conduct of the government."

In its endorsement of candidates, the League comes out unequivocally for or against certain candidates and virtually makes its own slate. In its bulletin the history and qualifications of each candidate are not given; the report stating, simply, that the committee recommends for endorsement by the League so and-so for that particular office.

The Civic League bulletin is issued monthly, is of about 11 8½ inches in size, and contains eight pages.

LOW STREET RAILWAY FARES WITH THE HELP OF THE LANDOWNER

By Louis B. Wehle
New York City

Formerly a Member, Federal Electric Railways Commission

From the National Municipal Review

If the landowner will share with the public a fraction of the increased value which street railway improvements bring to his property, the puzzle of fare and services will begin to unravel.

Nobody wants high street railway fares. The company managers are compelled to urge them only as a last resort. They were sure of low cost ey would much prefer low fares, which mean better and readier business.

The Dilemma: Extensions, High Fares, Congestion

The question is how can low fares be assured? We know that fares must be sufficiently low to enable the cities to follow a normal uniform growth, avoiding congestion. But we know, too, that the service must at the same time insure rapid transportation from home to office or workshop. This means, particularly in the large cities, a continual extension of the rapid transit facilities which do not operate on the street surface. Such facilities are very costly; they entail a high capitalization and have everywhere either been used or threatened to force higher fares. And higher fares in thwart the very purpose of rapid transit extensions, since they will tend to create the very congestion which those extensions are intended to prevent.

The Way Out: Assess the Landowner for Construction

From this dilemma there is a plain, simple escape. Not a new remedy, but an old one which has been in use in connection with other public improvements for many years all over the United States; and resort to that remedy has been since 1909 permitted in connection with street railways by the laws of New York state. The question is when will the American cities adopt it?

When a city builds a new street or fire hydrant, the landowners along that street or in the vicinity of the hydrant are assessed by the city to pay for Public opinion and the courts have approved for generations this procedure with reference to these and other improvements, such as sidewalks, sewers, water systems, parks, and more recently, also, in connection with electric light systems; and the landowner is thoroughly in accord with it because his is the primary benefit of the improvement, while the benefit to the taxpayer is only a general and more remote one.

So let it be with the rapid transit lines of a large city. Take New York as an example. New York City has pledged its credit to the extent of over two hundred and fifty million dollars to build a vast subway system. The companies, in effect, operate the subways on a basis of rentals which pay for them at the end of a long term of years. The fares must be high enough to enable the companies, (after first retaining certain earnings for their own account), to pay those rentals. In other words, the taxpayer's credit builds the subways, and then these same taxpayers, as car riders, put up the money with which the subways are paid for. The process is sound from the financial standpoint; but when we think of the landowner's profit, the general taxpayer in that process does somehow suggest the man in "Mother Goose" who had scratched out both his eyes by jumping into a bramble bush,—

"And when he saw his eyes were out,

With all his might and main,
He jumped into another bush

And scratched them in again."

The Federal Electric Railways Commission on the Landowner

For what of the landowner? He frequently pockets a profit of from one hundred to several hundred per cent on his investment, a profit which the taxpayer and riding public has donated to him. Please read what the Federal Electric Railways Commission said about the New York landowner in its report to the President in August 1920:

Your Commission would urge that in every community, where and to such an extent as may be practicable, consideration be given to the advisability of requiring extensions and rapid transit systems of subway and elevated to be paid for, not out of new capital invested through the medium of bonds or stock, which means for all time an added burden upon the car rider, but from special taxes assessed against the owners of property in the district the value of which is enhanced by such extensions.

The principle is peculiarly applicable to improvements of city transportation systems, because of the enormous increases in real estate values created when new extensions open up new territory or when the creation of rapid-transit facilities make outlying territory more available.

The City Club of New York, in 1908, a few years after the extension of the New York subway from One hundred and thirty-fifth to two hundred and thirtieth Streets, in Manhattan, had been built at a cost of $7,375,000, made an authoritative study of new real estate values created by that extension in the district lying between One hundred and Thirty-fifth and Two Hundred and Thirtieth Streets. After deducting $20,000,000 as a liberal estimate, based upon studies of parallel situations, of the natural increase in property values in that district which would have taken place without the subway extension, it was found that the increase in values clearly brought about by the subway extensions was $49,200,000, an amount upward of seven times the cost of the improvements. The property in the district enjoyed an increase in value of 104 per cent. If, by assessment, it had borne the entire cost of the extension in the district, it would have still retained a new profit on the value of the land of 89 per cent, or an aggregate of $41,825,000 for the district. The Manhattan extension just referred to, together with the Bronx system beyond One hundred and thirty-fifth Street, cost $13,075,000. These two extensions directly created, in a limited area lying near those extensions, new land values, solely due to the extensions, of $80,500,000. Let it be borne in mind that the cost of the entire subway system from the Battery to Two hundred and thirtieth Street in Manhattan and to Bronx Park was about $43,000,000.

In Philadelphia recent estimates of improvements in land values expected from rapid-transit projects in contemplation have been equally enlightening. Similar results would be certainly obtained in many other cities by studies similar to that made by the City Club of New York.

LEAGUE DEMANDS AN INVESTIGATION

The following letter was sent by the Secretary of the League to the City Council:

"On October 6, 1921, the undersigned mailed to you a copy of a resolution passed by the board of Trustees of the Municipal League, requesting that the council make a thorough investigation of the effect of revenue and expenditures before taking any action on the proposed ordinance reducing the carfare, and that the Corporation Counsel's opinion be secured as to whether, in case such reduction of fares results in a less revenue than is necessary in order to comply with the terms of the contract of purchase, defray operating expense and all proper charges against the railway, the city could incur any general liability on the bonds or for breach of contract, or otherwise; and whether any such deficit must be met out of general taxes. A copy of the resolution is herewith enclosed. This resolution was reported in full on the first page of the Seattle Times of October 7, 1921, as well as in the Star of the same date, and in the Post-Intelligencer of October 7th.

"I have inquired of the clerk of the City Council, this morning, as to what disposition has been made of this resolution, and he has informed me that, after making a diligent search of the files, he was unable to find any trace of it, and that the minutes do not disclose any record of its receipt by the Council, or of its having been referred to any committee. Since this communication, then, was apparently lost and has never received your attention, we respectfully suggest that you give the matter at this time your immediate and serious attention.

"This matter is particularly

"You who do not believe that the cycle of man is accomplished, you must rouse yourselves and dare to separate yourselves from the herd in which you are dragged along. Every man worthy of the name should learn to stand alone, and do his own thinking, even in conflict with the whole world. Sincere thought, even if it does run counter to that of others, is still a service to mankind; for humanity demands that those who love her should oppose, or if necessary rebel against her. You will not serve her by flattery, by debasing your conscience and intelligence, but rather by defending their integrity from the abuse of power. For these are some of her voices, and if you betray yourself you betray her also."
—An extract from the introduction to "Clerambault" by Romain Rolland.

WITT ADDRESSES MUNICIPAL LEAGUE

That the city manager form of government is the logical solution for many of the defects now existing in America's cities, and that proportional representation in the City Council will express a complete cross-section of the community in the legislative branch of the city government, were the declarations made by Peter Witt, famous Cleveland transportation expert, before the Municipal League, Tuesday noon.

Tracing the history of city administration in America, Witt attributed most of the faults to the fact that the organization of city government was based along the lines of the Federal Constitution. The irrepressible conflict between the executives of the legislative branches of city governments is to be attributed to the over-lapping of the powers of the executives of the Council, he declared. At the same time, Witt pointed out that a new charter was not the cure so long as the people were not thoroughly educated to the idea of the change.

Deploring politics in the administration of cities' affairs, Witt stated that the city manager, freed from the necessity of playing party politics, would, to a great measure, remove present

15 EAR MARKS OF MODEL GOVERNMENT

Dr. William H. Allen, director of the Institute for Public Service, published recently his idea of a model city government. His fifteen tests of such a government reprinted below, may well be examined with relation to Seattle. How does Seattle's city government measure up?

A model city government anywhere would

1. Tell the public through frequent, short, understandable reports and statements what the government is trying to do for the public, what obstacles it is meeting, what gains it has made, what not-yet-met needs exist.

2. Ask the public for constant and cumulative help, including free, specific, untrammelled, kindly criticism.

3. Request and use the co-operation of citizen agencies like the chamber of commerce, women's clubs, labor organizations, etc.

4. Strive for and express social mindedness by trying to learn what is best for the whole community and its future.

5. Use city employment as a field training school for developing every employee in ability and desire to serve the whole public and to increase his proficiency rather than as a soft berth or incubator of political and anti-social selfishness.

6. Keep in touch with the public that official acts cannot be successfully misrepresented to either the disadvantage or the advantage of public officials.

7. Have the facts about city government, community problems, industrial and business opportunities, and purposes and results of voluntary civic activities taught in the public schools.

8. Provide continuation schooling for both children and adults at work so that no one within the city limits, no matter what his walk in life, shall be without opportunity to keep on improving himself educationally by supervised self-help, instruction or class work.

9. Make available to 100 per cent of every class eligible to any kind of community service whatever service it offers.

10. Organize schooling facilities so that every single boy and girl mentally able to benefit from four years of high school shall be given the opportunity, even if necessary to pay scholarships from public funds to eke out family incomes.

11. Look constantly for best practices and new ideas in other cities and maintain a local clearing house like a municipal reference library for learning and making known such high spots to its public.

12. Have budget and start its budget with a list of community needs to be met, provide for frank public discussion of budget proposals, train its people and taxpayers to start budget making with needs in sight, and to think of what taxes buy and not merely of what they cost.

13. Plan ten and thirty years ahead, always trying to think out what problems would have to be met and thus be continually making a city plan.

14. Study facts about labor and capital and so arrange conferences between labor and capital that devastating strikes would at least never find the public uninformed and confused with respect to issues.

15. Foster the slogan, "No Matter Who's Elected" for officers and civic agencies, so that in municipal matters votes would be cast for municipal benefits no matter who's elected.

J. Y. C. KELLOGG TO ADDRESS LEAGUE

J. Y. C. Kellogg, Civil Commissioner, will address the Municipal League next Tuesday noon. His address will deal with the present defects in our Civil Service, and will point out ways of improving it. Mr. Kellogg's long experience and outstanding ability has created interest in his address which should bring out every member. The Civil Service Committee of the League will have charge of the program.

Meves has proven a popular meeting place, and it is hoped that Tuesday's meeting will bring out as large an attendance as did the last meeting.

SECRETARY'S COMMENT

Of the few hundred statements mailed by the Secretary's office October 31, reaching the membership November 1, only twenty checks were received. This is indeed a poor showing. Every statement mailed cost the League over five cents. It should not be necessary to spend the League's money in mailing frequent statements, when the money could so well be used for other things. Members who received statements please take note of this, and mail your checks without being called upon to do so.

League Invites Lord Beatty to Visit Seattle

In line with the invitation extended to Admiral Lord Beatty by Mayor Caldwell, the Chamber of Commerce and Post-Intelligencer, the Municipal League has sent a telegram to Lord Beatty—who is now attending the American Legion Convention at Kansas City—to visit Seattle and speak under the auspices of the League. Telegram follows:

"The Municipal League of Seattle, a civic organization of a thousand strong loyal Seattle citizens, extend to you a most cordial invitation to visit Seattle and address a public meeting under the auspices of the Municipal League. We would consider it a distinct pleasure and privilege to be able to entertain you and to show you all the hospitality at our command."

The office regrets to say that the League was unable to send in the names of any of its members who can attend the American Civic Association meeting at Chicago, November 13th to 17th. It was hoped, when the announcement was published in the News last week, that there would be at least one person who could attend this convention.

ANDERSON RETURNS

President Claude H. Anderson returned from Washington D. C. in time to preside at the last meeting of the Board of Trustees on Monday, and at the League meeting on Tuesday. President Anderson was given an enthusiastic reception by the members. As stated in a recent issue of the News, the Federal Board for vocational Training in this district received no criticism from Colonel Forbes. President Anderson refused to make any comment upon the meeting in Washington, but it is known a fact that the Thirteenth District ranks among the first in efficiency and in successfully carrying out the wishes of Congress in the rehabilitation of wounded ex-service men.

Portland Interested in City Manager

Showing the interest that various cities have taken in the Municipal League's report favoring the City Manager form of government, a letter was received this week from the City Club of Portland, stating as follows:

"I note in the press recent that the Seattle Municipal League has completed a study of the City Manager form of government and has recommended it for Seattle.

"This is extremely interesting and I should like to know more about what you have done. We have a committee on the City Club making a similar study of Portland and I am sure that you would have suggestions of value.

"What form did your Survey take? What is your next step to be? The City Club of Portland would be very glad indeed to have a resume of your methods.

"Wishing you continued success."

One hundred booklets of the City Manager plan have arrived, and will be distributed by the Secretary's office to local civic organizations and influential citizens.

In line with the League's plan to create greater interest in the City Manager form of government, the Secretary was instructed at the last Board meeting to interview the City Editors of the local newspapers with a view of starting a contest for the best essay on Seattle's municipal governmental problems. In the next issue of the "News" an announcement will be made as to whether the newspapers will carry out the idea.

Mayor Should Appoint Unemployment Committee

About three weeks ago, a commission, appointed by Mayor Caldwell to report on the unemployment situation, recommended, among other things, that an executive committee be appointed to co-operate with public and private corporations in helping to secure employment. The commission pointed out that while the situation was not serious as yet, it was likely to assume critical shape this winter. In view of the fact that the committee even when appointed would necessarily take considerable time in getting down to business, it was felt that Mayor Caldwell's delay in making such appointments was liable to be harmful. Of course, it takes time for the right kind of a committee to be selected, but the situation demands speedy action. The Secretary has suggested to Mayor Caldwell that there be no longer delay in making his committee appointments. Let us hope that the Mayor will be able to secure a strong and effective committee to carry out the commission's ideas.

Municipal Research Bureau at Whitman

The Secretary was pleased to learn that a Municipal Research Bureau existed at Whitman College, Walla Walla, under the direction of Dr. Harrison A. Trexler. The following letter, which may be of interest to the members, was addressed by the Secretary to Dr. Trexler:

"It was with great interest that I read an article in the Oregonian last Sunday, relative to social needs of villages—but what interested me most was the fact that your name was given as the director of a Bureau of Municipal Research. I had not known of the existence of your bureau heretofore.

"The Municipal League of this city has made a serious attempt to establish a Municipal Bureau here. It has failed thus far because the money was not forthcoming. In the absence of a bureau here, I should like to establish a more intimate contact with your bureau, and would be glad to receive such reports, literature and pamphlets which you may have prepared under your direction. I am exceedingly anxious to know the scope of work your bureau has taken, and some of the things that you have accomplished in the past. I would also like to inquire whether you expect to visit Seattle in the near future, and if so, whether it would be possible for you to address the League on the work of your bureau or on the general subject of municipalities in the State of Washington.

"I would be very pleased, indeed, to place your name on our mailing list, should you indicate a desire, and send you our "Municipal News", as well as reports that we may render from time to time."

CULLED FROM THE WITT ADDRESS

The following are some of the interesting statements made by Witt at the meeting last Tuesday which were not contained in the summary of his address on the City Manager form of government which is given in another column of this paper.

* * *

People must realize that they must elect men who can do things, and not those who merely say they can do things.

* * *

Some people could not overcome the idea of having a king. Europe's kings are born; America's are made. The attitude of the American people was that the legislature must do the bidding of the "king".

(In disputes between Congress and the President).

Politics must not have anything to do with the man who cleans the streets or works in the city light department or in any other municipal department.

* * *

The greatest municipal executive in the last one hundred years was Tom Johnson of Cleveland.

* * *

Civil Service too often restrains poor men in office and keeps good men out.

* * *

The indictment of American cities must be made strong in order to attract attention.

America has negative voters instead of positive ones It is easier to use the hammer than the saw.

Some men ask (of those running for office): Is he a Catholic? Is he a Mason? Is he a Jew? Does he go to church? These questions have nothing to do with the man's qualification for office. And yet, they are difficult to meet because the men who ask these questions are not out in the open.

* * *

For sixty years the Republican and Democratic parties have bamboozled the American people with their fake fight on the tariff—one side is always "viewing with alarm", and the other is always "pointing with pride".

We have arrived at the place where we can do our own independent thinking but we have not arrived at the place where we can do collective thinking.

existing abuses. He showed how Dayton in 1913, after the great flood which devastated the city, first adopted what is now the City Manager Form of Government. A committee of fifteen men got together and put at their head the executor of the National Cash Register Co. who, in a remarkably short space of time, not only established order out of chaos, but laid the foundation for Cleveland's subsequent development. "Only one mistake was made by these men, and that is that they tried to keep the administration in the hands of a select few. This, of course, can

Speaking on proportional representations, and giving as an example the city of Cleveland, Witt stated that that city had been divided into four districts—each district electing a certain number of councilmen. "No rule is better than the rule of the majority, but in making the majority, the voice of the minority must be taken into consideration. We know that the majority abuses its power, and that a fighting intellectual, courageous minority will keep the majority in check. Let us elect to the City Council a complete cross-section of the community, and thus give the minority a chance to formulate

CIVIL SERVICE IN SEATTLE

J. Y. C. Kellogg, Civil Service Commissioner, delivered a splendid address before the Municipal League Tuesday noon, on Seattle's civil service problems.

That in the view of the civil service commission, the work is an exceedingly important one, and that this importance is little understood by the citizens of Seattle, was the opening statement made by Mr. Kellogg.

"The civil service is trying to put more efficiency in our city government; civil service is taking away municipal employments from the 'spoils system'," declared Mr. Kellogg.

Taking up first the League's civil service committee's recommendation that "when an employee be discharged, he should be placed on the eligible list with the idea of serving in another department," Mr. Kellogg said: "There is merit in the suggestion, but I have no fixed views on the subject."

The second question suggested by the League's committee was that seniority should be eliminated in civil service. The commissioner said: "Our rules provide that the qualification of seniority be given only 2½%. Thus, where a man has been in the service for twenty years, and another has been in the service for only two years—if the junior employee passes a 3% better grade than the senior employee, he wins the promotion. In my opinion, seniority percentage is a mere trifle, and a junior employee of ability has but little difficulty in overcoming that handicap."

As to the League committee's proposal that the civil service commission itself be placed under civil service he said: "I believe in it; and I believe further that heads of departments should be placed under civil service. I am opposed, however, to the city council 'picking' the civil service commissioners. I believe the mayor is the logical official to pass upon the examination."

To my mind the civil service in Seattle can be improved in the following particulars:

1. We can make our examinations more practical. The personality test, favored by some, is one of the best means of testing a man's qualifications for the job he seeks. But, in my opinion, this test may lead to serious abuses and is dangerous. It might lead to the criticism of favoritism by the commission. I believe also that we can improve our corps of examiners.

2. I believe that the commission should have a lot more power in fixing the salaries of employees. At the present time, there is a salary schedule in the city which was prepared by Dean Miller, of the School of Business Administration, the University of Washington, sometime during the past year. The commission has urged the council to a yearly or periodical revision of this schedule, and there is now a voluntary public committee at work on this matter, which will shortly report to the council. It is my hope that there will be enough public sentiment to back up the committee's recommendations.

3. An improvement could be made in the classification of positions of employment. There are, for example, at this time eight grades in the engineering service; each grade has a salary range, and there are six or seven rates of pay in each range. Under the present system employees start at the lowest rate, and advance automatically each year to the highest range. I believe that this should be changed, and that the range of salary should be based upon efficiency rather than upon the length of service.

4. In the absence of a city manager form of government for Seattle, I believe in incorporating into the civil service an efficiency engineer. It is needless to say that the civil service must make for Seattle many times over what it costs the city. I believe that an efficiency engineer would save the city many tens of thousands of dollars.

There are heads of departments who are impatient at the restraints imposed by civil service. They feel that if they could hire and fire at will, they could have a better department—but it is my opinion that before long these department heads would find that city councilmen would be directing and dictating their policies. The "spoils" system would creep in.

SEATTLE CIVIL SERVICE

To have a civil service properly administered, the law must be followed impartially. During my service on this board, not one act has been seen on the part of any member of the commission of any desire to favor anyone.
The civil service is expanding and broadening. Some of the eastern and middle western states now have state, as well as municipal, civil service.
Our civil service law was adopted in 1896. Seattle was one of the first cities to put into force civil service.

The examinations under civil service are made with the cooperation of the heads of departments. Largely the type and character of the examination is approved by them. The papers are so marked that the examiner is unable to know whose paper he is marking. After the examination, the papers are graded, and then those receiving the highest grades are placed upon the eligible list. (In this connection, permit me to say that the charter amendment giving veterans the preference is indeed a drastic amendment. Personally, I would favor giving the veteran a percentage—that is, a certain grade bonus—rather than putting the veteran at the head of the list). After the eligible list is certified, the head of the department has a choice of accepting one of the three at the head of the list. The person accepted is then given a probationary period of ninety days, at the end of which time, the head of the department can let him out, if he so wishes. While the commission has the right to checkmate the head of the department in this, as a matter of fact it does not do so; he is given free scope. If the head of the department accepts the employee at the end of the ninety days, he becomes a regular employee, and can only be discharged for "cause". A hearing must be given to the discharged employee, evidence submitted, etc.

Promotional examinations are given to men in the service—thus stimulating the desires for advancement.

With reference to the discharge of an employee by the head of the department, the commission takes the position that they will sustain the discharge upon any ground that would justify a private employer to discharge a private employee.

During the year 1920, there were 208 discharges. Out of these, 61 were entitled to investigation; of this number 24 applied for a hearing; and in 20 out of the 24 instances the head of the department was sustained. Thus showing clearly the attitude of the committee toward discharges by department heads.

Asked by Mr. Joseph Jacobs if there was any provision for demotion, the commissioner replied that there was. Further asked whether he deemed it wise to give a department head carte blanche to discharge 5 or 10% of employees in his department, the speaker replied that that would not be desirable in his opinion. The best way of reducing the number of employees, he stated, was by the city council following the recommendation of an efficiency expert or a volunteer committee.

"I believe in the city being a model employer. I believe in the pension system, if the number of employees are cut down to the bone," concluded the speaker.

SECRETARY'S COMMENTS

Meves Cafeteria is indeed proving that is a popular place for the League meetings. The attendance has been increased over that had at Blanc's Cafe, and the last two meetings have given evidence of the fact that the members consider it a pleasant, adequate and enjoyable meeting place. From all indications, it will be the League's permanent meeting place,—unless the membership expresses themselves otherwise. The committee on meeting place is particularly anxious to get the views of members on this matter, and it is hoped that this notice will induce members to communicate with the secretary and give him their ideas on the subject.

Attendance at meetings is one of the most important things in the life of an organization. With a large attendance the morale of an organization is improved, the officers are stimulated to greater activities, and committees put forth their best efforts; and then too, the effect of a committee's recommendation is strengthened in proportion to the number of people who take an interest, and express their opinion on the matter at issue. The League meetings this year have been better than they have been for the past three years. There seems to be genuine and sincere pleasure displayed by the members who attend these meetings. Old members of the League who have been lax in their attendance would be surprised and delighted with the new spirit that prevails. Why not make the effort and set aside each Tuesday noon for attendance at the League meetings. Be a League booster! Strengthen the League by your personal indication of interest.

The secretary is anxious that the "Municipal News" reach every member of the League; also that it reach the members in ample time to give them notice of the meeting. If anyone has any complaint to make in these two matters, please communicate with the secretary.

The writer asked permission of President Anderson to ascertain what proportion of the members present at last Tuesday's meeting actually read "The News". On a show of hands, nearly every member of the League present indicated that he read "The News" carefully. This was indeed welcome to the secretary, as well as to the officers and trustees of the League. It is the desire of the administration to make this little paper interesting and stimulating. Members should feel that it is their paper; that they have a right to contribute to it; that they have a right to express criticism of anything published in the paper. Communications are welcomed. It was indeed gratifying to the editorial committee to hear President Anderson's statement, at the last meeting, that he considered the "News" one of the best publications of its kind in America. "Where will you find an organization such as our publishing a better weekly paper?" Mr. Anderson's vast experience with civic organizations of the try qualify him to pass judgment. The League may be well served with his statement.

Globe Trotter Returned

Mr. Charles A. Hultin, for many years a member of the Municipal League, has just recently returned from a trip around the world. Prior to his leaving Seattle more than a year ago he informed the secretary of the League of his proposed journey, and the secretary urged him to make particular study of the various municipalities he visited, and especially with reference to their government and to the matter of solution of their various problems. Mr. Hultin, since his return, has indicated that he would accept an invitation of the League for an address, and the program committee is now planning to have him appear on the League program soon.

Efficiency Engineer for Civil Service

Mr. Kellogg's recommendation that an efficiency engineer be employed by the city and attached to the civil service commission, ought to receive serious consideration of the city council. At the annual dinner of the University of Washington, 1920, Dean Stephen I. Miller made a similar recommendation. It will be noted that Mr. Kellogg referred to Dean Miller in his address, pointing out that it was through Dean Miller's investigation that the present salary schedule was adopted by the city council. Those who were in touch with the situation at that time know it is an important and tremendous task was involved in that investigation. An efficiency engineer is the proper person to make an investigation of efficiency in municipal offices. The city council cannot do it; the Mayor cannot do it; the civil service commission cannot do it; a voluntary organization cannot do it; for none of these have either the time or the ability to do that which an efficiency engineer could do. There is no question but what an efficiency engineer could save the city hundreds of dollars over what his cost would be to Seattle. Is it not possible to convince the council that if the Municipal League gets back of its civil service committee and Mr. Kellogg, the city council of this fact? It is that this recommendation can be carried through.

Policing Cabarets

In last Sunday's newspaper the announcement was made by Chief of Police Searing that licenses for soft-drink places should be increased. Among other things, Chief Searing stated that it was costing the city of Seattle approximately $6,000.00 a year to adequately police the Alhambra Cafe, popularly known as the "Coon Cabaret", at 12th and Jackson. When this fact was called to the attention of the Board of Trustees at its last meeting, it produced, indeed, a startling effect. Vivian Carkeek volunteered to make a thorough investigation of the matter for the Board and will report to it at its next meeting.

Excluding Aliens on City Jobs

A matter which was brought up by Mr. W. R. Allen, secretary of the Association of Unemployed, was the practical impossibility under the present ordinances of the city to enforce that ordinance prohibiting the employment of aliens on public works. No machinery was provided for in the original ordinance for the enforcement of this prohibition. A League committee is now at work devising a means of compelling the city officials to publish a list of all aliens employed on city work.

UNEMPLOYMENT TO BE DISCUSSED BY LEAGUE TUESDAY

Captain J. S. Gibson, who attended the national unemployment conference at Washington and has been acting as advisor to the Mayor's committee of unemployment in Seattle, will address the League Tuesday noon on the unemployment situation in Seattle. Captain Gibson is known for his forcefulness and his entire familiarity with the subject. It is one of the most timely as well as critical problems confronting the city today. It is hoped that a large attendance will be had at this meeting.

CROSON TALKS ON COMMUNITY CHEST

Carl E. Croson, member of the school board, addressed the League briefly on the Community Chest. He urged the League to align itself with the Community Chest Fund Campaign, and actively engage in the solicitation, and in other ways "put over" the drive. He also urged the League members to enlighten the general public as to the proper public attitude towards the campaign, and to talk the matter over with "friends and neighbors". In conclusion, he urged citizens to make up their minds in advance as to how much they desired to give and what organization they cared to designate.

LOW STREET RAILWAY FARES WITH THE HELP OF THE LANDOWNER

By Louis B. Wehle
New York City

Formerly a Member, Federal Electric Railways Commission
From the National Municipal Review

Is it not in accordance with the laws of economic justice, then, that the landowner, as such, should share his benefit of increased land value with the public? Instead of the cost $7,375,000, of the Manhattan extension being borne by the owners of the land in the newly served territory, it was capitalized and translated into an annual charge of $350,000 or more, a burden which had to be borne out of the carfares and which today helps to intensify the financial predicament in which the company finds itself. If the public pays out of its fares for the cost of maintaining and operating the line which will bring the outlying landowners such enrichment, should the latter not share with the public out of that enrichment, depending upon the degree in which he is benefitted, by paying for or by helping to pay for the initial cost of construction of the line? That such a solution is just is rather significantly shown by the fact that in a number of cities, landowners in outlying districts have offered spontaneously to contribute large sums to the company to assist it in constructing certain extensions. The present predicament of the street-railway companies is in many places partly due to overbuilding, a fault traceable to political or business pressures exerted by speculators in suburban lands who had little or no financial responsibility in connection with the street-railway extensions, which they caused to be built for their immediate benefit. This action of the suburban landowners of certain cities, on the other hand, is a significant expression of enlightened self-interest and a sound, constructive recognition of a fundamental principle of justice. The establishment of that principle by law, whether by changes in city ordinances, state statutes, or state constitutions should, in our opinion, not be delayed. This thought is especially recommended to the attention of a number of communities which are now facing the necessity for extensions or rapid-transit improvements.

LARGES AID FOR JOBLESS

UNEMPLOYMENT DISCUSSED BEFORE THE LEAGUE

Captain J. S. Gibson, regional director of unemployment, addressed the Municipal League Tuesday noon on the general subject of unemployment in Seattle.

Commending the work of the Mayor's Committee on unemployment and the work carried on by the Association of Unemployed, Captain Gibson said that all efforts should be lined up in assisting these two organizations in securing employment. We must not minimize the situation. It is our problem, and it is up to us to do something," said Captain Gibson.

The speaker urged the Municipal League to offer its assistance as an organization to the Mayor. "I know you will have a large field for service and that your reward will be ample," declared Gibson. He made an appeal to all citizens to do what they could and not to wait until they were asked to do something. "Go to the Mayor's committee and volunteer your services," urged Gibson.

Captain Gibson made the announcement that he had requested Governor Hart to call a conference of all Mayors of the state for the purpose of arriving at a solution of the problem.

Captain Gibson wrote, he said, to all of the Mayors, personally asking them to make a thorough study and investigation of the conditions of unemployment in their respective cities and be able to report at this conference. A conference with the State Board of Public Works has also been arranged so as to coordinate both the efforts of the state governments and municipal governments.

The speaker called attention to the fact that Mayor Caldwell had appointed a commission to make a survey and recommendations with respect to the local situation. The report issued by the Mayor's committee was an exceedingly useful one, he declared, and has been published in reports issued by the Federal Government. The permanent committee which has been appointed by the Mayor to carry out the recommendations of the commission consists of five members. Each one is chairman and has a right to appoint such committeemen under him and such assistance as he may deem necessary.

Referring to the Washington Conference which he and Faisie, a member of the Municipal League, attended in Washington, Captain Gibson said in part: I attribute the honor of being a conferee of the unemployment conference by reason of the fact that I am president of a water front organization of employers which has the distinction of working in harmony, by agreement, with its employees. Previous to the Washington conference I had kept the department commission pretty well informed as to what we were doing. Apparently they thought it of considerable importance.

"While I am not an expert (I am not an expert in anything) I had considerable experience in employment matters and I am proud to say that under the system in use in our organization at present we are approaching 100 per cent efficiency. We have reduced the number of accidents by 60 per cent, and we have provided a system whereby casual labor is getting a square deal.

"On arriving at Washington, we listened to a brief address of the President. The outstanding warning being not to dip into the public treasury. Secretary Hoover also emphasized this in his address. At first we thought that the government was only to contribute its moral support in the solution of the unemployment problem. Afterwards, however, we found that what the President and Hoover had meant was that the government was not to participate in any financial doles. The government, it was soon discovered, was willing to assist in the solution of the problem by carrying on certain public works which would afford employment to thousands of men. Secretary Hoover then appointed his committees and the meeting

MAYOR'S VETOES LOSE

COUNCIL OVERRIDES ON TWO IMPORTANT MEASURES

Two important vetoes of Mayor Hugh M. Caldwell were overridden by the City Council Monday afternoon, one an ordinance providing for the remuneration of Peter Witt for his survey of the Municipal Street Railway, the other providing for a bond issue of $680,000 for track renewals on First Avenue and other railway betterments.

The Witt ordinance was passed notwithstanding the mayor's disapproval by a vote of seven to one in the Council, only Councilman Robert B. Hesketh dissenting. It sets aside $8,400 for Mr. Witt's pay at $1,000 a week and his expense.

The First Avenue trackage bond ordinance was adopted unanimously. It would provide also for the purchase of 25 new street cars, and for the purchase of the Greenwood Avenue car line in Ballard from the Western Washington Power Company.

The Council also passed an emergency ordinance, authorizing Corporation Counsel Walter F. Meier, to bring injunction proceedings in Superior Court against the Sound Transit Company to prevent operation of the Cowen Park jitney. This will have to be signed by the mayor before it can become a law, being an emergency bill.

Councilman Philip Tindall introduced two ordinances designed to prohibit the business of so-called "temporary" merchants, and providing that merchants who advertise bankrupt sales must file a sworn statement with the city comptroller showing whether the sale is being conducted by order of a court.

Councilman A. Lou Cohen's resolution, directing the Board of Public Works to stop construction of a railway trestle across the Oregon & Washington Railroad's Argo freight yards, was postponed one week.

DISCUS UNEMPLOYMENT

was dismissed. The committee met and organized. Soon it was found that permanent and emergency relief would conflict, and so Secretary Hoover called for the emergency relief committee report first (there was considerable conflict in the committee over recommendations of permanent relief.)

"The crux of the report on emergency relief was the responsibility must be placed for the care of the unemployed where it could be most quickly handled; that unemployment was primarily a civic problem; that relief for the unemployed should be directed in the various states by the governor, and in the cities, through the Mayor.

"This report was given immediate publicity all through the country, and as a response to it the Mayors of the large cities of the country assumed immediate direction.

"We tried as best we could to get certain reclamation projects started by the government, as well as certain other public works, but appropriations for these works had to be made by Congress, and Congress has been hounded to death to reduce taxation. And consequently, our efforts have thus far met with but little result. However, we expect very shortly to get the government started on reclamation projects in this state—the building of highways; and to get the general public interested in the building of houses."

UNION RECORD CALLS LEAGUE MEETING A FIZZLE

The Union Record characterized the League's weekly Tuesday meeting a "fizzle" in a headline clear across its first page of Tuesday's street edition. The following article appeared and is reprinted in full:

FIZZLE

Startling evidence of Seattle's adherence to the principles of unionism was brought out at noon Tuesday at Meves cafeteria when less than a score of members turned out to the weekly luncheon of the Municipal league.

Claude H. Anderson, league president, apologized to those present and declared that "This is the smallest attendance since we have been meeting at Meves."

Omitting any reference to the fact that Meves cafeteria is one of the group of eating houses unfair to the workers, Anderson chose to ascribe the small attendance to the Community Chest campaign.

While the meeting was under way, locked out waitresses sold regular editions of the Union Record on the streets outside—editions containing a half-page section setting forth the fact that Meves cafeteria is unfair and has locked out its union employees.

Capt. J. S. Gibson, regional director of unemployment, who was recently appointed to that post following President Harding's unemployment conference in Washington, D. C., was the speaker. Unemployment was stalking through the land while the machinery of government cumbrously tried to get into action with remedial work on reclamation projects, he said.

Capt. Gibson, who is the presiding officer of an organization of waterfront employers, said that "we have a lot of unemployed here that is undesirable and a menace."

The leaguers were also asked to "Think of the poor devil on the street that cannot buy a piece of bread such as we would throw away." The speaker saw no immediate help for the unemployment except through the assistance of individuals.

Tuesday's attendance, at Meves cafeteria, was in striking contrast to the crowded tables that formerly faced speakers at the weekly luncheons of the organization. Frequently it has been almost impossible for late comers to find seats among the large crowds that customarily turn out to discuss municipal problems.

THE PUBLIC UTILITY COMMITTEE WILL HAVE CHARGE OF TUESDAY'S MEETING

In line with the policy of the League to allow each committee to be responsible for, and to present at least one program during the course of the year, the Public Utilities Committee of the Municipal League, headed by Robert Howes, will have complete charge of Tuesday's program. Several important matters relating to transportation and other public utility problems have been referred to this committee by the Board of Trustees, and it is understood that the committee will avail itself of this opportunity to report upon the matters to the membership.

REPORT ON "EXTRAS"

President Claude H. Anderson, Municipal League, Seattle, Washington.

Dear Sir:

At the request of the Board of Trustees, I made an investigation, as chairman of the Budget Committee, of the statement that payment of extras on local improvement contracts was being made by the city in bonds at cost plus 25 per cent.

I find that there has been a universal rule in the letting of such contracts by the Board of Public Works to allow cost plus 12 per cent for such extra work as the Engineer's Department required the contractor to do; that the extras on all local improvement contracts are very slight, probably not amounting to more than one or two per cent in the average; that the contractor has to use his tools, equipment, force and overhead, and that he is likely in many cases, to lose money at this rate even when paid in cash.

Sometime ago when the bond market was so low that good bonds could be obtained ordinarily yielding as high as 8 per cent it was inevitable that the contractors would lose from 10 to 15 per cent or more of the money they are supposed to receive for these extras when paid for these local improvement bonds which draw interest at 6 per cent. The Engineering Department, therefore, worked out a schedule of rates of extra payment in bonds, in addition to the 12 per cent, to be applied according to the rise and fall in the bond market—ranging from about 13 per cent when bonds are selling at the lowest, gradually down to nothing as the approach par.

This seems to me very reasonable, and that there is no abuse being practiced here.

Respectfully submitted,
J. L. BALDWIN
Chairman Budget Committee

HOT SHOT FROM MR. BLACKWELL AND A REPLY FROM MR. WIENIR.

I have been reading the News very carefully lately as well as the Seattle Spirit, the organ of the Chamber of Commerce, and several other publications of like nature, to determine, if possible, the object of such publication and how satisfactorily they accomplish their purpose.

In the main they seem to be bulletins of the activities of their respective organizations, having but little of interest to those outside, and often, I am afraid, to those inside.

Confining my remarks to the Municipal News, and bearing in mind that it is easier to criticize than to construct, and that the most helpful article, just as physics, may not be pleasant to take, will offer a few suggestions.

The name "Municipal News" implies that it gives the news concerning the doings of the municipality, and we no longer publish that table showing how the city councilmen vote; it is true we take up certain questions that occupy the public attention, and study them. Often they are reported upon by professional men as able as any in the country, who give thousands of dollars worth of service to them, but such articles have little place outside of the technical journals. When we get away from the stiff technical strain, we swing to the usual newspaper stuff of flattering ourselves, and being popular by telling each other what we want to hear, whether it be for our good or not.

In view of the name of our paper, it would seem that we should give at least an epitome of the doings of our city government, and possibly also of the county commissioners.

We should endeavor to feature short, pithy comments somewhat in the nature of editorials, on various phases of the city and contributed at times in the past by W. Catlett, Geo. B. Littlefield and Judge A. E. Griffiths. In such articles it should be borne in mind that it is the man's opinion clearly stated, rather than the long, laborious and often-times tedious methods by which he reaches his conclusions.

We should have a mission, possibly platform would be a better word, that should be our first aim, and on which we should continuously work. So often those contributing services in committee work are bitterly disappointed to have reports on which they have worked for months, disposed of in less than five minutes without comment, and raked off into the dead ashes of the past. The lengthening years of participation in the work of civic organizations more and more forcibly call to my attention the similarity of action of most civic organizations to that of the young fox hounds of my fox hunting days. These young dogs went forth fired with an ambition to tackle anything up to an elephant in size, but would not have a clear conception of just what they wanted to do, they would bolt off after the first hot trail they ran across, which they would follow until it crossed a hotter one of some other kind, when the first would be dropped and the latter pursued with the result that at the end of the hunt the dogs were worn out, and they had accomplished nothing.

We probably expect too much from our civic journals for what we pay, but why continue something that is a drag, especially when it takes time and money that might be better expended otherwise. I believe the negro parson's advice about the drinking of rum could be applicable to the publication of most civic journals. "Don't drink rum, but if you do, drink good rum."

Yours very respectfully,

J. D. BLACKWELL

Secretary's note:) Mr. Blackwell's letter is fine and to the point. Would that we had many others of a similar character from members and others interested in the Municipal League. It is constructive criticism that makes any person or organization. One of the first essentials is to know your weakness; that is half the battle. The other half is to go out and do it.

But let us see if all of Mr. Blackwell's criticisms are well founded. He complains that the "News" does not really give us the news concerning municipal matters; that we confine our comments more upon the activities of the organization. In the space allotted practically nothing other than civic and club news is published. The weekly address is reported as nearly in full as it is possible and necessary; the weekly meeting of board of trustees is "covered" as well as other items which the editors deem to be of interest to the members; the important occurrences of the week in the council are commented on; occasionally news of other cities is given. The high spots in the civic life of the city, we think, is published in the "News" from week to week.

Mr. Blackwell bitterly complains that so frequently valuable of quickly by the membership committee reports are disposed "and raked off in the dead ashes of the past". But is this complaint justified? Is it true that there have been many splendid and thorough reports made in the League which have received but scant attention on the part of the general public. But whose fault is it? Under the present system if a newspaper or group of newspapers do not deem a certain report "desirable" for publication in the waste basket it goes. If it is in line with the newspaper's ideas or policies it is featured in headlines a foot high. And there you are! Not receiving proper publicity naturally a report is ineffective.

Not all reports are treated in this manner however. And not all reports that fail to receive publicity are entirely ineffective. It is exceedingly important that certain of our public officials who stand up for that which they believe to be right know that there is an organization that is backing up their action and giving them moral support; and it is, as well, important that the other kind of official know that there is an organization on the job which may, at any time, investigate his conduct and make public their findings.

"We should have a mission, possibly platform would be a better word, that should be our first aim, and on which we should continuously work," writes Mr. Blackwell. Have we not such a mission and such a platform. Is not our mission to further better government for Seattle? And has not the league, this year, adopted a platform calling for the city manager form of government and for a municipal research bureau? Have not we tried our level best to get these two things through? And are we not continuing our efforts with that object in view? That we have not, thus far, succeeded is not saying that we will not; and neither is it, necessarily, our fault. A great deal of work yet remains to be done. Public sentiment must first be molded, and this is exceedingly difficult to do unless we can express ourselves in greater volume. And that brings me to the real point.

The trouble is not that we don't know that we (the League, I mean) want; it is rather that we haven't the power to put it "across". And I am afraid that we shan't be able to accomplish our mission unless the rank and file of the "common people" come over and work and think with us. But even if they don't, organizations like ours are the "still small voice" of the community speaking out from time to time. Good will triumph over indifference as well as over evil!

Organs like the "News" if they help to stimulate even a little bit the members are worth while. Of course they cost a little money—but only a little. And even a poor organ of this kind, to my mind, is worth the time and the money. It's up to you and to others like you to make it better than it is; for after all, it is your paper. We do not have a high salaried editorial writer. It can not all be left to one man. But if men of the type of Mr. Blackwell and scores of others who are sympathetic to the cause of good government will help out a little bit, this paper and the organization which it represents would be better and stronger.

Some would rather sleep on than wake up and find themselves famous.

WITT REPORTS TO CITY COUNCIL

CITY COUNCIL AND THE BOND ISSUE

By Eimon L. Wienir

The two outstanding features of municipal government in Seattle during the past week are Mayor Witt's report to the City Council last Monday, and the passage of the $2,000,000 bond issue by the Council on Wednesday.

Mr. Witt's proposal to junk a great deal of the rolling stock of the Municipal Railway and to once invest several million dollars in new modern cars and motors and replace the present outstanding bonds with a new issue of 25 years duration (no payments on the principal to be made for ten years), has already met considerable opposition from the newspapers as well as from the general public. Seattle has too recently been stung by the street car deal to think of throwing more money into the pot. To my mind, the public is altogether unwilling to accept the condition that Seattle must henceforth be saddled with a white elephant and be forced to pay a high rate of carfare

Californians Knock Necessity Certificate

Mr. James A. Haight, who has recently returned from an extended visit to California, reported at the last meeting of the League that the people of California are now trying to do away with the Certificate of Necessity, an initiative amendment to the Constitution. The private companies which are particularly strong in California will try to corral all of the 7,000,000 horse-power hydro electric water power development, and thus practically control developments in the state.

Mr. Howes also reported the fact that the city of Los Angeles has recently had a most interesting exhibit of all the various utilities owned by that city, and that in this way the residents of Los Angeles got a splendid idea of the enterprises in which the city was engaged.

In line with this suggestion, the Board of Trustees have directed the Program Committee to make a study and investigation of the benefits to be derived by Seattle from a similar exhibit. Howard A. Adams who is chairman of that committee has promised to make an early report on this matter.

League to Meet at Masonic Club Rooms

Owing to the interest and the importance of the visit of John T. Pratt, Chairman of the National Budget Committee and spokesman for General Dawes, the Municipal League has joined with other civic organizations in welcoming to Seattle the distinguished guest. There will be, therefore, no meeting at Meves Cafeteria, but instead the League will meet at the Masonic Club Rooms in the Arcade Building.

Public sentiment is so thoroughly aroused against national taxation burdens that it is not unlikely that in the future constituents will ask their congressman "How much did you save your country this session?" not "How much of an appropriation did you get your district?" said S. H. Howe, director of the national budget commission of New York City, who arrived in Seattle yesterday to make preliminary arrangements for the address to be given next Tuesday by John T. Pratt. Pratt comes as the representative of Gen. Dawes, who has been named director of the federal budget system.

Mr. Pratt, a prominent New

FIVE CENT FARE IMPRACTICABLE

League Committee Says It Cannot Be Done

That the five cent fare is inadequate to meet operating costs, maintenance, interest and bond payments, was the conclusion reached by Robert Howes, chairman of the League's Public Utilities committee at last Tuesday's weekly meeting.

Having before him the reports from the City Comptroller, as well as from the State Bureau of Accountancy, showing the revenue derived from the operation of the Municipal Railway up to the first of September of this year; and after reading and analyzing some of the figures presented in these reports, Mr. Howes produced a chart upon which was traced graphically the lines representing increase and decrease of the number of passengers since April, 1919, the date when the city acquired possession of the railways. His chart showed that on that date the city had an average of 275,000 paid passengers per day; and that the maximum number of passengers per day was reached in the months of September and December of that year when 300,-

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

000 passengers per day were carried. In February, 1920, due undoubtedly to the closing of the shipyards, the number of passengers dropped to 268,000. This, under the 5 cent fare.

When the 6½ cent fare became effective on July 24, 1920, there was a direct and instantaneous drop of 9½ per cent.

And when the 81-3 cent fare became effective on Jan. 9, 1921, there was another drop of 12 per cent. And since that date the number of passengers carried per day dropped about 8 per cent until now there is an average of 200,000 passengers being carried per day.

Under the 81-3 cent fare, as shown by the reports of the Bureau of Accountancy, the road is just about paying its way. There was at the end of August 31, 1921, a $61,000 surplus exclusive of the amount necessary for the retirement of the bonds. At the end of the period of operation under the 5 cent fare there was a deficit of $1,750,000. Under the existing fare, there was carried during the first eight months of operation, 50,200,000 paid passengers, and we can safely estimate that the roads will carry approximately 75,000,000 passengers for the entire year. The revenue based upon these figures would then be $240,000.

Now, if the city should get back the 25 per cent of passengers which dropped as a result of the increase of fare and decrease in the city's business, we would then have 92,752,000 paid passengers, which at a five cent fare would bring in a revenue of $4,730,000. This would result in a direct loss in the operation of the roads in the sum of $1,600,000.

Now, under the basis of a five cent fare and 81-3 cents for transfer privilege, it has been definitely established that 26½ per cent of the fares paid require a transfer privilege---there would be approximately 19,500,000 81-3 cent fares paid; netting an increase of revenue of $650,000. But the net loss to the railways would still be $960,000; and when you add this fact: that the additional cost of carrying another 50,000 passengers per day would result in an additional operating expense of $500,000, or one third of the revenue, it must readily be seen that our loss will be well over the million mark.

The reports show that on August 31, 1921, there was a deficit (accumulated from operation under the 5 cent fare) of $1,753,000. During that period of time the depreciation charged off totals $1,615,000, showing that there was another deficit, not counting the depreciation of $138,000.

Thus, if nothing is charged off for depreciation, the revenues are about sufficient to carry through the contract with the Stone & Webster Company. This, of course, does not take into consideration that the city is not paying any of the taxes and other revenue that formerly was paid by the private company.

Thus, if under the 5 cent fare with approximately 275,000 to 300,000 passengers carried per day, there was a deficit piled up of over $1,000,000, what is there, if we go back to the 5 cent fare, to prevent another deficit being accumulated? It is true that the elimination of the Jitneys will increase the number of passengers, but one must take into account that the number of passengers carried per day is approximately 200,000 -- granted that there will be an increase of 100,000 passengers due to the elimination of Jitneys, and still we would not be better off than we were in April, 1919. Thus, my conclusion is squarely that the 5 cent fare cannot possibly pay the way.

Another curious thing is that in 1919 there were approximately 100,000 "dead heads" carried per month. In August, 1921, there were 164,000 "dead heads" carried per month; thus showing that while the number of passengers decreased, the number of "dead heads" increased, there being 2.6 times as many "dead heads" carried this year as were carried in 1919.

At the conclusion of Mr. Howe's address, questions were asked him from the floor to determine whether or not it was necessary to charge off the sum of $1,650,000 for depreciation since hundreds of thousands of dollars had been spent for maintainance. Mr. Howes then explained the difference between depreciation, obsolescence, and maintainance.

"These three items of book-keeping are not easily understood, said Mr. Howes: 1. Maintainance is that expenditure which keeps a utility in operation; maintainance is never used for the purchase of new equipment, but is solely for the making of repairs. 2. Depreciation is a fund written off from year to year on the books which is chargeable directly to wear and tear of the utility. 3. Obsolescence is an item which should be deposited into a sinking fund, drawing interest for the purpose of being available when the utility is worn, to re-build and replace the utility."

If the entire equipment can be maintained in the same condition throughout, then the sum charged off for depreciation can be used for rebuilding the utility and for paying off the bonded debt. Unfortunately, however, this can not be done for, at the end of a given period of time the utility is practically worthless and must be scrapped. The $680,000 bond issue recently passed by the Council, itself shows that the utility must go outside of itself in order to create a maintainance fund.

PETER WITT'S REPORT

for many years to come. Somehow there is a lurking impression that before long it will be found that no matter what rate of fare is charged by the authorities, it will be inadequate to meet the obligation of the contract with the private company and then, according to this prevailing opinion, the lines would be returned to the private company. Of course, in the meantime the city would have lost a great deal of money, but this in popular opinion, would not be as bad as being permanently tied down to the contract.

And then again those who have been using Seattle street cars are not convinced that such a large proportion of the rolling stock should be junked. While it is true that our cars may not compare with some of the later types of cars being used in other cities nevertheless they have and are still giving excellent service. There has been, to my notion, but little complaint on the matter of the type or character of cars used. The complaint has been largely as to the rate of fare charged.

All along, Mayor Caldwell has been opposed to the extension of the time of the meeting of the obligation, and to my mind the largest element of the problem has supported the Mayor's contention. It has long been recognized that the utility will be practically worthless at the end of thirty years. In seventeen years remaining will just cover the natural life of the utility -- thirteen years of life having been passed in the hands of the private company. Why, then, should Seattle made to live with a worn-out, years after its usefulness has out-of-date utility eight or ten years passed? It would hamper the city's growth and would be a heavy burden upon the taxpayers. Moreover, thus extending the time of the payment of the bonds would increase the value of the bonds already issued. It is understood that at the present time these bonds are worth but 50 cents on the dollar. Changing the contract at this time by extending the bonds for a period of eight years will enhance the value considerably. This, public opinion does not sanction on the ground that the city has already over-paid the private company, and disregarding any element of fraud perpetrated on the city, our people are not willing to see the private company gain any more than they already have on such modification of the contract.

Mr. Witt's first report, then, is exceedingly unpopular, and even if the changes he recommends must be made, it will require more popular approval than exists to impress the law-making body of the city to carry out his suggestions. This, to my mind, can not be accomplished at present.

The passing of the ordinance authorizing the sale of $2,000,000 worth of Water bonds of the city of Seattle to three bonding companies without the usual advertisements and notice, has also called forth a storm of adverse criticism.

Just why the Council should have made the sale as it did can only be explained by the fact that it deemed the offer such an advantageous one, and was so afraid of its being withdrawn, that it regarded prompt action necessary. But even so, we fail to understand why Superintendent Youngs of the Water Department was not consulted, and neither can we understand why Mayor Caldwell was not advised of the proposed action of the Council. True it is, that legally the Council had the right to pass the ordinance without consulting either the Mayor or the Superintendent of the Water Department, but surely there is no moral justification for not making their views into consideration, especially when both officials were in their offices and available at the convenience of the Council.

The present bond market is exceedingly favorable to the purchase and sale of such securities. Money has become much freer during the last few months, and big bond buyers everywhere are grabbing up as soon as they can tax-free bonds. Rates of interest on such bonds are gradually being reduced until today as low as 4½ per cent is being paid on bonds no better than the present issue. Furthermore, if this money is not actually needed until March, there is a very good chance of the bonds being sold at an even less rate of interest than similar bonds that are being offered for on the market at the present time.

All in all, it strikes us that the Council was too hasty in jumping at this offer. There is no implication of graft on the part of the Council, but there is an implication that the Council does not understand the bond market. This is not to its discredit particularly under the present system, for the Council cannot know everything. It merely adds another point in favor of having a city manager -- someone who is an expert in financial matters and can deal with them accordingly, to the best advantage of the city.

TAX REDUCTION COUNCIL SCANS PORT'S AFFAIRS

Charging that the engineering department of the port of Seattle is grossly mismanaged and that 20 per cent of the revenues earned by the port commission are applied to the payroll of this department alone, which "should be cut to a minimum of an engineer, draftsman, and stenographer," the Seattle Tax Reduction Council adopted eleven recommendations to lessen the tax burden by reduction of expenditures and increase of revenues that would result in an annual saving of $150,347.

After a heated argument involving the principal of municipal ownership of a manufacturing and retail enterprise the council adopted a recommendation urging the state legislature to pass a law enabling the present ice manufacturing plant of this port to run to full, instead of half, capacity, and sell its surplus product commercially, thus adding an estimated revenue of $50,000 to $60,000 to the annual income of the port.

Changes Advised

Among other innovations proposed by the council the following were recommended:

The three port commissioners act as board of directors under one competent traffic manager, the traffic department to arrive at tariffs on net earnings over cost per square foot instead of present hit and miss methods.

That the position of fire marshal, employment director and entertainer be abolished.

That the purchasing department force be reduced to one man, and finally abolished, as soon as present stores and supplies can be disposed of.

That the manager be compelled to keep the amount paid in salaries and the number of employees down to a like amount and number paid by similar private industries.

Operation of the Spokane, Hanford and Stacy Street Terminals as one, to economize on the number employed.

Finances Summarized

The council also suggested that attention of the port commission be drawn to the fact that credit of the port is being impaired by market price of port bonds, selling at 70 cents on the dollar.

Summing up, the committee, on whose findings the recommendations are based, gives the following figures on the financial status of the port during the eight months starting January 1, and up to August 31, 1921:

Total assets, liquid, fixed and deferred, $10,607,844.36. Total liabilities, consisting of total accounts payable, $8,195,870.70, and surplus of $2,411,973.66. Net loss to Port of Seattle during eight month period, $203,166.93.

The committee consisted of Capt. O. A. Johansen, Capt. Henry R. James and A. T. Roberts, formerly auditor for the shipping board.

The following members of the council were unanimously elected as members of the executive committee: Mrs. Geo. Adrian Smith, Reuben Hill and L. C. Stevenson.

REPORT OF CITIZENS COMMITTEE ON REVISION OF SALARIES

by Eimon L. Wienir, Secretary of the League.

Every member of the League who is interested in an equitable revision of city employes should attend the meeting of the city council at its chambers Monday afternoon, December 5th. Yesterday, the finance committee of the council met to consider the report of the citizen's committee and at the conclusion of the meeting announced that it would take the matter under advisement and report to the council Monday when the matter would be disposed of.

City employes and taxpayers packed the council chambers Friday afternoon to listen to the arguments in favor of and against the report. City employes constituted the largest element of the lobby and these applauded, hooted, jeered and hissed as occasion presented itself. The few citizens who spoke in favor of giving the report consideration were interrupted, laughed at, jeered and hissed. It was a disgusting demonstration of the power of the city-hall crowd.

Representing the Municipal League were J. L. Baldwin, chairman of the budget committee, Dr. E. C. Kilbourne, Robert Sandall, Fred W. Bert, Jr.,

and the writer. The first two men mentioned spoke briefly urging the committee to, at least, meet with the citizen's committee and with the civil service commission and spend an evening or two in going over the report.

Representing the city employes was a paid lawyer who spoke for more than an hour in a slurious attack upon the members of the committee. William Short, president of the State Federation of Labor, addressed the council at length. His chief argument was that the city should not be guided by what private employers paid to their employes, nor should it be guided by what other cities in the country were paying their employes. The city should pay a wage that would enable a family of five to live according to the American standard, he argued. Since the city was not engaged in business to make profits it could entirely disregard all other standards argued Short. He also attributed the present hard times in the country to the "conspiracy" on the part of certain industrial corporations and big business to lower wages.

Feeling that the Citizens' Committee report had received but scant attention on the part of the Finance Committee of the City Council, J. L. Baldwin, chairman of the League's Budget Committee, called a meeting of his committee concurrently with the calling of the Board of Trustees of the League at Meves Cafeteria, Thursday afternoon. This meeting was also attended by J. Y. C. Kellogg of the Civil Service Commission and R. C. Erskine and Anna M. Brueggerhoff of the Salary Revision Committee, who outlined the inception of the idea and the character of the work that has been done by the committee.

The history of the Salary Revision Committee dates back to 1918, when Dean Stephen I. Miller of the University of Washington was requested by the City Council to make a thorough study of the salary schedule and report back to it. and his recommendations were adopted by the Council, taking effect on the first of January, 1919.

In July 1920 the City Council passed a resolution reciting that This was done by Dean Miller, conditions had changed and there were inequalities in the salaries of different positions, and requested the Civil Service Commission to make a reclassification of positions and salaries they would recommend for each position, and report back by Nov. 15th. The Commission reported back in September that they had requested a committee of citizens to make a thorough investigation and revision of proposed salaries, but that there would not be time to make a reclassification this year.

The commission then, after considerable effort, succeeded in inducing the present salary revision committee to accept appointments—these are: H. C. Mason, Anna Marie Brueggerhoff, Chas. Clise, John A. Carter, and R. C. Erskine. It was the Commission's intention at that time to sit in with this committee and thus have the report, which would be rendered, a joint report of the Civil Service Commission and Citizens' Committee.

Prior to beginning their work, this Citizens' Committee inquired of the Civil Service Commission as to what effect their recommendations would have upon the City Council. A meeting was then arranged between this committee and the Finance Committee of the City Council. In substance what transpired was this: the committee said, "Here we are. You know we have been appointed. We don't want our work to be in vain. If you object to the personnel of this committee, object to it now, and we will get off the committee. We must also have authority to make increases as well as decreases in the salaries as we are not primarily a tax reduction body. We are going to seek evidence and be bound by it. Another thing, if our report is made within the time you require, will you have time to reconsider it in order to make it operate for the year 1922?"

The Finance Committee of the Council then highly praised the personnel of the committee and stated that they would authorize this committee to make a revision—whether it be up or down made no difference—and that if the report was made by November 15th, there would be ample time on the part of the Council to fully consider the report. And furthermore, that the report would receive the earnest consideration on the part of the committee. The Council then passed a resolution providing for authority to the committee to proceed with its work.

In pursuance of this general understanding between the committee and the Finance Committee of the City Council, the Citizens' Committee proceeded with its work; and, as shown in its report, they held 36 meetings, each meeting lasting from three to four hours. Every member of that committee sacrificed his own convenience, comfort, and business, and devoted to the work of the committee a tremendous amount of personal attention. Correspondence was carried on with every city in the United States approximating the size of Seattle, inquiring as to salaries paid its employees. Private employers in this city were called upon gave confidential reports as to salaries. Babson's Statistical Organization, Bradstreet's and Dun's commercial agencies were consulted; also individual investigations were made on the part of the committee.

As a result of these investigations, the committee rendered its report, favoring the decrease in the total of salaries aggregating from 10 to 13 per cent from the old "Miller" schedules. This report was filed within the time specified by the resolution—November 15th,—and was on Nov. 21st referred by the Council to the Finance Committee.

The Finance Committee, in its deliberations on November 25th, in substance declared as follows: "We can't consider this report because we haven't got the time. It would surely take us 36 meetings (the number of meetings held by the committee) to go over it, and by that time it would be too late to make it effective for 1922. However, we will send it back to the Civil Service Commission with the recommendation that the committee study the matter further and have it available in time for the fixing of the 1922 salary schedule." Upon severe protest being made by Mr. Kellogg, the Council voted to refer the matter to the Council for consideration in committee of the whole. The Council on Nov. 28th refused to consider it in committee of the whole, but referred it back to the Finance Committee.

This attitude of the Finance Committee towards the report has aroused public opinion to a very marked extent, for it indicated plainly that the Finance Committee and the Council are playing politics first and considering public business afterwards. The crowd at the City Hall is well organized—union labor is organized, and these are exerting every influence possible to prevent the Council from cutting a nickel off the salary rolls.

The proposition, as one councilman expressed it, is "too hot" to handle. Too many voters think the Council will be offended—at least too many organized voters. The Municipal League and nearly every other citizens' agency is behind the voluntary committee's report. Not merely because it will mean the saving of nearly one-half million dollars, but because the rate of wages as fixed in this revision is fair to the employees and fair to the city. For example, in Class "B", a Telephone Exchange Operator will receive a salary of $85 minimum and $115 maximum. A Bookkeeper in Grade 4 of this class will receive $145 minimum and $165 maximum. In class "C", for example, a Motorcycle Patrolman will receive $125 minimum and $145 maximum. And in class "D", the Fire Service, the lowest Grade will receive $110 minimum to $145 maximum. In class "G", for example, the Inspection Service, the range is from $125 maximum in Grade 1, to $250 maximum in Grade 5. The Class "I", Labor Service, the maximum in the 1st Group is $105. Common labor is to receive $4.25 per day. In Class "K", Transportation Service, Motormen, Conductors, etc., receive a minimum of $0.51 and a maximum of $0.58 per hour.

These new schedules are in every instance fair to the employee. They are in every case higher than the average wage paid by private employers to their employees, and as high, if not higher, than the average salary paid in other cities of similar size to Seattle. Being a composite report, extreme points of view were reconciled. One member of the committee, for example, standing for the principle that no matter what salaries are paid by private employers and by other cities, the sole question to be determined was whether a living wage was paid to the employees of our city. As one member of the committee said, the policy was finally adopted that the city should be an ideal employer of labor and the ideal was to make the city's wages comparable to those on the outside. Though, of course, the city was not a welfare society nor a distributor of funds in community chest.

The report, in the opinion of the Board of Trustees of the League and the Budget Committee, was eminently fair. In fact the Council itself must recognize the fairness of this report; for the committee which brought it in consisted of members directly approved by its Finance Committee.

What the Budget Committee aiming to do now is to get the Finance Committee of the Council to meet jointly with the Civil Service Commissioners and with the Citizens' Committee and over this report carefully with them. Changes, of course, may be suggested and may be made but in any event the Council must give the report the serious consideration which it deserves and not throw it into the waste paper basket. Furthermore, the policy of an annual revision of salaries should be laid down and adhered to. If this report sent back to the Civil Service Commission for further consideration and not acted upon in time to make it effective for 1922, then the work that this committee has put into this report is worthless; and it will be impossible hereafter to get a citizens' committee to devote the arduous for which this committee detected, again.

In order to make effective consideration of this report by the Council, a committee of three was appointed by the Board of trustees to interview the editors of the newspapers with the object of giving more publicity to the report. Mr. Baldwin of the Budget Committee, Mr. Paul
 Dick, and the writer were appointed. These interviewed Col-lee Blethen of the Times, and
 J. H. Nicholas, the editor of the West-Intelligencer, and secured promises of aid in bringing the facts to the attention of the public. This committee has also called upon a number of influential members of the League to be present at Friday's meeting and bring whatever pressure they could upon the committee of the Council. The Chamber of Commerce, the Tax Reduction Council, the Voters' Information League, and numerous other citizen organizations will be represented at this hearing and will fight for a thorough consideration of the report.

The Council must be made to realize once and for all that they must act in accordance with the best interests of the city and independent of whether it affects any particular group or not. The vast majority of the tax-payers of this city are suffering from the burden of taxation as they have not suffered in years. To a large extent this burden has been increased by increase of wages due to war conditions. While these conditions have not entirely disappeared, nevertheless, beneficial changes have resulted. The cost of living has gone down considerably. It is not necessary now to pay the premium for labor that was paid during the war. Private corporations have cut wages all along the line. Why, then, should not the city effect reductions? The people who pay the taxes are largely the same type of people who are the city employees. The bulk of them are small home owners to whom a reduction of taxation will mean just as much, if not more, as a failure to reduce wages will mean to the city employees. Why should city employment be a soft job, and city employees get more money than they could if they tried to get a job elsewhere?

If the new salary revisions were wage which is paid in private industries, city employees might have the right to complain. They could then say that the city is made lower than the average not following its policy of being an ideal employer of labor. But when the city pays its lowest wages higher than the average wage paid in private industries for the same kind of work, then there can be no such room for complaint. The thing for the city employees to do is to recognize the fact that they are being treated fairly, and moreover, the thing for the City Council to do is to realize this fact and, whether the employees recognize it or not, act accordingly.

The following is the resolution of the council and the first part of the committee's report:-

RESOLUTION NO. 6838

Whereas, the working out of a proper classification scheme on which to base the salaries of municipal employes can only be accomplished through experience and the knowledge gained by a various city departments and the duties and responsibilities of the employes thereof; and

Whereas, investigations and the study made since the adoption of previous salary schedules by department heads and the Civil Service Commission have shown the necessity for a revision of salary schedules for the purpose of eliminating inconsistencies and faults apparent in former schedules;

Now Therefore,

Be it resolved by the City Council of the City of Seattle:

That the Civil Service Commission be requested to furnish the city Council, not later than November 15, 1921, with a complete and comprehensive classification of positions of city employes, with the commission's recommendations as to the salaries that should attach to the various classifications and grades, so that the same may be available for the information of the City Council in the preparation of the salary ordinance for 1922.

Passed the City Council the 25th day of July, 1921, and signed by me in open session in authentication of its passage this 25th day of July, 1921.

Seattle, November 14, 1921.
 Honorable Civil Service Commission,
 Seattle.

Dear Sirs:—

The undersigned, being all of the member of the Committee appointed by you to prepare a revised salary schedule for the City of Seattle for the year 1922 as requested by the Honorable City Council, beg leave to report as follows:

Our Committee has held thirty-six meetings. At the outset we held a joint meeting with the Finance Committee of the City Council and Your Honorable Body, being then assured of co-operation, and also that increases as well as decreases can be made effective by action taken after this report is received. We sought and secured three lines of information:

1. Cost of living data.
2. Salaries paid by American cities of between 200,00 and 600,000 population.
3. Salaries and wages received by those in private employment in Seattle, and in some cases in other cities, in positions comparable with Seattle municipal positions.

While this data was coming in we held three public hearings in the City Council chamber and invited conferences with heads of representatives of employes and others possessed of information along the line of our inquiry.

Having all available data and opinion at hand, we proceeded to consider each position with great care. In some instances the suggested rates represent the composite opinion of the members of the Committee, but in most instances the rates represent our unanimous opinion.

Though the subject of classification, and also that of the appropriation and necessary number of employes are given tasks, closely intermingle with that of salary schedule, we are reporting on salary schedule only, as a salary schedule was all that we were asked to prepare.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Salary Revision Committee

SALARY SCHEDULE FOR 1922

As Proposed by Salary Revision Committee

NOTES:

1. It is the opinion of all members of the Committee that increases in rate of pay earned on merit should not be withheld for reasons of economy, and it is urgently recommended that such increases be recognized.

2. For positions in which the City furnishes board complete compensation has been indicated in schedules. It is recommended that board be charged at cost only.

3. It is suggested that uniforms for Fire, Police, and Train Services be better standardized and their cost reduced by the wholesale purchase of cloth by the City.

The One He Loved Best

An Atlanta husband, having offended, came home the evening of the quarrel with a parcel under his arm.

"Darling," he said to his wife,
 "look here. I've got something here for the person I love best in all the world."

She came forward with a shrug.
 "Humph! What is it," she said. "A box of cigars?"

WITT REPORTS ON RAILWAY SURVEY

The salient features of Peter Witt's final report to the city council are given herewith.

Establish pay as you go policy. Working on warrant basis to pay bond principal is bad business.

Too many empty cars on downtown streets. Retrenchment in this service will save $800,000 a year.

Through lines never will pay. Commends splitting and turning back cars over lines they came down, letting riders transfer.

Go away with elevated structure service to West Seattle as far as possible.

Double track Fifteenth Avenue from Forty-seventh Street to city limits.

Extend lines promptly to accommodate Cowen Park district.

Extend line through University grounds to Stadium.

Provide loops to replace "wyes" at many street intersections.

Eliminate Queen Anne shuttle cars to have one man crew.

All cars of "600 type" should be replaced.

Purchase of 200 low floor, light weight, high power double truck cars.

Reduction of number of employees by conversion to one-man car service will save city $800,000 annually.

Another saving of $100,000 annually will be effected if lighter cars replace heavy "600 type."

Buy new cars on Car Trust Certificate plan. Of $2,000,000 investment needed, only $500,000 need be paid now. Recommends loan of city's credit for down payment.

Don't bond city utility for car track replacements.

Pay-enter when cars are inbound, leave when outbound.

Parking vehicles on downtown streets during rush hours should be prohibited.

Use Third Avenue exclusively for street cars during rush hour. Second Avenue for autos and vehicular traffic.

Use route cars one way on Third Avenue and Second Avenue, autos opposite direction if permitted on same avenue with street cars.

League Hears Traction Expert

Not since the last annual dinner held in May has the League held an evening meeting such as was held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium Tuesday. More than 600 people attended this meeting to hear Peter Witt, the transportation expert, speak on Seattle's street railway problems.

President Claude H. Anderson, who introduced Mr. Witt, stated, "We don't know whether we agree with Mr. Witt or not; we do not stand sponsor for him, but since the City officials employed him to make the survey of Seattle's street railway system, we surely ought to hear him."

Witt pointed out that he realized that he must first sell himself to the people of Seattle before his report could become effective.

Many revisions of pay schedule and working hours of car operators.

Mr. Witt's report to the Council follows:

When we entered the World War and Washington decided that the financial cost thereof should be met by an issuance of bonds rather than by the payment of taxes, there and then commenced the trouble which immediately afflicted, and still persists in tormenting the owners and users of our street railway properties the country over.

That was the reason, he said, that he had made so many addresses in Seattle during his two months' stay.

After entering into a brief history of the public utility problems throughout the country immediately prior to the war, Witt related the desperate struggle on the part of the various railway companies to continue to do business when the value of the dollar fell. And he showed how, even when some of the railways secured, after a fight, an increase of rate, they found that the returns diminished. That is the history everywhere, he said.

Speaking of the purchase of Seattle's system, he said, "Even if you shave the contract to $10,000,000, instead of $15,000,000 it would only mean a reduction of one-third of one cent in the fare. He also pointed out that 1.2 percent of the fare paid by the passenger was for the purchase of the property and not for the service.

The rest of his address is covered largely in the report published in full in this issue and will not be re-stated in this column.

Altogether, the evening meeting was a successful one, and from the interest displayed, it is likely that the League will hold two or three other evening meetings during the course of the year.

BLACKWELL KNOCKS CITY-MANAGER PLAN

WHY CITY MANAGER?

It is strange how about once in so often we get all "het up" about some innovation, and persuade ourselves that by some trick of legislation we are going to render 100 per cent efficient, and capable, every inefficient and incapable public employee, we, in our lack of experience and judgment, if nothing worse, select to run our public business.

Now, our latest panacea for all ills in the City is the City Manager. Who discovered this bright idea? He is almost entitled to rank with the man who discovered the Ten Commandments. Do you know that almost with the beginning of things the pendulum of government has been swinging between the extremes of autocracy and democracy; czar, emperor or king, or mob rule; with the pendulum remaining for intervals stationary over some modification lying between the extremes. Now, it has been long known that one plan, complete in its details and systematically carried to its fruition, will produce better results than numerous plans half digested and executed by a number of different officers, no one of whom agrees with his predecessor or can stay with the project long enough to fully carry it out.

A good and wise czar, emperor, king, or absolute city manager can unquestionably function more economically than any form of undivided responsibility. I believe it is Blackstone who says in effect that of all forms of government the democracy is the most wasteful but that the benefits coming to humanity from this form of government justifies its use. The same can be said of the city government of divided responsibility.

The City Government of Seattle as now constituted and as proposed under the City Manager plan are both attempts to strike a middle ground; the present government can be better likened to a republic and the City Manager plan a limited monarchy, and both are attempts to eat our cake and retain it at the same time and delegate the authority to some selected individuals or individual and at the same time keep it in the hands of the people. If we will sit down and balance the authority the mayor now has and the authority that is going to be given to the proposed City Manager, we are compelled to wonder why all the excitement over the proposed legislation. If you will go out among the people who have recently been afflicted with improvements or who are trying to get them you will find the sentiment pretty general that it is useless to offer any suggestions and that the City is going to carry out its own sweet will, and as between outsiders and the City government the City government is very autocratic, but as between the mayor and the City Council, both now elected by the people at large, there seems to be differences and generally believed to be the very purpose for such organization:—that one might act as a check on the other; but in our City Manager plan we propose to eliminate this and make the Mayor a creature of a modified City Council. It is true that those advocating the manager plan furnish many testimonials as to the success of this method, and doubtless it is popular with the "Inns" who generally, for a time at least, have it in their power to make the biggest noise; and some of the experiments have been made under emergency conditions calling for laying aside partisanship and electing some man on account of his merit, who ordinarily would not get a look-in. As against the argument that the people at large cannot select a capable executive, why not let the Council as it is now constituted, select the mayor? We must trust them as our representatives in everything else. The mayor, as the organization now stands, selects and appoints, subject to the Council's approval, all department heads. Why not cut out this approval business and let him go it alone.

would you be willing to do it? taken over by the city.

As one goes over the technical press of the country he finds that not all City Commission and City Manager forms of governments have been successes—one of the most notable examples just now being St. Paul—and are going back to practically our form of City Government.

J. D. BLACKWELL.

REPORT ON STREET RAILWAY SURVEY

And why? Because the street railway was unable to do what all other industry did do—adjust itself to the ever-changing financial condition.

This industry alone was expected to meet a war outgo with a prewar income. Needless to say, it could not be done. And having no mysterious fund from which it could take the money needed to meet the ever-rising costs of operation, it soon found itself where it could not render the service the changed conditions imposed.

Doubly true was this the situation in Seattle, for here a mighty industry sprang into existence over night. It attracted and commanded thousands of workers. They were engaged in building the ships that were to "bridge the ocean". These workers needed transportation. It was the duty of the Puget Sound Traction, Light and Power Company to provide it. With the rate of fare charged this was impossible. That it might function, it asked to be relieved of many of its franchise obligations. Its request was refused. It sorely needed an increase in that rate of fare it was permitted to charge. This the laws of the state denied. Between a refusal of the city on one hand and a denial by law on the other the situation went from bad to worse.

Then came the threat that if something was not done in the way of improving transportation facilities the shipbuilding industry would be moved elsewhere. This was more than business would stand. Rather than lose this big and immensely profitable war activity, it was proposed that the street railway should be

Persons and institutions always hostile to municipal ownership now became its champions. Public authorities, responding to the almost unanimous demand for action, opened negotiations with the company for the purchase of its railway property. With eagerness and dispatch the deal was consummated. The city not only prescribed the manner of purchase but named as well the price to be paid. It was indorsed by the press, and by an overwhelming majority ratified by the people. The entire transaction legally is and morally must to all honorable men be considered a closed incident.

Lest it be forgotten, it is well to remind you that the city acquired this property without the investment of one dollar and no obligation on its part to pay one cent. The entire matter of payment rests upon the car rider, who, after paying the price will not own what he bought.

Although relieved of many of the burdens borne by the company, the city, after ten months of trial, discovered that it could not continue to operate the property at the old rate of fare. It was therefore raised 6-14 cents. This rate, like the rate it supplanted, also proved insufficient. Therefore, last January the present rate of 8-13 cents was made effective.

This last rate has more than met the cost of service, but has not, and will not by March first produce the $833,000 needed for bond retirement. If this amount is to be on hand on the day it must be on hand the department will have to go on a "war rant basis". This means that this year's debts will be paid out of next year's income. It may be the easy way of doing it, but it surely is not the right way.

If the enterprise is to be made a success, the principle of "pay as you go" will have to be established. The time for its establishment is now.

The running of so many empty cars on First, Second and Third avenues between Pine Street on the north and Jackson Street on the south, plus the over-service on some of the routes, and the failure to inaugurate ate a policy of retrenchment keeping with the decline of business, will for the year produce a loss of $800,000.

This loss, or rather waste, must be eliminated. Routes must be changed. Schedules must be revised. In their revision, due regard must be paid to the relationship between passengers per car mile carried and costs per car mile furnished. The following table, giving the number of passengers carried and cars operated for the month of September, 1919, 1920 and 1921, clearly shows and forcibly demonstrates that while the number carried in 1919 was not high, it was in 1921 shamefully low:

	September, 1919.	1920.	1921.
Passengers	9,157,132	7,492,902	6,102,463
Car Heads	76,981	150,425	168,522
Passengers per car mile	2,484,536	1,873,707	1,557,829
Miles	1,360,898	1,269,687	1,266,476

Four through lines never did, do not now, and never will carry increased loads. Their operation means an under or over serviced line. What is the remedy? Split the line. To that end, the following recommendation is made:

Terminate the cars from Alki, Interlopy, West Seattle, Lake Burien, South Seattle and Georgetown at Yesler Way, Service through First Avenue between Yesler Way and Pine Street should be by the cars now operating thereon from the north, but only in such numbers as will adequately meet the service requirements. All other cars to be turned back over loop between Pine, Pike, First and Second Avenues. The determination of what cars or lines should be turned back is an administrative rather than a legislative function, and should therefore be left to the judgment of the officials of the Street Railway Department. An improvement over the present looping of cars at the southerly end of First Avenue through Yesler Way, Western Avenue, and Columbia Street, may be had by the building of a short piece of track on the easterly and southerly sides of the park plot in Pioneer Square.

Service through Second Avenue should be provided in the manner prescribed for First Avenue. The looping for the turnbacks should be in the reverse direction of the cars from First Avenue, or such other loops in the immediate vicinity as may be selected by the Street Railway Department. The present arrangement of connecting curves will, of course, have to be the determining factor in selecting the terminal loops. What of necessity will have to be a makeshift can be corrected when replacement of existing curves must be made.

The through lines operating in Third Avenue must be split. The terminal for the split lines should be in the vicinity of Pike and Pine Streets. Until there is an increase in business, the cars from Mount Baker, Beacon Hill and 26th Ave. South will provide ample service for all traffic requirements on Third Avenue between Jackson and Pine Streets. All other cars now operating on Third Avenue between the points named should be turned back, and so far as now permitted by existing curves should be routed to turn with and not against the traffic movement.

The cars of the East 23rd Street line should follow the route of the cars of the Madison Street line from Madison Street and East 23rd Street instead of over the present route through East 23rd Street to Union Street to Pike Street.

The short line cars on the routes of Capitol Hill, Broadway and Kinnear Park should be discontinued during all hours of off-peak operation. An observation made any day will show you that the riders carried on both long and short line cars are not sufficient in number to fill the seats in the long line cars.

The elevated structure in East Marginal Way and Spokane Street, as the story comes to me, was erected as a war necessity in order to take care of the shipyard workers and to provide entrance into the city for the cars of the previously city-owned line to Lake Burien. The war necessity being a thing of the past, and the city now being the owner of the track on First Avenue, the route of the cars now using the elevated structure should at least from Spokane Street North be over the tracks on First Avenue. This recommendation is the only one made in order that there may be saved the cost of maintenance of two tracks, but to avoid the heavy and extraordinary maintenance which soon must take place on the elevated structure itself.

A similar situation is found in the operation of cars in Dexter Street. The tracks in this street were laid many years ago to provide entrance to the downtown district for the cars operating on the city-owned line into Ballard. Now that the city owns the tracks on Westlake Avenue, all cars using Dexter Street should be routed over Westlake Avenue.

To provide a more even distribution of track lay out for the service in the northwest section of the city, between Phinney Avenue on the east and 20th Street on the west, Eight Avenue should be double tracked from Leary Street to 60th Avenue and single tracked to 65th Avenue. When at some future time Eighth Street, between the points mentioned, is widened, an additional track should therein be laid, and the two tracks further extended north to the city limits. The tracks in Sixth Avenue, 14th Avenue and 67th Street between 15th Avenue and 2nd Avenue should be removed.

Your action in removing jitney competition, though highly commendable, has left the residents of Cowen Park without transportation. As a matter of right and fair play the people living in this district are entitled to street car service. It is therefore recommended that an extension of the tracks into the district affected should be made at once.

That the Stadium may be made more accessible to the thousands who must use the street cars in reaching it, an extension of track should be made through the grounds of the university with such connection to the tracks on 14th Avenue as may be agreed upon between the city and the trustees of the University.

The "weaving" of cars at street intersections is dangerous and costly. Dangerous because the car movement is backward, and costly because where one-man cars are used an extra man must be employed to assist in the "weaving" movement. To eliminate the danger and to remove the cost, a loop should be provided at the ends of all lines. Here, too, should toilet facilities be installed for the convenience of the operators.

There is now in operation on Queen Anne Avenue between McGraw and Ray Streets a shuttle car. It comes and goes when signaled by the car rider. It provides a unique though costly service. It was discontinued by the department but ordered back by your body. It must, therefore, be assumed that that service on this end of Queen Anne Avenue must be maintained. Such being the case, it is therefore recommended that the route of the North Queen Anne Avenue cars from Queen Anne Avenue to McGraw Street to over the track on Queen Anne Avenue to Roy Street; that the West Queen Anne Avenue cars continue from their present terminal in Sixth Avenue to McGraw Street, to Seventh Avenue, to end of line, and that the service in McGraw Street between Queen Anne Avenue and Sixth Avenue be discontinued.

Because of the increased safety to the car rider and greater economy of operation, all cars should be operated by one man. I therefore urge the speedy rebuilding of all cars now in service requiring two men for their operation, excepting, however, from this rebuilding program the cars of the 600 type.

In my oral report I recommended the scrapping of the cars of this type, because of their excessive weight, slowness of speed, and inconvenience of boarding and alighting. For the same reasons I again urge their relegation to the junk pile; and recommend as a substitute therefor the purchase of two hundred (200) low floor light weight, high power, double truck cars.

These cars should measure 30 feet between corner posts, and carry a seven-foot forward platform with a six-foot width of door opening. Such width of door opening will make it possible for an in and out movement at one and the same time. The seating arrangement should consist of an equal division between longitudinal seats in the forward end and transverse seats in the rear end of the car. A car of this size and design will seat 40, load and unload quickly and when crowded will reduce the inconvenience of movement to a minimum of discomfort.

DL. XI. NO. 51.

SEATTLE, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1921.

PRICE 10 CENTS

THE LEAGUE'S POSITION ON THE 5 CENT FARE ORDINANCE

The agitation for a reduction of fare to 5 cents which culminated in its defeat last Monday afternoon before the council called forth a resolution on the part of the Board of Trustees opposing the ordinance "until such time as it has been actual-demonstrated—by putting in effect all possible economies that the receipts will cover operating expenses and all other proper charges against the railway lines". This resolution was presented to the council Monday in the form of a letter and was read in the council chamber.

The Board took the action at its weekly meeting Monday noon because it was felt that it might be too late to have the matter regularly referred to the membership the following day.

Councilman Erickson assumed the role of chief opponent of the bill when it came up for discussion. At first he indicated that he was in favor of the bill because if he could not get 3 cent car fare he would be satisfied with "all I can get". He was opposed, he said, to throwing the issue into the heart of the spring municipal campaign, when we will have our initiative measure before the voters". If the initiative measure was not passed, he said, he would be willing to vote for the bill as proposed by Councilman Fitzgerald with a provision to take a million dollars out of the general tax fund to make up the deficit that was bound to exist.

Councilman Fitzgerald contended that if the economies suggested by Peter Witt were immediately put into effect, no levy on the general fund would be necessary. "What if the economies turn out below our expectations?" asked Mr. Erickson.

"Then we could increase the fare again," replied Mr. Fitzgerald.

"Then, if this is simply a proposition to reduce fares during the coming election campaign and then go back to the higher fare again, I have no interest in this bill whatever," replied Erickson.

Councilman Moore then asked that Superintendent Henderson report on what economies he anticipated could be made. Henderson said as follows:

"I want Mr. Henderson to say what he thinks," said Mr. Moore, and the superintendent was called upon to speak.

"Since I have been on the job up there," Mr. Henderson said, "I have been doing everything possible to put into effect the one-man car plan. We are still working on that. We have put it into effect almost altogether on the Ballard lines, and we are working on the hill lines now. It has been said that all the

COUNCIL SHOULD HAVE HENDERSON'S VIEWS ON WITT REPORT

The Secretary has drafted a letter to the City Council which will be submitted to the Board of Trustees at its next meeting for approval. The letter as drafted, is as follows:

"Honorable City Council of the City of Seattle, County-City Building,
Seattle, Washington.

Gentlemen:

Peter Witt rendered his report to the Council on December 12th. In this report, as you know, he advocated certain economies which he claimed would net a saving to the railway lines of approximately $1,700,000. Since the filing of his report with the Council, so far as we know, no action has been taken on it. We would respectfully suggest that the report be referred to Superintendent D. W. Henderson for consideration, and that, at the same time, the Council should ask Mr. Henderson to give his opinion as soon as possible as to whether the suggestions made by Witt can be put into practical operation.

Mr. Witt, in a public address before the Municipal League on the evening of December 13th, stated that he had the greatest respect for Mr. Henderson's ability and that he was operating the lines as well as any man could under the circumstances. This tribute paid Mr. Henderson is significant. Mr. Henderson, being on the job all of the time, is necessarily well qualified to give his opinion on the subject matter of Mr. Witt's recommendation. This, not in a spirit of being super-expert, but simply as the head of the department, responsible to the people of Seattle for the efficient administration of the railway lines.

The City having paid more than $8,000 to Mr. Witt for his

To the writer's mind, Witt's report should have been referred to Mr. Henderson immediately upon its being filed with the Council. In view of the insistent cry on the part of some people for a reduction of fare without delay, it seems to the writer a logical and necessary step to give Witt's report such attention as it deserves. The City, having employed an expert and having paid him $8,000, is in duty bound to do something more useful with the report than having it on file in the City Council.

As this is going to press the P. I. announced that the action here suggested will be taken by the Council. The P. I. article follows:—

Peter Witt's report on Seattle's street railway problems will go to D. W. Henderson, general superintendent of railways, for a statement of his views on the economies of operation and other improvements in the railway system suggested by Witt.

Decision to this effect was reached by the council city utilities committee at its session yesterday morning when Chairman Oliver T. Erickson suggested that before giving committee consideration to Witt's recommendations, Henderson's views should be requested. The two reports could then be jointly considered by the committee in deciding what feature should be recommended to the city council for adoption, Erickson said.

Supt. Henderson said yesterday that he expects to have his report ready for the committee early next week and it will probably be taken up at the committee's session next Thursday morning.

equipment should be converted into one-man cars which Mr. Witt said should be junked—to convert them to one-man cars. They would be just as heavy, and would cause as much wear on the tracks, as one-man cars, as they do now, and instead of speeding up traffic, they would slow it down. The expenditure for remodeling them would be inadvisable for those reasons.

"One of Mr. Witt's recommendations was that we spend $2,000,000 for new cars. I would concur to that recommendation but it would take a year to get those cars, even if we had the money to buy them. I agree with Mr. Witt that lighter cars are what we need, but we must not forget the time it would take to get them here, and the money it would require to buy them.

"There are some economies we could put into effect. For example, Mr. Witt's proposal to turn back the Fauntleroy, West Seattle and Alki cars at Yesler Way, a recommendation which I made months ago. I doubt if the public would stand for it. Thousands of persons who use these lines would object to the trains, loaded down with bundles and packages. Some lines could be turned back to Union Street, but I do not think it would be fair to ask the public to make that transfer, without providing sheds where they could wait to protect them from the rain and from traffic on congested street corners. Even the looping of cars in this way would require a large expenditure of money for loops and curves and special work.

"Some economies can be put into effect, but whether enough to make a 5-cent fare possible I cannot say at this time. As to whether I have ever have been made a goat by this Council, I do not think I have. If I have, I have been too slow to see it."

At the conclusion of Henderson's talk, motion was made by Councilman Thompson to "indefinitely postpone". The motion was seconded by Carroll and was passed; Fitzgerald and Moore being the only ones who voted "No", Moore voting "Not because I am in favor of the ordinance, but because I should like to see it referred to the voters in the next election in a referendum."

COMMITTEEMAN REPLIES TO CRITIC OF CITY MANAGER FORM

Mr. Editor Municipal News:

Being a member of the committee that recommended to the Municipal League a City Manager form of government for Seattle, I was very much interested in Mr. J. A. Blackwell's article appearing in the "News" of December 17 last.

I read the article very carefully and so far as I could gather, Mr. Blackwell believes that out present form of city government is wasteful and bad and we should have a change. However he believes that it is necessary for the council to have a check on the mayor, and for the mayor to have a check on the council. He wants to preserve these so-called checks and balances. He therefore is very skeptical about the city manager although the city manager form has been adopted in a great many cities and, so far as I know, with universal benefit. As a remedy for our poor and wasteful government, he therefore suggests that we take the election of the Mayor out of the hands of the people and have him appointed by the city council.

Now it seems plain that if the powers and duties of each remains the same otherwise, the checks and balances will be preserved and after appointment, the mayor and council can go on the same as now and play politics and play checks and balances.

We who advocate the city manager plan of government, believe that the only checks and balances worth while are the checks which the voters from time to time exercise over the city's affairs. If, therefore, we want to better the government of our city the thing to do is to simplify it so that the voters will be better enabled to see who is to blame if anything goes wrong in the city's affairs. The fewer men responsible for the wrong the easier it will be to place the blame where it belongs.

In place of having the Council, the Mayor and the heads of the various departments share in the political authority which even lawyers only vaguely understand—in place of each having some of the blame, the voters often are unable to determine—we place all the political authority and therefore all the blame on the council and make it responsible to the people and voters. Such arrangement, we believe, will make the council look after the hired man, called "city manager", and all his subordinates pretty well. When something goes wrong with the street railway system, for instance; the voters need no guess who is to blame, that is whether it is the Council, or the Mayor, or the Superintendent or anyone of the many semi-independent officials connected with the city government. The voters will know pretty soon the day of checks and balance in the city government have passed away. —N. C. Wegner

OHIO CITY SECURES REPORT OF CITY AUTOMOBILES

In the Toledo (Ohio) City Journal, published by the Commission of Publicity and Efficiency of that city, appears the report submitted to the Toledo City Council last week by the Commission on the handling of the problem of the city-owned vehicles in Toledo.

As the commission put it, it endeavored to avoid the criticism of existing methods and practices, but has rather endeavored to make a constructive contribution to the problem.

"The plan suggested by the commission would combine the best successful features of the various systems used in other American cities. The crux of the plan is centralization of control under one official, who would have charge of the housing, repair and use of all cars outside of the police and fire departments. Another essential is the standardization of cars.

"A third important feature of the plan is the pooling of the cars which do not receive constant use at present, when assigned to a particular officer, these cars to be made available for the use of any department on call.

"A fourth feature of the plan is that in cases where an official employee must use a car constantly, and where he gets sufficient salary to permit the purchase of his own car that he be allowed a monthly allowance for the use of that car. The Commissioner of Inspection has suggested to the Commission that his plan would be entirely feasible in his department."

"Still another important phase of the Commission's recommendations is that providing for adequate cost and use records for each city car.

"The Commission made the report at the request of the outgoing Council. In order that it may not die with the expiration of the present administration, the Commission is placing it in the hands of the incoming Council and the Mayor-elect. It is believed that this question which has been the cause of considerable discontent on the part of citizens, and the source for much criticism of city officials, should be settled now and settled right."

PARK SUPERINTENDENT ASKS LEAGUE'S HELP

The Parks, Buildings and Grounds Committee had charge of last Tuesday's program. Dr. E. C. Kilbourn, chairman of the E. Chapman, Superintendent of the City Park Department as the speaker of the day. The outstanding points of Mr. Chapman's address were:

That a more personal interest be taken by the League in the park problems of the City of Seattle; that personal interest in any particular park or playfield be subordinated to an enthusiastic support of plans for development of the entire park system; that the League give its support to charges for "personal service" as against moral and health service; that the League should support a plan for a sounder financial basis for the park system whereby a certain millage would be allowed in the annual operation and an additional tax levies for maintenance and small millage for permanent construction.

Mr. Chapman showed how the Park Board was continuously torn between the desire to "do it now" or to plan largely for the future. "We must leave a heritage", declared Chapman. "but we must also care for the children of today; for our children's lives are fleeting, and soon they will no longer be children."

The re-action from the war, demand for various park functions, he said, gave rise to a greater demand, and with the increased demand, the Park Department found itself $25,000 "in the red" in 1921, and in addition to this deficit, the Council cut off $50,000 in the 1922 budget, and the Department is thus operating on $70,000 less than last year. This, with 32 miles of boulevard (with at least 10,000 properties abutting the boulevard), 23 play-fields, and 32 major parks, the Park Department, he said, was "property poor".

Since we are down to bedrock, then, he said, we must increase the revenue within the system. We must accustom the people to pay for personal service; we must induce some of our citizens to do things for the parks which ordinarily the City would do. "There is no finer way with which a man may perpetuate his memory than by leaving some monument for the benefit of his fellowmen; this monument, whatever its form may be, to be located in the City parks."

NARCOTIC EVIL WILL BE THE SUBJECT OF TUESDAY'S ADDRESS

The program Tuesday noon will be in charge of Dr. A. A. Bird, chairman of the League's Health and Sanitation Committee. The committee, under his guidance, has prepared a report on the narcotic evils in Seattle, and will submit it for approval at Tuesday's meeting. The committee has also invited Rev. W. H. Bliss, of Trinity Church and president of the Seattle Chapter of the White Cross, to speak on the narcotic problem. Dr. H. M. Reed, City Health Commissioner, is also expected to address the League briefly on the subject. The committee has spent considerable time in preparing the report, and it is hoped that the matter will receive a thorough consideration by the League members.

10 JITNEYS FOR COWEN PARK

The Council, after referring the petition of the resident of Cowen Park for through jitney service to Supt. Henderson, decided the same Tuesday. Henderson's report was adverse. The report of the railways superintendent follows:

I received late Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 27, two files (No. 83383 and No. 83387) relative to jitney service to the Cowen Park and Ravenna district; these for my recommendations as to the future operation of said jitneys. In regard to file No. 83387: I do not believe this file requires my recommendation from me.

In regard to file No. 83383, wherein the citizen living in the Cowen Park and Ravenna district request that the busses which the now giving them service by transferring to the city cars at Tenth Avenue North-east and East 40th Street, be operated into the city somewhere in the vicinity of post-office loop, I wish herewith to inform your honorable body that has been demonstrated in other cities that jitney service and that of the street cars cannot both exist and be able to secure sufficient revenue to maintain such operation.

In the city of Brigport, Conn., midnight on July 25, 1920, all street car service was discontinued and it was up to the jitney busses to handle the traffic of that city. They failed absolutely in their efforts and on September 20, 1920, the street car service was again resumed and ordinances were passed abolishing the jitney service.

In the City of Toledo, O., where the people protested against an increase in fare through their city government which ordered the discontinuance of street car service, this took place on November 8, 1919, when the private company removed all its equipment across the state line into Michigan and remained there until December 5, 1919, when the city government of Toledo adjusted matters by having the street car company resume service, allowing the company to charge the rate of fare which had been protested against previous to November 8, 1919, and is was proven there that busses were unable to handle the business.

In the city of Des Moines, Ia., on August 14, 1920, car service was discontinued on account of insufficient revenue under an 8 cent fare to maintain the operation on account of jitney competition. Car service was resumed on October 24, 1921, after it was proven that jitney busses were unable to give the public the service that they were entitled to.

The daily revenue on the Eastlake line for the first week that jitney service was discontinued, compared with that of the last week that the jitneys were in operation, shows that the amount of money taken in when the jitneys were in operation for one week $9,397.87, and the amount taken in during the first week after the jitney service discontinued was $10,838.15, an increase for one week of $1440.28, or a gain of 15.32 per cent. There is no doubt in my mind but what the increase after this has been greater as the public, during the first week, had not yet accustomed itself to the change in service.

I wish to bring to your attention the fact that there are other sections of the city where the citizens no doubt feel that they should have better transportation facilities than they now have and, if you honorable body should grant special privilege to these people, no doubt other sections would demand the same.

One point in question is that of 35th Avenue Southwest, which, at this time, has bus service operated under city management and these people have to transfer to the Faunterlooy and West Seattle cars. I might say here that during the same 21-day period that the residents of the Cowen Park district have had what is known as "feeder service" to the car line, there were 13,373 passengers carried on the 35th Avenue Southwest busses; that is, about 67 per cent as many people as were handled

NARCOTIC EVIL REPORT SUBJECT

Last Tuesday's meeting was in charge of the Public Health and Sanitation Committee of the League, the chairman of which is Dr. A. A. Bird. Besides submitting a report, which is published in this issue and which is approved by the Board of Trustees as well as the membership of the League, the committee invited as speakers for this meeting Cannon W. H. Bliss, president of the Seattle Chapter of the White Cross, and Dr. H. M. Reen, City Health Commissioner.

Cannon Bliss called attention to the ever-increasing importation of crude opium into the United States. Thus, in 1917, 60 tons were imported, in 1918, 80 tons, and in 1919 365 tons. "Not one-fiftieth of these importations can be used legitimately", declared Cannon Bliss.

Japan has turned the greatest buyer as well as the greatest offender in the opium traffic for the Japanese, not users of the drug to any extent—tranship the greatest part of their importations to China, and the balance of it is allowed to be smuggled back to the United States. However, England and the United States were also placed in the same category with Japan.

That the supplies grown in Turkey and Persia could be controlled but that British grown opium could not, was the additional charge made by Cannon Bliss. England, he said, was ashamed of the traffic and prohibited its shipment in English bottles and in English railways.

Altogether, the United States imports from 13 to 72 times more of the opium than any other country.

Cannon Bliss congratulated Seattle on ridding itself of the supply of opium, as well as peddlers, and pointed to the fact that these offenders are now in other cities of the Northwest, but not in Seattle, since public opinion compelled the administering of heavy punishment to peddlers of the drug. The users of the drug, he said, were now leaving Seattle and going to those cities and ports where the supply can be bought with little risk to the peddler.

Dr. Reed launched a vehement attack upon the large manufacturers of the opium in the United States, declaring that the officers and managers of these large corporations were morally guilty for the conditions arising in the spreading use of opium. He made a plea for inter-governmental co-operation and for international control of the drug for the purpose of dispensing the same only to physicians. He also appealed for a modification of the state laws to conform to national legislation and declared that one of the solutions for the problem lay in the government establishing hospitals for treatment of the addicts.

At the conclusion of this address Dr. A. A. Bird read the report of the committee, and the same was adopted without a dissenting vote.

To The Municipal League.
Gentlemen:—

The Municipal League Committee on Public Health and Sanitation beg leave to report on the so-called narcotic problem in Seattle.

As chairman of this committee I attended the recent meeting called by Governor Hart to discuss the amelioration of the narcotic evil and to find, if possible, some means to prevent its rapid spread in the State of Washington.

The consensus of opinion was that the State Law controlling narcotics is inadequate; that a new law should be enacted providing for a compulsory penitentiary sentence for peddlers and traffickers in narcotic drugs; that the possession of even one dose should constitute the person so possessing a "peddler". And lastly, providing for the quarantine, care and treatment of narcotic drug addicts.

It was reported at this meeting that Seattle had between 8,000 and 10,000 drug addicts. It was estimated that the amount of drugs consumed by each addict costs a minimum of three dollars a day and a maximum of nine dollars a day.

A brief history of the opium evil is necessary in order that we may understand why we have this illicit and rapidly increasing use of narcotic drugs throughout the world.

Opium is grown in India as a British monopoly and China was its principal customer for over a hundred years.

Then came China's awakening and the burning of her opium pipes in the public squares, to the accompaniment of music.

By a previous agreement between England and China the former ceased shipping opium into China where stringent laws had been passed against its use.

The poppy flourishes in India. No other crop was provided to replace the poppy fields. A new market was therefore found to be necessary and England and America supplied the field for that market.

Our present national law known as the Harrison Act permits the importation of opium in unlimited quantities into the United States for manufacture into morphine and its derivatives. It prohibits their sale and distribution in this country except for medical purposes and under strict supervision.

The balance of the drug manufactured here—which constitutes many tons—is supposed to be shipped abroad to countries which will receive it. In reality it goes principally to China and back into America through illicit channels, America and China using more of the drug than all other countries combined.

It is claimed that every vessel entering Seattle brings hidden dope. Unscrupulous peddlers are on every hand to carry the dope to the victims, each of whom they are said to estimate will bring in six more addicts within a year.

The narcotic habit is a secret vice and requires secret service methods of detection. The regular police cannot handle it alone.

The drug addicts are not all underworld people though a large percentage of them are.

Inspector Hans Damm of the Seattle Police Dept. reported that out of five hundred photographs of criminals in the rogues gallery, taken by the police dep't in 1919, sixty have been identified as dope addicts. In the year ending 1920, out of 711 such photographs taken 172 were known to be addicts.

Figures compiled in other cities show that people in the transportation business are the next largest class of drug addicts.

Taxi drivers, messenger boys, motormen, conductors and others who work long hours in all weathers fall victims to the dope habit.

Lawyers, actors, even doctors and clergymen are among the victims due largely to nervous strain.

The addict cannot free himself because the drug destroys his will power and ultimately his moral nature.

Putting him in jail does no good as he goes back to the drug at the earliest opportunity. He is not usually a criminal until driven to it in order to satisfy his craving.

The only humane method to put him in a hospital, withdraw the drug gradually and build him up mentally, morally and physically.

Then help him find a job before putting him on his own resources.

Seattle has no such hospital, no fund to carry on the work, no law making opium peddling a penitentiary offense.

Stopping the importation of the drug is of course the one way to stop its sale, but with only a few men to guard thousands of miles of coast line nothing can be expected but what actually happens.

Dope may be had in any city and in any quantity desired.

The fines possible to impose under our present State law merely constitute a stiff license fee and have no deterring effect on the trafficker.

The Harrison Act is inadequate to cope with the evil because it does not limit the amount of the crude drug which may be imported for manufacture.

A new law known as the Jones-Miller bill seeks to remedy the shortcomings of the original narcotic law, and will, we believe, if passed largely help toward this end.

In view of these facts the committee offers the following suggestions:—

(1). That the Municipal League send a strong endorsement of the Jones Miller bill to our Congressmen and Senators to strengthen them in their position in the fight for a better national handling of the drug evil.
(2). That the Municipal League send a message or letter to Brigadier-General Sawyer expressing listing and supporting his influence in the effort to carry the bill through.

(3). That the Municipal League through the proper comtees study the proposed ate law for narcotic control hich was vetoed by the Govern-r at the last session to the i that we may know its de-iciencies and be prepared to ge if possible an improved bill the next session.

(4). That the Municipal ague endorse heartily the ef-ts being made at greater co-lination of the municipal, te and national authorities forward it in every way ssible as being the only prest means of meeting the mene to society of the growing crotic habit.

MANAGER PLAN AND P. R. WIN IN CLEVELAND

The fifth city of the United ates adopted the city manager n with proportional represen-ion by a decisive vote on No-mber 8. Last spring when the npaign opened, the optimists
o believed that the effort uld succeed were few and far tween. But as election day ew near the odds shifted until e betting was 2 to 1 in favor the plan. A great share of e credit goes to A. R. Hatton o was first and last the dyn-ic spokesman for the progres-e element.

Since the new plan does not into effect until two years
ve elapsed, plenty of opportu-y exists for the readjustment ecessitated by the radical anges. Cleveland is several es larger than any other merican city enjoying the city nager plan. Nor has propor-nal representation yet been ed in this country on anything so large a scale. Cleveland ains her prominence as a city civic spirit with courage to do own thinking on public estions.

A more extended account will given in our next issue.

THE NEW YEAR 1922

May the new year 1922 bring to each member and friend of the League unbounded happiness and prosperity. May each day in 1922 bring an inspiration to serve and to work for the highest interests of the community in which we make our homes.

The new year brings to the Municipal League the consciousness that there is a great work for it to perform; that there are problems in Seattle that need the attention and the earnest consideration of just such an organization as is ours.
And all conscious of its weaknesses it is also imbued with the determined spirit to do, to help, to work, and to serve to its best ability. The Municipal League prays that the new year will find its children rallying 'round it, giving it sustenance and finding within it sustenance; that the spirit which permeated its founders reassert itself in even stronger degree this new year.

1922—May it mean Happiness, Prosperity, and Service.

obligations, which include the operatings expenses, interest on all outstanding railway bonds and also, the redemptions fund to meet the payment of the purchase price|

If any competition is allowed, either by busses or otherwise, it is going to make it much harder to be able to secure sufficient revenue to meet the above obligations. As I have made every effort to economize wherever it is possible in order to have sufficient revenue to meet the above obligations, it therefore seems unfair at this time that there should be any competition allowed to interfere with the operation of the railway.

I am willing to admit that the people living in the district in question are entitled to service, but they are now getting the same kind of service that other sections of the city are receiving where there are no car lines, and that this particular section should be entitled to special privilege any more than any other section of the city which, if granted, would take away some of the revenue which justly belongs to the railway is something that I am not in favor of.

In view of the fact that the responsibilities of your honorable body and that of the mayor cover a larger scope than that of operating a railway, you undoubtedly might be justified in taking a broader view of the situation.

Respectfully,

— D. W. HENDERSON.

General Sup't of Railways.

THE LEASING OF THE FERRY SYSTEM

By—Eimon L. Wienir,
Secretary of the League

The attack made upon the leasing of the Ferry system by the County commissioners to the Kitsap Transportation Company, seems to the writer, to be without merit. The lease guarantees as good service as the county has been giving with no higher rate of fare to be charged and with the privilege given to the company of reducing the rate of fare at such time as it may deem proper. The number of trips are also provided for in the lease, the lessee being required to make not less than 16 trips daily to Kirkland, the same number as made under county administration, not less than 16 round trips to Medina, and not less than 4 round trips to Roanoke. The lessee is further required to increase the service on these runs as the population and traffic may require.

The only bonus paid under this lease was the agreement on the part of the county to furnish a certain number of barrels of oil per month for the first 16 months.

It is estimated that this lease arrangement will save to the county of King $116,000 the first year (that being the amount allowed in the budget for 1922), and it is further estimated that this will reduce the county levy making the total cut in the cost of county government from 16.5

mills to 9.62 mills.

The lessee is required to give a $12,500 bond. It is also required to open a complete set of books—keeping a separate account with each boat and at the end of each month a trial balance signed and duly sworn to by the lessee showing the true condition of all transactions affecting the ferry system.

The auditor is required to carefully check this each month and make a report to the county commissioners.

The lessee is also required to keep the boats at all times in a sea-worthy condition.

It cannot be denied that the ferries have been a losing proposition, and the communities depending on the ferry service have been actually retarded in their growth. Under private management, as good service as was rendered before is assured with the possibility of better service as the communities increase in size and as more normal conditions make possible an increased service by reason of lower costs.

It is difficult to see why a private company should be able to operate the Ferry system at a presumably substantial profit while the county commissioners have been losing about $1000 a day. The removal of the system from politics, however, is undoubtedly the first cause, enabling a private company to operate it both efficiently and economically. It certainly is an example of the incompetency of the average public board in operating public utilities.

HAYDEN DISCUSSES CITY STREET CARS

TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM DISCUSSED BY U. PROFESSOR

F. D. Hayden, Professor of Railway Engineering of the University of Washington, addressed the League last Tuesday, touching on Seattle's transportation problems. He said in part:

"The contract under which we purchased our railway lines from the Stone & Webster people is unique in the annals of America. I don't know that any other city of the country has ever attempted a similar purchase in a large way. When we remember that the private company was only paying $150,000 a year in dividends and that now we are required to pay a rate of fare enabling the line to pay 15 times that amount in dividends, we realize what a gigantic task Seattle has undertaken.

"There has been, of course, a natural shrinkage due to the closing of the shipyards and other allied employments, but, as has been evidenced by the figures prepared by Mr. Howes, chairman of the League's Public Utilities committee, there were certain decided decreases in the patronage due to the increase in the fare. This is unfortunate, for the restriction in the service is working a havoc on a city.

"Now, as to the Jitneys: The fact remains that never has the jitney been given a chance. The jitney can never succeed working independently, each driver or owner of the car working as an individual. The Jitney must be handled as a permanent institution. It must organize itself into an organization of sufficient capital and strength to

Toledo's Efficiency Commission

The city of Toledo, Ohio, has a Commission of Publicity and Efficiency which undoubtedly ranks highest in the country. A bulletin is published each week known as the Toledo City Journal, which is an organ of valuable character. It is somewhat along the line of a combined Municipal news and official city Journal, and it publishes the reports of the commission and such other municipal news items as come to the attention of that city. Thus, in recent issues, the following articles have appeared: The City Budget, Cost of City Government, The Approaching City Election, A Proposed Change in Public Library Control, the Problem of Municipal Revenues, Toledo's Police Women, and the Report of City Automobiles (an extract of which was published in the News recently.) Its articles on the Problem of Municipal Revenues is so good that we re-print it in full in this issue.

The article on the Public Library is also note-worthy. It seems that the Public Library Board of that city recommended the transfer of the Public Library system from the control of the city to the control of the Board of Education, and its enlargement as a Public Library of the Toledo school district. The Journal has the following to say regarding the change:

The proposal was made primarily because Ohio laws authorize a special tax levy for a school district library which would provide funds much more adequate for maintaining the library system than can be provided by the city under the present arrangement. It was made secondarily with the view of giving more library service in connection with the public schools.

Under the proposed arrangement the Library Board would be appointed by the Board of Education, an elected body, instead of by the Mayor, an elected individual. The actual operation of the library would continue to vest in the Library Board, which now has entire control over library expenditures library personnel and library salaries. So far as the actual management of the library, therefore the proposed transfer would

SOCIETY OFFERS TO TAKE OVER POUND

BY EIMON L. WIENIR, SECRETARY OF THE MUNICIPAL LEAGUE

The King County Humane Society is attempting to secure by initiative petition and vote at the elections next May the operation of the Seattle City Pound. The Municipal League received an initiative petition with forty-six lines for signatures, the Society asking for the League's help to fill the list up. This petition will be available at the Secretary's office; and those desiring to sign the same may do so.

The Society offers to act as Poundmaster for Seattle in return for a sum equivalent to 85 per cent of the receipts from Dog and Cat license fees; 100 per cent of which, it claims, is now considered as a credit against the costs of operating the Pound. The Society has brought up this question before the City Council repeatedly in the last fourteen years without any results other than improving the condition of the present pound under the Police Department.

The Society claims that the operation of the Pound has also resulted in a deficit to the City, the recent reports showing a deficit to the city of $946.65. There was also a hidden deficit, it was claimed, which amounts to approximately $1,000, consisting of purchase costs, maintenance and depreciation of three motor cars, building, equipment, as well as the cost of fuel, light, power, telephone and overhead and office work now done by the Police Department. The Society claims that its offer would save the city $3,000.

The Society also claims that in this way it will be able to eliminate the duplication of effort, as the public is at present confused as to the functions of the Humane Society and the Pound.

The Society states that City Pounds are now operated by the Humane Societies of all the important Pacific Coast Cities, as well as New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, and St. Louis and that the operation of the Pound by the Society in these cities has been uniformly successful. And then, again, it claims that it will eliminate the selling of animals now practiced by the Pound; that more humane treatment of animals will be assured; and that it will enable the building of the required new animal shelter and pound building on the lot recently given to the Society.

The claim of the Society is that it is well organized, responsible and experienced; that it has other sources of income, and that a reasonable increase in its facilities would enable it to do the work smoothly and satisfactorily. The Society claims the remarkable achievement of investigating and remedying 4,386 cases of cruelty to children and animals, of finding homes for 1,106 animals, as well as other valuable work.

SECRETARY' COMMENTS

The statements for dues for the year 1922 were mailed on the first of the year, and checks have already begun to come into the office. Most of our members however, either through neglect or oversight, have not made remittances. This should be attended to as soon as possible for expenses of the League are going on, and money is necessary in order to defray them. Members should not hastily resign from the League, as some have already done, because of the expense there is involved. The three dollars a year dues for most members is so nominal that no matter how bad times may be, each can afford to pay them. It is the hope of the officers of the League that a substantial increase in membership will be gained this year, and consequently as many members as are on the rolls this year should be retained.

Every member of the League can assist the officers in the bringing in of new members. Friends and others qualified for membership can be brought to the Tuesday meetings and there introduced to the work of the League and to its personnel. Once this is done, the way is made easy for enrollment. Just think what wonderful results could be obtained if the five hundred members of the League would each bring a new member. And yet this is not impossible. All it requires is a little attention and initiative. Before the month is over, the membership committee will begin its work. Why not prepare the way now to make its work as light as possible.

Again we appeal to the membership for regular attendance at each Tuesday luncheon. Irrespective of whether notice is sent in time or not, members know, or should know, that an interesting program has been arranged for them, and that Tuesday noon is the League meeting time. Once a member attends and gets in the habit of coming, he will come as a matter of habit. And he will enjoy the meeting, of course. Many of the League's older members who have the interests of the organization at heart and are proud of the work it has done and is doing, could strengthen the work of the League materially by coming down to these Tuesday meetings, if not regularly, at least once every other week.

furnish service and take care of depreciation and other expenses connected with the operation.

"It is evident to me that the Jitney has come to stay and in ten years from now we surely will have some form of bus transportation supercede the present unwieldy electric cars, for the jitney has demonstrated that it is able to cut down the running time for any considerable distance to one-half of that necessary for the street car.

"I am one of those who believe that we have not paid too much for our railway from the Stone and Webster Company. The leading privately operated railways of the country show the gross earnings are approximately 25 per cent. (to be exact, 26.8 per cent) of the capital invested.) Thus the gross earnings of the Seattle Municipal lines for the past year are, roughly speaking, $6,000,000. This would make the lines worth approximately $24,000,000."

Professor Hayden presented a diagram demonstrating, he claimed, that a street car's long-haul was a losing proposition. He maintained that beyond a certain distance the street railway lines are carrying passengers at a loss. He advocated the operation of the street cars for the distance that it pays and turning over the rest of the distance to the Jitneys.

involve no change from the present system.

The city would give up the Mayor's power of appointment of the Library Board, Council power to appropriate funds for the library and the Purchasing Agent's right to make purchases for the library. The city would receive in return the right to use for other purposes the money which now goes for the support of the library. This amounts at present to about $110,000 per year.

To the library the proposed change means chiefly an increase in revenue. The library levy for 1921 was .246 mills, and for 1922 will be .2 mills. Under the new plan an increase to 1.5 mills would be permitted. This maximum should not however be reached for a number of years to come.

To the people of Toledo, the proposed change would involve two results, namely, a slight higher tax rate, and a considerable increase in library service. Demands are being made for branch libraries in sections somewhat remote from existing library branches. Plans are being made for the installation of branch libraries in the new school buildings planned or under consideration. All of this could be operated comfortably upon the revenues that would be forthcoming under the school district library levy. It is difficult to see how any expansion of library service can be made in the city, hampered as it already is by limitations on its revenue.

Consummation of the proposed transfer of the library from the municipality to the school district requires joint action by the Board of Education and the City Council. The detailed procedure is outlined in Sections 3711-3714 of the Ohio General Code. The Board of Education would pass a resolution declaring it necessary to provide for the establishment of a public library of the school district. This resolution would be followed by an ordinance of Council transferring the library property from the municipality to the Public Library Board of the School District to take effect when the school

THE PROBLEM OF MUNICIPAL REVENUES

That the problem of municipal revenues is a perplexing one in American cities in general is evident by the prominence given to the subject in the recent conference of the National Municipal League in Chicago, and the interest shown in the session in which the subject was discussed. Dr. Luther Gulick, director of the National Institute for Public Administration and chairman of a committee of the League, appointed to study the subject of municipal finance, presented a report for that committee which represents perhaps the latest present-day thought on this subject.

In explanation of the current importance of the subject Dr. Gulick called attention to the fact that in the ten years from 1910 to 1919, inclusive, city taxes in the United States increased from an average of $11.50 per $1,000 to an average rate of $21, or an increase of 90 per cent. In spite of this increase, however, cities everywhere finding the financial problem difficult, and are seeking new sources of revenue. In this connection it may be noted that Toledo's tax rate increased in that period very little, in 1910 the total tax rate was 8 mills, levied on a duplicate which represented about a 40 per cent property valuation, and in 1919 it was 17.4 mills, on about an 80 per cent valuation. The increase, based on those figures was therefore only .5 mills in a period of ten years. Since 1909, of course, the rate has been increased more rapidly, but even in the ten years ending in 1921, the increase has only been 6.4 mills or about 45 per cent; an increase only half as great as the average for American cities. The limitations of the Smith One Per Cent Law have been responsible for holding down the rate. The City of Toledo has, however, been operating at a deficit during recent years, and has had to resort to bond issues to meet its current obligations.

A district library levy becomes available. The actual transfer could not be made until about a year after the move is decided upon.

BRYCE SEES PROGRESS IN AMERICAN POLITICS

Sir James Bryce, in his recent book, "Modern Democracies," sees progress being made in America in the improving of governmental methods and results. After appraising the attempts that have been made in recent years to bring about reforms in government, he writes:

"Nevertheless, every effort, even imperfectly successful, to improve machinery which has worked ill, is an evidence of healthy discontent. The present generation will not tolerate evils which the last generation bore submissively. Fifty years ago administration was worse and politics more corrupt than they are today, but reformers were fewer and found far fewer listeners. Today they are heard gladly because the public conscience and the public sense of what America means for the world is more sensitive.

"When I compare the volume of discussion of political, social and economic subjects which issues from the American press today, descriptions of present evils, analyses of their sources, suggestions for their extinction, with the scanty consideration these matters formerly received, and with the spirit of lugubrious despondency that chilled the reformers of those days, I am astonished at the change, and welcome it as auguring well for future progress."

Smaller Share Due the State

The committee's report presented six broad principles which they considered should govern in devising remedial measures. The first had to do with the relation between state and local taxation. It was found that in general throughout the country, too great a share of local taxes goes to the state.

Occupational Taxes Unwise

Business and occupational taxes imposed by several cities, were attacked as unsound in principle, since they do not tax in proportion to a personal ability to pay. Genuine regulatory licenses, however, and fees for special services to individuals may properly be increased to a point where they cover the cost of the regulation or the service. They should not be used as a general source of revenue, nor to yield a profit to the city.

Special Assessments

Wider use of special assessments was urged. It is a sound tax principle, the committee maintained, to assess the cost of special services or improvements against property which receives a special, individual benefit therefrom. Revenues can be increased many instances by assessing a larger share of the cost against benefited property.

Tax on Billboards

Taxation of sign boards, or billboards, was recommended as a legitimate source of revenue. Various bases for such a tax are in use in American cities. Baltimore, for example, taxes sign boards at varying rates, according to zones into which the city has been divided. Other cities tax according to the frontage value of the property on which the board is placed. Still others charge according to the rental value of the sign.

Limitation of tax levies by the state was opposed by the committee. Experience of states such as Ohio, where tax limits have been imposed by state law, has proven the plan unsatisfactory; first, because it does not really limit municipal expenditures, and second because it encourages unsound bonding. Cities should be given Home Rule in taxation, as well as in other governmental functions, the committee argued. Instead of tax limitation laws, the committee proposed that provision be made for improved budget methods, that state laws be passed regulating and limiting municipal borrowing, and that a more just distribution of taxes be provided.

Better methods in property valuation were urged as the sixth proposal for bettering city finance. A full 100 per cent assessment was advocated, and the use of modern scientific methods of appraisal.

Sharp disagreement with the committee's report was voiced by Representative Sutherland of the Illinois Legislature who followed Dr. Gulick. He contended that some tax limit was necessary, and that it was unsafe to leave entire control of local taxation in the hands of the City Council. His speech brought several replies, tending to show that cities which have had control over taxation have been more cautious about making expenditures than have been cities where the taxpayers were lulled into a false security by ineffective state limitations.

A unique departure from the usual method of tax limitation was explained by the president of the Indiana Tax Commission, which has the power to review the budgets of Indiana cities and to reduce the tax levy fixed by the City Council. This plan the speaker called a "discretionary method of limiting taxes". Numerous objections to the plan were raised by members of the conference, and it found no particular favor with the group.

"NEWS" IN NEWSPAPERS

The Civic League of Improvement Clubs and Associations of San Francisco, through its official organ, has a sparkling and caustic comment on the character of newspaper "news" carried in that city. Thus, George W. Gerhard has the following to say:

"IMBECILITY or worse seems to predominate in the editorial rooms of our great dailies, when they stoop in their sex-exploitation by giving a large illustrated front-page account of an alleged senseless exploit on the part of a notorious or notoriety-seeking female."

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS" SUBJECT OF DR. RICHARDSON'S ADDRESS

Dr. Oliver H. Richardson, professor of history of the University of Washington, addressed the Municipal League last Tuesday noon on the subject of "International Relations"; the subject, however, being modified by Dr. Richardson at the meeting place to read, "How to Study the Subject of International Relations." Dr. Richardson said in part:

"No occurrence has affected the minds of men as has the Washington Conference, but interest in international affairs should not be spasmodic but sustained.

"The study of international affairs is vital to the Republic—especially so to England and the United States, because these are self-governing communities; because 'there is law above the king which he must obey.'"

"While the complete control of international relations is in the hands of a few, nevertheless, the electorate must be instructed in the issues. The details must be worked out by experts, but the broader policy by Congress and by the sustained interest of the people. The great thing to be secured is continuity of policy; without it no nation can expect to have respect of other nations of the world.

The following points must be borne in mind:

1. The growing independence of nations.
 2. "America first", to be sure—all means, but not America only. By that is meant that we must be good Americans but so we must be good citizens of the world.
 3. It is our duty to increase world unity and solidarity.

of the world war. The telegraph, however, can be used to counteract evil influences and to impart to foreign affairs a continuity, a steadiness and a responsibility which statesmen of an older day could not exercise.

"Publicity has done a great deal to engender caution and responsibility in our statesmen. In the United States publicity means more democratic control of foreign affairs; the desire to insure stability of government—and stability is the whole basis of our democratic government in domestic affairs. Lord Bryce is the authority for the statement that people determine foreign policies as wisely, if not more wisely, than monarchs or statesmen; for the people have more moral principle.

"If wars are to be prevented, then the people of the world must gain knowledge of the minds of other people. Lord Haldane of England has attributed as the chief cause of the recent war to the difference between the English and German people—due entirely to a lack of understanding with each other.

"Systematic education is the solution, and that can be obtained in the proportion to the mind being unprejudiced and time that is put into study. The grand work for the knowledge is not unattainable even to busy men. International law, history, political science, economics and psychology will suffice; but one without the other will not. Political science without history has no root, and history without political science has no fruit, because failure to appreciate the national psychology leads to more national exasperation.

"In order to understand the politics of the world, we must understand the governing tendencies of each separate state. Thus, Great Britain must satisfy those needs which spring from its insular position. Its policies are the development of a free institution, the development of an empire, the maintenance of industrial communities by importation of food supplies and channels of trade. France's ruling passion is the attainment of natural frontiers, Russia's, the attainment of more sea-ports; Italy's, the re-union of all her

REDUCE THE PRICE OF SUNDAY NEWSPAPERS

By the Secretary

A movement is hereby launched to reduce the price of the Sunday newspapers in Seattle. The price should be reduced to five cents. Just think what that would mean to the city and to the people! And to the newspapers themselves!

Thousands of people in Seattle who would otherwise buy a Sunday paper were the nickel rate in vogue are now wholly deprived of that privilege. Why? Because the 10 cent charge is too high. Instead of getting the newspaper on Sunday morning Seattle citizens must content themselves with doing odd chores around the house, going to church, and taking the usual Sunday afternoon walk. The citizenry thus goes uninformed not only as to the news of the day but also many of the important occurrences of the preceding week. The basis of our democratic institutions is being shaken; for democracy must depend on an intelligent electorate.

Other cities have the 5 cent Sunday newspaper, why isn't Seattle entitled to it? The Oregonian of Portland, recognized to be one of the best of the coast if not of the entire country, containing just as many, if not more, than either of the Seattle papers, only charges 5 cents for its edition. This paper contains an average of 70 pages each Sunday, using the best news services, all the special feature articles, and is of a very high order generally, and yet the price is only a nickel. If the Oregonian can do it why can't the Seattle Times and the Post Intelligencer

And then again if the price were reduced the circulation would increase, advertising rates would go up, and the publishing companies would make more money in the long run. Every village, town and city in the state of Washington would be buying the Seattle papers by the thousand. How helpful this would be for our great city.

Everybody (or nearly everybody) in Seattle is in favor of the reduction in price. It would be a simple thing to get the statements of a hundred or more prominent citizens and publish them in the "News". Space, however, does not permit. The proposition is plain:

THE TEN CENT SEATTLE NEWSPAPER MUST GO!

THE BUILDERS AND THE CITY

The picture once painted or the poem sung, it stands henceforth by itself; the artist can do no more for it. It must live or die without further help from him. But the city is never thus entirely separated from us, its builders. It remains tied to us by the invisible cord of nourishing passions. It grows with us or it dies with us. It is a more real and personal sense a part of us, as we are of it. It becomes then the reflex of the lives and aspirations of the people who dwell in it. So that a city—its streets, its highways, its buildings, its public places, as well as its business and life—is an embodiment of ourselves. It is this living spirit that may hearten and inspire us; that may delight and enchant us, and that may also break and destroy us.

—Temple Scott.

SECRETARY'S COMMENTS

PURITY OF THE PRESS seems to be making some progress, at least in San Francisco, when many organizations are protesting against the continuous playing up of criminals and criminal acts. Added to this, the sickening exploitation of the female sex, by printing exaggerated illustrated accounts regarding the most insignificant acts of some notorious female, is bound to bring about a healthy re-action of the part of the clean minded citizenship of our community. The extremes to which the daily gutter-press has descended, was recently demonstrated when on the arrival here in San Francisco of a most important personage from a foreign country was announced to the public through an article illustrated with the portrait of a notorious female, portraying and praising her act, when she heaped an unsolicited and uncalled-for affront upon a respectable, dignified man, whose standing is at the very pinnacle of the government which he represented on his travels through this city. It is needless to say, that in his country, the representatives of our trade and industry will undoubtedly meet with unexpected and numerous obstacles to their success in placing San Francisco goods.

THE ARBUCKLE scandal proved a wonderful feast to the disreputable press in San Francisco, daily and otherwise which never missed a point in playing up and exaggerating every disgusting detail in connection with the affair. Scandalous in the extreme, with a notoriety-seeking district attorney's lust for publicity, this portion of the press certainly excelled itself in reaching hitherto unknown depths of degradation. Now that the actual trial is going on, and certain influences are said to be at work, as having engaged the very highest type of legal ability for the defense of the man, on what is probably an unjustified accusation, the scandal mongers have very perceptibly retreated, and no longer is the front page decorated with disgusting details of the Ar-buckle scandal.

SUNDAY NEWSPAPERS are wastefully extravagant in compelling purchasers to buy the whole unwholesome mess, instead of permitting the reader to select and pay for only that particular section in which he is interested. Suppose a customer wanted to read a certain magazine and was forced to pay, in addition to the one he desired, for copies of an "art" journal, a female fashion book, a Police Gazette, a bundle of automobile catalogues, a publication containing cheap foreign prattel, a farm paper, a treatise on the latest immoral scandals and a big bunch of advertising hand-bills—all of which he did NOT want but was compelled to pay for in order to get the one he wanted to read—the insanity would be no worse than now actually exists in relation to the Sunday "news-paper". Or, if you wanted to buy a loaf of a certain kind of bread, and the baker insisted that you also buy a loaf of each and every other kind of bread he has in stock, there would be an awful roar. But with the "news-papers" it is different; they have an "association" which we understand prescribes the size of each paper each day, the amount and the kind of reading matter contained therein and the price of "street sales" and the advertising and subscription rates, which latter, by the way, have not as yet taken a downward trend toward pre-war conditions as has been the case in all other industries.

SOME CIVIC JOURNALS RECEIVED BY LEAGUE

A new bulletin has made its appearance in this office: Municipal Reference Notes, published weekly by the New York Public Library "for circulation among the officials and employees of the City of New York".

The bulletin contains a brief article or two of the more important civic events of the week, reviews of books touching upon municipal matters, and a list of current civic literature. Other issues contain, in addition to the foregoing, brief items of what other cities are doing, lists of New York city publications, etc. A very valuable little paper indeed.

* * *

"The City", a publication devoted to the promotion and application of scientific principles of government, issued by the San Francisco Bureau of Governmental Research, has again made its appearance. Originally this publication was issued as a quarterly review, "supplemented by single sheet folders in which specific items of city business were discussed from time to time as occasion seemed to require". In 1917-1-819 publication was interrupted owing to the fact that five out of the eight regular employees of the paper entered the service, since which time it was deemed best to wait for a more auspicious time to resume. The publication is intended primarily to keep the membership of the bureau informed of its activities.

* * *

Another publication worthy special mention is "Municipal Facts Monthly", published by the City and County of Denver "for the information of residents as to the accomplishments and policies of the municipal government; for the purpose of helping Denver citizens to know the city thoroughly; for the preservation of records and facts that may become of historical interest." A special feature of the journal is the beautiful photographic reproductions of the places of note in and about Denver. Its articles concern themselves with all phases of civic life and development—and not merely with political phases.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

On September 1st, ground was broken in Detroit for a new Police Headquarters and First Precinct Station. A departure from old methods is planned, in that 11 blocks will be placed on the top two floors of the building. The Chicago Fire Department has contracted for $1,300,000 worth of apparatus which will be entirely motorized.

Kalamazoo on October 4th defeated the proposed new charter. The city-manager government will be retained.

Jacksonville, Fla., is planning a municipal gas plant.

Jersey City voted in favor of acquiring or building municipal works for light, heat and power.

Superintendent of the Dallas, Texas, Fire Department has his office fitted with wireless apparatus for receiving and transmitting messages. Recently while en route, two miles from the fire station, he received a fire call,—this is the first recorded instance of an actual fire call by wireless. At the last general election, Addletown and Lockport, N. Y., voted on Plan C of the Optional Cities Charter Law (City-Manager Plan) and it was defeated in both cities.

By a vote of 29,480 and 20,070 of ten municipalities of Alameda County, Cal., on November 1st rejected the proposal for a consolidation of city and county government.

The City of San Jose, Cal., has set aside lots on municipally owned land to be given free to prospective builders of small homes for their own use.

Edward W. Bok has created a fund in Philadelphia which awards each year to two members of the Fire Department and two of the Police Department a gift of $1,000 for "merit in the line of duty".

For the first time in the history of Wisconsin the tax commissioners of that state are to levy an impost on a municipal utility, the electric plant of Stoughton having made itself amenable to rate taxation by extending its service outside of the city. Stoughton will be forced to apply to the Public Service Commission for permission to increase its rates to meet the tax.

There's a Big Welcome Awaiting Him

A plan for a police school is being favored at Northwestern University. Courses would be given in methods of detection, such as finger-print methods, the elements of psychology, with particular bearing upon criminal behavior and mental hygiene, public sanitation and health, besides the principles of chemistry, physics and sociology, and a study of the statutes and municipal ordinances. The Police Department of Berkeley, Cal., in conjunction with the university there, has adopted the plan which was published in the Journal of Law and Criminology.

Denver has adopted a drastic method of stopping reckless driving. An ordinance recently passed by that city provides for impounding the cars of the person found guilty of reckless driving, for a period not to exceed six months. The specific provisions of the ordinance are that anyone found guilty of reckless driving shall not again operate a motor vehicle for a period of six months. In the event of violation of this prohibition, police officers are authorized to deliver the vehicle to the Custodian of Property in Denver, to be impounded by him.

The city of Detroit, Mich., operates a municipal asphalt plant under a superintendent of asphalt constructed and reported recently that up to the end of 1920 the asphalt had saved the city approximately $700,000. The Commissioner of Public Affairs of the City of Buffalo, N. Y., is urging the city commission to authorize the purchase of a municipal asphalt plant for that city.

The Baltimore Municipal Journal is a semi-monthly publication issued by the city government of Baltimore which sets forth from time to time the accomplishments as well as the problems of that city.

Comment by Managing Editor

A recent Sunday issue of the Denver Post was compared with our local Sunday paper last Sunday and the comparison was not favorable to the local paper.

The Denver Post sold for five cents and contained 94 pages, mostly of local, Colorado and world-wide news. There was at a rough estimate four times the news matter as contained in the Seattle papers and only a fraction of as much "mat" matter or so-called "feature" which is similar to the old "boiler plate" which the live publisher of even the country weekly discarded when the linotype was secured and he was able to fill his paper with live matter.

DID YOU ATTEND THE MEETING LAST WEEK?

Did you attend the meeting last Tuesday? That little personal touch got you there, didn't it? A telephone call from a friend asking you to come on out. That's what got you. We're going to try it again on you this week. Our attendance doubled. It will double again this Tuesday. You old League members who are getting so all blamed busy that you can't have luncheon with us once a week—just you wait and see. We'll make you sit up and take notice. And what's more we'll make you come and make you like to come.

The League is not a mutual business club. Maybe you won't make a new client, a new patient, or a new customer every time you attend a meeting. But you'll get a lot more out of it than that. You will get a new conception of practical idealism, a new faith in the city in which we live, and an entirely new desire to make the ideals that lie within you come out in the form of helpful service to your neighbors.

Come on out, you old timers. Don't tell us that you are too busy. The kind of men that compose the personnel of the Municipal League are all busy men. It is the busy men, the important men, YOU, we want.

Express your civic ideals through the League. Join the Crowd.

LEAGUE PRESIDENT MAKES ADDRESS

Claude H. Anderson, president of the Municipal League, delivered the address last Tuesday noon on the subject of, "Some Problems in Government Administration". The address was one of the most brilliant and inspiring ever delivered to the League. He was introduced by Howard Adams, chairman of the Program Committee. President Anderson said in part as follows:

When all of our problems are numbered down to the bone, they amount to this: the solving of the intricate human relationship in which person is trying to find happiness in this world; but a larger selfishness has been involved too—that of helping the other fellow.

Some might say that the autocratic, monarchic government is the best kind of government, but for myself, I am interested only in democratic government, and this kind of government presents the most complexities and vast problems.

Do we believe in government that is to be responsible and responsive to the people? And if we do, have we a system of checking up on our officials after they are elected? Is our system of checks and balances working out? Does it actually check public officials or does it merely check the people? I am not attempting at this time to present an answer to these questions; I am stating them for the purpose of influencing you to think upon them and to evolve an answer in your own mind.

Do we have a system of informing the electorate on current issues? The following quotation from a book written by Hamilton Bryant, on, "Commercialism and Journalism", may be given credence, and many of us are quite ready to corroborate from our own experience the convictions of this famous journalist, who wrote:

"There is no such thing in America as an independent press.

I am paid for keeping honest opinions out of the paper I am connected with. If I should allow honest opinions to be printed in one issue of my paper, before twenty-four hours my occupation, like Othello's, would be gone. The business of a New York journalist is to distort the truth, to lie outright, to pervert, to vilify, to fawn at the foot of Mammon, and to sell his country and his race for his daily bread. We are the tools or vassals of the rich men behind the scenes. Our time, our talents, our lives, our possibilities, are all the property of other men. We are intellectual prostitutes."

Do we believe in party government in America under bi-party control? Does it promise success? George Washington, in his last farewell had this to say concerning the danger of party government:

"I have already intimated to you the danger of parties in the State, with particular reference to the founding of them on geographical discrimination. Let me now take a more comprehensive view, and warn you in the most solemn manner against the baneful effects of the spirit of party, generally.

"This spirit, unfortunately, is inseparable from our nature, having its root in the strongest passions of the human mind. It exists under different shapes in all governments, more or less stifled, controlled, or repressed; but in those of the popular form it is seen in its greatest rankness, and is truly their worst enemy.

"The alternate domination of one faction over another, sharpened by the spirit of revenge, natural to party dissension, which in different ages and countries has perpetrated the most horrid enormities, is itself a frightful despotism. But this leads at length to a more formal and permanent despotism. The disorders and miseries which result, gradually incline the minds of men to seek security and repose in the absolute power of an individual; and sooner or later the chief of some prevailing faction, more able or more fortunate than his competitors, turns this disposition to the purposes of his own elevation, on the ruins of public liberty.

"Without looking forward to an extremity of this kind (which nevertheless ought not to be entirely out of sight), the common and continued mischief of the spirit of party are sufficient to make it in the interest and duty

GENERAL INTELLIGENCE AT PUBLIC EXPENSE

In one of the middle west states which has been a leader in public education for a half century a popular vote was taken in 1846 on the question of establishing a state system of free public schools.

Out of all the votes cast a majority of less than 2000 endorsed a public school system as against leaving education to the individual family or a neighborhood enterprise. A change of a 1000 vote would have robbed that progressive educational commonwealth of one of our best school systems.

Almost a majority of the voters were willing to say to their neighbors "If you want your children educated it is your individual responsibility" forgetting that the education of all is a community concern. This would have meant illiteracy to a large per cent of the population of a state. Intense individualism almost got the better of community interest and social obligation.

In the State of Washington we are now in the same position with regard to public library legislation that Indiana was in 1846 regarding public schools.

We willingly and even gladly spend our millions teaching our children how to read and straightway turn upon our heel against both intelligence and experience and vote against a plan that will enable the community to furnish reading matter to the children who have laboriously learned to read at community expense in a community institution commonly called a public school.

Why teach him to read and then refuse him the proper reading material? We have found that it is bad for all of us if some of us are illiterate. We have not discovered that it is bad for all of us if some of us are ignorant of the world's experience as recorded in the best books. We do not yet clearly see that all are injured if some read only the cheap, vulgar and vicious stuff as is done for lack of the good and the best.

In the more concentrated centers of population, such as our better cities and our medium sized towns, through community interest and willingness for social cooperation it has been found that the Public Library is a desirable, easily operated and financially economic, institution for the upkeep and increase of general intelligence.

Only human experience and the contemplation of such can ever educate any one. This experience may be that of the one being educated or that gained for him by others and transmitted to him through the printed page. Life is too short for each to experience, all he shall need to know, so economy of life demands that we shall read.

The public library is the highest form of intellectual and financial economy for all the people. In Seattle all the privileges of an excellent public library costs each of us but little more than fifty cents a year per person.

For this small sum I may have access to the world's intelligence in almost every line of human endeavor. In the small town and rural districts, however, when population is less concentrated fifty cents per person produces so little that the local library can not thrive. So a larger geographic unit must be selected and cooperation extended over a larger area.

The county has been found to be the most economically administered unit that at once gives property valuation adequate to supply an operating fund at a reasonable tax levy—such a fund as will provide a good book collection and secure a competent librarian.

The state is too large geographically to be administered directly for library purposes. By common conclusion of library thinking men all over the country, except in the state of Washington, the county has been accepted as the best, and really as the only feasible unit that can serve the small town and rural districts with library privileges.

A county library for our state will not be of special direct value to Seattle nor to any other city having a good public library.

However the general interest in the common intelligence of all the people of the state should be such that the more fortunate communities would feel an intense interest in helping all the villages and rural districts to the enjoyment of privileges such as they themselves have.

It is of great interest and value of New York and Illinois that Georgia and Mississippi should have good school systems and universal education, for the people of the south migrate and become citizens of the north.

It is likewise and equally important that a library system be established for the village and rural sections that those coming from there into our cities have equal opportunities. The cities recruit from the country and village and their coming to the city should not lower the level of its intelligence for, whether we will or not, we are our brother's keeper.

PRESIDENT CLAUDE H. ANDERSON ADDRESSES THE LEAGUE of a wise people to discourage and restrain it.

"It serves; always to distract the public councils, and enfeeble the public administration. It agitates the community with ill-founded jealousies and false alarms; kindles the animosity of one part against another, forms occasionally riot and insurrection. It opens the doors to foreign influence and corruption, which finds a facilitated access to the government itself through the channels of party passions. Thus the policy and will of one country are subjected to the policy and will of another.

"There is an opinion, that parties in free countries are useful checks upon the administration of the government, and serve to keep alive the spirit of liberty. This within certain limits is probably true, and in governments of a monarchical cast, patriotism may look with indulgence, if not with favor, upon the spirit of party. But in those of the popular character, in governments purely elective, it is a spirit not to be encouraged. From their natural tendency, it is certain there will always be enough of that spirit for every salutary purpose. And there being constant danger of excess, the effort ought to be, by force of public opinion to mitigate and assuage it. A fire not to be quenched, it demands a uniform vigilance to prevent its bursting into a flame, lest, instead of warming, it should consume."

Or is it worth while considering proportional representation—representation based upon the exact thought of certain groups of people. Many political scientists have considered this system as the only scientific method of expressing popular will.

Do we believe in executive control or do we believe in legislative control, or do we believe in the truth that the federal machine has become so cumbersome that it cannot be efficiently operated in any event.

The State of Washington through its last legislature passed a law creating the Washington State Veterans' Welfare Commission, appropriating $500,000 to the use of the commission consisting of five men. The law imposed no checks—no balance but gave absolute control to the Commission. This commission did splendid work largely because it was unhampered. Congress has not, so far as I know, passed legislation enabling any public official to carry out his wishes with restriction.

Do we have any theory of public employment? Or do the Spoils System still exist in our institutions? The Civil Service system doesn't work and isn't honest because there is no way to avoid civil service when one has sufficient public influence to exert. In other words the system works when those responsible for it want it to work and doesn't work when those responsible for it do not wish to work.

The weakest spot in the American government is the State Legislature,—the old bicameral system, based upon the federal system. Is there any reason why a state legislature should meet only every two years? A small body of legislators sitting continuously, elected at large, unicameral in character and adequately remunerated, can perform far greater service than the present system.

These questions, asked in spirit to awake your thought and interest in the problems of governmental life, are not merely mine—they are questions propounded by men who have given life service to the cause of better government. We must take stock of our institutions, of our systems, and of our methods of governmental control, and must, as good citizens, try to effect remedies and corrections as are needed in order that the people of this great country may express themselves accurately and so that its expression may be put into practical operation.

CHARTER REVISION

(From Municipal Reference Notes Published by the New York Public Library)

The civic organizations of New York City are demonstrating their readiness to launch upon the study of any problem before the public. The Charter Revision Commission, appointed by the governor a few weeks ago, has been given help in their study of a new charter or a revision for the City, by the Merchants Association, by the City Club of New York, New York State Joint Legislative Committee to Investigate the Affairs of the City of New York, and by the Union League Club. The studies of these organizations have appeared in printed form. The New York Civil Service Society reports it has a special committee working on charter revision and the Real Estate Board of New York also makes known its intentions.

The Merchants Association, in its "Synopsis of the Greater New York Charter", a 143-page pamphlet, shows a detailed study of the present charter and also gives an outline history of former charter commissions and the recommendations made by them. Each department, board and commission, is described in detail and the duties as described by the charter fully enumerated. This "Synopsis" can admirably serve as a text book on the charter, and city employees will find it a great help in this way. Especially valuable is the Appendix, which gives the Charter changes proposed in the former tentative revisions.

The First Report of the Meyer Committee (a ten-page pamphlet) contains "its conclusions as to some basic changes in the charter". The important change proposed is an elected board of finance of nine members to replace the present board of estimate and the sinking fund commission.

"The New York City Charter—Report on Charter Revision" of the City Club (a 40-page pamphlet) is the result of seven months' study by its members. Their "effort has been to bring into relief some of the more basic conceptions upon which it is thought that municipal government should be founded, and to emphasize some of the points where changes in the departmental structure seems most worthy of consideration". It recommends the transferring of the regulatory features of the charter to an administrative code.

The "Report of the Committee on Political Reform of the Union League Club" (a 14-page pamphlet) considers, among other problems, that of charter revision and recommends the appointment of a Special Committee on Municipal Affairs thoroughly to study these problems and to work with the Charter Revision Commission.

This Library will gladly lend to city officials and employees any of these recently published pamphlets on charter revision. It has prepared a bibliography on the subject, so that officials and employees may easily get from the Library all material bearing on any phase of the problem in which they may be interested.

If styles continue to be more extreme fig tree culture will soon be a most profitable industry.

As Strong As the Weakest Link

LEAGUE TO HEAR SOCIOLOGY PROFESSOR

R. D. McKensy, Professor of Sociology at the University of Washington, will be the principal speaker at the League's meeting next Tuesday, taking for his subject, "Municipal Areas of Opinion".

Howard A. Adams, chairman of the Program Committee, has arranged splendid programs for the next few weeks. Thus, Professor McKensy will be followed by Dean Stephen I. Miller on January 31st, Judson T. Jennings, head of the Seattle Public Library, on February 8th, and Frank J. Laube, Professor of Municipal Government at the University of Washington, on February 14th.

Senator A. B. Palmer will probably address the League on February 21st on his legislative reapportionment scheme. Senator Palmer was to have addressed the League this coming Tuesday, but was called on business east of the mountains, and could not appear before us Tuesday.

With our programs for the next few weeks as they are. League attendance ought to increase one hundred per cent. The last meeting of the League was well attended, plenty of enthusiasm was shown, and this, combined with the delightful meeting place and program of the day, served as one of the best meetings of the year. Increased attendance means a great deal to the League, and all members are urged to come. Lunches are but 50 cents.

LEAGUE HEARS ADDRESS ON THRIFT

In line with National Thrift Week, the local committee in charge of that work had Mr. A. P. Hull of the First National Bank address the League. He said in part, as follows:

"We must have sound economical policies in order to enjoy prosperity. Thrift Week, which was originally started in 1920 with the principal idea of saving, has this year been modified so that what we are striving for is not so much saving as it is thrift in spending and investing. Money should be carried in the bank merely in the form of a bank balance, but surplus money should be invested in enterprises which are engaged in commercial and industrial lines. Our slogan this year is 'Spend wisely,— buy what you need.'

CHEAPER PAPERS BEING DEMANDED

The campaign inaugurated by the Secretary last week for the reduction of the prices of Seattle Sunday newspapers has met with great success. A score of commendations have been received by the Secretary personally commending him for the article, and expressing a sympathy with the movement.

Seattle people are wondering why they must pay ten cents for their Sunday newspaper, when other great metropolitan dailies in near-by cities charge only five cents. Many people have become disgruntled with the high charge made by local newspapers and have cancelled their subscriptions altogether, while hundreds, and even thousands, it is understood, are boycotting the local papers and are buying the Oregonian, a Portland paper.

This is, indeed, a sad condition of affairs, and one which should secure the immediate attention of local publishers.

AY CHANGE FORM OF GOVERNMENT

At the last meeting of the Board of Trustees, it was determined by unanimous vote to investigate the possibility for changing the City Manager form of government an issue in the next municipal election in May. The committee has been appointed to interview the editors of all Seattle's daily newspapers and representatives of civic organizations, and if their support can be secured, the League will push the movement.

It will be recalled that the Municipal League went on record as favoring that kind of government for Seattle, and that a number of public officials have expressed themselves in sympathy with the League's action on this matter. It will have to go first to the Council, and if its appeal is not secured for its submission to the people, an initiative measure will have to be prepared and circulated. It is noted, however, that the Council will take favorable action, as an initiative will require a considerable amount of money and energy in order to carry it through to a successful conclusion.

The introduction of the charter amendment, even if passed through the Council, will necessitate a campaign of public education on the matter, for the subject is but little known in this part of the country. There can be no doubt but what there is a demand for a change in the form of municipal government. Mayhew, in his annual message, advocated a change — though he expressed himself in favor of effecting the change to the commission form." Councilman Fitzgerald stated openly in a League meeting recently that he was in thorough accord with the City-Manager idea.

TRUER REPRESENTATION URGED BY McKENZIE

R. D. McKenzie, Professor of Sociology of the University of Washington, addressed the League last Tuesday on "Municipal Areas of Opinion." Professor McKenzie said in part:

"Our representation in government is based upon territorial or geographical groupings. This system was inherited from the Anglo-Saxon tradition of area representation. In the olden days the representatives knew the attitude and the sentiments of the people, and they represented their particular group very well indeed. Then each little village was a world in itself. But we are living in a unique world today — unparalleled in history. A great mobility was begun about the middle of the last century, and is increasing in greater force from year to year.

"Thus, the railroads, which started in 1830 to 1845, now serve a passenger movement that runs into the billions; the Bell Telephone system which began functioning in 1875, in 1910, had millions of subscribers; the daily circulation of the press increased until today, in New York alone, at the next meeting, when definite action will be taken.

The committee's report will be presented to the Board at its next meeting, when definite action will be taken.

the circulation of its papers is over four million daily; and still another factor in the mobility in population is the automobile. "In making a study of Columbus, Ohio, in 1917 and 1918, I found that less than 50 per cent of the electorate in that city re-registered the following year. And in the business district of that city not more than 35 per cent re-registered. In general, I have found that the better residential areas were more stable, while the central portion of the city was most mobile. It is noteworthy, however, that not more than 75 per cent of the people re-registered in any precinct in the city of Columbus.

"Growing out of this condition of mobility, three forms of change in our basis of representation suggest themselves: The first is a change to the vocational basis or representation. This change, while advocated by eminent political scientists would, in my opinion, increase class consciousness and class conflict, and focus interest on selfish purposes. A second reform suggested is to try to restore territorial units by building up the neighborhood, the argument being that certain interests are

LEAGUE TO HAVE GOOD PROGRAMS

Those of the League who have been attending meetings regularly this fall and winter have had the pleasure of hearing the best programs that any organization in the city has been able to put on. And what is best, the programs that are scheduled for the next few weeks promise even more. Thus next week's address by Dean Stephen I. Miller should draw the attention of every citizen of Seattle. Dean Miller is actively identified with the forces working for the up-building of the commercial and industrial advantages of the great Pacific Northwest. He is a student of municipal government and his researches have been of inestimable value to this community. He gives of his time and energy untiringly. And when he speaks to an organization like ours he has a distinct message which no one interested in the League's ideals can afford to miss.

Judson T. Jennings of the Seattle Public Library needs no introduction to Municipal League men. Not only is he an able speaker but an entertaining and a witty one. Professor Frank J. Laube who will follow him is a practical idealist and ranks as the foremost authority on municipal matters on the Pacific Coast. And so it goes. And by the way, we have in our own head, President Claude H. Anderson, a most valuable man to call upon for an address, as those who heard him a week before last will testify. He is due to speak again the end of February.

The program committee of which Howard A. Adams is chairman is working hard to bring before you programs of merit. It is no easy task, but the committee is succeeding.

best met by this kind of representation, and that the neighborhood is the best sort of discipline for citizenship. The third method suggested is a combination of the first two. The real units of opinion now are associational grouping, that is: lodges, clubs, etc.

"To my mind the second reform suggested is the best. If areas of opinion could be made somewhat in line with the boundary of natural physical groupings of population, a great deal better kind of representation would result. This could be reinforced by further developing neighborhood consciousness.

"In this study at Columbus, I found further that on all questions of 'right' and 'wrong,' the central part of the city was strongly for the "wrong," while the residential part of the city was for the "right." Thus, on the question of woman suffrage and prohibition, the central part of the city was against both of these laws, while the residential areas were for them.

"With the break-down of local group opinion is a loss of one of the most valuable means of law enforcement."

HOW LONG?

OH, HOW LONG?

By Eimon L. Wienir.

We have noticed with delight that the women of the state have instituted a movement for the reduction of telephone rates. In line with this tendency for normal changes, there should also be a movement to reduce the gas rates now effective in Seattle. As one member of the League well said — "The public utility companies of the state were the first to apply for an increase of charge when prices went up;— now that normalcy is being reached, they give no indications of reducing their rates, and, in fact, in many instances have asked for further increase."

It is apparent that prosperity will come again only if inflated prices and unduly high charges of various sorts are brought down. The retail merchants of the city and the country as a whole realized the necessity for bringing down the prices as soon as the fake prosperity caused by the war terminated. In many instances, merchants took their losses immediately, and at once sacrificed, in a number of cases, the profits earned during the war; and often the loss was even greater. There is no earthly reason why utility companies operating under state control should not be compelled to do that which the retail merchants did voluntarily. The state commission should insist on a general house-cleaning within the corporations, should raise the efficiency of their various organizations, should insist on cutting down expenses, and thus bring down the cost of the service.

The writer is amazed at the wide-spread feeling caused by his recent articles on the reduction of the price of Seattle Sunday newspapers. If ever any indication was needed that the "News" was being read thoroughly, these articles have done away with that need. From numerous members came inquiries and offers of help. The newspapers are becoming aware of the movement, and it may be predicted with safety that in the near future they will realize the force of the argument and actually reduce the price to the normal nickel. Some members of the League have urged the Secretary to launch a campaign for better newspapers, rather than for lower price. They argue that the Sunday newspapers contain so much trash, that even a nickel is too much to pay for them. However, one thing at a time. With the increased circulation that Seattle newspapers will have by reason of the reduction in price, they can afford to get better news features and news service, and no doubt will be able, because of increased revenues, to improve the character of these papers.

TEAMWORK IN SEATTLE

By the Secretary

Time and time again I have heard it said that what Seattle needs above everything else just now is greater faith in itself. A new, virile, ambitious community, like an individual, is subject to doubts and fears concerning its own power. It is subject to the highest fits of ecstasy in times of great prosperity and then, in hard times, it drops into the slough of despondency. Neither if these moods is good for it; but it is natural to fall into them. Perhaps the older residents of the city are as much to blame for the present pessimistic spirit as anyone. Engrossed in their own affairs these builders of the city have failed to take heed of the symptoms of pessimism, have let them go on and on without a check. The leaders of Seattle's life must again come to the forefront and reassert their faith and imbue all the people of the city with a love for it, with a faith in it, and with a hope in the immediate revival of commerce and industry. There must not be any more knocking on the part of any Seattleite. A great city teamwork is needed. Everybody must pull together. Everybody must boost and boost and then boost some more. Let the old Seattle spirit—the spirit of faith and of "doing" things—again assert itself. And above all let the men who are leading in Seattle's life—in every phase of it—lay aside personal interests for while and work for the common good.

Every merchant should demand of his employees a greater courtesy to his customers; should demand that no derogatory word is said about Seattle; but on the contrary only praise. Every newspaper should interest itself in this work of instilling hope and faith in the great city of Seattle and its great and enterprising people.

CLEVELAND REVOLTS

(From Nat'l Municipal Review, January, 1922.)

As all the world knows, Cleveland on last election day adopted the city-manager plan with proportional representation to go into effect two years hence.

November 8, 1921, will long be memorable in Cleveland as the day of the great political earthquake. When the charter amendment embodying the manager plan and a council elected by proportional representation was proposed last spring, it was greeted with arched eyebrows and suppressed guffaws among the "best" people, and with roaring, raucous, horselaug among the politicians. "Doc Hatton was peddling his nostrums again! A professor in politics! It was to laugh! And in order to provide further merriment the dominant political organization framed and perpetrated upon the deluded reformers a huge practical joke that caused "the boys" nearly to choke with laughter. Upon the filing of the initiative petition by the proponents of the manager plan the clerk of the board of elections suddenly developed a conscientiousness in the scrutiny of signatures that postponed on the petition until under law it was too late to secure special election. According to scenario a "fadeout" for the reformers was indicated at this juncture, but the reformers refused to fade. Quietly they withdrew the petition and set out the circulation of another, when this second petition was filed it was discovered that not only did it contain nearly as many signatures as the first, but that each signature had been so checked and verified that there was nothing for the board of elections to do but certify it to the council and nothing for the council to do but order the proposed amendment on the ballot at the general election on November 8.

The campaign in connection with the city-manager amendment was quite devoid of the spectacular. The supporters of the amendment lacked the money to attempt anything spectacular, and the opponents apparently thought it unnecessary. Mr. A. Hatton, as the prime mover of the circulation of the petition, naturally became the leading champion of the amendment on the stump. Mr. George B. Harris, an attorney of prominence, was in some way elected to head the opposition. The principal feature of the campaign was a series of joint debates between these two, which covered practically every section of the city and culminated in a great debate before the City Club. In appraising the effect of these debates it may be said that it is generally agreed that Mr. Harris made about as many converts for the manager plan as did Mr. Hatton. Indeed, it was characteristic of the campaign that whenever the opponents of the manager plan made a move, they helped the manager amendment more than they hurt it. And this was particularly true of the sterical opposition of the Cleveland News and the skeptical attitude of the Cleveland Main Dealer. These facts, however, were not apparent until the closing days of the campaign, and even as late as a week before election day many of us who could have known better were of the opinion that the manager amendment had only an outside chance to win. Consequently there was universal astonishment when the official returns showed that it had carried by the convincing majority of 19,684.

CHARTER AMENDMENT CONTAINS NO COM- PROMISE

The city-manager amendment itself deserves a special article. It is remarkable in every way—remarkable for the way it was drafted, remarkable for what it contains, and remarkable for what it accomplishes. What the amendment actually does is to repeal all but the first two sections of the existing charter of the city and to add to these 181 additional sections which in reality comprise an entirely new charter for the city. Perhaps it were better for the present not to go into the history of this new Cleveland charter, but it should be said that so far as the writer knows it is the only municipal charter in the country every word of which was drafted by experts and that is totally devoid of any compromise on grounds of political expediency. It is as thoroughgoing and consistent as knowledge and experience could make it. It provides for a council of twenty-five members elected by the Hare system of proportional representation. The city is divided into four districts for the purpose of electing members of the council, the districts electing seven, five, six and seven members respectively by the proportional representation method. The disparities in membership between the districts are accounted for by disparities in population. The primary object sought in laying out the districts was not equality of population, but social and economic homogeneity. The council is required to appoint a city manager as the chief executive officer of the city, and it is provided that the manager need not be a resident of the city or state and that he shall not be a member of the council. The manager is given power to appoint administrative subordinates whose appointment is not otherwise provided for in the charter. All such officers and employees are made immediately responsible to the manager and may be discharged by him at any time. The council and its committees are specifically forbidden to interfere in any way with appointments by the manager; and, except for the purpose of inquiry, the council may deal with the administrative service of the city only through the manager. The amendment provides for the creation of the several administrative departments and prescribes their procedure somewhat in detail. Elaborate budgetary provisions are included, and the same is true regarding civil service, franchises, special assessments for public improvements, and many other subjects.

KOHLER ELECTED MAYOR

The second great surprise of the Cleveland election was the mayoralty contest. When Fred Kohler announced his candidacy early in the season, the "best" people held their noses and the politicians winked appreciatively. Fred Kohler was not unknown in Cleveland. Under Mayors Tom L. Johnson and Newton D. Baker he had been chief of police, and Theodore Roosevelt in an exuberant moment had called him "the best chief of police in the United States." But owing to certain erotic indiscretions, charges of gross immorality and conduct unbecoming to an officer had been preferred against him, and he had been tried, convicted, and dismissed in disgrace. Immediately he sought vindication in the political arena and became a candidate for various offices without success until 1918 when he was elected county commissioner. He was re-elected to the same office in 1920 by an overwhelming majority, and thus was encouraged to try for the mayoralty in 1921. The Republican organization decided to back the incumbent, Mr. FitzGerald; the Democratic organization backed E. B. Haserodt; and Kohler with four others stood as independents. The Cleveland charter with nominations by petition and the preferential ballot was intended to favor the independent candidate, but no candidate without the support of one or the other of the party machines had ever been elected. With the field divided among seven candidates, it looked like a sure thing for one organization or the other. Two things, however, were overlooked in this reckoning: (1) that the people of Cleveland were disgusted with machine politics, and (2) the unique campaign conducted by Mr. Kohler. Mr. Kohler absolutely refused throughout the campaign to make a speech or public address; he announced no program or platform; he did not deny past misconduct or seek to extenuate it; he simply insisted that his record for efficiency and integrity was above reproach, adorned himself with his Roosevelt decoration, and promised to give Cleveland "the best administration it has ever had." To get into contact with the voters he used a method that was completely baffling to the opposition. Having developed unusual powers as a pedestrian during the years that he served on the police force as a patrolman, Kohler undertook to make a house-to-house canvass of the city. Exactly how many homes he visited in his solicitation of votes is known only to Kohler himself, but it is certain he managed to get over practically all of the ground that he deemed important. This type of campaign was especially disconcerting to the other candidates because they had no means of measuring its success, and the roads he was making upon his strength was not apparent until straw votes near the end of the campaign showed unmistakably that it was a case of Kohler against the field. The election returns showed Kohler leading from the start, and although he did not secure the majority of first choice votes, nor the majority of first and second choice votes necessary to election under the "Mary Ann" ballot, neither did any other candidate. Then under the charter it was necessary to count all choices, and Kohler was found to have a clear plurality of all-choice votes, and was therefore elected.

A MACHINE DEFEAT

Some have chosen to interpret the election of Mr. Kohler as proof-positive of the utter depravity of municipal politics, but penetrating observers will not so construe it. Kohler's two leading opponents were hand-picked machine candidates with no conspicuous personal qualities. Of the independent candidates only Kohler and one other could be taken seriously, but the latter entered the campaign compari-tively unknown while Kohler was probably the most widely known individual in the city. Aside from the matter of private morality, Kohler had achieved a reputation in public life for rugged honesty, efficiency, and independence, and he was elected because of his reputation and in spite of the blot on his private life.

In addition to these two outstanding matters the voters were called upon to elect a chief justice and three justices of the municipal court, to approve or reject two bond issues, and to vote upon three amendments to the state constitution. It is to the credit of the electorate that three of the four men elected to the municipal bench had been endorsed by the bar association and other civic bodies. Civic organizations had urged the defeat of both bond issues, but the voters decided in favor of issuing bonds for the construction of a central library building and against the issuance of bonds for a jail and criminal courts building. Considerations of economy were allowed to prevail in the one instance, but not in the other, which involved a great community service in which all were interested. The three constitutional amendments, not being municipal questions, require no discussion here.

In conclusion I would say that this election was a most inspiring event for those of us who like to believe in government not only of and for the people, but by the people. Our faith has been none too strong at times, and frequently we have been tempted to fear that "the struggle naught availeth" and that the labor and the wounds are indeed vain. But Cleveland has shown us that the people will rise to a great challenge, that they will not shrink before the big and constructive task, and that they can deal with principles as well as with men. And if Cleveland, with her 800,000 people of every race and color and creed, can accomplish such a thing, what may not democracy dare to hope!

HAIGHT RETURNS

James A. Haight, past president of the Municipal League, and now acting as a member of the Board of Trustees, who was absent from the city for the past several weeks, has again returned to be with us a short time. Mr. Haight plans however again to leave for California in the near future.

A Weekly Publication Devoted Solely to the Betterment of Seattle

VOL. XII. NO. 5.

SEATTLE, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1922.

PRICE 10 CENTS

Trustees, Seattle Municipal League,
Seattle, Wash.
Gentlemen:

With deep regret I hereby tender my resignation as president of the Municipal League, to take effect on or before February 18th, at which time I will leave the city.

It has been a very real pleasure to serve as president of the Seattle Municipal League and I keenly appreciate the honor and the privilege, which I have tried to demonstrate by discharging the responsibility as satisfactorily as my ability and time would permit. Likewise, I appreciate the splendid cooperation and assistance of the Board of Trustees and the support of the members. without this, nothing could have been done. Furthermore, my association with you has been a very real pleasure, which I have greatly enjoyed.

It may not be amiss for me to say a word about the League and its possible future. I feel, as I have before expressed to you, that Seattle is fortunate indeed in having an organization such as the Municipal League. For the same reason that a "Prophet is not without honor save in his own country", so we frequently find that local organizations seldom, if ever, receive the appreciation that is their proper due. This, in my judgment, is true of the Municipal League of Seattle.

I am sure that no city in America has a better and more virile organization, confining itself exclusively to the betterment of the city through study, consideration, and active interest in municipal affairs. Not only has no city a better organization of this kind, but few American cities have such an organization at all. I happen to personally know that such organizations have been formed in several other cities but have died after a brief sporadic effort. It is a compliment to the citizens of Seattle and a tribute to the members of the League that civic interest here is of such character as to keep alive for more than eleven years such heightened civic interest as perpetuates such an organization.

So long as such interest continues and so long as the League can maintain its present efforts, there need be no real fears for the future of Seattle in civic matters. But I expect more. I think that the League will never have a much larger membership than it now has, at least, not until the population of the city increases, but I feel sure that public affairs are going to take a turn here, within the next few years, that will give the Municipal League an opportunity to lead the citizenship of the city in attaining a vastly improved municipal government and a much better and happier city in many regards.

It has been difficult for me to bring myself to a decision to leave Seattle but out of a proper regard for the welfare of my family, I am obliged to consider my own advancement and future and have, therefore, been obliged to accept a position in Washington, D. C. My period of more than three years' residence in Seattle has been so very happy, my associations have been so exceedingly pleasant, and I like everything about me so well that I have the hope- although I cannot now call it an expectation- that I may be able to some day return to Seattle to live and share with you the future greatness and privileges of Seattle and the Northwest.

Cordially and faithfully yours,
CLAUDE H. ANDERSON.

GOVERNMENT AND INDUSTRY

That the chief problem of business is that of efficiency and enthusiasm, and not of profits, and that government action or control does not step fast enough to keep pace with business, were the outstanding remarks of Dean Stephen I. Miller of the College of Business Administration of the University of Washington in his address to the League last Tuesday. Dean Miller said in part:

"Industry has been evolving toward monopoly. Competition

THE PRESIDENT'S RESIGNATION

By Eimon L. Wienir

When the resignation of Claude H. Anderson as president of the League, was tendered, it is no exaggeration to say that it caused a shock to each and every member of the Board present; and it was only because of the indisputable fact of Mr. Anderson's leaving the city that made the acceptance of his resignation possible. I am certain that had President Anderson given any other reason for his action, the Board would not have accepted his resignation.

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

While practically a new-comer in Seattle and new to the majority of the members of the Municipal League, Mr. Anderson has attained a reputation and a respect which is beyond all proportion to the comparatively brief period of his residence. Coming to the presidency fully equipped with a thorough knowledge of municipal and governmental problems, and with a keen sense of a citizen's duty towards government and the interests of the "other fellow", Mr. Anderson, in the short period of his presidency of the League, has been able to inspire and enthuse the League's personnel as perhaps no other single individual has ever been able to do before. His broad conception of the objects of the League, his alertness in the control of the League's affairs and in directing its activities, his unbounded faith in the League's mission, has endeared him to everyone who came in contact with his spoken and written word.

It is with a sense of deep loss that Mr. Anderson leaves us. We wish him well in his new field of endeavor and trust that he will meet with every element of success in his new home.

An article which appeared in the "News" of two weeks ago, entitled, "General Intelligence at Public Expense", had omitted from it the name of the writer, W. E. Henry, a member of the Board of Trustees of the Municipal League, and head of the University of Washington library.

The writer, after pointing out the value of library service to the community, made a plea for the extension of library service to the rural districts.

"The state is too large geographically to be administered directly for library purposes. By common conclusion of library thinking men all over the country, except in the state of Washington, the county has been accepted as the best, and really as the only feasible unit that can serve the small town and rural districts with library privileges," declared Mr. Henry.

The writer went on to say that, while a county library would not be of special direct value to Seattle, "the general interest in the common intelligence of all the people of the state should be such that the more fortunate communities would feel an intense interest in helping all the villages and rural districts to the enjoyment of privileges such as they themselves have."

reflects biological and economic competition, for no two producers can produce any commodity at the same cost, and no two distributors can distribute any commodity at the same cost. There is bound to be a cutting of prices to make for greater distribution.

"The small man can now, in many instances, produce and distribute commodities much more cheaply than heretofore because of the wide-spread educational information.

"It must be borne in mind, however, that monopoly prices must be made in the light of prices on "substituted" articles. Invention, also, creeps in and makes obsolete the old processes. Foreign trade, too, has a tendency to check complete monopoly. By its very economic situation, therefore, monopoly must find itself checked.

"Most of our present financial ills come from speculative businesses, and one of the greatest evils is that of over-capitalization. Here is a place for a broad state control of corporate capitalization. This however, is the weakness of government control: large business must be continuous; but government action is anything but continuous. It can't step fast enough. Take the Inter-State Commerce Commission for example. Not only is it physically impossible for 11 men to settle differences arising out of the operation of all of the railroads of the country—but the same would be true if there were 111 men on the Commission."

Dean Miller attacked the "cost-plus" principle in business, and termed it one of the most deteriorating influences in industry. It affords no incentive to produce at the lowest cost and destroys efficiency wherever attempted, declared the Dean.

In speaking of government ownership, he termed it as slow and "horizontal, irritating, and resting on the pockets of the tax payers." Government ownership has not ceased to be political in character, he added.

Business men are taking the better view of business and the public's interest. Dean Miller declared. There is a keener sense of public responsibility. The new social interpretation of success is public service, he said.

BEAUTIFY THE CITY

By Eimon L. Wienir

Last week I wrote an article directed toward the securing of a better civic spirit for Seattle for a greater faith, for greater team work. Apparently, from the number of comments upon this article it struck true.

I have this time in mind another thing now lacking in Seattle: the whole world knows that Seattle is one of the most beautiful cities to be found anywhere. Its mountains, its beautiful lakes, the great Sound, give a unique setting to this marvelously beautiful city; and moreover, the people of Seattle have done a great deal in overcoming physical difficulties. Though our great hills have been washed down, imposing buildings have been erected, parks established and so on. But withall, it seems to me that the city could be made much more attractive if the people would have a uniform system of tree planting in the parking strips, paint their houses, and in general, do what other great cities of America have done in the way of civic art. We do not want to be known very much longer as the "vikings of the north". We should not remain a crude, uncouth, frontier city. What the city of Denver has done in the way of establishing its beautiful art museums and masterful sculpture work throughout the city, Seattle can do.

In other words, what I mean to say is that while nature has given us a setting for our city and while man has overcome certain natural difficulties and has built imposing buildings, man has not embellished upon his work. That little touch which is so delightful in making a place livable is, generally speaking, lacking. That little touch can be attained at very little expense and it'll make a difference in the world."

Nine armored automobiles equipped with machine guns were recently acquired by the police department of San Francisco. The department also plans to install "thief traps" on the roads of ingress and egress. A station has already been established.

CITY MANAGER PLAN NOT TO BE PRESENTED THIS YEAR

A report was presented from the committee considering the matter of submission of the City manager plan to the Council to be referred to the people for vote. The committee, consisting of President Claude H. Anderson, James T. Lawler, James H. Haight, and Secretary Eimon Wienir, reported that, in view of the short period of time between now and the time when the matter must be submitted to the Council, it would be impossible to create a public sentiment sufficiently strong to induce the Council to submit it to the people. Furthermore, by reason of the three-cent car fare initiative bill so all-important in this coming election, it would be wise not to inject any more issues. The Board after considerable debate accepted the committee's report and instructed the City manager committee and the Charter Revision committee to discontinue and join in their efforts in presenting a complete charter revision in ample time for its submission at the election of 1923.

DOES PROHIBITION PROHIBIT?

In a recent copy of the "City Record", a transcript of the proceedings of the Council of the city of Buffalo, New York, there appears an interesting communication from Mayor Frank J. Schwab of that city concerning a modification of prohibition laws. Mayor Schwab points out in his communication (dated Jan. 18, 1922) that the City Council of Chicago adopted a resolution recommending "a reasonable and liberal modification of prohibition laws which will permit the manufacture, sale and distribution of wholesome beers and light wines."

"The Preamble to this resolution," stated Mayor Schwab, "recited that the enactment of the Federal Prohibition Act has failed to meet with the approval of the general public throughout the country." And that, "While most comprehensive, drastic and summary in its character and scope, efforts to enforce same at vast public expense, have utterly failed to obtain and secure for it due and proper respect and obedience on the part of the people; that abundant statistics of unimpeachable nature fully and conclusively demonstrate the fact that the general public is opposed to existing prohibition laws which deprive people of the natural and customary use and consumption of stimulating beverages."

Mayor Schwab then goes on to say that he agrees with this preamble and with the intent and purpose of the resolution adopted at Chicago, and recommended that it be declared the sense of The Council of the City of Buffalo, and that Congress and the Legislature of the State of New York amend and modify existing prohibition laws under their respective jurisdictions and within their proper powers which will permit the manufacture, sale and distribution of wholesome beers and light wines.

It is a matter of common knowledge, stated Mayor Schwab, that a very large proportion of intoxicating liquors sold in the city of Buffalo, in violation of the provisions of the prohibition laws, "is little better than downright poison", and that much of this traffic in unwholesome drinks is handled by the proprietors of so-called soft drink places of which there are nearly or quite eight thousand in the city at this time. Many of these places are also nests of vice and crime, and all are wholly unregulated through any ordinance provisions.

Mayor Schwab then went on to say that in order to insure a measure of protection to the public health, safety, good order and morals, he had caused to be prepared a draft of the ordinance, requiring all such places to be conducted under a license procured from the Mayor, and making them subject to regulations "I believe to be absolutely necessary for the welfare of the City." The outstanding points of the ordinance are that:

1. Licenses are to cost $25 a year.

2: A person applying for the license must give a complete statement of his character and business associations in the City of Buffalo and specifically state the character of the place he is to conduct.

3. The giving of full authority to the mayor to refuse licenses when he believes that the applicant is not of good moral character.

4. Provides for the closing of places between midnight and six o'clock a. m.

5. Provides that there shall be no obstructions in the place of business so that anyone from the outside may have a clear view of the interior of the premises.

And other similar provisions tending to guard the general morals of the place.

It is astonishing to note that there are eight thousand soft drink places in the City of Buffalo. It would be interesting to know how many soft drink places there are in Seattle, though, guessing roughly, I believe that there are not more than five hundred such places here or perhaps less.

For some time past, I have believed in the necessity for the licensing of such places and for a stricter supervision by the authorities. These soft drink places are today a menacing influence in the city and unquestionably much graft is obtained from the proprietors of these places for so-called "protection". The manner in which these places are operated at the present time, and the character of the stuff that is sold over the counter is a disgrace. Those who frequent these places refer to them as saloons, and certainly they are not much better than the saloons of the worst type known in the old days, and either these places ought to be put out of business altogether or else they should be supervised by governmental authority that really can supervise. I am inclined to believe that the suggestion of Mayor Schwab of Buffalo should not be dismissed so lightly, and that the much laughed at resolution of the City Council of Chicago should receive some earnest attention. There is no use in fooling ourselves in thinking that the prohibition laws are being enforced. It is doubtful if they can ever be enforced, and if a wholesome beer or light wine can be legitimately sold it may be much better to the community than by pretending that the present status of things is just as it should be.

RAILWAY HEAD IS TO ADDRESS LEAGUE ON TUESDAY

In line with the policy of the League to secure addresses on timely topics, the Program Committee is able to announce that D. W. Henderson, Superintendent of Railways, will speak to the League Tuesday noon. Superintendent Henderson will elaborate on his report to the Council concerning Peter Witt's findings and recommendations. Superintendent Henderson stated that he had information additional to that contained in his written report which he would present to the League Tuesday.

Jedson T. Jennings, head of the Seattle Public Library, who is to have addressed the League at this time will speak on February 21. Professor Frank J. Laube will speak February 14.

MINNEAPOLIS MAN COMMENDS ARTICLE

January 31, 1922.

Mr. Eimon L. Wiener, Secretary
Municipal League of Seattle,
Seattle, Washington.

Dear Sir:

I have today received copy of the Seattle Municipal News containing an article indicating that City Manager government is being discussed with some possibility of its adoption in Seattle in the near future. It is a heartening sign to those of us who believe that that type of government offers the best and most effective machinery for carrying out the will of the people and at the same time in the most economical and efficient manner. I sincerely hope that, with the sentiment indicated in the article for Commission government, you will use that merely as a stepping stone to carry on one step further and add the manager feature to it. Many cities which are now under Commission government are seriously considering such a step. Very few cities are adopting Commission government as such. Those who are under Commission government realize that it is many respects a decided advance over the old Mayor-Council form where there was a great deal of passing the buck between legislative and executive bodies. Very few cities are changing back from Commission to Mayor-Council government. With your splendid basis of a small Council of 9 members elected at large you are in the best possible position to adopt the next two progressive steps, namely, Proportional Representation as a method of electing the Councilmen and substituting the Manager, chosen by the Council, for the Mayor, elected by the people, as the administrative head of the government. I sincerely hope that Seattle will give further evidence of the very progressive nature of the far western cities in matters of city government.

It is likewise especially gratifying to me to know that you are trying to establish a Bureau of Municipal Research. Wherever they have been created citizens, and officials alike, have found them of very definite value in helping to gather the facts with which to inform the public on the one hand, and with which to help the officials better to perform their duties. At any time that I can be of service in making available the experience I have had in the past ten years in this field, it will be a pleasure to do so.

Later I shall look up some of the publications of which we may have enough on hand to send you a copy and, at the same time, put you on the mailing list for others.

Very truly yours,
F. L. OLSON,
Director, Bureau of Municipal Research.

The architect is Frank Pech, an Englishman, who is probably the greatest living authority on Gothic architecture. The Anglican Communion is raising a fund to build the cathedral which stands on the present site of St. Marks Church and will take probably twenty years to complete.

HENDERSON SPEAKS ON WITT REPORT

By Eimon L. Wienir

D. W. Henderson, General Superintendent of Seattle Municipal Railway, addressed the League Tuesday noon, taking for his subject "Peter Witt's Report." Mr. Henderson was introduced by President Claude H. Anderson, who said: "Peter Witt has come and gone, but he has left a definite impression with the people of Seattle. It is only proper that Mr. Henderson should discuss the report which Mr. Witt made."

Mr. Henderson stated that he has no regret to express in Mr. Witt having come here; and considered it remarkable that Witt could have made as excellent a report as he did unassisted except for such help Mr. Henderson's department was able to give him, in allowing him access to the records of the department. He clarified the atmosphere," declared Henderson, "and the good that he did may not show to all at once, but ultimately Seattle will be benefited. He pointed out what our problems were, and he left our own citizens to solve them."

Henderson stated that the $300,000 saving which Mr. Witt said could be made by reducing service in the business district would be impracticable.

Another $800,000 which Mr. Witt declared could be saved by reducing the number of employees, Mr. Henderson said he found to be, at best, greatly exaggerated; while, virtually the only important item in which Henderson agreed with Witt was in the matter of 200 new cars, and the prediction that such purchase would save about $100,000 a year for power.

Out of the Witt proposals, Mr. Henderson made the following recommendations:

1. Purchase of 200 new cars as proposed by Mr. Witt.
2. Rerouting of several north-end and hill car lines.
3. Use of the one-man cars, though not to the extent proposed by Mr. Witt.
4. Construction of a car line to the Stadium.
5. Construction of a Cowen Park extension.

Henderson pointed out that Witt's recommendation that cars be turned about at the Occidental loop, did not meet with either public approval or convenience, adding that under present conditions of congestion it would be entirely impracticable. The people from the east side are entitled to just as many privileges as the people from other districts, he declared, and the cost of making the change would involve an additional expense of $104 a day.

Turning his attention to the Whatcom Avenue elevated, Mr. Henderson said that it was unfortunate that the city had to build it in so short a time. He pointed out that the maintenance cost last year was almost $5,000, and that at the present time a force of men must be employed to inspect and make necessary repairs. He argued that the municipal railway line should not be compelled to maintain the double track on the elevated. He favors the continuance of the Spokane Street trestle however and extending it to meet the needs of the future.

Henderson also pointed out that Dexter Avenue should be cut through to the downtown district and thus form another channel for the passage of traffic to Westlake Avenue. He said that this would relieve Westlake Avenue traffic and speed up traffic to and from the people living on the other side of the canal. He also favored the reconstruction of the tracks on Westlake Avenue.

With regard to one-man car operation, Mr. Henderson said that it would be impracticable on the Madison and West Queen Anne lines particularly, but in

BALDWIN TO BE NEW PRESIDENT

At the last meeting of the Board of Trustees, Julius L. Baldwin was elected president, to succeed Claude H. Anderson who has resigned because of leaving the city to assume a position in Washington, D. C. Mr. Baldwin is one of the charter members of the Municipal League, and has been actively identified with the League continuously for the past eleven years. He is a lawyer with offices in the Leary Building. The new executive will assume charge of the affairs of the League on February 18th and will preside at the meeting of the Tuesday following.

Next Tuesday's meeting will be in the nature of a farewell to President Claude H. Anderson. It is urged upon the membership to turn out in force for this meeting and thus show honor to our departing officer. Mr. Anderson has set a high standard for the League to follow, and his leadership will be greatly missed. The meeting will also be featured by an address by Professor Frank J. Laube, of the Political Science Department of the University of Washington. Mr. Laube has addressed the League several times during the past few years, and he always has a message well worth while to hear.

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

Municipal League does not assume the "responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League." Some adverse criticism has reached the writer of the article. The following letter from Rev. U. G. Murphy, being a fair indication of the adverse comment.

The evil of the soft drink places is becoming more apparent every day, and a stricter regulation is absolutely necessary for the welfare of the community. The League, of course, is interested in that phase of the question. The letter from Rev. Murphy follows:

"Editor Municipal News,
"Dear Sir:

"Under the caption of "Does prohibition prohibit?", in this week's Municipal News, written, presumably, by the Secretary of the League, there are some statements that, it seems to me, would better fit the pages of a saloon journal. That there are difficulties in the way of enforcing the 18th Amendment all will admit, but nullifying the Amendment is not the common sense way of solving the problem.

"The Harrison Act is being violated also, and there are many who believe that the narcotic situation is very much more serious than the liquor situation, yet no sane man would advocate the repeal or modification of the laws prohibiting the sale of narcotic drugs. In view of the law abiding (?) tendencies of saloons in the past, who believed that any saloon, or beverage parlor, would obey the law were five or six per cent beer and wine allowed to be sold?

"That soft drink places should be licensed and under strict supervision goes without saying, and some day Seattle will have a city council that will provide the needed legislation. As a member of the League I wish to file my protest against the use of the League's official organ to exploit the resolutions of the Chicago, or any other, booze dominated city council.

Sincerely,
U. G. MURPHY."

HENDERSON CRITICIZES WITT REPORT

general was in favor of the one-man car idea. He said that they were safer and speedier, but in my opinion, it is impossible to have the one-man car on heavy car tracks and the expense of changing the tracks would be too great. He disagreed with Witt that the use of the one-man car would effect a decrease in the number of 444 men. He stated that it might reduce the personnel 300. He pointed out, however, that the one-man operator must be paid more, otherwise the lines will not get the efficiency that they are entitled to. Mr. Henderson concluded his address with an appeal for definite policies especially on the matter of fare, and decried the attempts that are being made to continually juggle with the rate of fare.

ARTICLES FOR THE NEWS AND SUGGESTIONS FOR THE LEAGUE WANTED

By the Secretary

Every member of the League is urged to send in an article for publication in the "News" which would be of general interest to the League, and along the lines that the league is working on. If you have any criticism to make of any matter that appears in the "News", or of the manner in which the publication is being edited, please do not hesitate to give us your criticism, for it is only in that way that the publication will improve in quality and be of greater service to you and to the city as a whole.

Any suggestions that any member may have concerning the League's activities, policies, or ideals will be welcomed by the editors of this paper and by the officers of the League. The executives and directors of the League are not a closed corporation. Every member has an equal voice in directing the affairs of the League, and when he makes himself heard, his ideas are given due consideration. The inspiring words of our retiring president Claude H. Anderson must give hope to every one who is interested in this organization; and, coming, as it does, from one who has had a vast experience with civic organizations and civic affairs, it is especially noteworthy. You, fellow member, must not remain content with seeing others do the work. It is up to you to do your share, and that consists not merely in attending the meetings every Tuesday noon, but in actually giving the League the benefit of constructive thought and suggestion along lines which will tend to make it better and more effective.

STOP JUGGLING WITH THE CAR LINES

By the Secretary

One outstanding feature of Mr. Henderson's address to the League Tuesday, was his appeal to the citizens of Seattle to stop tampering with the car fare. He pointed out that the road is just barely paying its way at present at an 8 1-3 cent fare, after the 5 cent fare and the 6 1-4 cent fare had been thoroughly tried out and found to be inadequate. Now the Council has indicated that it will submit to the voters of the city the question of whether they want the 5 cent fare, well knowing as they do, that that rate of fare will result in a deficiency which will have to be met out of general taxation. This is one of the unfortunate features of municipal ownership, and I presume that so long as the city does own the railway system (and it is likely that it will be the owner for many years to come) it will be in politics.

Under the leadership of Mr. Henderson, from all that we are able to learn the lines are being ably administered. His recommendations should be accepted by the Council without equivocating. Let him alone. Let him run and operate the street cars of this city in the best way that he knows how. When he proves himself incapable, get some one else—but, until he does so, the Council should cease monkeying with a thing it knows nothing about.

It is said that the municipal railway problem in Seattle, especially in so far as the rate of fare is concerned in its effect on taxation, is one of the chief draw-backs of the city. Goodness knows, we have gotten into a bad enough fix without having our Councilmen make it worse by meddling in it.

The League has consistently urged a policy of keeping the street car system self-supporting without resorting to general taxation. The League committee advocated an increase of fare from 5 cents to 6 1-4 cents, and has approved the further increase to 8 1-3 cents when the lower fare was found to be insufficient to defray all necessary cost. When one of the local newspapers initiated the movement to cut the fare to 5 cents, the League urged upon the Council to first make a thorough investigation of what that will mean, legally (in its effect upon the contract entered into with the private company), and financially in so far as the revenue which will result by reason of the decrease in fare are affected

There is no need of submitting the 5 cent fare to the people. It was understood by all who voted for the car line purchase that they were to be self-supported out of the revenues derived from their operation, and that the general fund should not be tapped in any way.

There seems to be no general dissatisfaction with the increased fare. People have accepted it as a matter of course, because they realize that it is necessary. Mr. Witt frankly reported that 8 1-3 cent fare now is no higher than 5 cent fare before the war. None of the revenue is being wastefully expended except in high wages; there is no graft in connection with the operation of the railways so far as anyone knows, and there is no suspicion of that fact. The agitation is made by those who are interested in ingratiating themselves with the general mass of the people, and by those seeking political popularity.

Good citizens should frown upon these maneuverings and combat with every possible effort these attempts to further embroil the lines and make the mess that we are in still worse. Keep the municipal lines out of politics,"—that should be our slogan.

LEAGUE'S ATTORNEYS ARE SUPPORTING PUBLICATION

Lawyers who are members of the League have given their support to the "Municipal News" very generously during the past few months, but not to the extent that would make this publication self-supporting. Our printers are at a great expense in publishing this bulletin. The "legals" constitute its chief revenue. By giving all of their "legals" and their briefs to the printers of this paper, lawyers can render a very material service.

The Municipal Reference Library Notes published by the Public Library of the city of New York, announces the publication of two new periodicals. The first one, "Bus Transportation", is a new weekly publication by the McGraw-Hill Company, edited by Harold V. Bozell. "It is an outgrowth of the demand in the urban and suburban transportation field. The articles are written by authorities and on pertinent problems," the bulletin states.

The other new periodical is known as "The Port of New York—Harbor and Marine Review". This publication has the avowed purpose of furthering the interests of the port of New York and of giving wide publicity to its needs. The first issue of thirty four pages is filled with interesting articles about the port and plans for its development.

SEE AMERICA

An interesting booklet has been received by the editor of the News from Zurich, Switzerland, known as the "Forgo Guides—See America". The booklet in question is number 7 of a series of Guides, and is confined exclusively to the Pacific Coast. The booklet, which contains 114 pages, give among other things, an excellent description of the trip from Portland to Seattle, the Mt. Rainier National Park, and devotes two and one half pages to a description of the City of Seattle. As stated in its introduction, the book is intended for a guide for American and European travelers in the United States. The guide book gives some excellent suggestions concerning passports, hotels, expense of traveling, railroad rates, money questions, automobile trips, and such other general information as a traveller from either America or abroad would need to know. It is a very attractive booklet, and should be of general help in bringing tourists to Seattle this coming summer.

A letter has been received from the City Club of Chicago, which is an organization corresponding to the Municipal League of this city, asking that publicity be given to their efforts to find a successor to Mr. C. A. Dykstra, executive secretary of that organization, who has just resigned. The committee in charge is anxious to hear from every qualified person interested in the place. For further information concerning this position, anyone interested may apply to the City Club of Chicago, 315 Plymouth Court.

A letter has just been received by this office from the Chairman of the Executive Committee League of Women Voters of Tacoma, thanking the League for the co-operation extended in furnishing the Tacoma organization with a questionnaire used by the League in passing upon candidates for office. Mrs. Taylor, the chairman, writes: "We have a sort of federation of Women's Clubs in Tacoma to which a great number of the clubs belong and it is through that body that the clubs expect to co-operate in this movement. We also are going to have an open forum to which all candidates will be invited to speak and set forth their views and to answer any further questions that may come up. These meetings will be in the evening so that men as well as women may attend."

MAYOR VETOES WAGE ORDINANCE

Mayor Caldwell vetoes the wage ordinance as passed by the council largely because the ordinance provides for a monthly pay basis of street railway trainmen instead of a per diem basis. This, he contends, would have the effect of establishing the precedent of paying monthly em-

Monument to Dante Is Unveiled

The unveiling of the monument to Dante Alighieri in Meridian Hill park, Washington, was marked by the presence of President Harding, the Italian ambassador and several hundred Italians from Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and other cities. The monument is the work of Ettore Ximenes and Whitney Warren, and was presented to the city by Chevalier Carlo Barsotti, editor of Il Progresso Italo-Americano, in behalf of the Italians of the United States. ployees of the city time-and-1/2 for overtime, while at the present time the only overtime paid employees is to those receiving a per diem wage. The mayors other reason for vetoing the measure is that instead of reducing per diem employees 25 cents per day, as the council ordinance provides it would only reduce railway trainmen 8 cents per day—thus discriminating in favor of such employees.

A Weekly Publication Devoted Solely to the Betterment of Seattle

VOL. XII. NO. 7.

SEATTLE, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1922.

PRICE 10 CENTS

To The Members of The Municipal League

I highly appreciate the honor that has been conferred upon me in election to fill out the unexpired term of President Anderson. We all regret the loss occasioned by his leaving our city, into whose life and problems he has thrown himself with admirable enthusiasm and devotion. He leaves at a time when his work is uncompleted, and the rest of this League year devolves upon us some tremendous tasks.

Among the problems with which the League must grapple are the following:

First, and most urgent the questions connected with the street car system and its proper management, including the two proposals for reduction of the fares and throwing the burdens of owning and operating a street car system upon the taxpayers as such. As I see it, the future prosperity of our city for the next fifteen years depends upon the proper business-like handling of these questions.

Second: The investigation of candidates for office at the election in May. We need officials with ability and courage to decide correctly the problems of their office, which we elect them for, without "passing the buck" to other officers or to the people, who have no means of studying and deciding for them. Under the present system of nonpartisan and direct primary elections, approaching as it does the pure democracy of the town meeting, in a city of 300,000, the people cannot possibly become intimately acquainted with candidates or choose those most fit to represent them. This tends to throw the election into the hands of newspapers, or gives an undue advantage to a glib campaigner or demagogue, or to a man rich enough to advertise himself to all the citizens. It becomes necessary, therefore, to have some body of men, public spirited and disinterested, as the Municipal League to take the time intelligently to investigate and report on men and measures, and look out for the interests of the public.

Third: The reorganization and reclassification of the civil service, readjusting salaries to a sensible, businesslike basis and cutting out dead and surplus timber.

Fourth: Pushing the campaign for the city manager pursuant to recommendation already adopted by the League.

Fifth: Promoting the idea of a bureau of municipal research.

In order to carry on these purposes, and all the other matters pressing continually for our solution or help, we must work for a constantly increasing membership and must secure regular large attendance by attractive programs. To this end, I call upon every member of the League, upon each committeeman, and the chairmen in particular, to attack these problems with renewed energy and interest, and upon all the good citizens of Seattle to join us and rally to the cause of good government in our city, which demands eternal and untiring vigilance now, as it always has.

I am sorry not to be present to deliver this message at the meeting.

Yours for a better Seattle,
J. L. BALDWIN

RESOLUTION

THE MUNICIPAL LEAGUE OF SEATTLE

Learning with sincere regret of the intended departure of our President, Claude H. Anderson, from Seattle for reasons announced in his letter of resignation and after reluctantly accepting said resignation because there was no other alternative, the Municipal League hereby expresses its sentiments of appreciation, admiration and good will for its retiring president and hopes that his future pathway will be strewn with the same evidences of appreciation and success which marked his pathway during the three fleeting years he resided with us.

From the very outset Mr. Anderson showed that he had a wealth of experience in matters civic, although so young in years. He further proved that he had that indefinable quality of leadership and a personality galvanized by enthusiasm. Notwithstanding the fact that the Municipal League is one of the oldest organizations in the City of Seattle and perhaps one of the oldest of its kind in the country and exercises a great influence in civic affairs, yet it did not hesitate to select a young man of Mr. Anderson's type, ability and capacity, even though he had been a member of the League for such a short time. It was a case of real merit being recognized. Throughout his term he has taken hold with clear vision and an intelligent grasp of the needs of our city, so that from day to day there was manifest a keener interest and a more active participation of our members in League affairs.

RESOLVED, Therefore, by the Municipal League of Seattle that while expressing our sincere regret at the departure of our president, yet we rejoice in the fact that he is bettering himself in a business way, and know that what is our loss will be the other's gain.

RESOLVER FURTHER that a copy of this resolution, expressing our sentiments towards our retiring president, be published in the Municipal News, and that a copy also be sent to the Daily Press for publication.

LAUBE WARNS AGAINST CENTRALIZATION

By Eimon L. Wienir.

Professor Frank J. Laube, of the Political Science Department of the University of Washington, addressed the League last Tuesday on the subject of "Some Tendencies in Government".

Professor Laube sounded a warning against the growing tendency of centralization in government, said: "The spirit of local liberty evolved from England has been and is the greatest thing in the administration of our government. This spirit must be nursed and encouraged. We have been undergoing a scheme of centralization which is astonishing in its rapidity. Improved methods of transportation and communication have interlaced the United States to such an extent that centralization has become inevitable. The Supreme Court of the United States has applied the spirit of centralization to our developing economic system. While we cannot change the fundamental basis of our government, nevertheless, this danger must be pointed out: concentration is the forerunner of autocracy. It is a significant thing that Lincoln in his message to Congress in 1865 said:

"I see in the near future a crisis approaching that unnerves me and causes me to tremble for the safety of my country. As a result of war, corporations have been dethroned and an era of corruption in high places will follow, and the money power of the country will endeavor to prolong its reign by working on the prejudices of the people until all the wealth is aggregated in a few hands, and the republic is destroyed. I feel at this moment more anxiety for the safety of our country than ever before, even in the midst of war. God grant that my forebodings may be groundless."

Continuing Mr. Laube said:

"Our government is established on the principle of division of power—each branch of the government checking the other. That plan, to which we are so deeply committed and which is so deeply engraved in our governmental scheme ought to be clearly understood. We ought to understand that the United States and the new Germany of today are the only countries in the world where the judicial tribunals can set aside the laws passed by the representatives of the people."

Prof Laube then went on to show, as an example of the legislation by courts, the interpretation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law passed in 1890; how, by a five to four vote of the Supreme Court of the United States the law was declared to stand just as it was written by Congress, and the word "unreasonable" which Justice White and the remaining members who wrote the minority opinion decided to have written into the law, failed. But in 1910-20 years later-- when the personnel of the Supreme Court had changed, the word "unreasonable" was read into the law, and its effect made vastly more limited in its scope.

"Democracy depends upon education and experience, and that, in turn, depends upon participation in government. The exercising of local liberty will save us from the danger of centralization. Democracy means individual expression in harmony with one's fellows. The history of the world is the history of the sequence of historic failure--- the failure which is to be attributed to a large extent in the lack of the individual to express himself in government."

Professor Laube concluded his address with an appeal for greater tolerance with foreign traditions and ideals held by Americans whose forefathers came from abroad. "I have no patience with the Americanism which would smother out the color and the beauty of foreign culture. We must weave our Americanism into the foreign pattern and secure for ourselves all of the benefit of the best part of the ideals which immigrants to this country bring with them."

COUNTY TAX COMPILED

State to Get $3,963,831, or 21.12 Per Cent

King County's grand total of taxes levied in 1921 for collection in 1922 is $18,778,881.46, according to a compilation prepared by the division of municipal corporations in the state auditor's office from the tax rolls of King County.

Included in the total are $3,963,831.59 for state taxes, or 21.12 per cent of the total. County taxes total $3,354,030.88 or 17.86 per cent. Cities and towns take $6,423,182.36 or 34.20 per cent; road districts $496,642.14 or 2.64 per cent; drainage districts $23,472.93 or .125 per cent; forest fire protection $2,523.63 or .013 per cent; school districts $4,315,689.87 or 22.981 per cent; water districts $8,335.89 or .044 per cent, and commercial waterways $191,172.17 or 1.018 per cent.

Segregating King County's contribution to the state in the form of taxes for 1922 it is shown that the state general fund will receive $610,446.86, or 15.40 per cent of the total. The state school fund will receive $1,444,964.98 or 36.45 per cent; military fund, $54,122.29 or 1.37 per cent; public highway fund, $271,552.88 or 6.85 per cent; permanent highway fund, $407,054.94 or 10.27 per cent; higher education, $635,396.44 or 16.03 per cent; capitol building fund and reclamation fund will each receive $135,075.16 or 3.41 per cent, and the veterans' compensation fund, $270,142.88 or 6.81 per cent.

The distribution of the $3,354,030.88 of county funds will be as follows: Current expense fund, $1,302,594.39 or 38.84 per cent; county school fund, $862,590.63 or 25.72 per cent; road and bridge fund, $275,040.56 or 8.20 per cent; indigent soldiers' fund, $85,068.12 or 2.53 per cent; interest and redemption, $423,825.26 or 12.63 per cent; intercountry river improvement, $71,957.64 or 2.15 per cent; Port of Seattle (interest and bond redemption), $304,901.69 or 9.05 per cent, and river improvement, $28,052.59 or .84 per cent.

Drainage districts, forest fire prevention, water districts and commercial waterways are listed as local improvement funds and without these the grand total is shown to be reduced $217,168.73, making the total general tax on the rolls of King County, $18,561,712.73.

For Higher Education

In the distribution of King County's taxes for 1922 for the institutions of higher education the total of $635,396.44 is shown to be segregated as follows: University of Washington, $297,543.44, or 46.828 per cent. State College, $181,234.13, or 28.523 per cent; Bellingham Normal, $54,097.65, or 8.514 per cent; Centralia Normal, $27,048.83, or 4.25 per cent; Cheney Normal, $43,009.99, or 6.769 per cent, and the Ellensburg Normal, $32,462.40, or 5.109 per cent.

Of the total of $1,450,290.52 for road taxes levied in 1921 for 1922 collection in King County the public highway fund will receive $271,552.88, or 18.724 per cent; permanent highway fund, $407,054.94, or 28.067 per cent; road and bridge fund, $275,040.56, or 18.965 per cent, and road district funds, $496,642.14, or 34.244 per cent.

RETIRING PRESIDENT CRITICISES CHARTER OF SEATTLE IN TALK

Claude H. Anderson, president of the Municipal League, in his first address to the League before leaving for Washington, D. C., emphasized the fact that efficient municipal government in Seattle is prevented by the antiquated and out of date city charter, and organic law of the city. The defects in the system of municipal administration impose a heavy handicap on the chief executive. That is the reason Mayor Caldwell "soured" on the job and emphatically declared he would not again become a candidate for the office. Mayor Caldwell isn't the first to "sour" on the job, but he deserves credit for being the first that has publically called attention to the weakness of the present system. It is a significant fact that so far there isn't a strong man out for Mayor, and there probably will not be on account of the ineffectiveness of the mayor's power under the present system.

"I realize that there is pessimism in Seattle — more than there needs to be, but Seattle is not going to the rocks — not even on account of the street car deal, and, in fact, the conditions here must be viewed with optimism and hope."

President Anderson criticises severely the attitude of the average employer of the city towards labor, and declared that the policies were narrow, bigoted and shortsighted. "They do not seem to realize," declared president Anderson, "that there is a moderate, scientific, honest-to-goodness way of dealing with the problem, and until they do realize that fact and begin to follow it in operation, Seattle may well be alarmed at the condition."

Again emphasizing the importance of form in government, president Anderson declared that while the city manager was not a panacea for all municipal ills, it could, nevertheless, serve to make for more efficiency. The Municipal League should be able to lead the city in the right way in the next few years, he said.

President Anderson expressed deep appreciation for the consideration and treatment received at the hands of the people of Seattle during his period of residence here. Referring to James T. Lawler's allusion to his civic interest, Mr. Anderson said, "I have always had civic interest at heart, I couldn't escape it—it is in my blood. It is very difficult for me to leave Seattle. I have made friends and have built up an acquaintanceship which makes it very difficult indeed for me to leave this pleasant city."

James T. Lawler, former president of the League and also ex-officio member of the Board of Trustees, eulogized the work of president Anderson, and declared that he had displayed a knowledge and interest in civic affairs such as no other of his predecessors in office had ever done.

Captain Jackson Silbaugh, following Mr. Lawler, moved that a resolution be passed by the League expressing appreciation for president Anderson's leadership and regret at his leaving the office. Robert Howes, vice-president, who put the question, received a unanimous vote in its favor. Captain Silbaugh was made chairman of the committee to draft the resolution.

ATTACKING THE BONDS- MAN EVIL

(From The Toledo City Journal)

The suggestion that Mayor Brough and judges of the Municipal Court might confer on measures to alleviate the professional bondsman evil at the police court should be welcomed by citizens who are acquainted with the situation.

Efforts have been made by the judges of the Municipal Court on several occasions to remedy the evil and some progress has been made. For example in 1919, through the efforts of Judge Gosline and Judge Cohn, an amendment to the Municipal Court Act was secured from the state legislature providing for cash bail. With cash bail legalized the court then took steps to set up rules for the handling of it. A system was worked out for the court by State Examiner Diemer and the then Finance Director, John Higgins, which gives the Commissioner of Accounts a check on cash bail received by the clerk and reported. But this measure has not been entirely successful in stamping out the evil.

The professional bondsman need not necessarily be an evil. In some cases it is undoubtedly a convenience to be able to get bail in consideration for a fee. This is particularly true in the case of a man who is a stranger or whose friends are not able to furnish bail. But the vulture type of bondsman who preys upon the ignorant and the helpless is a distinct evil. A bondsman who operates at the police court has, for example, been known to collect from the prisoner the entire amount required for bail under the pretense of using it for his security. The prisoner, in other words, furnished his own bail and paid a fee in addition to a bondsman who had given no service.

It has been found that the person in such a business often becomes a continual hanger-on about the police station. When an ignorant or friendless person is arrested, he approaches and offers to bail him out. Frequently he permits the impression to be made that if he is employed as the bondsman the prisoner will be better treated by the judge. The fact that he is close to police and court officials, associates with them and spends much of his time in their offices, gives emphasis to this impression. When an arrest is made and a police matron or police officer asks the prisoner if he or she wishes to be bailed out and then sends for the favored bondsman to collect his fee and furnish bail, the evil of the professional bondsman is made still more acute.

A study of the problem made last year by the Commission of Publicity and Efficiency convinced them that a proper solution can only be reached through co-operation of police, prosecutor, judges and clerk. In the past, the clerk has favored one bondsman and the police have favored another. In the scramble for business the welfare of the prisoner has not always been considered.

If the co-operation of the police, the law department and the judges is secured, there still remains the clerk of the court who is elected independently and who holds a strategic position in the controversy.

LEAGUE OPPOSED TO FIVE CENT FARE VOTE SUBMISSION

The Board of Trustees at Monday's meeting went on record as being unalterably opposed to the submission of the 5 cent fare ordinance to the people at the City election May 2nd. The trustees delegated the Public Utility Committee, of which Robert Howes is chairman, to appear before the Council and argue against the matter before referring to it.

The trustees' action was in pursuance of the stand that the League has taken from the very outset—that the utility should pay for itself and not subject the general fund for and deficit accruing.

At the City Council Tuesday afternoon, the matter was referred to the Public Utilities Committee of the Council and will come up before the Council for final vote at Monday's meeting. The ordinance was considered by the City Utilities Committee last Wednesday, and the Finance Committee Friday afternoon. There was no discussion of the bill at Monday's Council meeting, but its provisions will probably be reviewed in detail while under committee consideration.

The League's committee is planning to enter a vigorous protest against the submission of the bill to the people at Monday's Council meeting.

A second class in Public Speaking is being organized by the Y. M. C. A. to be conducted by Montgomery Lynch, director of the Wayfarer. This was made necessary because a number who wished to take the course in the first class were not able to enter before the limit of enrollment had been reached.

The first session of the new class will be held on Friday, Feb. 24, at 8:00 p. m. at which time Mr. Lynch will give an address on "How to Acquire Skill in Public Speaking". The public is invited to attend.

Legion Education Work is Growing

Rapid development of the American Legion campaign in behalf of education and Americanism is indicated by reports received this week from national, state and city sources.

State Adjutant Henry A. Wise of the Legion recently returned to Seattle from the national convention at Indianapolis, announces the appointment of National Commander Hamilton McNider and Nathan J. Foreman of the finance committee as assistants to Alvin M. Owsley, director of the Americanism Commission, this commission being instructed to devise ways and means for the promotion of a nation-wide program.

Dr. William C. Hicks, newly appointed state director of Americanism work, department of Washington, has just issued a bulletin, "The Reason Why," which gives the reasons for the Legion's program and its main objectives so far as at present developed.

MEIER, LUNDY and BROWN STATE PLATFORMS

Walter F. Meier, corporation counsel, Ira D. Lundy, former councilman, and Dr. E. J. Brown, dentist and many times a candidate for public office, all candidates for the mayoralty, addressed the League Tuesday at a meeting limited only by the capacity of the dining room. This was the first appearance of the candidates at any public meeting since their candidacy was announced.

Lundy, the first speaker, went into his qualifications for the office. He operates a country store in the vicinity of Seattle. Business problems such as confront a great municipality have to be decided by him daily and without the assistance or advice such as the mayor ordinarily receives, declared the candidate. Lundy is in favor of having the people decide as to the rate of fare to be charged, though strongly opposed to the present rate of fare. He intimated that taxation is the way to reduce it, but is willing to let the people decide the matter.

Dr. E. J. Brown vigorously attacked the present high rate of fare and stated that he was unequivocally in favor of the 5 cent fare. He said that within a month after the 8 1-3 cent fare went into effect, there were three thousand automobiles sold in the city of Seattle, thus attributing loss of street car patronage to the high rate of fare. He claimed to know a great deal concerning the purchase of the Municipal Railway, and apparently charges those responsible for the purchase with criminal negligence. He also was in favor, he said of eliminating a lot of the dead wood from city offices and thus saving the taxpayers a great deal of money.

Corporation Counsel Meier said in part:

"Reference has been made to the fact that, at the direction of the City Council, I drew the ordinances necessary to purchase the street railway system. This was a duty imposed upon me by law. I, however, raised every possible legal objection to the deal. Knowing that the proposal to submit the question of purchase to the people in the fall of 1918 was illegal, I refused to draw the resolution providing for such submission.

"I repeatedly warned city officials and the public generally that if the purchase was made the city might be held liable for any deficit arising in the maintenance and operation of the system. I refused to draw the ordinances of purchase so as to grant an express preference in the payment of the bonds to the exclusion of maintenance and operation until specifically directed to do so.

"I warned the City Council in writing that what the company was after was an express provision that would bind the city to raise by general taxation funds necessary to maintain and operate the street railway system if the gross revenues were not sufficient to bear the cost of maintenance and operation and pay the interest and principal of the proposed issue of bonds.

"In the litigation that has followed, at no time have I fought to uphold any contract with Stone and Webster.

"Any candidate who wilfully seeks to mislead the people and create a false impression with respect to my position in these matters would, if elected, be as ready to deceive the public concerning any other matter.

"I am opposed to the levy of a tax to maintain and operate the municipal railway system. To inaugurate such a policy would be to invite extravagance and carelessness in public expenditures. This utility, like the light and water utilities, must be self-supporting, but not operated for profit. Our fares should not be in excess of that necessary to meet the obligations properly payable therefrom, and as these obligations are decreased the fares should be correspondingly reduced.

"The city has issued bonds for the development of light and power on the Skagit River. The total authorized issue for this purpose is $11,000,000. More than half of this amount has been expended. To abandon this development would mean the complete loss of the investment already made. I am, therefore, in favor of completing the initial development, but without the authorization of any additional bond issue. I am opposed to further development if it means the overloading of our municipal light system with bonded obligations so that maintenance and operations costs must be met

VAST CROWD HEARS MAYORALTY CANDIDATES

Last Tuesday's meeting was a record-breaker in attendance for the League. Not only was every available table utilized but more than one hundred members were turned away, some lunching in the adjoining private dining room, others going elsewhere. Most of those turned away because of lack of accommodations returned later to hear the addresses of the candidates. It is approximated that more than two hundred were present at the meeting.

The League can well be proud of the fact that the majority of the candidates have waited to announce their platform on the rostrum of the League. They did this undoubtedly not only because of the opportunity that an assembly of such men would give them to announce their principles, but because of the psychological effect that a League meeting has upon the public at large. The candidates recognized the fact that the Municipal League stands for good government, for efficient public servants and for economy in every branch of government. To announce their policies to a group of this kind lends greater sincerity and greater weight to the candidates' words.

The League should make a great record for itself this year. Its findings will be awaited with eager interest by citizens at large, and without question these findings will be based upon facts and upon accurate gauging of human character.

with funds raised by taxation.

"I am in favor of the consolidation of county and city governments to the end that duplication may be eliminated and the expense of governmental administration decreased.

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

connection with the presence of the Orientals. There may be those who waver in their choice, but as for me, my motto shall ever be, America for Americans, now and forever.

"I believe in the most rigid enforcement of all measures to stamp out the narcotic evil. I favor the enactment of a state law that will permit the imposition of adequate sentences by the court so that this growing menace may be stamped out.

"I believe in a business administration of municipal affairs as distinguished from a political administration. I believe there can be a further reduction in the tax rate, and the efforts of the mayor can materially assist in bringing this about.

Mr. Lundy said in part:

"The biggest problem before the people today is the problem of transportation. The present fare of 8 1-3 cents is too high. It must be reduced. How? That is the problem. I signed the petition to submit to the voters the Erickson three-cent fare ordinance, so called, because the matter is of such transcendent importance I thought the people should have the right to pass on it. If the people declare in favor of the three-cent car fare ordinance, every man in public office should make an honest effort to vindicate it.

"The present tax rate in this city is not as high as we advertise it to be. Our assessed valuation is low. If we should assess our property at a just rate, representing a close approximation of the real value, probably one-half of our tax rate would be shaved off, and certainly we would hear much less about high taxes.

"There are only two really vital angles to this street car problem in Seattle. One of them is the service angle. If we are not going to give the people of Seattle a street car service at a rate within their ability to pay, the people will not ride on street cars and the system will become worthless. But we, as taxpayers, would still have to pay the millions we have agreed to pay for the system and besides, unless we adopt some different policy, we would have to make up the deficiencies bound to accumulate during the period the system is operated at a loss.

"The only objection offered to the so-called 3-cent fare ordinance is that it will increase taxes. This objection needs serious consideration. At the present cost of operation, maintenance and tax rate valuation for assessable purposes, the rate would be increased 18 mills. Our large property holders will make strong objections to this raise, while the average home owner, when acquainted with the results if the ordinance should become a law, will favor its passage.

"With the present high car fare, the people are not using the cars nearly as much as they would if the fares were lower. Therefore the downtown property owners or lease holders suffer on account of reduced business, which if allowed to continue, will compel the lease holder to seek lower rentals, which will mean less with which to pay the tax. On the other hand, those who are compelled to work downtown, or across the city, and who ordinarily use the cars find it necessary to live within walking distance or demand increased pay to pay for the raised expense from high car fare. This would reduce the value of outlying property and tend to increase the tenement population.

"This question should not become an issue in the coming campaign. The mayor, whoever he may be, cannot make or unmake the law. It will be the voice of the people."

JACKSON SILBAUGH VICE-PRESIDENT

Captain Jackson Silbaugh was elected Vice-President of the Municipal League at the meeting of the Board of Trustees last Monday to fill the vacancy caused by the promotion of Julius L. Baldwin to the Presidency. Three vacancies on the Board will be filled at the next meeting of the Board of Trustees. The vacancies result from the resignation of George S. Kahin, James A. Haight and Jackson Silbaugh.

CITY SPENDS $703,697 FOR 1921 POOR RELIEF

Toledo, Ohio, spent approximately $703,697 to relieve the poverty of 4,650 families as well as thousands of transients.

Of this large sum, $213,697 was raised by monthly appropriations by Council and $490,000 came in a bond issue for park and boulevard improvement for the purpose of giving work to the city's unemployed.

This money was administered by the Social Service Federation co-operating with the Welfare Department. It represented groceries and fuel and other necessities for approximately 20,000 men, women and children.

Transients ranging from 1,000 in April last year to 89 in July were sheltered at the Wayfarer's lodge and the old Workhouse on Swan Creek.

CANDIDATES INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE TO BEGIN LABORS ON MARCH 20th.

This year the Candidates Investigating Committee will have its initial session on Monday afternoon, March 20th., at which time it will begin its labors in examining the candidates and passing upon their qualifications. The committee is headed by Frank P. Helsell, chairman.

Mr. Helsell was present at the Board of Trustees meeting Monday, and received suggestions from the Board as to the campaign issues.

SIX COUNCIL CANDIDATES TO ADDRESS LEAGUE TUESDAY

Tuesday's meeting will be featured by addresses by H. S. Turner, remaining candidate for Mayor, who has thus far not been heard by the League, and the following councilmanic candidates: E. L. Blaine, T. H. Bolton, Clifford H. Clark, Henry D. Hall, E. B. Cox and Councilman A. T. Drake.

Mr. Turner has been allowed fifteen minutes for his address while councilmanic candidate have been allowed five minutes.

The remaining councilmanic candidates will address the League at its meeting on Tuesday March 28th.

PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMITTEE TO REPORT ON 3 CENT CAR FARE

The Board of Trustees has instructed the Public Utilities Committee, of which Robert Howes is chairman, to bring its report on the Erickson 3 cent car fare initiative ordinance, week from Tuesday. Mr. Howes promised to have his report ready at that time—Tuesday, March 21st.

When a lawyer named Strange was going to die he said, "I want my tombstone to be worded this way. 'Here lies an honest lawyer'."

Two years later when the lawyer died the men saw the reason for the wording. When anybody passed by and saw the tombstone they would always say, "That's Strange."

BLUE SKY LEGISLATION

from Municipal Reference Library Notes, March 1, 1922)

At the present time there are thirty-eight states that have a "Blue Sky" Law, but New York is not among this number. New York State does have a fraudulent securities law, but there is no specific blue sky law nor a bureau to administer such a law. In the 1919 legislature a bill was presented which provided for certain publicity and state regulation in connection with securities offered to the public for investment, but it failed of enactment. Therefore in 1920 Governor Smith appointed a special committee to study the fraudulent securities situation and to suggest remedial legislation. The committee was not able to reach a unanimous opinion and the report was issued in two parts, a majority and a minority. This probably accounts for the fact that no legislation resulted. In the majority report, it was the opinion that the registration or licensing of dealers in securities, popularly known as "blue sky" legislation, would not meet the situation in New York state; but it was recommended instead that the Banking Department and the Attorney-General be given jurisdiction over commercial frauds, and that more effective amendments be added to the Penal Law. The minority, on the other hand, recommended "blue sky" legislation.

Again the conditions have become so serious that District Attorney Banton is recommending immediate enactment of blue sky laws in this state. The public loss each year in the United States through fraudulent securities is estimated to be $700,000,000. It is also suggested that the law would be more effective if it were federal, and if a uniform law be adopted for each state.

As far as is known, no municipality requires stock and bond salesmen to be licensed. In one of the smaller cities of Indiana, such an ordinance was passed, but it was not legal on account of the handling of such licenses by the Indiana Securities Commission.

In Indiana there is an organization of commercial secretaries of the state known as the Vigilance Commission; information relating to all fake solicitations and sales of fraudulent securities is cleared through that office; a bulletin is issued giving this information and in addition lists of licenses that have been issued or revoked by the Indiana Securities Commission. Particularly useful is their "flash" system, whereby a "flash" card is sent to all commercial organizations in the state in any case that needs immediate attention. Many fraudulent schemes are stopped by this prompt publicity.

THE EVERGREEN STATE

There was just received by the League office a pamphlet published by the Bureau of Statistics and Immigration of the State of Washington, called The Evergreen State. This booklet which contains 144 pages, is intended as information for the traveler, homebuilder and investor. As stated by J. Grant Hinkle, Secretary of State, Ex-Officio Commissioner of the Bureau of Statistics and Immigration, the book as published by the State of Washington is intended to present a condensed summary of the resources of the state. In its preface, Mr. Hinkle goes on to say "With such a brief description as the limited pages of this publication offers, the work can rather be termed an invitation to write for particulars concerning any line of industry or opportunity that commends itself to the reader of this book."

After giving a few general facts about the state, the book takes up Washington's leading industries, gives certain statistics relative thereto and relative to crops, and takes up county by county and gives important information concerning the principal cities and towns therein located. The book is profusely illustrated with pictures, and all in all, is a very attractive book which be made to serve in getting new people into the state.

HEADS CIVIL SERVICE

Appointment of Percival Morris Fogg of San Diego, Cal., as secretary and chief examiner of the Seattle Civil Service Commission, was announced Friday noon by the commissioners after a competitive examination in which candidates from many sections of the United States participated. Mr. Fogg will relieve K. C. Bean, civil service examiner, who has been acting as secretary and chief examiner until a permanent appointee was selected.

Mr. Fogg is forty years of age and a native of Philadelphia. He served in the United States reclamation service for nine years, besides being employed on a special commission by the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company. He has also engaged in private business and will now leave a position as salesman for a San Francisco firm. He is married.

The examination for the position of secretary of the Civil Service Commission was advertised throughout the country, after the City Council last summer determined to increase the salary of the office to $310 a month, so that it would be attractive to experts, as its importance was believed by the councilmen to be increasing every year.

Five candidates passed the written examinations, which, in the case of those who desired to qualify from other cities, were given by correspondence and with the aid of other civil service commissions. The five who passed the written examinations were Mr. Bean, J. J. Crell, also a Seattle examiner; Mr. Fogg, K. P. H. Wilson of New York and L. Sickard of Sioux City, Iowa.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

from Municipal Reference Library Notes—March 1, 1922.

Calgary's (Canada) municipal street railway carried 18,771, 271 passengers in 1921, an average of 65.2 per car hour, which is just .2 above the estimated per car hour traffic necessary to run the system. Calgary gives 18 tickets for $1.00, 4 for 25 cents, 8 children's tickets for 25 cents, and charges 10 cents cash fare. Last year 417,996 cash fares were paid. The estimated revenue of the system for 1922 is $935,000 and expenditure $993,430.

Ashville, N. C., has adopted a city planning program—and is one of the few cities in the South to do so. The City Planning Commission has entered into an agreement with John Nolen for the preparation of a comprehensive city plan.

Construction cost records of all municipal work in Minnesota over $1,500 in amount are made compulsory by Chap. 274 of 1921 statutes.

Kansas City operates successfully a municipal meat market.

The Denver City Council has recently voted to discontinue the appropriation for the publication of the Denver Municipal Facts for 1922. This has been one of the most attractive of all municipal official bulletins.

The Twomey bill, recently introduced in the Senate, No. 270, authorizes the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to build a tunnel for the use of vehicles and pedestrians under Newton Creek, between Brooklyn and Queens.

Mayor Couzens of Detroit thinks that subways or elevated railroads are not needed in that city.

Sacramento, Cal., held its first free city flower show last November.

Detroit City Council has ordered the Detroit City Gas Company to reduce gas rates to those provided in the franchise, from 85 cents to 79 cents, effective Feb. 15th.

HAMBER KNOCKS ERICKSON PLAN

The resolutions, which the trustees approved yesterday, follow:

Whereas, An ordinance relating to the Seattle street railway, municipally-owned public utility, and declaring the fiscal policy of the city in relation thereto, will appear on the ballot at the election to be held May 2, 1922, designated as "Proposition 1," and

Whereas, The policy outlined in this ordinance provokes to objection in all future operation and maintenance of this public utility by a tax against all real and personal property in the city of Seattle, and

Whereas, The tax rate for municipal purposes for 1922 is 15 mills, and the proposed fiscal policy will (based on the 1922 budget) add over $5,000,000, or approximately 21 mills for 1923, and

Whereas, We believe the fiscal policy in connection with the municipally-owned railway system which the proponents of this measure seek to establish is un sound, contrary to the best policies in municipal government, and dangerous to the future growth and welfare of the city of Seattle,

Now, Therefore, Be it Resolved, That the Voters' Information League declare itself in favor of the lowest rate consistent with paying for and keeping the municipally-owned street railway on a self-sustaining basis, and that we oppose any fiscal policy which seeks to burden the taxpayers of this city with any part of the cost of operation of the Municipal Street Railway.

Public Utilities Committee will Report on Erickson Bill, Tuesday Noon, March 31st At the L. C. Smith Building Restaurant Large Attendance of the League Required

TOLEDO, OHIO, MAY ESTABLISH AUTO CAMP

It is reported in the current issue of the Toledo City Journal that the City of Toledo is considering the establishment of a Toledo Auto Camp in an outlying section of the city. Welfare Director Newcomer of that city says that the plan has proved feasible in other cities throughout the country. "Groceries and other stores in the outlying sections here would profit from the purchase of provisions by the many thousands of tourists who pass through Toledo every summer", Mr. Newcomer suggests.

DO YOU WANT THE ERICKSON BILL TO SUCCEED OR FAIL?

By Eimon L. Wienir, Secy. of Municipal League

The League's Public Utilities Committee will bring in its report of Erickson's 3-cent carfare bill Tuesday noon. The question is: Are you in favor of the initiative bill as presented by Mr. Erickson, or are you against it? At this time I do not know what the report of the Public Utilities Committee will be, but whether it is favorable or whether it is not, the League should be well represented at this meeting, and the report either upheld or rejected. Let not the League make a mistake on this matter—it is one of the most important matters ever presented to the people of Seattle; it is revolutionary in its character. It may be a good thing, and on the other hand, it may work the greatest havoc to Seattle. Are you going to stand by indifferent while a matter of that kind is being presented? Are you going to let it be said that the Municipal League does not care a hang about a matter of civic character of this sort? Personally, I do not believe that you will fail in your duty. Your duty is to be at Tuesday's meeting.

Each and every member of the League ought to be there; and whichever way the vote goes, let the people of Seattle know that the League as a whole is behind the committee making the recommendation. Come in force to Tuesday's meeting—every member of the League, old and new, come! Let the old Seattle civic spirit again prevail. Let there be live enthusiasm, let there be an expression of convictions. Come to Tuesday's meeting!

CANDIDATES SPEAK BEFORE LEAGUE

One candidate for mayor and six for the council addressed the League Tuesday. Mr. H. S. Turner in his maiden speech before the Municipal League declared that to grow and become more prosperous, Seattle must have a lower tax rate. He declared that the Skagit power project must be developed to some workable stage. Turner also condemned the initiative ordinance placing the cost of operating and maintaining the street car lines on the general taxpayer.

"I am emphatically against this ordinance," Mr. Turner said, "I believe it is more or less class legislation. It is taking money from out of one party's pocket for the benefit of others.

"We own the city water plant, the city light plant and the Seattle street car system and I believe that these three municipally owned utilities should be made to pay without any appropriation from the general fund or any burden upon the taxpayers. If private corporations owned these three public utilities they would have to pay into the city, county and state treasury anywhere from one million to a million and one-half dollars. If we cannot run them in such a way that they will pay, having this much extra money to go on above what corporations would have, then municipal ownership of utilities is a failure—and I don't believe it is a failure providing they are run in an economical and businesslike manner.

"If I am elected mayor I will appoint at the head of these public utilities the best men that I can possibly find. Men who will work together with me to run them on an economical basis and not for their own personal department, but for the benefit of the people of our great city.

"I shall use my best efforts to have such legislation passed that will procure a business manager to be at the head of these three departments whose business it will be to see that each department is run economically for the benefit of each department.

"If elected mayor I will not go into the city hall with a chip on my shoulder but will go in there with the express purpose of running the municipal affairs on an economical and efficient basis, and in doing so I will use my best efforts to co-operate and work with the City Council and heads of the different departments so that harmony will exist between us all, thus helping to have an economical and efficient administration.

"I believe if the street car system is run on an economical and efficient basis, that a five-cent fare can very soon be put into effect, if not immediately, with two cents transfer except between the hours of 5 and 8 a. m. and between 4:30 and 6:30 p. m., when the wage earners are going to and from their work.

"I believe that the 8 1-3 cent fare is a real handicap to the growth of the city, but I want it distinctly understood that I am emphatically against any general tax for the benefit of this public utility.

"The officials of the water and light departments have announced from time to time that they are on a paying basis. If so, then it might be well, and I believe that it would be, that if they have a surplus and it is needed to nurse the car line along for a short time that loans be made from those departments to the street car department until it is able to take care of itself on a five-cent fare basis.

"I believe that heavy taxation is doing more to hold Seattle back from an industrial standpoint than any one thing. The threat of an 18 or 20-mill increase perhaps at the present time is keeping some industries away from Seattle. I cannot conceive how any new industry will come to the city of Seattle if we are going to raise the taxes when all other communities in the Northwest are using their best efforts to have taxes reduced."

Mr. Turner said he favored the proposed Montlake bridge, the immediate construction of the West Seattle bridge voted two years ago and the exercise of extreme caution in further street improvements.

The councilmanic candidates at the Municipal League luncheon followed Mr. Turner with brief speeches. Mr. Blaine and Mr. Bolton referred to their records in the City Council and promised their best efforts for the reduction of expenditures and taxes. Mr. Cox strongly favored more businesslike methods in the conduct of the city government. Mr. Hall spoke of his success in business and said he would apply the same rules to city affairs. Mr. Clark advocated the completion of two units of the Skagit power project and the adoption of a 5-cent street car fare.

Councilman Drake said he is in favor of a 5-cent fare and would vote for appropriations to finish the first unit of the Skagit project and to complete other units as fast as the demand arises for power. He declared that he was not a member of the City Council when the car lines were purchased, but has worked and voted to make the operation of the system as successful as possible. He called attention to the fact that as a member of the city finance committee he assisted in reducing the city budget $1,200,000 for 1922.

A week from next Tuesday the remaining councilmanic candidates will address the League.

LEAGUE FINANCES

The League will need more money for its coming fiscal year. How is it going to get it? Only in two ways—either by increasing its membership or increasing its dues for active membership. Increase of membership is a splendid thing. The League absolutely needs the increase of membership and every effort should be devoted by every member of the League to double its membership for the current year. There are dangers, however, in "just" increasing membership. A lot of men are brought into membership who are not interested in civic work, who seldom attend meetings and participate not at all in committee work. When their membership must be renewed they ask to be relieved. That is the great danger of increasing membership without regard to the personnel. And it invariably happens when you have a "drive" for membership. The most desirable form of increase of membership is when the members themselves—all of them—bring their friends into the organization. That, for some reason or other, is a most difficult thing to accomplish. I presume the difficulty lies in the weakness of human nature, the difficulty of arousing interest, the difficulty of securing membership to solicit their friends and bring them into the organization. Why that should be so, I am at a loss to understand. But it is. It takes constant drumming—drumming—drumming, and the League has other things to do besides constantly harping on this subject, and yet it is as vital to as life itself. Appeals have been made heretofore to the members along this line, and appeals again made to each and every member of the League: bring your friends into the organization.

And now to the other plan financing the League year. Membership dues are divided to four classes: Active, Contributing, Supporting and Sustaining. Active membership fees are only $3.00 a year. Undoubtedly the great majority of our sympathizers would be willing to pay $5.00 a year for active membership dues. The Board of Trustees is reluctant, however, to take any step in that direction until there has been an expression on the part of the members on this point. You who read this article are urged to write an expression of opinion on this point. Do you believe that active membership fees should be raised from $3.00 to $5.00 a year? In a later issue the exact financial status of the League will be pointed out. You may take for granted, however, that more money will be needed to operate the League next year than last. Please phone the secretary or write a letter to the League as soon as possible stating your views on this subject.

CANDIDATES INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE READY FOR WORK

Questionnaires have already been mailed to the candidates for mayor and for council, and the League's Investigating Committee will meet for the first time Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the L. C. Smith Building.

The committee sessions will be executive in character and open to League membership. To the public at large, it is deemed best to confine the discussions in committee.

The committee as it stands consists of the following: Frank P. Helsell, Chairman; Robert L. Proctor; Walter L. Nossaman; Laurence Booth

W. E. Henry
C. E. Bogardus
Dan Earle.

As everyone knows the duties of the committee are arduous indeed. Practically all week beginning March 20th, during the hours of 4:00 to 6:00 each day, will be devoted by the committee, and then several days will be necessary for the committee to report its findings. This work is one of the best that the League does and deserves the consideration and the interest of every member of the League.

PARK WORK TO CARRY OUT LASTING PROGRAM

Park and boulevard improvements this year will be based on a permanent park and boulevard scheme, says Welfare Director Newcomer.

The council finance committee Wednesday night approved Councilman Northrup's resolution authorizing a $100,000 park and boulevard bond issue with the primary purpose of providing additional work for the unemployed.

The welfare director recommended that this be raised to a $350,000 bond issue that the work might be carried on without interruptions necessary for the authorizing and advertising of the bonds.

The laying down of a permanent program of park improvement should not be overlooked in the necessity for providing jobs for those out of work. C. H. English, recreational expert here recently, said that the Toledo Park system has the possibilities of being developed into one of the best in the country.

LEAGUE IS OPPOSED TO SUPPORTING PUBLIC UTILITIES BY GEN- ERAL TAXATION

A League has been organized with Alfred H. Lundin as chairman to oppose the support of public utilities by general taxation. Mr. Lundin in one of his speeches recently, said this:

"Before embarking on a financial policy unknown to any American city for our street car line, it is well to consider the interests which will be benefited by the proposed measure. Who is the party with the greatest interest at stake? Is it not the corporation owning $15,000,000 in street railway bonds received for the system?

"The bonds, it is reported, are considered to be worth 70 cents on the dollar. Erickson proposes to make them worth 100 cents on the dollar and to hand the bondholders $4,500,000 in increased bond values on a silver platter. He would give Stone & Webster everything they have been unable to get so far in the courts. Stone & Webster and the men who sold this line for $15,000,000 certainly are laughing with glee over the Erickson plan.

Erickson Plan is Gold Brick

"The Erickson plan is a gold brick, a political stunt and an untried experiment by which Erickson is willing to force the total tax rate to 84 mills in 1923, in contrast with 63 today.

"The 1922 operation and maintenance appropriation for the system is $5,100,000, and this sum multiplied by eighteen years is $91,800,000, which Erickson proposes to fasten on in additional taxes while collecting $15,000,000 plus interest out of his 3-cent fare to hand to Stone & Webster.

"If the Erickson plan of having the property owners pay for the maintenance and operation of the street car system, extensions and renewal to be paid for by the car rider is sound, why doesn't San Francisco, which has owned its system longer than we have, and has a lower tax rate, try it out? Why doesn't the municipality of Detroit, which has just purchased the street car system, attempt the Erickson plan, instead of announcing that the street car patron is to pay for the cost of the service? Why doesn't Cleveland, which has tried most everything in street car policies, attempt the Erickson plan? Voters in those cities care too much for their jobs and the prosperity of their community to monkey with such a scheme."

Seattle Man Must Pay

Mr. Lundin ridiculed Mr. Erickson's plea that his plan will make the absentee property owner pay more taxes. He said: Erickson has used the L. C. Smith Building as an example. Erickson says 'Let's make the New York men who own the L. C. Smith Building put up more taxes and pay for part of somebody's ride here'. Suppose the Erickson plan passes. The L. C. Smith Building will pay, under the Erickson plan, at least $19,390 additional taxes in 1923. The management will promptly divide that sum by 600 and pass that along in increased rentals, or $32 an office, to Seattle men occupying the office.

"Will the Second Avenue department stores, whose taxes are increased $73,000, dig that money out of its own pocket? No. It will put that extra $73,000 on the cost of its retail goods, and again the tax goes back to the ultimate consumer, who is possibly a home owner and a street car rider.

"The defeat of the Erickson plan will mean the erection of several million dollar buildings, in addition to other investments, which will not come if the tax rate is increased. Seattle needs jobs more than anything else, and the Pacific Coast investments will go to Tacoma, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles, whose 1923 tax rate will be far below that of Seattle in the event the Erickson bill passes.

"Six days unemployment in 1923 for a five dollar a day man will wipe out the apparent saving he will make under a 3-cent fare, even if this man has to pay no extra taxes or is not hit by any extra living costs. There are other ways to get a lower fare than by putting the street car system on the tax roll. The fare should be reduced, but not by resorting to this wild taxation scheme."

WHY BELLEVILLE ADOPTED THE CITY MANAGER PLAN

By W. M. Slopansky,
City Manager, Belleville

I will give you a few of the steps in the obtaining of city management of Belleville. The Mayor and Chamber of Commerce were backed by the feeling of the people that they wanted to try any new improvement in the government. The mayor finally called a mass meeting. He told them that they would be given an opportunity to talk over the commission form of government and the city-manager plan. At the meeting he told of the resources of the city of Belleville, showed what a large business it was, and what was invested there—nearly a half-million dollars in city-owned property, light, water, and electric light plants and fine sewer system. In fact, we had nearly a half-million wrapped up in city property. He asked if any business man would try to run his business the way the city was run.

In this campaign a great many things came up. They talked of how it had been run by politics. One man said he could recall when a great deal of money had been spent by Republicans and Democrats, and the Republicans having the majority, they always had a Republican mayor. Our light plant burned down and it was discovered that the man in charge of the plant had allowed the insurance policy to run out and had not renewed it so we had no insurance. This would not have happened if we had had the manager plan of government for the manager would have been looking after these things. The change was not brought about on account of any graft, it was just for a better government. They thought if they had a manager and three men selected in a non-political way that they would have some one to be responsible. The manager would have to submit a budget and they could see just how and where the money was going to be spent.

We thought we had a well-run government under the mayor and council, but there were a good many small leaks. Now what were some of them? I will give you a few. For instance, out at the cemetery we have had a man employed at $100 per month and $8.00 extra for digging a grave, and he was always complaining about the grass getting ahead of him, etc. I had occasion to go out there one day and found him asleep under a tree. If we had a manager on the job he would see that we had efficient help. In our light plant we trusted all our buying to an engineer. He was a good, whole-hearted fellow, but if a man came around with some new invention he would buy it, no matter what it cost, and that bill would be allowed. It would be the duty of the manager to look after the purchases. While the salary is not large, it is no trouble in the small details alone, for the manager to pay that back to the city or save the city that much in purchases alone.

If one of the two lumbermen in town was on the council, the other man would also be on the council. One of these men said he had not sold a dollars worth of lumber to the city of Belleville for some time. Now we were going to build four pump houses in Belleville and I told him to submit his bid and when the bids were all in we would buy where we could do the best. He said, "That is not business. I want to sell the lumber and I have to have the profit." He finally did submit a bid, through the carpenters. We finally let the bid to an out-of-town contractor, and saved $121 on each building. We drew up the specifications and the buildings were put up according to them.

It is no trouble to save the salary paid the manager.

St. Paul, Minn., and Denver, Colo., have found that a saving can be made in the cost of municipal construction work by the plan of employing labor directly, instead of letting out contracts for the work. —Municipal Reference Library Notes.

LEAGUE COMMITTEE REPORTS ON MAYORALTY AND COUNCILMANIC CANDIDATES

The special committee appointed by the Board of Trustees to investigate the qualifications of candidates for the office of mayor and for the council brought its report to the Board of Trustees at its meeting Monday noon, at which time it was voted to submit the report to the membership. At the regular meeting of the League last Tuesday noon, the report was presented by Frank P. Helsell, chairman of the committee, and the motion to adopt the report was carried without a dissenting vote.

The complete report follows:

INTRODUCTORY ADDRESS

By Robert Howes, Vice-President of the Municipal League.

Under our system of primary elections any citizen who possesses the necessary legal qualification may become a candidate for city office.

This naturally results in a large number of candidates and a divided vote. Many of the aspirants are not personally known to the average voter and accordingly a well known name or one having organized support is at an advantage although not representing the natural choice of the majority.

It has been one of the most important functions of the Municipal League each year to make an investigation of the various candidates and give to the public the benefit of their findings and to this end the officers and trustees select a representative committee in whom they feel the membership can put their trust to undertake this investigation. The task is a burdensome one, with no compensation except the satisfaction of feeling that a disagreeable duty has been performed for the benefit of the city. Disagreeable because in a short space of time it is necessary to classify the personality and capacity of each candidate as related to the office he seeks and render as full and unbiased a verdict as is humanly possible. Knowing that the success or failure of the aspirant in achieving his ambition will very probably be decided thereby.

The committee this year is composed of: Frank P. Helsell, Chairman; C. E. Bogardus; Dan Earle; Laurence Booth; W. E. Henry.

They have worked hard, held many meetings, interrogated the various candidates and arrived at conclusions which their chairman, Mr. Frank P. Helsell, now presents,

Gentlemen:

The special committee appointed for you for the purpose of investigating and reporting upon the qualifications of candidates for the offices of Mayor and City Councilmen at the coming election, reports as follows:

This committee has held a total of eight sessions and has had the privilege of interviewing all of the candidates for mayor and all except two of the candidates for City Council, and in the formulation of this report has had, not only the benefit of a personal interview with said candidates, but also in most instances has had a written statement from the candidate as to certain pertinent facts.

The committee in each instance has attempted to give a few facts in regard to the candidate, a brief summary of his convictions upon important issues before the city at the present time and the conclusions of the Committee as to the qualifications of the candidate for the office he seeks. We have set forth this information and these conclusions in regard to the following candidates, who are hereby listed in alphabetical order.

FOR MAYOR OF THE CITY

Dr. E. J. Brown

Dentist, lawyer and apple rancher; has lived in Seattle twenty-one years; favors five cent fare, but believes Erickson measure is premature and inopportune; favors going ahead with Skagit River project; principal object in filing was to stop improper bond sales, to remove unnecessary employees from city payroll and eliminate graft.

Believes wages should not be reduced unless absolutely necessary and should be with employees' consent.

Five cent fare should be adopted in any event.

Shows familiarity with civic problems and definite ideas thereon; Dr. Brown has been repeatedly an unsuccessful candidate for office; review of past political activities suggests doubt as to his working in harmony with other branches of city government.

T. J. Cunningham

56 years old; lived in Seattle 20 years. Is doing a general insurance business under the name of T. J. Cunningham & Co. of which he is president, at 220-1-2 Railway Exchange Building; is representative of the Underwriters for the Northwest; business is so organized that he can give his entire time to the office.

Was a volunteer soldier and officer in the Spanish War. Is a member of the Bolo Club.

Has never held public office or been active in civic affairs but considers his military and business training fits him for the office, so he can give a real business administration.

Is emphatically opposed to the Erickson ordinance, but believes the car fare should be reduced as soon as practicable.

Is in favor of first unit of the Skagit, would develop the balance as necessity demands.

In favor of better business principles in the City Hall---less politics. That the city employees should not receive higher salaries than like positions in the business world.

If elected will make personal survey of all departments with a view of retrenchment and economy. Believes the mayor should keep check on all details.

Filed because he thought he could do something for the city by giving it a business administration.

Believes in City Manager and that the Mayor should act as such as much as the laws allow him to.

Dan Landon

Age 45 years, has practiced law in Seattle for twenty-one years and has represented his district in the State Senate since 1921.

duced to five cents or four for twenty-five; but not in favor of taking from general fund to help the car fund; believes there are too many car line employees; should complete Skagit River first unit; Public Utilities should be self-supporting as a general rule; City should not sell power outside of the city limits; would cut 25% of expense of various departments by cutting down number of employees; favors Civil Service and would give heads of departments more power, but not the power to absolutely remove employees.

Principal object in running for Mayor was to cut down taxes and improve conditions; has no campaign committee; would abolish the jitneys; licensing cabarets should be under the Police Department.

Statement of beliefs vague and showed no particular grasp of civic problems; well intentioned but not especially qualified by experience, personality or ability for the office of Mayor.

* * *

Ira D. Lundy

Age 54; resident of city 15 years. Canneryman and general merchandiser, as president and general manager Salmon Bank Canning Co. In present business six years; previously seven years in automobile business.

Has held but one public office—that of city councilman, Seattle, 1914 and 1915. Represents no particular group or class of citizens. Service in the council satisfactory, but not outstanding in any respect. Does not favor the Erickson "Three-cent" fare, plan, but believes that ultimately some financial aid must be given from general fund in addition to the income derived from fares. Is in favor of the Skagit development.

Has no very definite information about city business. No particular policy to embody in his administration if elected, other than a general harmonizing and co-operation of all municipal governing agencies. Is not fixed in any policy or forceful in presentation of his beliefs. Not the type of man most needed in the Mayor's office at this time.

Walter F. Meier

Lawyer, 52 years of age. At present Corporation Counsel of the city. Was Chief Deputy in the Prosecuting Attorney's office of King County in 1925 and 1926, and First Assistant Corporation Counsel of the city in 1917 and 1918.

Opposes the Erickson Street Car Ordinance.

Favors lower taxes, completion of the Gorge Creek plant on Skagit River, consolidation of city and county governments, self-sustaining public utilities, municipal efficiency, and a business administration.

A man of ability, character and energy, with an intimate knowledge of city affairs, and well qualified by experience, study and temperament for the position of mayor.

* * *

Charles H. Miller

Age 52 years; lawyer and business man; does not represent any group. Has resided here for eight years and has made Seattle his home since 1889. Some experience in mining in Alaska.

He opposes Erickson measure. Favors delay in completion of Skagit project after carrying out existing contracts until market for current can be found. Believes under good management 5c fare should be possible in ninety days. Says there 35% to 40% too many street car department employees. Believes public utilities should be self-supporting; number of city employees can be reduced one-third. Has been candidate before for Mayor, Superior Court Judge and Congress.

Committee believes candidate too optimistic about what he can accomplish and without adequate experience to serve in office he seeks.

* * *

56 years of age. A real estate operator of this city for 32 years; an owner of much real estate, a heavy taxpayer. Is opposed to Erickson measure, favors completion of first unit of Skagit project. Believes street car fares now too high but doesn't favor resorting to general fund. Would consolidate all utilities so weak may be helped by strong; wages of street car employees too high. Opposed to present system of civil service. Not running on petition of any organized body but to reduce taxes and give public utilities business management. Has never held public office.

Mr. Turner is a successful business man and useful citizen. Is not especially equipped by study or experience to be mayor of the city.

FOR ELECTION TO THE CITY COUNCIL

Alexander J. Allen

Age 53 years and has been a resident of Seattle forty-six years; shipwright by occupation. Mr. Allen is apparently against the Erickson measure; believes in Public Utilities maintaining themselves, but not purchasing themselves; would reduce the street car fare if possible, but would take from the general fund if necessary to help out; would finish the first unit of the Skagit, and if necessary to pay from the general fund; is familiar with the use of machinery and handling crews of workmen.

Knows of no extravagance in city administration and knows of no way to save expenses. Mr. Allen is experienced in construction enterprises and the handling of men, but is not familiar with civic questions or policies.

59 years old; has lived in Seattle 31 years. Manager the Neptune Building and Theatre. President Puritan Theatre Co; Secretary-treasurer Graff Construction Co. and Nitrogen Products Co. Is heavy taxpayer, was member of first Civil Service Commission and member of city council 1910-13.

Opposed to Erickson measure. Believes that all Public Utilities should pay their own way and that earnings of one should not be used to aid another. Favors Skagit project. Believes that large saving can be made in all city departments; that city employees should not receive higher salaries than for similar work in general business. Platform is largely tax reduction.

His connection with city affairs and his business training well qualify him for the office.

A. G. Barbour

A commercial salesman, 52 years of age; now connected with the Lee Broom and Duster Company.

Against Erickson carfare ordinance. Believes street car system could be made to pay on a low fare but is against taking any money from general fund for street car purposes. Favors completion of first unit of Skagit plan. Would endeavor to reduce tax rate by cutting out waste avoiding extravagance and keeping down crime. Particularly interested in the morality of the City. Has never held public office.

Mr. Barbour is a useful public citizen but not especially qualified by experience or study for the office.

* * *

Clare S. Colegrove

50 years of age; in the state county and city 25 years. Now in the restaurant business. Former business experience—buyer and manager Stone Fisher Co. and Bon Marche.

Will devote enough time to the office if elected. Does not favor Erickson measure. Believes street car fare can be reduced, but not to five cents. Does not favor drawing on the general fund. Each utility must be self-supporting. Has no particular measure to put through. Does not know exactly what can be done to reduce taxes, but feels that many contracts are let too loosely. Number of city employees should be reduced. No particular department in mind.

Has collected considerable statistical material concerning the Skagit, and the street railway problems. Is an intelligent citizen, has made some study of city affairs and might be useful to the council.

Age 49; assistant to president of Washington Mutual Savings Bank; appraiser and real estate expert. Induced to run by citizens committee. Does not favor Erickson measure. Against resort to general fund to aid public utilities; believes fares may be reduced by rigid economy. Street car system should be taken out of politics; that it can't be run efficiently under present political system. Is now earning more than councilman's salary.

as held no public office.

Impresses committee as intelligent citizen who would give city good service.

* * *

Clifford H. Clark

57 years of age; in wholesale butter and egg business. Opposed to Erickson street car ordinance. Favors lower street car fare, but has no definite plan. Favors completion of first Skagit unit.

Has never been a candidate for public office before.

Mr. Clark is a good average business man, with praiseworthy intentions for betterment in city affairs, but with no definite plan for carrying them out and no special qualifications for the office.

* * *

A. T. Drake

42 years old; resided in Seattle 10 years; now member of City Council; has been on city payroll for 18 years; voted for the Skagit project. Did not care to express opinion on Erickson ordinance. Did not seem to have definite ideas on larger policies of city government excepting those pertaining to city employment. Has not made sufficiently strong record in city council to entitle him to re-election.

* * *

Charles H. Gallant

32 years old; resided in King County 21 years, in Seattle 9 years. At present local representative of the International Correspondence School. For several years in electrical sales operating and engineering service with Seattle-Tacoma Power Company, Puget Sound Light & Power Co. and City Light Department. At last election was supported by Labor Union vote. Was active in drive which resulted in city acquiring Skagit site.

Is opposed to Erickson ordinance, but thinks we should have five cent fare, balance paid out of general fund.

Believes city employees should have right to organize, but right to strike would depend upon circumstances. Is especially interested in public utilities and getting cheaper current.

Possesses valuable experience in electrical field, but lacks broad training necessary to fit in the position he seeks.

* * *

Frank D. Haydon

45 years old; born Santiago,

Chili; lived in Seattle ten years. Has had experience in railway engineering and construction work. For last four years has been professor of railway engineering in the University of Washington.

Favors first unit of Skagit project; opposed to Erickson measure. Believes in refunding street railway bonds by issue of long term obligations. A student of railroad financing, actuated by high motives in filing, but inexperienced in city affairs. As the adoption of his theories would be only remotely probable, he would not be an effective member in the council.

* * *

Henry D. Hall

Age 58 years. In the state 33 years, in city and county ten years. In fuel and building material business.

Believes all public utilities should be self-sustaining. Opposed to Erickson car fare ordinance. Would develop Skagit project through the units already planned and later as rapidly as there is a demand for the current.

Has always favored public ownership of light and water plants. Each utility must sustain itself. Only slightly familiar with city affairs. Very emphatic in stating opinions. Has no specific devices to propose for the betterment of city government, or decrease of tax rates. Put forward by West Seattle organizations.

Is an energetic, wide awake citizen, but has no outstanding qualifications for the office.

M. G. Johansen

Age 34 years. At present manager of the Millionair Club, an organization for relief of the unemployed. Formerly real estate and business chance broker; also in Police Department. Resided in Seattle 4½ years. Not familiar with Erickson ordinance. Believes in measures to reduce crime and create jobs for the unemployed. Believes tax rate should be reduced but offers no definite suggestions. Candidate is doing valuable work on social lines in present position, and has serious and altruistic motives in desire to better conditions in the city.

Candidate has made no study of municipal problems, has only vague suggestions for city betterment; not especially fitted for the council.

* * *

Fred W. Kelly

Civil engineer; 41 years old, unmarried; in Seattle 28 years; candidate for council on two or three former occasions.

Opposes the Erickson street car ordinance; favors five cent fare if it can be made to pay. Looks upon the Skagit project as a failure. Believes that the city will lose whether it continues the improvement now begun or stops now. Would not give full time to councilmanic service but such as is necessary to do the work.

Possesses considerable knowledge concerning the city, especially in engineering lines. Very critical of all branches of city government. His frequent communications to the city council and general attitude toward city make his ability to co-operate with rest of council doubtful.

* * *

Mrs. Henry Landes

Is opposed to the Erickson street car ordinance; favors a lower street car fare without going into the general fund.

Believes in a business administration and also that there are problems affecting the welfare, morals, health and whole life of the citizen's that need a woman's viewpoint in solving.

Is deeply interested in the housing problem and slum conditions now creeping into the city.

Mrs. Landes is a student of sociology and municipal government; has taken a prominent part in the women's activities of the city; served two terms as President of the City Federation of Women's Clubs. Those desiring women on the city council can do no better than to vote for Mrs. Landes.

Hugh McSorley

A resident of Seattle 38 years; formerly in bottling business; a property owner, now retired from active business. Is opposed to Erickson ordinance. Is not in favor of any present reduction in street car fares. Would not complete the Skagit until we need current. Believes all public utilities should be self-supporting; that councilmen's salaries should be reduced one-third to one-half; that city employees should not receive more than private employees in similar lines. He has made no study of municipal affairs.

* * *

Mrs. Kathryn Miracle

A widow; in real estate and insurance business. Resided in Seattle 16 years; has been in business as legal stenographer, accountant and real estate for twenty years; believes in Seattle and its future. Is opposed to Erickson measure; does not believe in supporting public utilities out of general fund; favors completion of first unit of Skagit. Thinks women in council can bring about more economy than men. Is much interested in reducing the tax rate. Believes in elimination of waste in city government.

Committee believes candidate lacks kind of training and experience necessary for office she seeks.

* * *

H. Alvin Moore

Has been a locomotive engineer since 1889; is against the Erickson measure; favors a five cent fare, but not if it requires assistance from the general fund;

as on the Industrial Code Commission of the State; favors the Skagit development as very important; would make Public Utilities pay for themselves.

Mr. Moore has made a study of many phases of civic administration and has original ideas thereon.

* * *

William Hickman Moore

Is one of the present incumbents. Has been a member of city council for six years. Was formerly mayor of Seattle and Judge of Superior Court. Has a wide and intimate knowledge of the city's affairs. Believes weight of argument is against Erickson measure; that each utility should be self-supporting and would not vote for any street car fare which would create a deficit in railway fund. Says car system is not in politics now and that wages of street car men are fair.

Mr. Moore's long service in the office for which he is a candidate for re-election renders any particular comment by the committee unnecessary. Those who are satisfied with the manner in which the affairs of the city generally have been conducted during the last six years should vote for Mr. Moore; those who are not satisfied should vote for some other candidate.

45 years of age; resident of Seattle for 25 years; has been City Sanitary Inspector fifteen years and knows Seattle thoroughly; has not held an elective office.

Would carry out Erickson plan if the people so voted; believes five cent fare should be restored and if line does not pay let it go back to Stone-Webster; if necessary the general fund could be called on.

Filed at request of friends; thinks the big loss in City expenses comes between budget making times in deficiency appropriations.

Not many unnecessary employees on the city pay rolls and there should not be much reduction in salaries; salaries should depend on living conditions; and the city is entitled to the best employees.

Apparently efficient in his previous work, but not possessed of experience outside; can best serve the city in his present position.

William C. Zimmer

45 years of age; has resided in Seattle seven years; employed by Pacific Coast Steel Company as heater and for the last seven years has taken a prominent part in conferences of employers and employees to settle the wages and working conditions in steel industries, local and national.

Believes Erickson measure dangerous and would be too burdensome to industries. Public utilities should be self-supporting; would develop Skagit to first unit and later to meet needs.

Particular purpose in filing is to encourage new industries and lower tax rates; against waste through duplication or otherwise and for all reasonable economy.

Mr. Zimmer's past experience has apparently well fitted him for working with other men in conference and council and his election would give representation to the industrial side of the city's interests.

The committee has not interviewed Mr. George Parker and Mr. T. H. Bolton, nor received any written information concerning them. The committee, therefore, furnishes no information and expresses no opinion upon them.

ASPIRANTS FOR BOARD ADDRESS THE LEAGUE

By Eimon L. Wienir, Secretary

Five candidates for the school board addressed the League in person at its meeting Tuesday noon. One candidate, unable to attend because of bereavement in his family, sent his statement which was read by the writer to the members; and one remaining candidate will appear before the League at a later time.

A statement of the candidates follows:-

Dean Burkheimer: I am a candidate because I am interested in the public schools, having four boys in the schools of this city. I have nothing to sell to the school board nor do I represent anybody who has anything to sell to the board. We want our taxes reduced to the least possible amount, but it must be remembered that the highest duty of a state is to educate and to train its people. It must be a practical and useful education, and it must cultivate its children morally, mentally and physically. No thinking citizen, to my mind, will impair the school efficiency by drastic reduction in taxation. When it is borne in mind that in 1918 we spent $9,000,000 for school purposes and that two years later, in 1920, $22,000,000 was spent for luxuries, we must come to the conclusion that if it is necessary to reduce, we could do so by cutting out useless expenditures for luxuries. I do not believe in cutting wages of the teachers. I believe we should have manual training for boys and domestic science for girls, and a reasonable amount of athletic training. I don't know that there is any waste in our system, but if there is, I shall expose it."

Claude H. Eckart: A man who is out looking in is in a much different situation than the man who is in looking out. I have made a study of the various departments of our school system, and I believe that these departments are functioning as satisfactorily as though they were operated by a private corporation. There is less dead wood in the Seattle school system than is contained in any private corporation. I believe in reduction of taxes. I believe that costs must be reduced, but where are you going to cut them? The present cost of maintaining our system is high primarily for two reasons: first, because we haven't paid our bills in the past (we are still paying the bonds issued in payment of the Broadway High School), and secondly, we have twice the number of schools maintained in other cities, due to our own peculiar necessity—the topographical situation of our city is such that we must have them."

Mr. Eckart then analyzed the grades given to pupils in the Seattle schools to show the character of work done, and gave, as a conclusion from the facts presented, that the percentage of failures of Seattle students in the University is less than that of any other city in the state.

Dr. C. W. Sharples: The candidate stated that he was urged to run by numerous Seattle citizens, and that he felt it his duty to serve the city after devoting all of his time for the past thirty years to the profession of medicine. He argued that there was no fundamental difference in the policy between himself and the other candidates, ly a matter of personality. "We are here in order to sell ourselves and concluded that it was simple."

CORRECTION MADE IN INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE REPORT

In publishing the report of the Investigating Committee on mayoralty and councilmanic candidates, the printers made several errors in the report on Walter F. Meier, mayoralty candidate, and left out the conclusions of the committee on T. J. Cunningham. In order to correct the errors thus made, the report on Walter F. Meier, with the exception of the conclusions of the committee, is herein reprinted. The committee's conclusions on Meier, Cunningham and the other candidates are reprinted in another portion of this issue. The statement of Mr. Meier follows:

WALTER F. MEIER

Lawyer, 42 years of age. At present Corporation Counsel of the city. Was Chief Deputy in the Prosecuting Attorney's office of King County in 1915 and 1916, and First Assistant Corporation Counsel of the city in 1917 and 1918.

Opposes the Erickson Street Car Ordinance.

Favors lower taxes, the completion of the Gorge Creek plant on Skagit River, consolidation of city and county governments, self-sustaining public utilities, municipal efficiency, and a business administration.

CITY COUNCIL PASSES OFF-PEAK ORDINANCE

By the Secretary

One of the most important pieces of legislation which the City Council has passed upon recently was the Off-Peak Power Ordinance permitting manufacturers a rebate of 25% on power used during the off-peak hours. The ordinance fixes off-peak hours as being from 4:30 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The ordinance as passed was as originally drafted by Councilman William Hickman Moore.

The bill, as the committee recommended it for passage, contained a provision to the effect that the users of power should be charged peak rates in the event that they used power during the peak hours. Serious objection was made to this "joker" as it was called by the manufacturers, for the reason that most, if not all, of the plants used some little power during the peak hours even though practically all of its power was used during off-peak hours.

The ordinance as passed should help considerably in stimulating business in Seattle. The City Light Department has indeed made a huge concession. It is doubtful in the writer's mind if the cut in rate as made will not seriously handicap the City Light Department unless utmost good faith is practiced by the manufacturers. If the manufacturers run into the peak hours to any considerable extent, either the peak rates will have to be increased, or else the ordinance as passed will have to be considerably modified in the interests of the Light Department. Much has been made of the fact that the granting of the 25% rebate will stimulate business, and it is to be hoped that it will encourage not only present industries, but will encourage new industries to come to Seattle.

to you," said the candidate. "If you believe that I am honest, that I will make my office a business such as I have my professional practice, that I will devote a sufficient amount of time to the work, and that I will serve you to the best of my ability — better than the other candidates — vote for me."

F. G. Taylor: The candidate pointed out that this was the first year that the voters of Seattle had a real opportunity to vote upon school directors. Heretofore, he said, due to the special election of school electors, no more than from five to twenty thousand votes were cast for the office. This year, four or five times that number will vote upon the directors. The candidate said that he was familiar with the school work in four of the Pacific Coast states, having come here in 1906 as a representative of Dodd-Mead Co., a book company. The candidate stated that he was not in favor of the reduction of teachers' salaries but a "readjustment" of salaries. By readjustment he said he meant doing away with the seniority rule. "All teachers should not have to wait ten years before getting a maximum salary, as it should be easier to classify three grades of teachers in the order of their merit," he said. The candidate believes in manual training for boys, "but it may have been too expensive," he concluded.

Dr. Charles C. Tiffin: The first requisite necessary to secure a director to the office is to have children in public schools," declared the candidate. He argued that there was no need for more lawyers on the board! The school board employes a lawyer by the year, and there is another attorney serving on the board. He believes, he said, in giving the superintendent the power which his name implies in fact, as well as in theory. The candidate promised to cut out "graft and duplicate positions" and to give his best possible attention to the office. He pointed to his record as County Coroner as being a good test as to his fitness for public office.

George H. Revelle, who submitted his statement to the League, stated that he was opposed to the reduction of teachers' salaries; that he does not believe in curtailing vocational training and domestic science, as at present conducted in Seattle schools. Vocational training, he said, has two purposes: "(1) That of directing along useful lines, those children in the schools who are unable to grasp or receive the regular course of training as laid down for them, and, (2) The disciplining and training of the mind and hands along practical and useful lines. Any course of study or application of mind or hands which better fits them (the pupils) to earn a living in the organized community under the established laws, is of as great importance as learning the principles laid down in the text books covering an academic education."

The candidate further stated that, in his mind, the most important rule that the new school board should follow is the "building up and the maintaining of an efficient system of schools at the least possible expense consistent with efficiency."

INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE CONCLUSIONS ON MAYORALTY AND COUNCILMANIC CANDIDATES

Secretary's Note

Many requests have come to the office with respect to the conclusions of the Investigating Committee on the mayoralty and councilmanic candidates. The same are herewith reprinted for the convenience of members and their friends.

FOR MAYOR OF THE CITY

Dr. E. J. Brown

Shows familiarity with civic problems and definite ideas thereon; Dr. Brown has been repeatedly an unsuccessful candidate for office; review of past political activities suggests doubt as to his working in harmony with other branches of city government.

T. J. Cunningham

Mr. Cunningham, although a successful business man, of fine character and ideas, in not well enough versed in civic affairs to clearly understand the duties and limitations of the office of Mayor.

Dan Landon

Statement of beliefs vague and showed no particular grasp of civic problems; well intentioned but not especially qualified by experience, personality or ability for the office of Mayor.

Ira D. Lundy

Has no very definite information about city business. No particular policy to embody in his administration if elected, other than a general harmonizing and co-operation of all municipal governing agencies. Is not fixed in any policy or forceful in presentation of his beliefs. Not the type of man most needed in the Mayor's office at this time.

Walter F. Meier

A man of ability, character and energy, with an intimate knowledge of city affairs, and well qualified by experience, study and temperament for the position of mayor.

Charles H. Miller

Committee believes candidate too optimistic about what he can accomplish and without adequate experience to serve in office he seeks.

H. S. Turner

Mr. Turner is a successful business man and useful citizen. Is not especially equipped by study or experience to be mayor of the city.

FOR ELECTION TO THE CITY COUNCIL

Alexander J. Allen

Knows of no extravagance in city administration and knows of no way to save expenses. Mr. Allen is experienced in construction enterprises and the handling of men, but is not familiar with civic questions or policies.

E. L. Blaine

His connection with city affairs and his business training well qualify him for the office.

A. G. Barbour

Mr. Barbour is a useful public citizen but not especially qualified by experience or study for the office.

Clare S. Colegrove

Has collected considerable statistical material concerning the Skagit, and the street railway problems. Is an intelligent citizen, has made some study of city affairs and might be useful in the council.

E. B. Cox

Impresses committee as intelligent citizen who would give city good service.

Clifford H. Clark

Mr. Clark is a good average business man, with praiseworthy intentions for betterment in city affairs, but with no definite plan for carrying them out and no special qualifications for the office.

A. T. Drake

42 years old; resided in Seattle 20 years; now member of City Council; has been on city payroll for 18 years; voted for the Skagit project. Did not care to express opinion on Erickson ordinance. Did not seem to have definite ideas on larger policies of city government excepting those pertaining to city employment.

Has not made sufficiently long record in city council to title him to re-election.

Charles H. Gallant

Possesses valuable experience in electrical field, but lacks broad training necessary to fit in the position he seeks.

Frank D. Hayden

Favors first unit of Skagit project; opposed to Erickson measure. Believes in refunding street railway bonds by issue of long term obligations. A student of railroad financing, actuated by high motives in filing, but inexperienced in city affairs. As the adoption of his theories would be only remotely probable, he would not be an effective member in the council.

Henry D. Hall

Is an energetic, wide awake citizen, but has no outstanding qualifications for the office.

M. G. Johansen

Candidate has made no study of municipal problems, has only vague suggestions for city betterment; not especially fitted for the council.

Fred W. Kelly

Possesses considerable knowledge concerning the city, especially in engineering lines. Very critical of all branches of city government. His frequent communications to the city council and general attitude toward city make his ability to co-operate with rest of council doubtful.

Mrs. Henry Landes

Mrs. Landes is a student of sociology and municipal government; has taken a prominent part in the women's activities of the city; served two terms as president of the City Federation of Women's Clubs. Those desiring women on the city council can do no better than to vote for Mrs. Landes.

Hugh McSorley

He has made no study of municipal affairs.

Mrs. Kathryn Miracle

Committee believes candidate lacks kind of training and experience necessary for office she seeks.

H. Alvin Moore

Mr. Moore has made a study of many phases of civic administration and has original ideas thereon.

William Hickman Moore

Mr. Moore's long service in the office for which he is a candidate for re-election renders any particular comment by the committee unnecessary. Those who are satisfied with the manner in which the affairs of the city generally have been conducted during the last six years should vote for Mr. Moore; those who are not satisfied should vote for some other candidate.

Hugh T. Parker

Apparently efficient in his previous work, but not possessed of experience outside; can best serve the city in his present position.

William C. Zimmer

Mr. Zimmer's past experience has apparently well fitted him for working with other men in conference and council and his election would give representation to the industrial side of the city's interests.

The committee has not interviewed Mr. George Parker and Mr. T. H. Bolton, nor received any written information concerning them. The committee, therefore, furnishes no information and expresses no opinion upon them.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING—

Sacramento, Cal., had a free city flower show in November. This was planned to benefit the city by its own beauty, but also as a start in a definite effort for city beautification.

Cleveland, Ohio, has adopted the city-manager form of government to take effect in 1924. The World's Work for April calls it "a revolutionary experiment in a democratic, controlled autocracy" for the council elected under the newly adopted Hare plan of proportional representation will presumably be representative of the city. This council will have an absolutely free hand in electing the city manager, and the city manager, after election, is to have a free hand in the administration of city affairs, subject only to the council's removal power.

According to the article in the World's Work the city manager amendment to the charter was carried in spite of serious opposition as a result of the disgusting character of the mayoralty campaign and popular discontent with machine politics.

The National Municipal Review for March reports that as a result of the changed form of government petitions for annexation votes have been started or are contemplated in twelve suburban districts.

The Tulsa, Oklahoma, street department has found a cheap and efficient method of marking streets. All street names are stenciled in black on a white background painted on the curbs. They are painted only on the right hand opposite corner, so that one driving down a street will be able to read the name of a cross street while approaching it.

The Toledo Community Traction Company published its first annual report as a supplement to the Toledo City Journal for March 18, 1922. Mr. Cann, the City Railway Commissioner, writes interestingly of the company's first year under the "service-at-cost" ordinance and reports that the Community Traction Company is earning enough to meet all of its obligations and is discounting its bills. In his recommendations for the coming year he mentions the building up of the fare stabilizing fund, the reduction of fares, and the regulation of busses. At present the company is operating on a seven cent cash fare with six tickets for forty cents.

Boise, Idaho, has modernized "Ye old towne meeting" according to the American City for February. A Community Council has been formed, made up of representatives from every organization in the city: churches, fraternal organizations, labor unions, women's clubs, parent-teacher circles, associations of professional men and women, and every racial group. Of course the Council has no legislative power but it promises to be a powerful influence in directing city affairs.

San Francisco's Municipal Railway's financial report for the year ending June 30, 1921, is on file at the Seattle Public Library.

Alameda County, Cal., has rejected a city-county manager charter. All the small cities voted "no" as they were unwilling to merge their individuality into the single municipality. Westchester County, N. Y., is facing the same difficulty in its campaign for city-county government.

(Compiled by Seattle Public Library, Municipal Reference Division)

CITIES FIND CENTRAL GARAGE ECONOMICAL

A city taxi stand and a central municipal garage have been combined in a transportation system adopted by New York City which has found this plan more economical than the old one by which each department controlled its own motor vehicles.

New York has 25 cars on its municipal taxi stand outside the city hall.

Oakland, Calif., has a municipal garage under the supervision of the commissioner of streets.

San Francisco is considering the establishment of a municipal garage.

All motors in the Winnipeg, Man., city service, are repaired in one city garage.

The Toronto report recommends that police and fire vehicles should be separate but that repairs should be made at the municipal garage.

HILLMAN PAVING IS NOW ASSURED

On recommendation of district city engineer W. L. Thompson, the Orcas street paving proposition recently requested by petition, went to resolution this week, and plans will be prepared, a hearing held and the work expected to be ordered this Spring, in time it is stated to put the paving in this year.

The improvement is to include paving on Orcas street from 42d avenue south to 52d avenue south, on both sides of Rainier avenue. Lucile and Findley street petitions, which were filed at the same time as the Orcas street paving petition, are to be held in abeyance until the water mains are put in, in those streets, the latter of which property owners on those streets must petition for before the paving can go down.

EMPIRE WAY BIDS TO BE CALLED

Bids for the paving of Empire Way, from Cheasty boulevard at the high school to Henderson street, and for the paving of that street after the grading is completed to a width of 18 or 20 feet, will be called for next week, stated district city engineer W. L. Thompson last Thursday. The ordinance providing for this work was passed by the Council some years ago but bids could not be secured by the city for the work. The Renton avenue highway will cut through Rainier Valley in the vicinity of 32d avenue at the foot of Beacon Hill.

Views of Port Candidates Given League

Five candidates for the Port Commission addressed the League Tuesday noon, outlining their policies and qualifications for the office. Upon the suggestion of one of the candidates the order of speaking was reversed, and candidate Wood was the first speaker and George F. Cotterill the last. The feature of Tuesday's meeting was the singing of Henry O. Price, who rendered two beautiful and inspiring selections, and he was accompanied by James Hamilton Howe.

W. S. WOOD—The candidate spent most of his time in making a severe arraignment against the commissioners who are conducting the affairs of the Port at this time. "A political machine has been built up by the Port. This machine has created positions, discharged competent employees and has done all sorts of manner of things to advance its own interest, disregarding the interest of the port," declared Wood. The candidate charged that the loss sustained in 1921, amounting to nearly a quarter of a million dollars, was largely dueable to the lack of curtailment of expenses on the port of the commissioners. He said that, though in 1920 the port made a profit of one-half million dollars, in 1921 it lost a quarter of a million; and expenses, instead of being curtailed, were increased by $100,000.

W. C. KEAN—The candidate took up the time allotted him by reading from a questionnaire which he had submitted to the Voters' Information League, giving his age, residence in Seattle and other pertinent facts concerning his candidacy. He is in favor of public employees receiving no higher wages than employees in private concerns, and also believed in the manager form of government for the port. If elected, he would turn over the affairs of the port to a manager, he said. The Seattle Advisory Council had urged him to enter the race, he said.

R. E. DOWNIE—The candidate pointed to a revival of business as soon as conditions in Mexico and Russia were stabilized, and looked forward to a large volume of business with Japan. He predicted that the fight for the supremacy of the seas will be transferred from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and declared that there is plenty of business on the coast for all. Downie decried those who shout that big businesses are kept from Seattle by the high tax rate, saying that factory sites may be obtained on port property for a 6 per cent investment and there will be no taxes to pay. He also advocated making Seattle a free trade zone, where raw materials may be imported, made up, and no duties assessed if shipped out again. If shipped into the United States for consumption, duty would be charged. This would apply especially to silk, iron and hides, he said.

JULIUS G. DAY—Day took a decided stand in favor of a port manager. "The only way to get efficiency is to make one man responsible," he said. "At the grand jury investigation 57 employees testified, and only one man acknowledged that he worked. In one department alone I could remove employees to the tune of $1,900 a month on the payroll, and the work would go on just the same. You can hire the very best manager in the world for that amount of money."

GEORGE F. COTTERILL—George Cotterill outlined his work in connection with the port of Seattle as engineer and in other ways for the last 25 years. "Some things are wrong in the port today," he said, "but they are mere flyspecks in a great achievement." Cotterill said that one reason for the increased overhead was that $2,000,000 bonds for a new dock are now carried as overhead. He upheld the 1-mill tax law that has been levied for the port, stating that Seattle this year will give the port $300,000 from her taxes, while in Portland the port will receive $1,000,000 from a similar source.

JUDGES VOTE FOR SPECIAL GRAND JURY

Eight King County Superior Court judges voted to call a special county grand jury to report Monday, May 8, and investigate charges of fraud and collusion made by a committee of Bellevue citizens against the county commissioners and Capt. J. L. Anderson, former superintendent of county transportation and now lessee of the county ferries on Lake Washington. The ninth judge, who is not in the city, had announced he would vote with the majority.

Presiding Judge Calvin S. Hall announced the calling of the

Why Was Mr. Meier Beaten?

By Eimon L. Wienir, Secretary

An astonishing question, that: "Why was Mr. Meier beaten?" Astonishing, to my mind, because Mr. Meier seemed to be eminently qualified for the position he was seeking, in temperament, in training and in experience. He was, moreover, well known to the electorate by reason of his long service in both county and city affairs. Why, then, was he defeated?

There are probably two or three reasons for his defeat, difficult to separate and place in the order of their importance. The first and primary reason, to my mind, was the fact that he was said to be a "hand-picked" candidate, selected by the Washington Union League, an organization but recently organized, and apparently formed for the very purpose of putting into office candidates selected by it. The Washington Union League, was and is now headed by men formerly active in the organization known as the Associated Industries which has never enjoyed the confidence of the majority of Seattle citizens. A vast number of voters resented the fact that any organization should pick its candidates for them—and pick them in advance.

The second reason for Meier's defeat, to my mind, lies in the fact that a great number of the voters wanted a complete change in the personnel now at the city hall. That was evidenced very clearly by the defeat of Councilman Drake and by Councilman William Hickman Moore pulling up to six place by the skin of his teeth.

And a third reason lies in Mr. Meier's official position as corporation counsel in connection with the street railway purchase from Stone & Webster. A great many people, whether right or not makes no difference, believe that Mr. Meier was responsible in some way for not looking after the city's interest in the contract which was drawn between the private company and the city. Many voters also felt that Meier should not have resisted the 14 tax payers' suits to determine whether or not the general fund could be tapped to support deficits occurring from the operation of the railway. This group of voters contend that it was not up to the corporation counsel of the city to defend a suit virtually in interests of the private company.

And the last reason, and perhaps not least in importance, is the over-confidence on the part of Mr. Meier's friends, supporters and campaign committee that Meier would be nominated for the office. They looked forward to exerting their greatest energies after the primaries, believing without question Meier would be nominated. Whether his campaign committee was inefficient or not, the fact remains that thousands of our so-called "better citizens" did not vote at the primaries. There lies the trouble. Not until the voters take a genuine interest in city affairs and vote will we get the best character of men to run for and be elected to office.

special inquisitorial body after a brief executive session in his chambers.

Prosecuting Attorney Malcom Douglas, who recommended to the court that a grand jury be called to investigate the charges, will direct the inquiry. He will marshal all the evidence submitted by the citizens of Bellevue and have it ready to present to the jurors so that their work may be expedited and the heavy expense of a special grand jury held to the minimum.

Special Venire to Be Called

A special venire will be called and from it the seventeen grand jurors will be chosen.

The petition for a grand jury was presented to Prosecutor Douglas last week and was signed by Thomas Daugherty, William Raine and W. H. Gilmore, all of Bellevue.

Denial of all charges made in the petition has been made by Commissioners Claude C. Ramsay, Lou C. Smith and Tom Dobson, and by Captain Anderson.

Presiding Judge Hall said the court had taken the attitude expressed by Prosecutor Douglas his recommendation that "the charges are sufficiently serious to warrant the calling of a grand jury so that their truth or falsity may be thoroughly inquired into. Some of the accusations are apparently frivolous. Others, if provable, would justify starting prosecutions, while if found to be unsupportable, the persons accused would doubtless receive the benefit of a vindication at the hands of an inquisitorial body. Owing to the wide publicity given this matter, I believe the public is interested in having it thoroughly probed."

Statements in Petition

That the commissioners and Captain Anderson, as superintendent of transportation, discredited the ferries under county operation and made it appear necessary to lease them is one charge in the petition. It is also alleged that the Commissioners and Captain Anderson had an agreement that he was to lease the ferries before bids were called and that communities on the east shore of Lake Washington were unable to lease individual ferries on this account.

The lease was made secretly under terms advantageous to Captain Anderson, whereby the county furnished him with supplies and fuel oil valued at $100,000 and also agreed to pay insurance on the ferries and to keep up the terminals, according to the petition.

It is alleged in the petition that county fuel oil was sold to a towboat company and the money never turned in to the county; that several hundred dollars was spent in repairing private automobiles at a Leschi repair yard and the bill charged to repairs on the county steamboat Aquilo, and that tires were purchased for a private car and the bill charged to the ferry Leschi.

Lumber belonging to King County was appropriated by Captain Anderson and used to build a private building, the petition charges. Captain Anderson charged the expense of cleaning a personally owned boiler to the county, the petition alleges. It is further alleged that thousands of dollars worth of county fuel oil was used by Captain Anderson privately in 1919; that thousands of dollars was charged to the launch Dr. Martin and none of it expended on that vessel; that several hundred dollars was charged for repairs to the ferry Robert Bridges and none of it expended in that way, and that thousands of dollars of county business was handled by Captain Anderson at his private yard at Houghton without bids on the work being called.

Commissioner Ramsay used thousands of dollars of county money to increase the value of property on the east shore of Lake Washington between Medina and Yarrow, which he and his wife own, according to the petition. It is also charged that $10,000 of county money was used to build a dock and dredge a channel to the dock built at the southwest corner of Hunt's Point when there was an available pier on the southwest corner, with the purpose of increasing value of property owned by Commissioner Ramsay in the vicinity.

Still Further Charges

Further charges are that $30,000 county money was used to build a "clubhouse" at Medina and enhance value of Commissioner Ramsay's land nearby, that a dishonest employee's maintenance was "covered" by the commissioners and Captain Anderson and the employee retained and that supplies for a year for the ferries were purchased by the county previous to turning the over to Captain Anderson last December, and that he was given six months to pay for the supplies.

Mail was carried on county ferries under a contract where Captain Anderson received no compensation, it is alleged.

Judge Hall said the grand jury next month will take up the work of the usual November grand jury and that none will be called this November. Duplication of expense will be avoided, Judge Hall said.

After the conclusion of the ferry inquiry, any other matter usually handled by a grand jury will be taken up, Judge Hall declared.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Compiled by Seattle Public Library, Municipal Reference Division

BERKELEY, Cal., has an efficient police department, practically a model one, according to an article in the March number of the National Municipal Review. Mr. August Vollmer, chief, has a force of thirty-three men, of whom thirteen are university graduates. The police school maintained in Berkeley is credited by Mr. Fosdick in "American Police Systems" as being the most ambitious attempted in America. Patrolmen in this city is done de luxe, each man on the force provided his own automobile for which he gets an allowance of $30 a month and gasoline and oil. A very complete record system is one of the features of the Berkeley system and is the source of information for several valuable pin maps, one showing the distribution of crime about the city, another casualties and their nature, and a third juvenile delinquencies, maps which aid in the prevention work on which the department prides itself.

Zoning

Thirty-eight cities in the U. S. have now been zoned, and zoning is under way in forty-two more. A new development in New York is the adoption of 75 foot height limitation for the exclusive residential section of upper Fifth Ave. which will practically mean the limitation of this section of crime about the city, and according to the seventh yearbook of the City Manager's Association, there were in the United States and Canada in July 1921 245 cities operating under, or pledged to the city-manager form of government—a net gain of 60 over the number reported the previous year. Two hundred thirty-nine of these are in the United States and six in Canada. The yearbook gives brief reports of progress in about one hundred seventy-five of these cities together with accounts of the discussions which took place at the annual convention. Some of the subjects considered were: Practical budget procedure, Setting up of a city plan program, The occupational tax in Cincinnati, Making city owned utilities pay, Model building codes and housing laws.

TOLEDO has had a Talk Toledo Week, the object to "sell" Toledo to Toledoans. At neighborhood mass meetings speakers told of the cultural, industrial, and historical assets of the city, sites of historical interest in Toledo were marked, and a Fifty-year Club was formed composed of "old-timers". The week culminated in a Community Spell-down in which facts about the city were asked instead of the spelling of words.

She: I've kept an account of all our quarrels in this notebook.

He: I see, a sort of scrap-book.

FORMER LEAGUE PRESIDENT WRITES ON CRIME CORRECTION

Secretary's Note:—The following article, written by Austin E. Griffiths, president of the Municipal League in 1914 and at present one of the judges of the Superior Court of King County, appeared in a recent issue of the Seattle Times. Because of the League's interest in the writer as well as in his subject it is here reprinted in full.

By AUSTIN E. GRIFFITHS,
Judge of King County Superior Court

In the Times, issue of April 12, I saw a striking cartoon, descriptive of crime and disrespect for law.

I am not one who believes we are on the crest of a crime wave going to perdition. On the contrary, general conditions are better than they might well have been expected to be. This observation applies to most other countries as well as our own. The fact that conditions are no worse is evidence of the moral strength of our civilization.

In accordance with the Master's plan nature makes and un-makes its own. Man also shapes or misshapes his destiny. The undermining, corrupt, pulling down agencies are always at work. This is especially so in cities. Incessant vigilance at the dykes and building up alone saves what we have and gains something better.

Defects, evils and complaints are without number. Ideas and reform measures, both economic and general, are legion.

But, let me skip this wilderness of complaint and redress and complaint and come to one or two points of procedural policy and means. Last month I was looking over several of our big cities, in particular Los Angeles.

Lawlessness in Los Angeles

The rapid growth of that sister city is a remarkable tribute to material progress. If that were all or even the most important part of life, then that city should be given the crown.

But as I saw the city night and day, put it in the balance, there was something lacking. I said at the time "the city is out of bounds,"—beyond reasonable and moral control. By thus singling out Los Angeles I do not imply that other cities may not be in this respect just as bad. I simply use the southern city to illustrate my point that our weakest spot is in the large city. There where the restraining, reforming and retributive forces should be and are assumed to be the strongest, they are the most inadequately applied.

Your cartoon led me to think again of Los Angeles as a present flagrant example of almost rampant lawlessness.

What I say is borne out by police figures of that city for the last month. Estimate of loot from burglary, theft and other crimes with damage to property, $1,732,000. Eleven homicides or murders, thirty-five suicides, and twenty-one persons killed in accident. A total of 3,166 accidents. There were 850 burglaries. The total arrests for March were 6,344.

Other cities, as I have indicated, may differ only in degree from this rank record of lawlessness. But Detroit is now dealing firmly with the crime problem. The consolidation and business-like administration of its courts, with the cooperation of public officials, reduced crime in 1921 58 per cent below the record of 1920. Unfortunately this great reduction for Detroit may only mean a migration of criminally minded persons to other cities, and not a cessation of crime to that extent. Chicago has a crime commission aiding its public officials.

Why Do We Fail?

Why do we fail to cope effectively with the rising stream of criminality?

Ninety-nine per cent of the enlarging volume of motor collisions with injury to life and limb and damage to property is caused by criminal negligence or else reckless disregard of the rights of others.

Machinery Out of Date

A direct reason is that our judicial machinery, penal and custodial systems are out of date. They are not equal to the diversity, ingenuity, complexity and extremes of modern crime. The sooner we admit this and face front the better. While we are looking back and hanging on to the past, crime and lawlessness are robbing the present and imperiling the future.

I offer two proposals, the adoption of which will go far to enable this state effectively to lessen crime and to deal with criminal offenders.

1. Abolish the police and justice courts. Consolidate their powers in the Superior Court. Revise court practice. Unify and administer the Superior Court in a more businesslike fashion.

2. Abolish all city and county jails. These barbarous places are crime breeders. Their inmates rot in criminal thought and purpose.

Consolidate these places into several central detention stations in the country. Provide diversified employment; careful separation and intelligent study and custodial management for all persons committed to them.

The state by these two changes would stop the prodigal fiscal and suicidal human waste now going on.

I should add for the benefit of the timid and conservative among us that the above proposals have nothing new or startling about them. They are not related to the war. They were discussed before the war. In several states these changes, singly or together, are already taking place.

It is time to take stock: What are our civil assets and liabilities? The fiscal cost, direct and indirect, of lawbreaking is going up to a staggering sum. Even in Seattle the Police Department budget is much in excess of $1,000,000. The human cost of crime through wasted lives and low standards is incomputable, but it makes the heart sick to think of it. Why not test the methods and places we use? Why not meet the challenge of inefficiency in the prevention and handling of criminals?

A public commission should be appointed to study and report suitable measures embodying the foregoing proposals. This ought to be done before the next Legislature convenes. I should like to see Governor Hart appoint such a commission. It should be representative but not over large. I would like to see the experiment tried with a majority of laymen on the commission.

Reports On School And Port Candidates, Charter Amendments And Propositions B. And C. In This Issue

REPORT ON CHARTER AMENDMENTS AND PROPOSITIONS B. AND C.

Report adopted without dissenting vote.

Municipal League of Seattle, Seattle, Washington.

The undersigned Committee appointed to report on the Proposed Charter Amendments and Propositions B. and C., report as follows:-

Proposed Charter Amendment No. I.

This measure requires the City Council annually to fix the rate of taxes to be levied and to levy taxes, and provides that no revenue raised by tax levy shall be appropriated for any other purpose than that specified in such levy, or in the official estimate upon which the same is based, unless an emergency exists wherein such appropriation is necessary for the preservation of the public peace, health and safety. The Ordinance making such appropriation shall contain statement of the facts constituting such emergency, shall specify that in the event a deficiency be thereby created in the fund from which such appropriation is made, the same shall be provided for in the next succeeding tax levy and must receive the affirmative vote of at least three-fourths of a total membership of the City Council.

"Or in the official estimate upon which the same is based" are only new words altering or amending the present City Charter found in Section 11 of Article 9 of the City Charter of the City of Seattle. At present each department submits its estimates of revenue needed by the department but these estimates are not specifically carried into the levy. Under the proposed amendment a limitation is placed upon each department in that the amount fixed in the levy and specified in the official estimate determines the amount that each department may receive and expend, subject to an emergency ordinance passed by a three-fourth vote of the total membership of the City Council.

This appears a meritorious measure and a step in the direction of the budget system.

Proposed Charter Amendment No. II.

This amendment provides that the penalty for all criminal ordinances shall be a fine not exceeding $100.00 or imprisonment in the City jail for a period not exceeding thirty days, or both, and that ordinances hereinafter enacted need not contain a provision in reference to penalties but that said penalty shall be applicable unless the ordinance shall provide otherwise.

This is a step toward uniformity of penalty for the violation of ordinances and saves infinite repetition of penalty clauses and is in line with a similar State statute.

Proposed Charter Amendment No. III.

It is proposed that the Board of Public Works shall consist of City Engineer, Superintendents of Streets and Sewers, Water Works, Lighting, and Buildings and such other Superintendents as may by Charter be made members thereof, each of whom shall be appointed by the Mayor with the advice and consent of the City Council for a term of three years.

The effect of this proposed amendment is to abolish the Department of Public Utilities. It should be considered in connection with proposed amendment No. IV.

Proposed Charter Amendment No. IV.

This amendment would create a Department of Transportation and make the Superintendent of Transportation a member of the Board of Public Works.

The effect of the passage of amendments No. III and IV would be to substitute the Superintendent of Transportation in the place of the Superintendent of Public Utilities. At present Superintendent of Transportation is appointed by the Superintendent of Public Utilities. Under these amendments the Superintendent of Transportation would be appointed by the Mayor and would be directly responsible to the Mayor.

This is a logical step, as the office of the Superintendent of Transportation overshadows in importance the office of the Superintendent of Public Utilities and should be directly responsible to the Mayor.

Proposition B.

It is proposed to change the present ordinance regulating the keeping of dogs and cats within the City of Seattle, imposing license taxes, providing penalties for violation thereof, placing same in the keeping of the King County Humane Society, as Pound Master. It is provided that all dogs and cats running at large without license tags are a public nuisance and that it shall be the duty of said Society to restrain and impound all such animals; that owners may redeem animals in 48 hours by paying the license tax and the penalty of $1.00. After 48 hours, additional charge shall be paid not exceeding 35c per day. If not redeemed within 48 hours the animal may be humanely destroyed or at the discretion of the Society may be held for a longer period. The Society is allowed 85 per cent of all monies received from license fees, penalties and charges, and is allowed to use free of charge for a period of two years all buildings and equipment now used in the operation of the City Pound. The Society is required to collect and dispose of all dead dogs and cats found in the City.

This measure is favored and sponsored by well-advised and responsible people and the Committee sees no objection to it.

Proposition C

This proposition submits the question whether or not the City shall become indebted by the sale of $550,000 general bonds, maturing in equal amounts, eleven to twenty years after date, interest not to exceed 6 per cent, to build the Montlake-Stadium Bridge. This bridge will span the Lake Washington Canal in continuation of 23rd Avenue and reaches the University District in close proximity to the Stadium. All sections of the City will be benefited by this bridge. It will save a mile or more of travel for thousands of people living in the Lake Washington District and will relieve the blockade which occurs at the 10th Avenue bridge during the busy part of the day. It will also eliminate the congestion which occurs when large crowds attend events at the Stadium.

Ballard, Fremont, Green Lake and University Districts will be provided with an easier and quicker route of travel going South to Madison, Leschi and Mt. Baker and the people in these districts will be equally benefited in traveling North. People living east of Broadway will save considerable time and distance in going to and from the University and points North. Extension of the 23rd Avenue car line across the bridge will greatly relieve street car travel through the center of the City by carrying them directly North.

Conditions have changed since this question was submitted to the people in years past by virtue of improvement in the money market, the building of the Stadium and the approval of the Spokane Bridge proposition. What was once a convenience has now become a necessity, as everyone who has attended the different events in the Stadium will testify.

COMMITTEE.

REPORT ON SCHOOL CANDIDATES

Report adopted without dissenting vote.

To the Municipal League of Seattle,
Gentlemen:

Your special committee to which has been assigned the task of investigating candidates for the School Board of Seattle has had the opportunity of conferring with all of the aspirants for these positions and in most cases a written statement setting forth the essential facts concerning their qualifications and outstanding views as to the major issues of the campaign.

Because there is some loose talk concerning candidates for the Board of Education profiting in a business way by their connection with school affairs, your Committee desires to point out that any business relation between a school director and the school district is prohibited by law. This being the case no mention is made in any of the reports as to any such possible connection.

The endorsement of various candidates by other organizations of a civic or political nature or the fact that certain candidates filed for the office at the request of such organizations has not been mentioned in this report except where the candidate himself has mentioned such a connection. This policy was adopted because your Committee felt that the best interests of the schools would be served by an independent statement of the facts as understood by your Committee. The report follows:

FOR THE THREE YEAR TERM

Dean Burkheimer.

Age 45. Education, Common and High School and two years in Iowa State University. Has practiced law for 16 years; is the father of four children. Considers that his long training in handling business, financial and legal matters and his life-long interest in and study of educational problems, specially qualifies him for the position he seeks. Mr. Burkheimer is a member of the Executive Board of the Boy Scouts and of the Committee of Management of the Queen Anne Community Y. M. C. A. He believes in the reduction of expenditures but not at the cost of efficiency; is opposed to the reduction of teachers salaries; favors home economics and manual training in the schools; believes in reducing the number of administrative departments in the management of school affairs and that two; -- one under the Superintendent of Schools, and another under a Superintendent of Administration would be most efficient.

Your Committee believes that Mr. Burkheimer is a man of capacity and good judgment and is well qualified for the position of School Director.

Dr. C. W. Sharples.

Age 56; resident of Seattle 32 years; engaged in the practice of medicine in this city since 1890. He has never held public office. Dr. Sharples believes that the Board of Education should be a policy making body. States that he has no opinion on the question of centralized form of school administration as contrasted with the present plan which provides for a number of coordinate departments, each of which is directly responsible to the Board of Education.

He believes that the health department of the city could wisely be entrusted with the care of the health of the pupils in the schools, including home inspection, personal cleanliness and personal supervision of the school nurses. He has apparently made little if any study of the problem of education and admittedly must wait for experience on the Board as a basis for making proper decisions regarding some of the major problem which the Board must face at this time.

His scientific training, high professional standing and sound judgment indicate to your Committee that Dr. Sharples would make a valuable contribution to the School Board.

Dr. Chas. C. Tiffin.

Age 35, resident of the city 10½ years. Graduate of the University of Colorado. Member of the State Medical Examining Board. Was County Coroner four years and claims credit for the passing of the Public Morgue Law. Dr. Tiffin believes in centralized form of school administration preferably to the departmental system. Favors a thorough survey of the entire school system. Is opposed to the reduction of teachers salaries. Believes in the continuance of manual training and domestic science in the course study.

Political activity, such as known of this candidate, is none.

considered by your Committee as conducive to the highest and most disinterested public service:

FOR THE ONE YEAR TERM

V. R. Allen.

Age 51. In the city and state four years. Common School education. Contractor and builder by occupation. Now employed as Secretary of the Association of Unemployed. Mr. Allen believes that 30% or more of the children in Seattle Schools are under nourished and insufficiently clothed and that this deficiency should be made good through general taxation.

His experience as a contractor and his sympathy for children constitutes his chief claim to election. His interest and experience seems to be along lines of welfare work rather than educational problems.

Claude H. Eckart.

Age 42, resident of Seattle 15 years. Common School education. Secretary-Treasurer of the Eckart Plumbing and Heating Company. Has four children. Has been a member of the Board of Education since February 1921, succeeding Geo. H. Walker. Mr. Eckart believes that his business experience and training enables him to make an important contribution to the solution of building problems of the district. For more than ten years he has been actively interested in the education of boys and girls. Believes that the present departmental form of organization can be greatly improved by increased centralization.

He also believes in the establishment of Junior High Schools and in the restoration of home economics and manual training as soon as the funds permit. Is not in favor of the long time and plan of payment for building construction but believes that provision should be made in each year's tax levy for some funds for new construction. Has devoted a large part of his time to public service without compensation.

Because of his practical acquaintance with building problems, his public spirit and sympathetic interest in young people, and his 14 months valuable experience on the school board, your Committee believes the interests of the Seattle schools could be well served by his re-election.

George H. Revelle.

Age 51, resident of Seattle 21 years. Graduate of New York University, Lawyer by profession. President of the Seattle Commercial Club, 7 years. Believes present scale of teachers salaries justified by the cost of living and preparation required for proper service. Favors restoration of vocational training and domestic science. Would confer with principals on general plans and policies. Mr. Revelle has given considerable study to school matters and would, your Committee believes, prove a useful and capable director.

E. F. Taylor.

Age 58, resident of Seattle 15½ years. Graduate of Kansas State Normal School and served as County Superintendent of Schools in Kansas and as a member of the Board of Education, Kansas City, Kansas. Now employed as Northwest Manager of Dodd Mead & Company, publishers.

Mr. Taylor believes that the School Board should determine policies. Favors centralization of school administration in not to exceed two departments, the heads of which should be directly responsible to the Board. Favors reduction of expenses in building program, in administration, and if necessary in some classification of teachers salaries. Also stands for retaining manual training and domestic science in the schools. Believes that the School Board as representatives of the public, rather than supervisors and teachers should determine school policies. States that he represented no organization or special group. Your Committee believes that Mr. Taylor is qualified by training and experience for the position sought, and should fill the position satisfactorily.

REPORT ON PORT CANDIDATES

April 25, 1922.

To the Municipal League of Seattle, Gentlemen:

Your special committee for investigating the qualifications of candidates for the position of Port Commissioner has had before it all of the candidates with the exception of Julius G. Day. In addition to this, we had had submitted to us written statements in response to questionnaires, the purpose of which was to give them an opportunity to outline their position on certain outstanding issues. Altogether your committee has had seven meetings.

We believe that the years immediately ahead of us are of particular importance in the affairs of the port and that the largest possible measure of ability and capacity should be given to the direction of its affairs, and have formulated our report in the light of this conviction, as follows:

George F. Cotterill. Age 55, resident of Seattle for 37 years. Civil Engineer by occupation. Mayor of Seattle, 1912-14. Has studied foreign port facilities at first hand and has been actively interested in the affairs of the Port of Seattle since its inception.

Does not favor the employment of a port manager under the existing law which provides for three paid commissioners. Should the commission decide upon the employment of a manager, believes there should be a voluntary reduction of salary to one-third of the present amount.

Your committee believes that although there are certain limitations to Mr. Cotterill's ability as an executive he is well qualified by training and experience to manage the physical equipment of the port.

Julius G. Day. Age 53, resident of Seattle for 17 years. Has had college training. Was for 10 years in the employ of the city as a market inspector and for nearly two years by King County as a highway inspector. Has followed the occupation of contractor and builder.

Mr. Day believes that he can effect substantial economies through the employment of a Port Manager. He has the support of Port Commissioner W. S. Lincoln.

R. E. Downie. Age 45, resident of Seattle for 27 years; is a dealer in telephone and telegraph poles. He believes that the Port Commissioners should appoint a manager for the port properties, but that the auditor should be directly responsible to the commission itself. Believes representatives should be sent to the various trade centers to secure business for the port. He also favors a policy of retrenchment and believes at this time that no further indebtedness should be incurred, either for the extension or expansion of present facilities.

Your committee was favorably impressed by Mr. Downie's frankness, sincerity and evident capacity and believes he will make a useful and valuable member of the commission.

W. C. Kean. Has lived in Seattle 26 years, 20 years of which he has been in the real estate business in Ballard. He has never held public office. States that he has not studied port problems but believes he can inject the same amount of acumen into the port affairs as he has put into his own Ballard real estate business. He favors turning the affairs of the port over to a manager and would employ an expert to solicit business. Does not favor rates that would put private docks out of business but believes in extending port facilities to them where possible. He further states that he was requested to run by the Seattle Advisory Council.

Clark Nettleton. Age 54. Former publisher of the Post-Intelligencer. Resides at Kirkland and has made his home in this county for 32 years. He is now engaged in contracting and the lumber manufacturing business.

While Mr. Nettleton is admittedly a business man of unusual energy and capacity, your committee was not satisfied that he had such convictions as to port affairs as to make him a particularly useful member of the commission.

Walter S. Wood. Age 34 years, resident of Seattle 15 years. Has been employed in various capacities by the Port Commission for six years. Does not believe in the appointment of a port manager other than a traffic manager.

RUSSELL SUGGESTS PLAN FOR BUREAU OF MUNI- CIPAL RESEARCH

May 2nd the League was addressed by William A. Russell, lecturer in the College of Business Administration at the University of Washington. Mr. Russell's subject was Municipal Research. Facts, he pointed out, are essential in solving every problem of civic administration, and far too often opinions are substituted for facts, not deduced from them.

The absolute necessity of having facts is perhaps best illustrated in engineering projects, like the Skagit, continued the speaker, but the same necessity exists in the case of every municipal question.

The securing, assembling and correlating of data, and the dissemination of it to the public uncolored by political or other considerations is the function of a bureau of municipal research. Such a bureau is a primary need for Seattle, but the cost of maintaining it has appeared a most formidable obstacle to its attainment. The solution, says Mr. Russell, lies in the cooperation of the Municipal League and other civic bodies with the University of Washington to bring about a bureau at comparatively small cost. This would be possible by the employment of scores of capable students in advanced courses dealing with matters related to the interests of the city. Instead of, as at present, these students being trained to investigate and analyze hypothetical situations in large part, they could be directed into lines of inquiry leading to the practical solution of Seattle's problems. They would be wonderfully benefited by this laboratory work, and the citizens of the community would have the advantage of securing trained service without cost except a trifling overhead expense.

VOTERS SUSTAIN LEAGUE'S POSITION

The most important question to be settled at the polls, the passage of the Erickson bill, was disposed of in a way consistent with the position of the Municipal League. It has been interesting and encouraging to the League to note the extensive use made by various opponents of the measure of the data painstakingly procured and analyzed in the very excellent report on that bill by our Utilities Committee.

At the meeting of May 23rd, Mayor Hugh M. Caldwell will address the Municipal League, taking as his subject "Two Years in the Mayor's Chair, and Recommendations Based on My Experience."

How the cooperation of police, courts and citizens and the courage of officers and judges have reduced traffic accidents in Detroit forty percent is described in the March issue of The National Safety News which is on file in the periodical division of the Seattle Public Library.

An accident investigation bureau of the Police Department, with a force of 18 policemen, makes a prompt and thorough investigation of every accident resulting in death or injury and gives the facts to the prosecuting attorney. Witnesses are questioned, distances measured, and photographs made of the automobiles. A graphic chart is then made by the Engineer's department. With this data, experienced traffic officers are well able to present their cases. This has resulted in a greatly increased percentage of convictions. "You haven't a Police Department until you have an accident investigation bureau. It is as necessary as any other department on the force", says the deputy commissioner.

In addition to investigating accidents, the Detroit police examine every applicant for automobile drivers licenses. Licenses are revoked for reckless driving, driving while intoxicated or without giving name or assistance.

A more unique police service leaving the scene of an accident is centered in the department's Propaganda Bureau which conducts evening mass meetings and free moving picture shows in school buildings. Programs usually include a film of comedy and a public safety picture, a short talk on safety and the distribution of well illustrated safety literature. The public safety pictures are based on actual accidents which have happened in Detroit. Lessons in the schools to children have also done much to decrease accidents.

THE BRIDGE SITUATION

Corporation Counsel Meier has caused an ordinance to be introduced in the city council appropriating $20,000 to provide means whereby the city engineer's department can prepare evidence to be used in case of the Strauss Bascule Bridge Company vs. City of Seattle. This suit is one wherein the city is sued for the alleged infringement of a patented bridge construction.

It has been freely said that the reason the Spokane Bridge has been so long delayed in the past was on account of the desire of city officials not to involve themselves further in like litigation.

The Spokane street bridge is one of the primary needs of Seattle at this time. If the Montlake Bridge has been declared to be necessary, it is safe to characterize the building of the Spokane Street bridge as imperative. The sooner traffic can begin to flow over it, the better for the city.

CABARET LICENSES

Although the matter of cabaret licenses has been up for months, little progress has been made. Early in the year an ordinance transferring the licensing of cabarets from the council to the police department, was vetoed by the mayor. The passing of the buck having failed, the council must now face a decision. All cabaret licenses expired December 31, 1921. Two were renewed, but the council appears so far to be unable to reach a decision on the others. The council license committee after a public hearing has postponed action until May 8th. A definite policy should be adopted and pursued in this matter.

A LETTER FROM THE SECRETARY

San Francisco, Cal.
May 2, 1922.

"To the Seattle Municipal News:

"I had an interview today with William H. Naury, director of the San Francisco Bureau of Municipal Research, and many things which will interest members of the Municipal League were discussed between us.

"Mr. Naury is firmly of the opinion that San Francisco must have a change in its form of government if it is to function more efficiently. He believes in the city manager form. Concentration of responsibility is the big thing, and that is obtained best in the city manager form.

"There is no organization in San Francisco corresponding to our Municipal League. The only organization that concerns itself solely with civic governmental matters is the league of improvement clubs. This league is usually out to get something done by the city for particular districts. It is not, therefore, a check upon city officials as our organization is. And, of course, it is not a disinterested organization, looking out for the greater good of the entire city.

"The San Francisco Bureau of Governmental Research has, in the past, worked quietly with the city-county officials, and has given very little publicity to its findings, rather letting the official concerned, taking all the credit. This, however, has proved to be not altogether in the interests of the bureau. It had some difficulty this year to secure the necessary money with which to operate—$25,000 per year,—solely because so many citizens had no idea of what was being accomplished by it. And then, too, the public officials were not heeding the bureau's recommendations. They were becoming used to the idea of having the workers point out certain facts to them—and then doing as they pleased without getting the reaction of newspaper criticism.

"Now the bureau is 'getting' to the papers more and thus enforcing their findings with the force of public opinion.

"The municipal street railway system is in politics a good deal. The system has been profitable and there is now accumulated in the sinking fund over a million and a half dollars. This sum which should be held as a depreciation fund, the Board of Supervisors are anxious to spend on extensions, etc. In many instances the board conceives plans for extensions without really a proper knowledge of the facts. The bureau has done some valuable work in checking such hastily conceived improvements.

BUILDING ZONE PLAN IS GROWING STRONGER

By Edward M. Bassett

The Greater New York building zone law has now been in operation over 5 years. The protective requirements are shown on three maps, known as height, area and use. The charter provides that changes in the maps can be made only by the Board of Estimate. The aggregate changes are extremely small in area, showing the remarkable permanence of the protection of the zoning system.

In the years 1916-1921, inclusive, 158 applications for changes were granted by the Board of Estimate and 13 were denied. These figures tend to show that changes are not easily obtained. That is as it should be, because when an owner builds according to the building requirements he ought to be protected against easy changes of surrounding requirements.

During the last two years the strengthening changes exceeded the relaxing changes, and each year the proportion of strengthening changes increased. This fact shows not only official support of the zoning plan but they show clearly that property owners are gradually favoring the strengthening of the zoning requirements rather than their relaxation.

The building zone system of New York may be deemed a success. Other cities, which have recently adopted it or are preparing their maps, may well be encouraged by the experience of New York.

WAR TIME WAGES TO BE CUT BY OHIO CITIES

Seven Ohio cities are paying common labor from 45 to 60 cents an hour, and five from 40 to 35 cents an hour.

Private contractors all over the state are paying an average of 35 cents an hour to common labor.

This information came in from inquiries sent out by the Commission of Publicity and Efficiency to city engineers all over the state.

However, it seems that Toledo is not alone in reducing wages of common labor. For these letters ed that in practically every the matter of cutting down wartime wage is being considered.

among the cities paying from 60 cents an hour for common labor are Youngstown, the city in the 60 cents an hour class, Columbus, Elyria, Lorain, Hamilton, and Ashtabula. Cleveland pays from 43 to 50 cents an hour, but some laborers in the traction division get as low as 30 per day.

Springfield pays 40 cents for common labor.

In the 35 to 40 cent class are Cincinnati and Dayton.

There is the average rate paid for common labor by private contractors in these cities:-

Columbus, 30 to 35 cents an hour; Elyria, 30 to 40 cents; Cincinnati, 35 to 40 cents; Hamilton, Cincinnati and Ashtabula, 35 cents; Youngstown, 30 cents; Springfield, 25 and 30 cents; and Dayton, 30 to 35 cents.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Compiled by the Seattle Public Library, Municipal Reference Division

San Francisco's Board of Supervisors has under consideration an ordinance providing a method of procedure for establishing setback lines. According to the proposed ordinance the majority of owners of frontage on any lot in the first or second residential district may petition for the establishment of a line determining the minimum distance from the street at which buildings may be erected or the setback line. The Plan Commission may file recommendations for a setback line without petition. The Board of Supervisors after giving notice to all interested parties may order the establishment of a setback line as petitioned or modified.

Los Angeles County, recognizing that many of the problems in city planning is expected to meet have their origin outside the city limits, has called a National Planning Conference. A report of the Proceedings of the first conference shows that the work of planning the metropolitan districts around Los Angeles is well under way. The reports of the sub-committees appointed give an idea of the scope of the work that the County has in view; they are: Highways, Subdivisions, Sanitation, Flood Control, Parks and Boulevards, Zoning, Legislation, Finance, Water Supply, and Topography.

Buffalo reports a net profit of $7,729.33 on its Municipal "Piggery" for the six months from October 1921 to April 1922. The "Piggery" is a hog farm on which garbage from the city is fed. The department in charge is experimenting on the production of fertilizer in connection with the Piggery and expects to develop an added source of revenue.

A 6 cent street car fare for Chicago, effective May 1st, has been ordered by the Illinois Commerce Commission. Transfers will be issued at present without additional charge. Children may ride for three cents. The new order was announced by Chairman Smith as an experiment to be tried until January 1st.

London's women police are "not a necessity and too costly to maintain as a luxury," Sir William Horwood, Commissioner of Metropolitan Police, has found, and as a result the women's patrols will be disbanded, according to the "Daily Mail". London has 100 police women and the maintenance of them costs 50,000 pounds annually.

San Francisco has adopted a retirement system for municipal employees. Each employee will contribute to the retirement fund from 2.87 per cent to 6.37 per cent of his salary each month, the percentage graded according to his age on April 1st, the date on which the ordinance takes effect. Sixty-nine employees who have reached the age of seventy are to be retired immediately with their retirement allowances computed on a basis of one and one-third per cent of their annual salary for each year of past service, with a minimum fixed at $40 a month.

Chicago has been carrying on a fight in the courts for a lower street car fare. After a long period of litigation the Illinois Commerce Commission established a six cent fare, effective May 1st. Mr. Ulysses S. Schwartz, Chairman of the Local Transportation Committee of Chicago's City Council, has recently published a pamphlet in which he recommends as a solution of the traction problem the immediate acquisition of the railway properties by the city, funds for the purpose to be raised by the issuance of securities which shall be: (1) a lien on the properties of the street railway companies; (2) an agreement on the part of the city that the charge for service shall at all times be high enough to cover cost of maintenance and operation, interest on securities, and the establishment of a sinking fund. Mr. Schwartz states that municipal ownership of the street railway has proved satisfactory in San Francisco, unsatisfactory in Seattle.

San Francisco's City Engineer disapproves of a number of the extensions suggested for the Municipal Railway. If they are voted he recommends a bond issue of $1,500,000 to finance them as he holds that at least $1,000,000 should be held in reserve available for contingencies which may arise, as the fires of the past two months in Boston and Chicago which have meant serious loss in railway property. In his report to the Board of Supervisors he states that San Francisco's Municipal Railway is unique in being the only utility of its kind operated in the United States by a city on a sound basis. Extensions have been made out of earnings and $1,000,000 of the original $5,500,000 bonds retired.

Nine municipalities of Alameda County, which recently rejected a city-county manager charter, have agreed to organize themselves into a municipal utility district for the purpose of acquiring a water supply and possibly other utilities such as light and power and transportation.

Sacramento will hold a "Days of '49" celebration May 23-28. Real old prairie schooners, gold scales, long-toms, gambling outfits and other relics of the old days are being gathered for the occasion. Two hundred and fifty Indians from the Klamath Falls Reservation will be in town for the week and will erect their Indian village after the manner of those used in the early days.

Palo Alto, Cal., has a municipal swimming pool operated as a by-product of the city's power plant. The water used to cool the Diesel engines in the power plant was first passed over a cooler on the roof and used again. This was unsatisfactory so the heated water was turned back into the mains. This resulted in an increase in the temperature of the domestic supply so the swimming pool with a capacity of 176,000 gallons came into existence.

SEATTLE PUBLIC LIBRARY IN 1921

The Seattle Public Library's circulation passed the two-million mark in 1921 when 2,097,858 books were lent for home reading. This is an increase of 15% over 1920 and represents a circulation of 6½ books per capita. In business terms it means an annual turnover of 7.6 for our circulating books. The library's reading rooms have always been popular but this year the number of people reading in the building has been so large that our accommodations were often insufficient.

Business depression made it impossible for many taxpayers to pay their tax bills and the library's receipts from taxes were $25,000 below the estimate. Since July it has been necessary to operate with fewer employees, a smaller fund for new books, and to postpone all plans for extending the library service. This condition will grow more serious next year since the library must not only absorb a deficit from 1921, but it must meet a cut of $25,000 made by the city council in its appropriation for 1922. The American Library Association recommends $1.00 per capita as a minimum appropriation for good library service. The amount available in Seattle for 1922 is only 83 cents per capita.

Seattle's eighth branch library building was opened July 27th, when a $35,000 structure was completed near the main business corner in Fremont. The building fund was given by the Carnegie Corporation. The site cost $10,000, most of which was raised by Fremont residents. Rummage sales, dances, card parties, and street fairs were given by the people of the district, who were determined that Fremont should not fail to get a building for lack of a site. The Fremont library had occupied temporary rented quarters since 1903, and was certainly entitled to a new home. The building is constructed of terra cotta blocks covered with white plaster, and has a red mission tile roof. Its architect, Daniel R. Huntington, describes the building as the Italian farm house style of architecture.

A homely young English chap, having his view obstructed by the headgear of the girl in front of him, ventured to protest, "See here, Miss," he said, leaning over, "I want to look as well as you." "Oh, do yer?" she replied in rick Cockney accent, "Then you'd better run 'ome and change yer face."

FARE REDUCTION IS LEGAL, SAYS MEIER

Corporation Counsel Walter F. Meier recently gave his opinion on the legality of a reduction to five-cent fare for the Seattle Municipal Street railway. His letter follows:

"You request my opinion as to whether franchises surrendered by the Puget Sound Traction, Light & Power Company when the city bought its street railway system would be revived, or become perpetual, in case the bondholders 'foreclose the pledge of the road', or there is a sale thereof by a receiver, in consequence of a reduction of fare and shrinkage of revenues to a point where they would be insufficient to pay operating expenses and interest on bond installments as they mature.

"Your inquiry is based on the assumption that the bondholders have a 'pledge of the road.' This is not correct. Neither the utility statute nor Ordinance No. 9025, authorizing the issuance of the street railway bonds, gives to the bondholders a lien on the physical property capable of foreclosure, but only a right to have set aside and paid, out of the gross revenues, into a special fund, the amounts pledged for the payment of the bonds. Hence, there cannot be a foreclosure and sale of the road in the ordinary sense. But, assuming that the court should appoint a receiver, order a sale of the road, and a sale is made fully divesting the city of any interest therein, under the present state of the law and decisions, such sale would not, in my opinion, revive such franchises, nor give rise to a perpetual franchise, without the consent of the city hereto.

Retiring Mayor Reviews His Term of Office In Municipal League Address

The Mayor said in part as follows:-

"In reviewing 'Two Years in the Mayor's Chair' it would be impossible for me at this time to do more than refer to a few of the problems that have arisen during that period. In the campaign which resulted in my election as Mayor I made very few campaign promises because as Attorney for the City for two years and a half I knew something of the limitations of the Mayor's power under our existing charter. I did make two specific promises, however. One was to place at the head of the Street Railway someone other than a politician, and the other was to advocate and procure if possible an investigation of the sale of the car lines to the city by Stone & Webster for $15,000,000.00 of utility bonds, and to obtain relief from such contracts if possible.

"Under our City Charter the Corporation Counsel, who is an elective official, is given full supervisory control of all litigation affecting the City or its departments. Aside from this, the Corporation Counsel has such other duties as may be prescribed by ordinance. It was impossible for me to go direct to the Corporation Counsel to make an investigation, although he would have charge of any litigation that might grow out of such investigation. Accordingly, I requested the Council to pass an ordinance directing the Corporation Counsel to make the investigation and to report, with recommendations as to what if anything might be done or should be done to obtain relief from the contract. The Council denied this request but instead passed an ordinance authorizing and directing me as Mayor to make the investigation. Without going into details unnecessarily I will remind you that the investigation was made by Mr. Wilmon Tucker, an attorney of the highest standing at the Seattle bar, whom I employed for this purpose. The investigation cost something less than

CALDWELL OPPOSES INDIRECT SUBSIDY

Consistent with his position that the actual expenses of the city directly incident to its ownership and operation if the car lines should be charged to that utility, Mayor Caldwell has demanded the immediate discontinuance of the practice of paying certain expenses of the street railway out of the general fund.

In a written communication to the council he has demanded that expenses in the city engineer's, comptroller's, treasurer's, law and streets and sewer departments be segregated and paid out of the railway fund. The utility committee has directed Councilman Erickson to confer with the corporation counsel on the proposed procedure.

HOW COME? By Barkus B. Woof

MISTER RECORDING ANGEL! Please draw two straight lines to the credit of the Municipal League, it's officers and members. When the time comes for these good brethren to argue their way into the heavenly country over which you have jurisdiction, let it be said that yesterday they "came across" with $2 a month for the rest of this year to BARKUS B. WOOF'S MILK FUND.

That means that a lot of kids they have never seen will have a fair chance at life because they'll have the milk that will make them strong and husky.

It was good business going down to the Municipal League luncheon yesterday afternoon. Acting Secretary Howard A. Adams was very kind to me and Robert Howes, who presided, made it possible for me to tell the lunchers about this milk fund. —From the P.-I. May 17, 1922.

MAYOR'S ADDRESS

$8,000 of the $10,000 appropriated. The valuation was made by an expert, which showed the lines to be worth practically half of what we agreed to pay therefor.

"The Grand Jury having volunteered to assist, their services were accepted, and the 1500 word telegram produced in response to the Grand Jury's subpoena confirms the valuation made by the expert employed under Mr. Tucker, namely, Mr. Cyrus A. Whipple.

"On October 5, 1920, in a speech before this organization I stated a campaign to rouse the interest of the people in learning the difficulties and unfortunate situation in which the City was placed under this contract. At that time I pointed out the almost impossible nature of the contract, and stated that I believed it would be impossible to carry it out according to its terms. I took the stand, and have adhered to it, that there was neither a legal nor a moral obligation on the part of the city to contribute to the support of the railways from any other fund than that agreed upon in the contract, namely from the car line receipts. Much discussion followed in the newspapers and otherwise and I was berated by part of the press for the stand I took. However, this did not deter me from giving the people the full facts, both as to the finances of the Railways and the contract under which they are being operated by the City.

"The Grand Jury's report on January 31, is in part as follows: 'From the evidence submitted and available, we believe that this contract (the Street Railway) is incapable of performance according to its terms. We believe that the evidence in the hands of the Mayor and otherwise available shows facts such as should entitle the City to equitable relief. We therefore recommend to the City Council that it take the necessary steps to secure the same.'

"The City Council refused to seek any relief or to have the rights and liabilities of the City under this contract determined, as a result of which nothing has been done by the City to determine these matters and the only definition of our rights and liabilities was obtained in litigation brought by the so-called "Fourteen Taxpayers" who put up their own money and employed counsel to obtain a legal decision that the general tax funds are not liable for the Railway obligations. Recently the Supreme Court decided in the Taxpayers' Suit that there is not only no legal obligation to use tax funds for the aid of the railway but that the City has no right to do so, even if its officials choose to do so voluntarily.

"I have taken the position that since the Council refused to seek any relief from the contract the City should certainly do no more than to live up to the absolute requirements of the same, without voluntarily doing anything that it is not required to do, in an effort to make an impossible contract possible.

"There has of late been an incessant clamor by some of the newspapers for a five-cent fare. I have no hesitation in expressing it as my opinion that we will never have a five-cent fare as long as this railway contract stands with the present provisions, and I have pointed out to you how the Council has refused to seek any relief from the same.

"In an effort to force everyone to ride on the Street Railways at a high rate of fare the City has stifled its growth and development by abolishing the only form of rapid transportation it had and by trying to furnish a bus service at a continuing loss.

"The only hope of forcing a rewriting of the contract on terms more favorable to the city is to not only permit but to encourage motor bus transportation throughout the City. Private parties and private corporations stand ready to furnish this service without expense to the city and without in any way violating the City's contract with the people who sold the City the Street Railway system at an extortionate price and under terms of their own dictation but which are impossible of performance in the long run. The Bondholders would have a right to insist that the street car fare be further raised, and the further it is raised the more people would patronize the bus lines. The city would have adequate transportation and would develop and the Company would, therefore, either be forced to rewrite the contract or else the ultimate result would be the appointment of a receiver of the lines. If a receiver were appointed the employees would thus technically be employees of the Court and would be paid first, and so would other operating expenses, and the Bondholders would take anything that was left.

"Under an ordinance which I signed for the regulation of jitneys the Council has arbitrarily and beyond the contemplated effect of the ordinance, exterminated them. The increase in use of privately owned motor cars, together with adequate transportation throughout the City furnished by motor-busses, is the only hope of deliverance from the contract that is inimical to the best interests of the City and which in the long run cannot be carried out according to its terms because there is now no known way of providing for replacements or reconstruction of antiquated tracks and equipment. The City Council, however, has as I have pointed out, taken no steps to secure relief, or even an adjudication of our rights and liabilities, and has by abolishing the motor-busses not only hindered the development of the City but played into the hands of the people who made this contract. The effect of their action is simply to prolong the agony.

"In conclusion let me say that I hope the incoming Mayor will make good. I have already informed him that I stand ready to assist in any way possible to this end, and I bespeak for him your support and encouragement because he will need all he can receive."

FIVE-CENT CAR FARE

nance reading as follows:-

"The City of Seattle further binds itself to establish and maintain rates for transportation upon such municipal street railway system which shall provide sufficient revenues to permit such sums being paid into such special fund which the city has pledged to set aside semi-annually for interest, and annually for principal, as herein provided, to be applied to the payment of principal and interest of the bonds herein authorized, until such bonds have been paid in full, and in addition thereto all costs of operation and maintenance, and all bonds, warrants and indebtedness for which any revenues of such system have heretofore been pledged."

"This is a contractual provision, the breach of which, such provision be capable of performance, would doubtless give rise to a cause of action either to enforce the same specifically, or to recover damages for breach thereof. In addition

TO DECIDE DEXTER AVENUE EXTENSION

On Monday, May 22, the council is expected to make a final decision on the proposed extension of Dexter Avenue. The matter has developed a warm controversy among property owners, and a division of opinion of the members of the streets and sewers committee of the council.

The project has been before the council a number of times in past years and has always heretofore been turned down. The bone of contention is the necessity for such highway to link the main business district and the part of the city lying north of the Lake Washington Canal.

TEST CASES PLANNED ON WAGE ORDINANCE

Whether or not contractors of municipal projects must pay wages corresponding to that paid by the city in accordance with an ordinance and the charter provision, will be determined in a group of test cases to be heard in superior court shortly, it was announced recently by N. F. Jahn, Seattle contractor.

MAYOR'S VETO RILES EMPLOYEES OF CITY

As we go to press the city hall is in a turmoil. The Mayor has vetoed the monthly salary ordinance, and thousands of city officers and employees — including the Mayor himself — will be without their pay checks.

The situation has developed from the insistence of Mayor Caldwell, that the ordinance carrying appropriations should not be the vehicle by which an indirect subsidy is given to the Municipal street railway. That proportion of expense incurred by the various city departments directly incidental to the ownership of the property, he insists, should be paid out of the railway fund and not borne by the general fund.

Mr. Caldwell gave notice of his intention to veto the ordinance unless this segregation was made. The Council, however, has "stood pat" and declined to change the ordinance. It has the power, of course, to pass it over the Mayor's veto, but in that event it takes effect thirty days from date of passage.

In the meantime it is expected that the matter will speedily be taken into court by mandamus proceedings.

SUBJECTS OF ZONING SYSTEM

How can my neighbor take $10,000 away from me and not be guilty of grand larceny? The answer to the pregoing question was given Tuesday by Charles Alden and Secretary Gaines of the Seattle Zoning Commission. They referred to the immediate and certain loss of the property owner who views with dismay a gang of workmen breaking ground for an apartment house on a store adjacent to his home. The work of the Commission is culminated in a detailed use

MEMBERS OF THE MUNICIPAL LEAGUE:

You are invited and desired to be at the Annual Dinner and Meeting of the League WEDNESDAY, MAY 31st.

Various reasons may have prevented your personal solicitation, and if such is the case, phone the undersigned of your intention to be present.

An excellent dinner, reports of officers, election of officers, and a stirring address by Dr. E. J. Brown, mayor-elect, will constitute the program.

Place: L. C. Smith Building Restaurant.

Time: 6.30 P. M. May 31st.

JAMES T. LAWLER,
Chairman of the Committee.

map covering every foot of territory in the city, which is the basis of a proposed ordinance establishing the use or uses to which hereafter property may be put. Six zones or kinds of districts are proposed: First residence; second residence, commercial, light manufacturing, heavy manufacturing and unrestricted. "First residence" does not mean "first class", and "second residence", "second class". By a first residence district is meant one in which the only residences to be constructed hereafter are single family homes. In the second residence district both single family homes and apartments may be built.

In both residence districts provision is made for necessary stores to supply the various neighborhoods. Inasmuch as most settled neighborhoods are at present more than liberally supplied with commercial buildings not many additions to such uses are made.

One fact should be borne in mind—that the provisions of this ordinance are not retroactive. The man who has invested his money in a business building, no matter where it is located, can continue to do business "at the old stand". Anything else would be confiscatory. The ordinance takes us as it finds us and safeguards the future. Whatever mistakes may have been made in the past, it leaves to the past.

At first blush it seems as though the ordinance was conceived solely with reference to monetary conditions. But important as those are, the purposes of the act are not confined to them. The framers of the law aim that the achievement of the ideal of the maximum of room and light and fresh air for our city dwellers. That ideal is most nearly approached in a community of single, detached dwellings, and the insuring of many such communities is one of the major purposes of the ordinance.

The Commission is holding meetings in various parts of the city to explain the ordinance in general to the voters and to show what uses are proposed in the particular districts where the meetings are held.

The matter is one of the greatest importance and has been referred to the League's committee on City Planning for an early report.

TACOMA ALSO HAS RAILWAY PROBLEMS

Tacoma's efforts to have the Shipping Board cancel the $233,000 worth of Municipal Street Railway bonds held by the board, on payment of a sum less than their face value, have failed. The board insists that the full face value of the bonds shall be paid.

J. Charles Dennis, city attorney of Tacoma, offered the board on behalf of the city $100,000 to cancel. The offer was rejected on the ground that, although these obligations are not a direct municipal obligation, the credit of the city is behind them. Inasmuch as the city is solvent and responsible, the board feels that it has no authority to accept anything less than the full sum. Should the board sell these securities in the market, an embarrassing situation might be created.

The bonds were issued by the Tacoma Municipal Railway Company in exchange for their face value advanced by the Shipping Board to assist the city in constructing an extension of the street railway system to reach the shipbuilding plants on the tide flats during the war.

THE CABARETS AGAIN

The unsatisfactory cabaret situation alluded to previously in these columns is still unsettled.

Last week when the council met as a committee of the whole to consider the granting of cabaret licenses, the council chamber was packed — chiefly with the owners and hangers-on of owners of cabarets.

By a divided vote the council refused to grant the licenses sought. The Mayor had previously declared that whereas the places had been running for over a month without license, if licenses were not procured by midnight of Saturday, May 20, the Chief of Police had orders to Immediately upon the failure of the council to grant the licenses, the cabarets that had been operating without license procured a restraining order restraining the City from interfering with them. A hearing will be had in court on the 31st of May.

of its present passive policy of apparent luke-warm interest in the affairs now transpiring with respect to the integrity of the Chinese Empire.

“That cooperation of each Chamber of Commerce on the Pacific Coast be sought to this end upon the ground that our present and prospective trade interests with China and the trans-oceanic countries are of peculiar, special and growing importance to the people and prosperity of this Coast.’

"It was referred to the Committee on State and National affairs. Judge McGilvra, then a consistent and intelligent member of the Chamber, made the motion of reference. It is my recollection that a copy or the substance of it reached Washington through the medium of the Chamber, but of this I am not certain. However, a copy was sent to our Secretary of State at Washington.

“A year later, in 1899, John Hay as Secretary of State laid down our famous doctrine of the ‘open door’ to China. Some people have said that afterwards we did nothing to keep the door open.

"My thought has been that if the Secretary had made his declaration a year earlier the unfortunate dividing of China would not have been so common and serious.

“Seattle is essentially a maritime city, hence is always profoundly affected by the destiny of China. For this reason I have recalled the acting of the old Chamber of Commerce taken many years ago.

AUSTIN E. GRIFFITHS".

TOLEDO ALSO TO PASS ON ZONING ORDINANCE

(From Toledo City Journal of
May 20, 1922)

Toledo's new zoning ordinance probably will be ready for Council in 10 months. The map making will be finished in eight months, leaving two months for the hearings.

This was the assurance recently given by Harland Bartholomew, city planner of St. Louis, who has been employed by the service department, co-operating with the city plan commission, to zone this city.

Among the cities that he has zoned are: Washington, D. C.;

With the meeting of May 23rd, the weekly luncheon meetings of the year have been suspended until next Fall.

Evanston and Winnetka, Ill.
Hutchinson, Topeka and Wichita, Kans.; Detroit, Grand Rapids, Jackson, Lansing, Mich.; St. Louis and University City, Mo. and Omaha, Nebr.

Offices of this new bureau will be opened in a week.

The Council appropriated $15,000 for this work.

Following are the main provisions of the contract for the work. Bartholomew is to receive $300 a month. He will furnish an assistant city planner, artist, field representative and two draftsmen, who are to receive $215, $15, $10, and $10 and $7.50 a day respectively. The three latter men will be here all the time.

A few local draftsmen will be employed to help in the map making.

This work will include the preparation of a zoning ordinance with explanatory maps and a major street plan showing traffic conditions and suggested widening, extending or cutting through of new arteries.

The zoning ordinance will divide the city into districts with restrictions as to the building of factories and other establishments in residential zones. A board of arbitration will be established before which grievances may be aired.

What Other Cities Are Doing

Compiled by the Seattle Public Library, Municipal Reference Division

The Massachusetts House recently killed two bills which would have made it possible for towns and cities to aid street railways by levying deficits on general taxation. The measures were requested by advocates of the five cent car fare, but received little support.

* * *

St. Louis, Mo., has a Traffic Vigilante Committee with its slogan "Make St. Louis the Safest City in the World to Live In". The organization has about 325 members of which the Chief Vigilante is the only one publicly known. The main reason for secrecy is the results gained in careful driving when motorists do not know by whom they are being watched; as the Chief Vigilante puts it in his description of the scheme in the April number of the American City, "It is a patent fact that a man will not drive past a street car when it is unloading passengers if there is a uniformed policeman at hand, but the same man would try to speak by if he did not fear that the motor car behind him had in one of those argus-eyed Vigilantes". Vigilantes report violations of traffic laws which come to their attention and offenders and themselves invited to send in written explanations to the Chief of Police.

* * *

The same general scheme as that in use in St. Louis is carried out in Newark, N. J. and Rochester, N. Y. Toledo, Ohio, is planning a campaign of traffic education similar to that which has been so successful in Detroit. Here the public at large will be asked to cooperate by reporting to the police cases of traffic law violation. Blank forms for these reports are left at corner drug stores or at other accessible places.

THE FREEDOM OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK

Next to the election to public office the presentation of the Freedom of the City has always been considered the highest form of compliment within the gift of the City. The bestowal upon Marshal Joffre of France, of the Freedom of the City on April 25 brings to the mind this old and charming custom. To some, merely the "hospitalities" of the City have been granted. The recipients of this honor include Henry Clay (1848), Prince Napoleon (1861), and General McClellan (1868). The "thanks of the City" were extended to General Grant, General Sherman, Admiral Porter, and Admiral Dahlgren (1865). The Prince of Wales (1860) was formally invited to the City, but did not receive the Freedom. Special tokens have sometimes been given, and formal receptions and parades have frequently been held in honor of some guest or resident of distinction.

Though now but a form of courtesy, the conferring of the Freedom of the City dates back to the custom of making a man a "civis" or citizen of a Roman municipality. In the Middle Ages, the citizen was made a "burgher" or "burgess", and in the Colonial period, the American colonies, both Dutch and English, followed the practice of making men burghers or freemen. To be made a freeman gave the right to vote, trade, hold office and enjoy all the other rights of citizenship.

The bestowal of the Freedom of the City is purely symbolical, as the city has no right to confer citizenship on any one. Nevertheless, the City of New York can confer no greater honor on anyone than to adopt him into her municipal family. The ceremony is a pleasing one, and affords a gracious means of paying tribute in the name of all the people of the city to an individual of distinction. There have been one hundred recipients of the Freedom of the City since the custom was instituted in 1702.

Denver, Colorado, holds its annual music week May 14 to 21. The municipal chorus of 150 voices, the children's chorus of musical contests supply part of the week's entertainments. The opera "Robin Hood" will be presented entirely by local talent and "The Awakening", an operatic fantasy which pleads for the protection of the beauties of the scenic outdoors is not only presented by local talent but has been created "from the original 3000 voices, band concerts and idea to the last stitch in costumes".

* * *

Music Week is a well recognized annual event in Denver. This year the city has contributed $5000 and the use of the auditorium.

RAINIER NATIONAL PARK

As summer approaches, and with it vacation time, to lovers of the great open spaces; the mountains and valleys and luxuriant wild flower fields, there will come a longing to live for a time in their midst. So, with many of us, "what to do and where to go" will soon be a question in common.

But there is little need to spend much time in thought on that subject when we stand at the very threshold of the Nation's most wondrous playground, Rainier National Park, and may, in a few hour's time, be in its embrace. There will be found a multitude of things to hold one's interest and make all forget, for a while, the busy and noisy side of life. Longmire Springs and National Park Inn have long been favorite haunts with mountain enthusiasts, but their popularity will be greater this year than ever before; this for the reason that an exceptionally attractive vacation rate of $17.50 per week, covering complete hotel service at National Park Inn, is to be offered. And for the vacationist's entertainment there will be special music for dancing in the Club House three nights each week, tennis courts, pool and billiards, hiking, fishing and horseback riding. This is the first time in the history of Rainier National Park, or any other national park for that matter, that a vacation rate within reach of all, and providing for first class board and sleeping accommodations at a typical mountain resort, has been attempted.

But above and beyond all in Rainier National Park is the very vastness of the mountains and valleys and wild flower fields. Indeed, among the many of this country's scenic attractions it is difficult to conceive of anything that surpasses in stupendous grandeur the wonders of Rainier National Park. Here may be found a variety of sights and activities that appeal tremendously to everyone.

The "Call of the Mountain" is indeed beginning to send forth its fetching appeal, and soon we may be walking beside rippling streams, traversing peaceful valleys or following marvelously wooded trails. The thought is fascinating, more so day by day, for soon we will be planning that eagerly awaited summer vacation.

TAXATION EXPERT ADDRESSES LEAGUE

H. L. Lutz of Oberlin College of Ohio, called as an adviser to the Washington State Taxation Commission, gave a brief address at the League's Annual Meeting, Wednesday night. Among other thing he endorsed the idea of a bureau of municipal research for Seattle, adding that if such a bureau had been in existence it could have helped the governor's committee on taxation. Such a bureau, he said, is still more important because of the rapid rate of increase of taxation which has taken place. No one is rash enough to say when it shall cease. Whereas in periods of rising prices increased levies are easily explained, in a period of falling prices the reverse does not happen, the reason for it being that the governments do not share in falling prices as do private enterprises.

Mr. Lutz then outlines briefly the model system of state and local taxation as formulated by the National Taxation Association. The plan of which has been adopted in New York, Massachusetts, Wisconsin and Minneapolis. He grouped his division into three classes:

1. Taxation based upon ability to pay.
2. Special assessment principle:
 - a. To property real and personal of a tangible character. This tax is imposed by the state upon all property within its jurisdiction. (Mr. Lutz pointed out that such a tax can be made elastic to permit the state to encourage certain classes of property as against other classes of property. For example: Should the state embark upon a reforestation policy, the tax upon the trees planted in pursuance of that policy could be exempt).
 - b. The ability to pay principle.

PRESIDENT BALDWIN'S ANNUAL REPORT

The duty devolves upon me to give the report of the president for the last year although I was elected only about three months ago to fill out the unexpired term of Mr. Anderson, and I regret to say that during a large part of that time I have been absent from the city. I will touch however upon a few of the activities of the League during the past year and some things of importance for the next year.

The League has had committees to report upon candidates for office and measures to be voted upon as usual, which is one of the outstanding services rendered by this organization. While neither the judgment of the committees nor their horoscope is infallible, we have reason to believe that a large section of the community looks with respect and gratitude upon these reports.

Probably the next most active committee during the year has been that on Public Utilities, of which my colleague, Mr. Robert Howes, has been chairman; and League owes Mr. Howes a large debt of gratitude for his exhaustive, painstaking and authoritative studies and presentation of the questions that have arisen during the year in conjunction with the street car system and especially the proposed Erickson bill for the payment of street car operation by taxation. Following the report of his committee, the League took action condemning this measure in no uncertain terms and calling for the utmost effort upon the part of every citizen to defeat that initiative bill, and we are gratified by the results in the election following therefrom.

The great objective for the year's work set by Mr. Anderson was the establishment of a bureau of municipal research. He undertook to enlist the men of all organizations who were interested in such institution to form such a bureau immediately. A meeting was called at which the matter was presented to representatives of this League, the Chamber of Commerce and many other organizations; and while it was generally conceded to be a good thing, there seemed to be such diversity of views with re-

MAYOR-ELECT DISCUSSES CITY PROBLEMS

Plans for the restoration of a 5 cent street car fare, so far as they concern the executive, will be complete within ninety days after his inauguration, Dr. Edwin J. Brown, mayor-elect, announced last evening to the members of the Municipal League at the annual meeting of that organization in the L. C. Smith Building restaurant.

Dr. Brown also discussed generally the Skagit power project, economies in city administration and needed reforms in the civil service.

"Since the election I have been giving the street railway much study," said Mr. Brown. "In the campaign I promised that ninety days after I became mayor I would have something to offer concerning the 5-cent fare. I now hope to have something tangible to present within that time. We have to restore that fare, we have to have cheaper power and we have to get some other things to make Seattle more attractive to those seeking to put their money in industrial plants. We must get the factories.

"What plans I have in mind I am not discussing publicly at this time, but you may rest assured that I have some and am giving them much study."

Dr. Brown said he and Mayor Hugh M. Caldwell had just returned from an inspection of the Skagit project and that he would suggest that the Municipal League arrange an excursion to the site this summer as an educational venture for the citizens generally.

"The foundation for the first unit will be completed in August," he said, "and as soon as we have the first unit working you will have a cut in power and light rates. If the project was developed to its full capacity and we could sell or use all the electricity generated this city would have a net income of $25,000,000 and we would not have any city taxes at all. I do not expect to see that come about just yet, but I do expect to see Seattle and other communities given their industrial freedom through cheaper power and light.

"During the campaign I spoke of economies of administration. I have several in mind. I am considering trying out a plan of making a flat rate for water and collecting the bills once a year, as the rate is now so small that it is only nominal. This would save a considerable sum in printing and postage. I want to stop duplication of inspection, a standardization of automobiles in public service, the purchase of automobile tire and equipment by lots, a check kept on the automobiles and I believe the city needs an efficiency expert.

“I don’t take much stock in cutting salaries, but I am deeply concerned in seeing that the public gets a dollar’s worth of service for every dollar expended for that purpose. Therefore I am going to enlarge on the duties of the superintendent of public utilities. We hear it said that of late the superintendent of public utilities has not had much to do. I am going to change that. I am going to give him something to do; I am going to make him all his title implies.

"In the old days when most of our utilities were privately owned we had a superintendent to see that the corporations lived up to their agreement with the citizens. I think it is just as necessary that we now have a man to see that the public servants do their duty to the citizens. My superintendent of utilities, whoever he may be, is going into all the public utility departments and give me first-hand information as to what is going on and what should be done to better the service to the people.

"I can see many difficult problems ahead and I shall need volunteer help. I have always made it a principle to use my friends. That's what they are for and I intend to use them throughout this administration. I want your help, but want it in the shape of counsel and advice before I act and not in criticism and fault finding when it is too late.

"There is one thing that constitutes a menace to good government and that is our Civil Service. I am not in a position at this time to say what I shall I ask, but there should be some amendments. The situation now is as if you named a general to lead you to victory and he had to serve with a lot of colonels and majors over whom he had no authority. The attitude of some of those fellows down there is that mayors and chiefs come and go, but we stay here forever.

"One strange feature of the present Civil Service law is that the chief of detectives is under its protection. Why they left out the chief of police I don't know; but it would be just as logical to put him under Civil Service as the chief of detectives. The Civil Service was intended to protect the men, the rank and file, of city employes from exploitation by politicians in political campaigns. I believe that as soon as a man gets above the rank and file and becomes a directing head he should be taken out from under the protection of Civil Service and be held strictly accountable for his acts.

"You will find some of the departments are rather strongly fortified by reason of the Civil Service. So securely are they protected that the heads even don't know what is going on. Take the police department. I doubt very much whether the chief knows all that is transpiring there beneath the surface. Civil Service was never intended to be an obstacle to good government."

pal. The income is the only reasonable basis. The total income from all sources must graduate. (Mr. Lutz pointed out that the Federal government had over-shot the mark, and as a consequence in open evasion as well as capital being driven into field of exempt bond holdings, etc. He also pointed out that the government was "inquisitorial" under this phase of taxation but insisted that it had necessarily to be so—that the government agencies must be absolutely impartial and fearless in carrying out their work.

3. The third class of taxation was that of a business tax. (Mr. Lutz pointed out that the net income from business done within the state is perfectly feasible to collect).

LEAGUE HAS SPLENDID MUSIC AT ANNUAL MEETING

Ruth Linrud, harpist, favored the League with several selections, instrumental, and vocal, accompanied by the harp. Mr. Owen J. Williams, bass soloist, also rendered some very beautiful songs. He was accompanied by Mrs. Owen J. Williams at the piano.

SECRETARY'S COLUMN

After an absence of almost five weeks, it feels might good to get back to Seattle.

* * *

Business in Seattle is improving and the improvement was known up and down the coast almost as soon as it actually took place in Seattle, which demonstrates the fact that news travels quickly these days. Building permits have taken a decided jump, and this is a very hopeful indication of "back to normalcy". Seattle has every reason to be proud of her achievements and to look forward with hope and confidence toward the future.

* * *

Your secretary hurried home to be present at the Annual Meeting, and it was a delight to be able to be present. Altogether there were fifty-seven in attendance—a goodly number considering the fact that both the President and Secretary were out of the city and were unable, therefore, to lend their influence in making the dinner a success. All credit must be given to James T. Lawler, Chairman of the committee in charge of the arrangements, and Howard A. Adams who was acting as secretary. These two gentlemen worked hard and the success of the dinner may be attributed to their efforts.

* * *

A suggestion has been made by Mr. Lawler as well as by some members of the Board that the date of the Annual Meeting be changed from the last of May to sometime during the winter. It has become evident that a meeting held the last part of May makes it impossible for many members to attend because many of them live in their summer homes and it is virtually impossible for them to get in from the country. And then again, as this year, the weather is so warm that many members are unwilling to sit through an evening inside when the lure of the outdoors calls them. Still another reason for the change in the annual meeting presents itself, and that is that the newly elected trustees do not have the opportunity of working on the League's problems during the summer months to the extent that they would if they were ard to its functioning and such jealousy as to who should conduct it, that it was impossible to proceed.

In fact, there is so much suspicion of one group or class by another in Seattle, that it is working to hamper the progress and well being of our fair city, and some steps are urgently needed to soften the natural antagonisms and to eliminate and eject, if necessary, the fomenters of hate and suspicion.

Those who have been working towards reducing the municipal budget and reducing the taxes, have constantly come up against the problem of how to get the facts necessary to correct misjudgments and plans without a prohibitive amount of work and expense, and thus repeatedly recalled us to the necessity of a bureau of municipal research. Mr. Lawler, who has done such excellent work as the League's representative on the Taxation Reduction Council, and as president of that body, has lately called our attention in the "News" to the necessity of such a bureau, and Mr. Russell of the University has suggested the possibility of utilizing the departments of the University engaged in that line of work to that end. I hope something practical can be accomplished along this line in the coming year.

Zoning and city planning is a question which is now pressing for attention. Mr. Haight has mentioned in the "News" the need of the work of the League in stimulating public opinion and official interest in the proper planning for the growth of the city and the advisability of working along the lines laid out by Mr. Virgil Bogue. The Zoning Committee or Commission has been at work for over a year on the preparation of plans for a zoning ordinance designating business and residence district throughout the city, and this deserves the most active interest and study of the members of the League.

The Skagit project of the Light Department has had the attention of a special committee during the past year, which considered all the strong opposition that was being made to the project and the arguments of its friends, and made a report recommending vigorous prosecution of the work of the first unit. This seemed to be followed by a cessation of the fight against the project for a while but that fight is cropping out again from time to time. The undertaking is so vast and important that it is believed it would warrant a special committee of the League to keep in touch with for the coming year.

The Budget Committee considered that phase of the Skagit project which concerned the sale of bonds in payment of the contract at a time when it was stated that the bonds would have to be sold at 85 cents on the dollar, and reported that in its opinion the bonds should bring practically par if given in payment for the work. The contract was awarded on a figure which the city authorities assured us was practically what cash payments would have commanded, and in addition the contractors agreed to pay an extra million dollars worth of the bonds at par. They were sold at above par.

The Budget Committee also had under consideration the fixing of the annual city budget and the passing of the annual salary ordinance. A study of the needs of the various departments is a task so great that it cannot be done properly by a voluntary committee of a civic body. We learned that there was a committee of private citizens appointed by the Civil Service Commission with the advice and consent of the Council to assist the commission in preparing a reclassification and revision of salaries. This committee worked hard and efficiently and made a thorough and capable report on revision of salaries but left reclassification for further study. This revision report came before the Council with the recommendation of the Civil Service Commission that it be adopted but the Council, apparently over-awed by the powerful lobby and influence of the civil service association and employees present at the hearing, treated the report with scant courtesy. This question of reclassification and revision of salaries is now a burning one and the new budget committee will find its hands full immediately with urgent work to be done.

The whole question of civil service is a constantly troublesome one, and our former president, Mr. Anderson, gave the civil service law a scathing arraignment at a meeting of the League, from his experience with public employment. The civil service committee has recommended the adoption of the city manager form of government with civil service rules. Some city managers, I understand, favor the abolition of these rules. The adoption of a city manager government for Seattle has been advocated by the League, and the committee is working under instruction to prepare an ideal charter to put it into effect.

The performance of the functions properly by the administrative officers of the governments with the county limits, is also a concern of the League. One specific matter that has come forcibly to my attention is the manner of enforcing the Poll Tax law. This is a law recently enacted by the law-making branches of our State government for a specific purpose—namely, to pay the soldiers' bonus. The soldiers' bonus is a popular measure—the raising of the money to pay it is unpopular. Our assessor duly elected and sworn to enforce the laws and duties committed to his trust, has been reported as repeatedly expressing his public disapproval of the Poll Tax and stating that it would cost about as much to enforce it as would be realized. After that, the amount of money raised by that means in this county was a surprise. How it is being collected, however, is illustrated by the case I am most familiar with—viz: my own. My name is Julius L. Baldwin. I live at 102 Harvard Avenue North, and have lived there for the past four years. My name has appeared in the lawyers' directory published in the Courthouse. It also appears in the city directory for the past fifteen years. It also appears with my address on the rolls of the county assessor, as well as the city treasurer and the county treasurer. I received a notice of the Poll Tax addressed Jeline Baldwin, 182 Harvard, Seattle. If that is not a studied effort to send that notice astray, it is so grossly incompetent as to be puerile. If it had not been for the persistence of the mailman, I should never have received any notice. That does not excuse me from paying the tax. But I am informed that there has been no attempt to collect the tax from those who have failed to get their notices. If that kind of attention were given to the fiscal matters of any private business, how long would the employee hold his job? And if he did, how long would the business exist? This is a condition that should be investigated. It is illustrative of work that this League is needed to perform.

In order that the League should be effective, however, it must have the active work and interest of its members, and it should at all times have a large live membership. It will, therefore, devolve upon the membership committee and the whole League during the coming year to devise ways of stimulating interest and increasing the loyal and active membership. In this way not only will the work that is done be facilitated, but the influence of that work will be far more powerful.

Respectfully submitted.

J. L. BALDWIN.

President.

STRATEGY

Three Scotchmen went to church, each clutching tightly the penny he intended to contribute when the plate was passed. Consternation reigned when the minister announced that this particular Sunday an effort was to be made to raise the mortgage, and asked every member of the congregation to make a substantial offering.

During the prayer the Scots held a whispered consultation as to the solution of their dilemma, and reached a satisfactory decision.

It is very gratifying to find an organization like the League functioning in Seattle, whereas in a larger city like San Francisco no organization of its kind exists. In fact, I believe the existence of the League is simply typical of the closer-knit community spirit of Seattle as contrasted with that of other cities. To my mind the Seattle citizens have evidence a type of independence which is truly remarkable. There is generally a far greater understanding of civic needs, problems and activities than in many other cities. This redounds to Seattle's credit not only as an abstract form, but also as a very concrete mark of progressivism.

Playing Train

Willie finally persuaded his auntie to play "train" with him. He took great delight in arranging the chairs in line, and with an air of knowing his business, began issuing orders.

"Now, you be the engineer, Auntie, and I'll be the conductor. Lend me your watch and get into the cab." Then Willie hurried down the platform holding the watch in his hand; suddenly turning around, he waved toward the engineer, and yelled:

"Pull out there, you red-headed, pop-eyed, pie-faced boob."

"Why Willie," exclaimed Auntie in amazement.

"That's right, chew the rag," he retorted. "We're five minutes late already. Get the 'ell outa here."

Willie's parents forbid him playing down by the station and are persuading him to give up railroading.

YOU GET YOUR MONEY BACK IF YOU DON'T LIKE IT

"If any person going up to the Skagit is dissatisfied with the trip and feels that he hasn't got his money's worth, I personally will give him back the expense of the trip," declared Chief Engineer Uhden to the writer today.

The trip to the Skagit is definitely launched—June 24th and 25th having been named as the dates for the junket by the committee consisting of Walter Nossaman, Harrison W. Mason and Dan Earle. Every man, woman and child in the city of Seattle who can possibly go should make the trip at that time. Chief Engineer Uhden has promised to be on hand to guide the party and every possible convenience and comfort will be afforded those making the journey.

In order to allow the greatest possible time at the project itself, the committee has definitely decided to engage motor cars. The autos will leave at 6:30 a. m. Saturday, June 24, from the Blue Taxi Company office, corner of Second and Marion streets. Rockport will be reached by 12:30, at which place the party will entrain on the city railway going to Gorge Creek. The party will arrive at Gorge Creek at 3:00 o'clock, and the rest of the afternoon will be spent in inspecting the project. A dinner will be furnished at the plant at a cost of 50c per person. Lodging will be furnished by the city also at a cost of 75c per person. Sunday morning will be spent in making further inspection and view of the project. The party will leave about noon Sunday, thus enabling it to return to Seattle about 6:00 p. m. Sunday.

The cost of the entire trip will not exceed $15.00 per person. It will be made, it is hoped, under ideal weather conditions and under the guidance of the Chief Engineer of the project and his staff. The scenic wonders alone of the Skagit are well worth making the trip for. Those who have taken it declare it to be one of supreme beauty and never to be forgotten in sheer enjoyment. Not only should every member of the League endeavor to go, but he should urge his friends to go. Those who have private machines and desire to drive themselves are welcome. The only condition is that they inform the secretary that they are going so that accommodations can be arranged for them. Those who have cars and desire to take on members of the League or others as their guests will be allowed to do so. It will effect a substantial saving as the cost of hiring a private car is $10.00 per person for the round trip to Rockport. Again the only request made by the League is that those driving their own cars and taking on guests notify the secretary.

So far as clothing is concerned, either a hiking outfit or old clothes should be worn; for there will be considerable walking and perhaps some climbing to do.

The earlier you signify your intention of going the better. The committee desires to arrange everything for the comfort and convenience of its guests. Phone Main 0791 and make reservations.

TAYLOR AND THE VOTE ON REDUCTION OF THE TEACHERS' SALARIES

By Eimon L. Wienir

The attack by the American Legion, backed up by the newspapers of the city, on school director E. F. Taylor, with the threat of recall, creates a situation which, in justice to Mr. Taylor, needs to be clarified by some impartial body. The gist of the complaint against the school director is that Mr. Taylor pledged himself prior to election to maintain teachers' salaries at the present high level, and that in voting for a reduction he violated his pledge and therefore is not a fit member of the school board and should be recalled. Those attacking him entirely ignore the principle of whether it is desirable or not to cut salaries, or whether the same are justified by the circumstances. They would

UNDERWRITERS ASK FOR RETENTION OF FIRE CHIEF

The Underwriters Association has sent a resolution to the Mayor urging the retention or re-appointment of George M. Mat- tor as the Chief of the Fire Department of the City of Seattle. The resolution is set forth as follows:-

Resolution

...WHEREAS, The Fire Department of the City of Seattle is now recognized as among the best and most efficient in the United States; and

WHEREAS, The fire losses in the City of Seattle during the year 1921 were approximately only one-half of those of the year 1920; and

STATE TAXATION COMMITTEE REPORTS

By the Secretary

The report of the State Tax- ation Commission should be studied by every citizen interest- ed in taxation and government in the State of Washington. The report was gotten up by a com- mittee of citizens of unquestioned standing in the community. Moreover, these men—practical business men, the majority of them—have devoted months of study, have sought advice from recognized experts and have em- bodied in the report opinions ex- pressed fearlessly and without regard to consequences. How conscientiously the committee has worked was pointed out to the writer by the chairman of the Taxation Committee recently. A local organization had asked, some two months before the date

PUBLIC UTILITIES COM- MITTEE TO BE HEADED BY ROBERT HOWES

Robert Howes, consulting en- gineer and former vice president of the League; has consented to act as chairman of the Public Utilities committee during the coming League year. Within the next few days an announcement will be made as to the personnel of his committee. Already the Board has referred to the com- mittee the matter of the five cent fare ordinance introduced by Councilman Fitzgerald and ap- parently sanctioned by Mayor Brown. The Board is of the opinion that the ordinance should not be rushed through without a proper consideration of all the consequences that may accrue by reason of its passage. The recent decision of the Supreme Court does not necessarily mean that the general fund cannot be taxed, for if the five cent fare should prove inadequate to meet the costs of operation and interest charged, the private company might institute an action for damages for breach of its contract, and in the event the damages were recovered the general fund would be liable. The railway question is far from solved and both the council and the Mayor must be more alert now than ever before in properly endeavoring to solve the problem.

The Public Utilities Committee has been given the responsibility of making an analysis of the present situation and bringing in its findings in time to give the council and the Mayor the benefit of its views. The League is to be congratulated on securing the leadership of such an outstanding personage as Mr. Howes as chairman of its Utilities committee. The public officials of the city not only recognize the disinterestedness of the League, but also must recognize the ability of its committeemen.

Simultaneously with giving authority to President Baldwin to organize the Public Utilities Committee, the Board directed the reorganization of the committee on Education and the committee on the Budget. These two committees will be faced with very severe responsibilities. The reduction of tax salaries recently made is threatened with a "reconsideration".

The story in the "News" last week concerning the situation in Buffalo, New York, indicates that the pendulum is swinging the school expenditures. From the other way now with reference to period of unlimited school expenses, a reaction has set in. Seattle is typical merely and not exceptional in that regard.

The budget committee is confronted with the usual overwhelming mass of statistics next to impossible adequately and scientifically to assimilate by any voluntary committee. However, a few of the high spots can be touched by the committee and its recommendations should be helpful indeed to the council.

SCHOOL PROBLEMS

A letter has just been received from Mr. George B. Littlefield, former secretary of the League, suggesting that the League make investigation to determine certain final questions with regard to school expenses and administration. The letter, here reprinted in full, will be referred to the newly formed committee on Education.

"June 16, 1922

"Mr. J. L. Baldwin

"Pres. Municipal League

"Seattle

"Dear Mr. Baldwin,

"It occurs to me that the Municipal League might perform a public service of the greatest value at this time in connection with the present controversy over the cut in teachers' salaries.

"I am satisfied that there are many people in Seattle who believe that the teachers are extremely well paid, considering hours of service, length of school year, conditions of work and the average salary and this opinion would seem to be fairly well supported by the evidences of at least reasonable prosperity among the school teachers whom most of us know.

"At the same time, the press is almost a unit in demanding that, not only shall the teachers' salaries not be reduced, but that they shall be increased at the first opportunity. What is the basis for this demand is not clear.

"There is also an opinion, somewhat widely prevalent, that the expense of administration of the School Department is excessive. There are charges and countercharges that ours is one of the most expensive departments in the country and it is also rather more than hinted that the Department no longer holds the high position it once did among similar institutions of the country.

"Now, it seems to me that the people generally would welcome a thorough, unprejudiced investigation and report upon this question, which would, as nearly as possible, demonstrate:

"1. Whether teachers' salaries are too low, too high or about right.

"2. Whether the department is being conducted as economically as possible and, if not, where the wastes prevail.

"3. Whether other economies than reductions in teachers' salaries are possible and whether such economies should and can be effected, with or without the salary reductions already ordered.

"The School Department is a vast institution about which most people know very little in detail. Such an investigation as I have suggested may have already been made but, if so, I do not believe it has impressed the public. It would be a difficult task but if successfully completed and laid before the public in such fashion that thoughtful citizens could feel that they have some basis for the formation of individual opinion on this vexed question, I think that the League would have added one more to the long list of matters for which the public owes it a debt of gratitude.

"Yours very truly,

"GEO. B. LITTLEFIELD".

TEACHERS' SALARIES

make of Mr. Taylor's case causas belli. In this connection it might be interesting to know Mr. Taylor's position as set forth before the Candidates Investigating Committee of the League and made public by the League committee in its report. Among other things, the report states that Mr. Taylor "favors reduction of expenses in building program, in administration; and, if necessary, in some classification of teachers' salaries". Mr. Taylor further stated to the committee that he would vote for the reduction of teachers' salaries "the event it became apparent that the same was necessary for the economical operation of the schools". It therefore becomes apparent that Mr. Taylor has not violated his pledge, but is simply doing his duty as he sees it.

There are many people who have the interest of the school at heart who really would welcome a recall; for that would take out the popular will in regard to the reduction of teachers' salaries. In spite of the claim of the newspapers that they have been swamped with protest from citizens, on Mr. Taylor's vote, there is a feeling abroad that the vast majority of citizens are in accord with the board's determination to effect economy even if it must cut salaries. Local newspapers have vied with each other for the school teachers' support. They have not published a word concerning the present financial status of the schools, nor have they made a comparison between the teachers' salaries of today with what they were before the war, nor have they made any comparison between the teachers' salaries and similarly situated professional people, nor between the pay existing in Seattle and that existing in other cities its size. In other words, the newspapers have carried favor with the teachers and have thrown dust in the eyes of the people in an endeavor to blind them to the situation.

Let the recall come, and then we shall have an opinion of the people expressed!

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Compiled by Seattle Public Library, Municipal Reference Division

It has been recognized that city planning cannot limit itself to city boundaries and get the best results. The trustees of the Russell Sage Foundation have made an appropriation which, with added contributions from interested citizens, will provide a sum sufficient for developing a comprehensive regional plan for NEW YORK and its environs. The city of NEW YORK is also cooperating with surrounding municipal and county authorities in planning a highway system for the entire metropolitan area and the state of NEW YORK and NEW JERSEY are working together on a plan for joint development of their combined port areas. The Main Line District of PHILADELPHIA region, which is the suburban district along the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad west of the city, has had a plan made by Mr. Almstead and Mr. Coman which includes a metropolitan park system. Here in the West LOS ANGELES COUNTY led the way in regional planning and undoubtedly many other districts will find it possible to get together for the proper development of the section as a whole.

TOLEDO's Welfare Farm reports a production of $11,113.33 worth of vegetables some of which were sold to city institutions. A stone crusher purchased during the year will supply a source of revenue to the city as well as giving work during the winter months. The farm, it is hoped, will become self-supporting, but if this end is never reached it is felt that the healthful, outdoor work has a corrective influence which is worth a great deal.

BUFFALO has received an offer from the Universal By-Products Corporation for the building and installation of a reduction plant. In connection with this offer the Public Works Department has submitted recommendations advocating disposal of garbage by feeding to hogs rather than by reduction. For the past six months a hog farm has been maintained as an experiment and the conclusions drawn are that the faults of the experimental farm can be done away with and the method of garbage disposal can be made satisfactory as well as revenue producing. A larger site for the farm is recommended so that uneaten garbage and offal may be utilized on adjoining land where hay and oats could be raised for the 460 horses used by the street department. With the construction of a moderate sized reduction plant for the disposal of absolutely unusable garbage, the plant would become entirely sanitary and unobjectionable. The hogs raised on the experimental farm have always brought top market prices and are claimed to be second only to grain fed animals and better than those raised on farms by swill. According to the Public Works Department it has proved that this method is revenue producing while a reduction plant, on the other hand, would cost $100,000 a year for operation and maintenance.

ST. PAUL has a system of conducting its public works that it considers a money saver. When any work is to be done the chief engineer submits an estimate of cost. Bids are asked for and if any are lower than the estimated cost the contract is generally awarded to the lowest bidder. If bids are higher the work is done by the city. St. Paul has a municipally owned asphalt plant, and 10c a square yard is charged against the job for depreciation of equipment. This is expended in the maintenance and upkeep of the asphalt plant. The city has been able to get keener competition from contractors as it is known that they must bid not only against other contractors but against the city.

TOPEKA, Ohio, has recently passed an ordinance calling for the licensing of all automobiles by the city with the exception of those owned by non-residents not staying in the city over two weeks. The examining board has the right to suspend licenses.

When it's wet we kick about the rain. When it's hot we kick about the heat.

SEATTLE AND TOLEDO TRACTION INCOME-COST COMPARISON IS SHOWN

SEATTLE - TOLEDO TRACTION INCOME-COST COMPARISON IS SHOWN

Comparison between the 1921 reports of the Seattle Municipal street railway and the Community Traction Company shows that the passenger revenue of the Toledo utility is 42.198 cents per car mile against 42.35 cents for Seattle.

On the other hand, the total operation and maintenance cost for the Seattle company averaged 28.86 cents per car mile, against 36.803 cents per car mile for Toledo.

However, the Toledo operating cost diminished to 33.59 cents per car mile in April this year, against 44.682 cents per car mile in March, 1921, when costs reached a high mark. This decrease reflects the strenuous effort of the street car commissioner to hammer down costs.

One item that entered into the higher Toledo cost was the power charge, which was 6.5 cents per car mile, compared with 4.32 cents per car mile for Seattle. The local utility also spent 1.14 cents per car mile more on ways and structures than did Seattle.

The Seattle report shows passenger revenues increased from 33.38 cents per car mile in 1920, to 40.36 cents per car mile in 1921, which the total cost was diminished about two cents per car mile over the two years. —Toledo City Journal, May 27, 1922.

SEATTLE PLANS A NEW HOTEL

By Eimon L. Wienir

A new hotel for Seattle seems certain at this writing. The Chamber of Commerce announces the formation of an executive committee to carry the project through and has set the week beginning July 17th for a campaign to raise the capital necessary to launch the project. I feel that I am speaking for the Municipal League when I say that Seattle is to be congratulated. The Chamber of Commerce deserves a great deal of credit for its present efforts to secure a hotel for Seattle. It has long been a much needed want and has detracted largely from Seattle's ability to secure tourist travel and it has as well detracted from Seattle's social, civic and commercial life.

Perhaps, however, it has been fortunate to have waited thus long, for now we shall be able to secure the most modern type of building, furnishings and conveniences; and, all in all, the hotel should be the last word in every detail of construction and arrangement. Let every citizen get behind the project and endeavor to make it a success!

JUDGE GRIFFITHS IS TO MAKE RACE FOR THE SENATE

Judge Austin E. Griffiths, former president of the Municipal League and for many years an active participant in its affairs, has announced his candidacy for the United States Senatorship. Judge Griffiths has many friends in the League who will undoubtedly help him realize that ambition. It is with distinct pleasure that the writer calls attention to Judge Griffith's high qualifications for the office he seeks. A man of wide political experience, Judge Griffiths has widened his knowledge by travel both in this country and abroad, and his progressive views have met with understanding and sympathy at home. His friendly yet sane attitude towards organized labor and his expressions of belief in the fundamental laws of our land qualify him to represent every element in the community in the United States Senate.

of the engagement, a member of the committee to address it. The member of the committee stated that he could not accept the engagement without first consulting the chairman of the committee as to whether or not a committee meeting would be held on that date. Had there been a conflict, the speaking engagement would not have been accepted. The committee made many personal sacrifices, leaving their homes, their families and their business for days at a time. A digest of the report will be printed in the succeeding early issues of the News.

RETENTION OF FIRE CHIEF

WHEREAS, Chief Mantor has been untiring and unselfish in his efforts to develop a Fire Department of which Seattle might be proud; and

WHEREAS, All interests such as fire underwriters, home owners, building owners and others who are most vitally affected by the efficiency of the Department are united in their support and commendation of Chief Mantor for the results he has so splendidly attained;

BE IT RESOLVED, That it would be a calamity to the City of Seattle to lose the services of such a department head as Chief Mantor, and that we unanimously endorse the retention or re-appointment of George M. Mantor as the Chief of the Fire Department of the City of Seattle.

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE PARTY AT THE SKAGIT

As this is being written, approximately twenty-five people have definitely decided to make the Skagit trip. A slight change in the arrangements was made Friday afternoon when Chief Engineer Uhden informed the League that the city railway train schedule had been changed so that the train would leave at 1:40 p. m. instead of 12:30 as theretofore. A corresponding change in the time for leaving was therefore made—the automobiles for Rock Port leaving at 7:30. The plan for the trip is as follows:—Automobiles will leave by the Everett road to Mt. Vernon, then up to Sedro Woolley, through concrete to Rock Port. At Rock Port the party will entrain on the city railway to Gorge Creek. Saturday afternoon and Sunday forenoon will be spent at the project; a special train carrying the party back to Rock Port, from whence the return to Seattle will be made.

In next week's issue of the News a full account of the visit will appear.

Those who decided to make the trip are: Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Nossaman, Charles A. Hultin, I. C. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. White, John Smart, A. T. L. Williamson, Mrs. Weld, Miss Karen Weld, Dr. E. C. Kilbourne, Dr. George T. Williams, R. C. Hill, James T. Lawler, W. N. Harrison, D. L. Pratt, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Frerich, Mr. and Mrs. Otway Pardee, Mr. M. A.oudon, and Eimon L. Wienir.

"Yes, I can give you a job. You can gather the eggs if you're sure you won't steal any."

"Youse could trust me with anything, lady. I was manager of a bathhouse for fifteen years and never took a bath."

WHAT WILL YOUR ANSWER BE?

President Baldwin is going about slowly but systematically in dividing up the work for the coming year. The basis for the League's success this year, as in years before, will be the committee work. Effective committee work depends upon earnest, sincere and conscientious service on the part of the personnel of the entire organization. Committee work must not be shirked by any member of the League no matter how high his standing in the community is, nor how unknown he may be. It must not be shirked neither by the rich or the poor. Above all, it must not be shirked by the busy man. We are all busy men, everyone must make his living, must pay attention to his business and must devote a reasonable amount of time to his family; but civic duty—the highest duty that a citizen owes his municipality and his country—must be shared alike by all who enjoy its bounties. Let there be as much pride taken in one's civic patriotism as in one's national patriotism. In times of peace there must be soldiers and officers to fight the battles of governmental life. Mere declamation of patriotism; mere lip service to the flag; mere throwing out of flags to the breeze on the 4th of July and other holidays, is certainly not enough.

The call to duty even though that call may be made in the calm voice of peace, should be heeded by the inner consciousness of man as much as the stentorian notes sounded in a battle.

Within the next few days you may be called upon to signify the acceptance or the rejection of a post of service—of civic service. Will you plead the usual excuse—no doubt a valid one—or will you, in the knowledge that the work must be done, say "I will", gladly, cheerfully, and happy in the consciousness that your making a sacrifice is worth while.

COMMERCE DEPARTMENT ZONING PRIMER

Prepared by Dept. of Commerce

For several years there has been developing a feeling that some agency of the Federal Government should interest itself in building and housing. The Congress of the United States made an appropriation for such activities for the year 1921-1922. The Act appropriating the funds says, among other things, "That as much of this sum as necessary shall be used to collect and disseminate such scientific, practical, and statistical information as may to show approved methods in building, planning, and construction, standardization and adaptability of structural units, including building materials and supplies, and such other matters as may tend to encourage, improve, and cheapen construction and housing."

Accordingly, Secretary Hoover created the Division of Building and Housing, which cooperates with all groups interested in

REDUCTION OF TEACHERS' SALARIES AGAIN

At a meeting held by the School Board Tuesday evening, president Carl E. Croson was instructed to inform the teachers' associations that the Board of Education would not reopen the question of the reduction of salaries, and that the matter was a closed incident.

With the closing of the incident, it was revealed that Mr. Taylor had made a valiant effort for the retrenchment of expenses other than by cutting teachers' salaries, and that it was only as a last resort that he voted for the reduction of pay.

It is of course generally known that the Seattle schools' supervisory staff is top heavy. There are approximately seventeen supervisors in the city of Seattle drawing pay at a minimum of $2200 and a maximum of $3660. It is understood that Mr. Taylor has endeavored to reduce the number of supervisors, thus effecting a substantial saving. He was supported in his efforts by Mr. Santmyer. Mr. Shorrock, however, was unable to concur with that point of view and therefore the effort failed as it lacked a majority of the board to pass it.

Apparently the teachers made the stand they did not so much because the reduction of $150 and $300 was particularly vital, but because they foresaw that this initial effort might be followed by more drastic policies; and then again the teachers are, as a body, working to put over the 30-10 plan. For some reason they felt that the present tendency to reduce salaries—or at least the tendency to reduce them without the active opposition of the teachers—would impair the progress of their state fight for the 30-10 measure.

So far as the recalling of director Taylor is concerned, that ap-housing and construction, such as architects, builders, building material producers and dealers, building trades labor, contractors, builders' exchanges, realtors, building and loan associations, building inspectors, city officials, and others.

The Division has helped local communities in successfully solving their housing problems. It collects and publishes monthly prices of twenty-four items of building materials as paid by contractors in different cities. It also makes reports on building activity, such as building permits and contracts awarded, and on general building and housing conditions in the country.

Mr. Hoover has appointed two main committees which cooperate with the Division of Building and Housing. The Advisory Committee on Building Codes, with a subcommittee on Plumbing, is drafting minimum code requirements for building construction. The Advisory Committee on Zoning is making studies of state enabling acts and zoning ordinances. Its reports should be of distinct aid to communities interested in the promotion of the public welfare and the protection of property values.

WHAT IS ZONING?

Zoning is the application of common sense and fairness to the public regulations governing the use of private real estate. It is a painstaking, honest effort to provide each district or neighborhood, as nearly as practicable, with just such protection and just such liberty as are sensible in that particular district. It avoids the error of trying to apply exactly the same building regulations to every part of a city or town regardless of whether it is a suburban residence section, or a factory district, or a business and financial center. It fosters civic spirit by creating confidence in the justice and stability of the protection afforded.

Zoning gives everyone who lives or does business in a community a chance for the reasonable enjoyment of his rights. At the same time it protects him from unreasonable injury by neighbors who would seek private gain at his expense.

Zoning regulations differ in different districts according to the determined uses of the land for residence, business, or manufacturing, and according to the advisable heights and ground areas.

But these differing regulations are the same for all districts of the same type. They treat all men alike.

WHY WE NEED ZONING

Someone has asked, "Does your city keep its gas range in the parlor and its piano in the kitchen?" That is what many an American city permits its household to do for it.

We know what to think of a household in which an undisciplined daughter makes fudge in the parlor, in which her sister leaves soiled clothes soaking in the bathtub, while father throws his muddy shoes on the stairs, and little Johnny makes beautiful mud-pies on the front steps.

Yet many American cities do the same sort of thing when they allow stores to crowd in at random among private dwellings, and factories and public garages to come elbowing in among neat retail stores or well-kept apartment houses. Cities do no better when they allow office buildings so tall and bulky and so closely crowded that the lower floors not only become too dark and unsatisfactory for human use but for that very reason fail to earn a fair cash return to the individual investors.

"Live and let live" is a better motto for the modern city than the savage one of "dog eat dog".

It is this stupid, wasteful jumble which zoning will prevent and gradually correct. We must remember, however, that while zoning is a very important part of city planning, it should go hand in hand with planning streets and providing for parks and playgrounds, and other essential features of a well-equipped city. Alone it is no universal panacea for all municipal ills, but as part of a larger program it pays the city and the citizens a quicker return than any other form of civic improvement.

PROPERTY AND HEALTH PROTECTED BY ZONING

Supposing that you have just bought some property in a land of homes and built a cozy little house. There are two vacant lots south of you. If your town is zoned, no one can put up a large apartment house on those lots, overshadowing your home, stealing your sunshine and spoiling the investment of twenty years' saving. Nor is anyone at liberty to erect a noisy, malodorous public garage to keep you awake nights or to drive you to sell out for half what you put into your home.

If a town is zoned, property values become more stable, mortgage companies are more ready to lend money, and more houses can be built.

A zoning law, if enacted in time, prevents an apartment house from becoming a giant airless hive, housing human beings like crowded bees. It provides that buildings may not be so high and so close that men and women must work in rooms never freshened by sunshine or lighted from the open sky.

ZONING REDUCES COST OF LIVING

By zoning millions of waste from the scrapping of buildings in "blighted districts" may be eliminated.

A "blighted district" is a district, originally developed for residence or industry, in the future of which people have lost confidence.

The causes of such "blight" are manifold. The most familiar case is that of a residential district into which there have been begun to creep various uses threatening rapid destruction of its value for residences,—such as uses as sporadic stores, or factories, or junk yards. It is not that a few such inappropriate uses really spoil the district, but that the people having lost confidence start a panic, like a "run on the bank". Hundreds of them hurry up to "unload" their properties at a sacrifice for any kind of use, no matter how objectionable to their neighbors—and the "blight" is on! Dwellings worth in the aggregate millions of dollars for the purposes for which they were built, and physically fit to serve those purposes for many years to come, with a moderate investment in alterations and improvements, are thus annually abandoned to purposes for which they are not fit, or are left to stand practically idle. Expensive public services of water, gas, electricity, sewers and transportation are maintained at great waste in order to get through the "blighted" district to the more distant and newly fashionable districts.

The total economic loss is enormous, and this loss and the risk of it are paid by the people in the price of house rents or otherwise, as inevitably as they pay the price of the enormous real losses either directly or through insurance.

Proper zoning cuts these losses at their source, just as proper building regulations and fire protection cut fire losses at their source.

Again, miles of streets and sewers and other utilities, such as are ordinarily built when land is newly subdivided for dwellings, need never be constructed if we know that these areas will be devoted mainly to large factories. Industry will be more efficient, as well as homes more wholesome, kept generally separate. Separation need not mean great distances for workers to travel. Concentration of uses and a fair apportioning of districts should reduce the amount of all transportation and secure economies not only directly for the worker, but indirectly in the costs of production and marketing of goods.

If zoning can reduce the cost of living, why not have it?

ZONING IS LEGAL

When a zoning law is properly drawn there is no doubt that the courts will support it. Enough favorable decisions have been handed down to show that the courts regard regulation of the uses of land and the structures thereon, in accordance with the kind of district in which they are situated, as a reasonable exercise of the police power "for the public health, safety, and general welfare".

In fact, the courts have approved zoning whenever it was done sensibly and comprehensively. The first case arose in Boston, Massachusetts, where two different heights for future buildings were fixed throughout the city. This was supported by the highest court of Massachusetts and the United States Supreme Court. (Welch vs. Swasey, 214 U. S. 91).

The next important case arose in Los Angeles, California, where under a zoning plan dividing the city into industrial and residential districts a brickyard in a residential district was ousted although it had been in existence for many years. This was upheld by the California courts and also by the United States Supreme Court as a proper exercise of the police power. Modern zoning ordinances are not retroactive, however. (Hadacheck vs. Sebastian, 239 U. S. 3r4).

The best zoning case to show how far the courts will go in distinguishing between zoning districts is State of Ohio ex rel. Morris vs. Osborn, et al., 22 N. P. (N. S.) 549. The court held that one and two-family houses were less subject to noise, litter, danger of contagion and fire risk than multi-family houses and that they could be placed in different districts under the police power. This case, however, was not appealed to a higher court and we cannot say whether other states will follow it.

In New York State the highest court has declared the zoning of New York City to be constitutional, stating that zoning can be done under the police power if done with care and good judgment so as not to be arbitrary or confiscatory. (Lincoln Trust Company vs. William Building Corporation, 229 N. Y. 313).

HOW TO GET STARTED

Find out if your state has an enabling act permitting localities to zone, even if your city has a charter with home rule powers. If not, the first move must be to secure specific authority from the state legislature. In the following states zoning is already so authorized.

California	Illinois
Indiana	*Iowa
Kansas	*Louisiana
Massachusetts	Michigan
*Minnesota	*Missouri
*Nebraska	New Jersey
New York	Oregon
Rhode Island	*Texas
Virginia	Wisconsin
Ohio	*Pennsylvania
*Act does not apply to all classes of cities.

This list does not include Connecticut, District of Columbia, South Carolina, and Tennessee, acts of which apply to a particular city; and North Carolina, which has recently passed a City Planning Act granting zoning powers to city plan commissions.

There must be some local official body to initiate the work of zoning. If there is a Planning Board or Commission, that is the logical body to take up the problem. If there is, no such body, one should be created, because zoning, to be done with wise foresight, must take account not only of existing conditions and obvious tendencies of growth, but of probable changes and improvements of many sorts. It is part of the general planning problem. It relates to the transportation system, including streets street railways and other local passenger transportation, railroad freight and passenger service, and water borne commerce if any. It relates also to public works and utilities, to parks, schools, and many special public and private undertakings.

A ZONING PROGRAM

Surveys:- A zoning ordinance needs to be based on a comprehensive and detailed study of the precise local conditions, both present and prospective. What fits one city or town may be a bad misfit for another. There is no short-cut to good zoning in any community through blindly accepting what has been done for another community. The only safe path is a thorough, open minded examination of the facts in each community as to existing uses, existing densities and heights of buildings, the customs of the people, and the trend of affairs. In every city there are citizens and organizations having in their possession valuable knowledge of local conditions. These have a large contribution to make to those responsible for zoning, although those who have lived their whole lives in a community do not necessarily realize all that is going on about them.

The zoning of a city requires expert professional knowledge just as the presentation of a case in court requires legal training. But just as the lawyer depends upon the layman to secure his facts, so must the professional zoning expert call upon the citizens for much of the accurate information upon which any good zoning regulations may be based.

Technical advice:- The practice of zoning is relatively new in America. We are feeling our way, and must learn by experience. Those who have had experience tend to become expert with broader knowledge of practices that are proving effective. These men are becoming gradually more skilled in the methods of getting the essential facts of any local situation, and in the interpretation of these facts. If they possess insight and sane judgment, their advice becomes increasingly valuable.

Scope of a Zoning Ordinance:-

A zoning ordinance consists of one or more maps dividing the city into different kinds of districts; and a statement of methods of regulation to be employed in each district in regard to the use to which property may be put, the height and size of buildings, and the amount of space to be left vacant; with adequate provisions for enforcement.

Getting Public Support:- In the process of drafting a tentative ordinance, it is important, by means of full public discussion, to be sure that the ordinance is an "application of common-sense and fairness" and will provide each district, as nearly as practicable, with just such protection and just such liberty as are sensible in that particular district". It is essential likewise to be sure that public opinion as a whole will support it.

Zoning in Operation:- A zoning ordinance is of value only as it is properly enforced. Because of the difficulty of making with precision the forecasts on which it is based, its operation should be closely followed by those who most intimately understand the reasons for its provisions. Thus, improvements and adjustments may from time to time be intelligently made. It is to furnish in exceptional cases a means of remedying possible injustices that, in some states, provision is made for a Board of Adjustment or Appeals.

It is obvious from the nature of the case that, even if a zoning ordinance were drawn with super-human perfection, time and natural growth of the community may show the need of modifications. The purpose of a zoning ordinance is not to stifle growth, but only to insure that instead of taking place sporadically and wastefully, it shall go on in an orderly way, in response to generally recognized needs and with due notice to all concerned.

parently has been abandoned. At a meeting of the School Board a week ago Friday, J. Arthur Younger, the head of the local Legion post, announced that the Legion was not in politics and that it would neither sponsor nor foster any movement for a recall.

To those of us who had attended the Council meetings at the time that the citizens' committee reported in favor of a reduction of wages for policemen and firemen, the meeting of the School Board a week ago Friday was particularly interesting. At the Council meeting when the debate was on between those favoring and those opposing reduction of pay, an overflowing lobby of policemen and firemen hissed remarks of speakers in favor of the reduction of pay and applauded to the echo the speakers in favor of their interests. We believed that disgusting demonstration was due to the character of the men composing the lobby. At the School Board meeting an almost similar outburst was in evidence—not so openly gross, it is true, but nevertheless, keenly and disappointingly apparent. It is human nature, of course, but, nevertheless, that old saying of Kipling's about Judge O'Grady and the Colonel's Lady, comes to mind:-

"For the Colonel's Lady an'
Judge O'Grady
Are sisters under their skins!"

A VISIT TO NEWHALEM, A TOWN WHERE EVERYBODY WORKS FOR SEATTLE

Everybody's happy! That is, all forty-three of us who took opportunity "by the forelock" and went on the trip to the Skagit Project. No one wants their money back, either, and I believe all of us felt that we were repaid "seven-fold". It was one of the most thrilling and impressionable trips imaginable.

"In the beginning":—One of the party had a bright new car, so we started a little earlier than the rest—about 6:20—with everything running smoothly, and followed the highway as directed, as well as the detours. On the first detour we unceremoniously met a logging truck which dismounted our right-of-way by smashing the car. Chief Engineer Uhden passed us up, so we parked in the town of Silvana for three long hours while the car was being repaired. (Of course, he did not know us then). After the mechanic had finished making temporary repairs, we were on the road again, and in due course of time reached Sedro Wooley. From there we "ran off the map". We felt very much like Christopher Columbus might have felt when he sailed on the uncharted seas; but we were assured that, if we followed the highway some of the time and the detours most of the time, together with steep grades and sharp curves above the winding Skagit, we would reach Rockport—sooner or later. Which we did—about 5:15. We had missed the city railway train leaving there at 1:40, and we had visions of staying at Rockport all night, for it was 23 miles to Newhalem, unattainable by automobile, and too far to walk. But thanks to Mr. Uden, our hopes were not thus blighted. One of the workmen was waiting for us with the "Speeder".

LAWLER GIVES IMPRESSION OF SKAGIT

As one of the fortunate ones who attended the Municipal League's party at the Skagit Power Plant, I thought I would give you a few impressions.

If everyone of the 40 or more who attended would write of their experiences no doubt each one would tell something the others did not think of. There would be unanimity however upon the point that we are developing a great project at the Skagit. Nature has cut a deep gash in that part of the Universe through which flows the greatest body of water in Western Washington for a distance of 150 miles, with a drainage area of 2,000 square miles.

The writer has read much about the Skagit and its proposed development and has listened to Mr. Uhden the engineer in charge on several occasions, and has seen views thrown upon the screen showing the gradual development of the work there and what it will be when completed. But even with this advantage he was unable to form a correct mental picture of what it really is. The terms "Ruby" and "Gorge" do not mean much to the average person living 150 miles away. One must go to Rockport the "beautiful" little village that nestles near the foot of the hills and then board the "Toonerville Trolley" and proceed a distance of 20 odd miles to the power plant. Arriving here you see a "Camp Lewis" on a small scale with its numerous buildings all arranged in methodical and symmetrical order. From this centre radiates all the activities of the plant. It embraces 120 acres of land and includes all the conveniences of a modern city except street cars, paving, etc. The 500 odd inhabitants have a school, general store, pool rooms, moving picture theatre, dance hall and bathing facilities of the latest improved type.

One is instantly struck by the order which prevails. During our two days visit there was not the slightest sign of any disorder or friction of any kind. Engineer Uhden holds the situation in the palm of his hand. He is mayor, chief of police and all around generalissimo, but he doesn't know it. These honors are all showered upon him by the people around him.

Always an important feature of any affair of this kind is the commissary and the food supply. "Heaven sends us the food, but the devil sends us the cooks," is a trite saying. At the Skagit heaven sends us both. The food was of a high order, well served and everything was as clean as a pin. The only speeches made were by "Mayor Uhden, who invariably addressed the assembled gathering before and after meals. His only departure from the technique was to announce the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. White. And the prices of the meals are reasonable, 50c for breakfast and lunch and 75c for dinner.

The two mile trip on the railroad to the Gorge Plant was one long to be remembered. The scenic grandeur is unsurpassed; the dam to be constructed below the mouth of Gorge Creek will be 240 ft. high, length of crest 600 ft. and will require 185,000 cubic yards of concrete. The reservoir back of the dam will be 4 miles long with a capacity of 6,000 acre feet. There will be two tunnels from the dam to the power house, having a length of 11,000 feet each. Our party entered one of these tunnels for a distance of about a half mile and witnessed the men at work and marvelled at the difficulties to be overcome in tunnelling into solid granite. The work is expensive, but anything worth while costs money, even the railroad which

THE MUNICIPAL LEAGUE EXCURSION TO THE SKAGIT

Last Saturday morning a party of thirty-five including a few ladies and children, left Seattle by automobiles for Newhalem Camp to view the Skagit Power Project.

It was a rare June morning, with everything just right for a perfect trip which it turned out to be. All along the route were signs of progress and prosperity. New homes being erected, land being cleared and roads improved. After passing Everett we went through the broad level delta of the Snohomish, Stillaguamish and Skagit rivers, bordered on the east by the wooded hills and on the west by Puget Sound. The variable shades of green in the fields of grain, hay and pasture, decorated here and there with herds of blooded Holsteins, Ayershire or Jerseys, or White Leghorns, presented a panorama of beauty combined with utility. Nature with usual prodigality, not satisfied with ravishing the eye with the wonderful charm of landscape and sky, also provided music by the birds, and from the clover and grasses distilled perfume whose rare fragrance, wafted by the soft summer winds, made breathing an exquisite delight, (except when passing too close to one of those numerous dairy barns). The wonderful productivity of the soil was in evidence everywhere; thrifty, well kept farm buildings, attractive homes surrounded by green lawns, shade trees and an abundance of flowers; while in the towns, new residences and business buildings were under construction. Everett, sleepy Marysville, Silvana, Stanwood, Mt. Vernon, Burlington, Sedro-Wooley all looked prosperous, with lots of building going on. Towns like Burlington and Sedro-Wooley which fifteen years ago were conspicuous for their ugliness, a bunch of shacks among a field of stumps, are now handsome towns, with good business blocks and roads, pretty homes and fine shade trees.

Leaving Sedro-Wooley, we crossed the river and entered the narrow valley of the Skagit, going up on the north bank. From here on to Rockport, due to the limited area and difficulty in clearing the agricultural lands, there were fewer signs of progress. Much of the timber adjacent to the river has been logged off and logging camps and several small sawmills abandoned. On the other hand there were several camps working, and we went through large tracts of very fine standing timber containing some especially fine cedar.

Lyman and Hamilton looked sleepy. At Concrete where several thousand years ago the Skagit deposited an unlimited quantity of lime stone, the Superior Portland Cement Company are utilizing nature's gifts, grind-out 14,000 sacks of cement daily, using 2,000 electric horsepower, conveyed 12 miles from their own hydro-electric plant. They consume 300 tons of coal daily obtained from Bellingham, 55 miles distant. 285 men are employed.

The branch of the Great Northern Railway which ends at Rockport keeps close to the river all the way, the auto road follows along on practically the same grade most of the way, but in several narrow places, climbs up over steep hills through dense timber. In places the road clings to the edge of the precipice, giving magnificent views of the valley and mountains, greatly adding to the charm of the ride.

We arrived at Rockport, the terminus of the automobile part of the trip, at 12:20—just 5 hours and 20 minutes from Seattle, including about forty minutes for three stops to stretch our legs, and give the auto gas and water. At the hotel we washed up, and were given our choice of three roller towels which seemed to have been great favorites with the natives who preceded us, or paper ones which appealed more to our party.

We had to wait until the regulars were through lunch, or dinner as it was called. The landlord seemed quite peeved because someone had telegraphed about an hour before, ordering ham and eggs for thirty. There wasn't a ham in town, so he had to send an auto to the next town for one. He thought we had supreme audacity to expect him to furnish thirty orders for ham and eggs on such short notice. We learned why later, when one of our party having finished his "ham and", innocently asked him if he was the one to pay. "Yes," he replied, "I'm the cashier, bus-boy, waiter, cook and dishwasher, and if you want your shoes shined or the bed made, I will have to do it, for I'm the whole thing here." Notwithstanding his multifarious duties, he gave us a very satisfactory dinner, well worth the fifty cents which, as cashier, he "allowed he'd accept".

We had to wait for some of the slower drivers, so it was after two o'clock before we started over our own railroad by gas locomotive power for Newhalem Camp, personally conducted by Mr. Uhden, the Chief Engineer of the project. I say over our own railroad, for we were all citizens of Seattle, and the railroad is owned by our City. It is a necessary part of the Skagit project, being required to haul machinery and supplies from the terminus of the branch line of the Great Northern Railway. After we were well under way and couldn't escape, a City employee came around and assessed us $1.00 per head for the 23 miles to Newhalem, explaining that the road was allowed to charge 5c a mile, but on through trips a wholesale price was made.

The Skagit, along whose banks the railroad runs, is here very swift, the fall being about sixty feet per mile. We arrived at Newhalem about four o'clock, and after Mr. Uhden had shown us our sleeping quarters, we glimpsed the town. Newhalem Camp is located on a level stretch of the Skagit valley just below the point where the river breaks out of the gorge. It is a very picturesque site, surrounded by high precipitous mountains on three sides, but open toward the west. The river hugs the mountain on the north side of the valley leaving a flatiron shaped plot of level ground, with the point at the gorge, and extending down stream for a mile or more, widening out to a quarter of a mile.

There are at present about 450 men employed by the City and the tunnel contractors, who with their wives and children form a community of about 700. This will be a permanent camp or town, for here will be located the main power station. At present the buildings are of rough lumber, sawn by the City's sawmill, but permanent residences with concrete basements and modern equipment are being erected. Even now there is quite a complete community service, there being lodging houses for single men, and separate ones for families, mess halls, commissary, school and Sunday school, recreation hall for men with billiard and pool table, barber shop, theater and dance hall, saw mill gravel bunkers, machine shop electric light and power plant electric railway and water system with fire protection.

The power plant is across the suspension bridge on the north side of the river. Newhalem Creek furnishes water under 500 feet head to two impulse wheels which drive one 2500 K. W. dynamo, furnishing all the power and light used in the town and construction work. Ladder Creek which empties into the Skagit at the mouth of the gorge at an elevation of about 200 feet and furnishes abundant water at 900 pounds pressure.

The electric railway runs to the sawmill and gravel bunker three-fourths mile west of town and up the gorge two and a half miles to the dam sight and upper end of the tunnel. The tunnel is well under way; the lower heading being in 2,000 feet and the upper 200 feet. About the center, a lateral adit is being driven a distance of 1200 feet, where it will intersect the line of the main tunnel which will allow two more headings to be started, thus nearly doubling the progress. This cross adit is now in 700 feet.

All work seems to be going along rapidly and smoothly, and the community seems happy and contented. The City serves an abundance of good food at 50c a meal at its mess hall, and gives a good bed in a neat board cabin for 75c.

Mr. Uhden conducted the party up Ladder Creek past the water intake, to an elevation of about 650 feet above the town. "Ladder" is the right name alright, for it was climb, climb, climb. But it was well worth the effort. The crystal waters falling over precipitous granite rocks, through the deep forest carpeted with moss decorated with maiden-hair ferns, was a picture long to be remembered.

On our return we were taken into the tunnel which is horseshoe, having an area equal to 3 1-2 feet diameter, but will be reduced to 20 1-2 feet by a concrete lining; steel forms which are now arriving. Near this end of the tunnel a gley hole has been blasted out of the solid granite in which the water wheels will be located, and above hem the dynamos and main power plant. The first installation here will have a rated capacity of 75,000 H. P. but with the lower head of the temporary diversion dam will be 56,000 H. P.

On our return a fine dinner at the mess hall awaited us. After dinner we inspected the fine little power plant across the river, which is the heart of the whole works, and found it doing its business with serene unconcern. In the evening we had more time to inspect the town and get acquainted with some of the people. An inquiry to a group of small boys as to what they did, now that school was out? "Oh, we play ball; we have cleared off ball grounds; and we go swimming and fishing."

"Swimming! where? Isn't the river cold as ice?"

"Oh, we turned the fire hose into one of the new concrete basements and let the sun warm it for us."

Going up to one we found an open basement 24 x 30 feet with about four feet of water in it, making a fine swimming pool. Leave it to the boys to do things.

We retired early, but before going so, took a look into the theater building, where, to the music of a very fair orchestra, about forty couples of young people were enjoying themselves dancing. It was a very charming sight.

Next morning after a fine sleep and an early breakfast we boarded one of the City's electric cars and were taken up the gorge to the dam site at Gorge Creek. Mr. Uhden was the conductor, and we all say he is some fine conductor, but a mighty poor collector, for he entirely forgot that part of the job. There were no demands for a return to a 5c fare.

The Skagit breaks through nearly vertical walls of solid granite 200 to 400 feet apart which rise several thousand feet high, and tumbles down 350 feet in a distance of 2 1-4 miles. It is a spectacle worth going a long distance to witness.

As the car crawled up the steep grade, twisting and turning to keep on the narrow ledge out for the roadbed, the boiling and tumbling river below us presented an ever changing scene of picturesque grandeur that called forth Ohs! and Ahs! Half way up the wall was actually vertical, leaving no room for the track, so here at a place called the Devil's Elbow the railway crosses the river to the right side. Here is where the cross adit to the tunnel is being driven.

On we crawled to the end of the track at the inlet of the tunnel and the dam site. Here between solid granite walls which come together 111 feet below the bed of the river and are only 600 feet apart at the level of the crest, is a perfect dam site. Two or three hours were spent here, many walking back over the picturesque trail to the Devil's Elbow where we took the train again to camp Newhalem.

After a fine dinner the City gas train took us back to Rockport, where at 2 o'clock we again took automobiles, arriving at Seattle at 7:30 P. M. Sunday evening. The total cost to those, who like the writer enjoyed the privilege of riding in a Cadillac limousine, was $15.00 of which $10.00 was for the automobile round trip, with which we were all abundantly satisfied.

Summed up: The trip was an immense success, everybody who went would have liked to have stayed at Newhalem a month.

To pass judgment on the power project on such a hurried survey would be foolish. Nevertheless it looked good to us. The City's engineers spent $250,000 in surveys, diamond drilling and churn drilling, and securing expert advice before they passed judgment, and recommended the City authorities to go ahead with the project; and as the work done since, confirms their original opinion, we returned with the idea that they were right, so we told Uhden to go ahead with the work, and thanked him for the very courteous and royal manner in which he treated us.

Mayor Brown asked us to go up and look. We went and are pleased. Thanks, Doctor, but don't expect us to work for a 5c fare on your Gorge Railway.

VISIT TO NEWHALEM

We felt amply repaid for missing the train, lunch, 'n' everything, to have that splendid "observation car" ride—somewhat like honored guests, as it were. We followed the river most of the way. Mountains towered above us on both sides, some sections of them seemed to be of solid rock. Giant trees held on tenaciously to the very edges of abrupt precipices, and waterfalls glistened and shimmered in the light of the setting sun as they tumbled down the mountain side.

The long but charming trip had whetted our appetites, as well as our expectations of what was still to come. A truly delicious dinner had been specially prepared for us, and we were ready for it.

That evening we visited the Newhalem power plant—the first completed unit. It furnishes 3,000 H. P., lighting the town and tunnels, furnishing power for five miles of railway, operating the air compressors to furnish air in the tunnels, and the drills, electric shovels, blacksmith shops and cranes.

The next morning some of us started at 5 o'clock for a hike up Ladder Creek Canyon. This creek furnishes the water supply for the town from a glacier about 3 1-2 miles above Newhalem. The intake has approximately a 300 foot elevation, and consists of a small take connected with a 5 inch water main that is one-half mile long. This furnishes ample fire protection and running water for all the enterprises and for the homes of the town. We returned just in time for breakfast at 6:45. I have never before eaten a more hearty meal, or tasted more palatable food. (By the way, they serve five meals a day!)

At 8 o'clock we boarded the city railway train for the trip to Gorge Creek—the real object of our visit—one of the most scenic trips in the State of Washington. There we inspected the main tunnel upon which four crews are working, one at each, and one in each direction from a drift in the middle. Each crew works three shifts of eight hours each. At a place where both banks rise almost perpendicular and where the rock is solid, the Gorge Creek masonry dam, 240 feet high, is to be built. But before this can be started, the temporary wooden dam must be erected to turn the water from the site through the tunnel. This wood dam will last ten or fifteen years and furnishes means to develop 55,000 H. P. at a total cost of about $9,500,000 for the first ten years. The Gorge Creek masonry dam will cost about $4,000,000 and develop a total of about 112,550 H. P. The total cost of the two dams will be about $13,500,000.

The "Skagit project" to me now has a real and vital meaning. Before, it seemed more of an abstract dream. For all skeptics I would prescribe this trip, and guarantee it would convert them into boosters for the project.

One of the features which made the trip so enjoyable was the genial presence of our host, the Chief Engineer, with his jovial smile and hearty enthusiasm.

The Skagit project is to big for Seattle of the past and present—but not too big for Seattle of the future if Seattle is to take her "stellar" position among the cities of the West and of the nation. This she will certainly do if all her residents work for her interests with the methodical, honest effort shown by those of Newhalem—from Chief Engineer Uhden to the last laborer.

The writer could proceed at greater length if he thought you had the time to read it, but you are a busy man. He refuses to write about anything he did not see, hence has mere reference to the proposed Ruby development. Take it all in all we had a good time. I believe that all were impressed with the wonderful asset that Seattle has in the Skagit project. The important thing to be kept in mind, however, is to watch where our money goes. As long as we get a dollar's return for a dollar expended we need not complain. The financial feature is the thing to be kept in mind. See that the overhead is kept within bounds. Everyone who can should visit the Skagit; it will prove to be a delightful experience; moreover it is the duty of everyone civically inclined to see for themselves.

Yours very truly,
JAMES T. LAWLER

E. L. Wienir, Secy.,
Municipal League of Seattle,
Dear Mr. Wienir:

I am glad to note from your letter of June 27 that those of the Municipal League who made the trip to the Skagit were satisfied and I wish to say that they certainly were a nice bunch to get along with and did seem to appreciate the work which is being done for the City of Seattle. I hope that you will be able to make the trip the latter part of next month with some of the rest of them as I know that you will be more thoroughly convinced than ever that the City of Seattle needs the Skagit River Development.

Yours truly,
C. F. UHLEN,

Chief Engineer, Skagit River Development.

June 27, 1922.

Mr. Carl F. Uhden,
Seattle, Washington.

Dear Mr. Uhden:

In behalf of the Municipal League and particularly in behalf of those members who made the trip to the Skagit, we wish to thank you most cordially for your very courteous and very fine treatment of the party. Personally I regret that I was not able to come, but I am in sincere hopes that we shall sometime the latter part of next month arrange another excursion (if this will meet with your approval).

Those who took the trip have nothing but expressions of satisfaction. It was due to your careful provision for the comfort, as well as the careful provision which nature has made for the project and the scenic wonders, that made the trip so delightful and so enjoyable for all.

With deep appreciation, I am,
Very sincerely yours,
EIMON L. WIENIR,
Secretary.

MUNICIPAL LEAGUES

A great many of the states are appreciated that an organization working for the interest of the municipalities in the state is advantageous. Nineteen of the states have such leagues, the one in New York called the New York State Conference of Mayors and other City Officials being one of the most active and best known in the country. Canada has seven municipal leagues. Such conferences furnish splendid opportunity for discussion of common civic problems. The following states have such leagues: Alabama, California, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and Wisconsin. Many of them have their own official organs or monthly publications, e. g. The "American Municipalities" published by the League of Iowa municipalities.

Recently at a conference which the New Jersey officials, representing the New Jersey State League of Municipalities, had with the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the City of New York, Mayor Hylan made the happy suggestion or proposal for the formation of an American Municipal League; this, it is supposed, would mean the inclusion of all those now existing into one large Municipal League. Acting upon the Mayor's proposal the New York State Conference of Mayors adopted a resolution instructing their Secretary to proceed with the formation of such a league, by calling a conference early this fall and inviting the New Jersey League to participate. It is to be hoped that all the Leagues may be given such an invitation by the New York State Conference of Mayors. This new development for municipalities will be watched with interest.

PUBLIC MINDED CITIZEN

About a year ago when Mr. Claude H. Anderson was elected president of the Municipal League, his speech of acceptance emphasized the value to a city or neighborhood of its "public-minded" men. Such, he explained, were men who, when confronted with a new problem, instinctively inquired how it was related to the general welfare, how it could be solved so as to minister to the well-being of the people. The Municipal League naturally attracted to its membership public-minded men and gave them, through service in its activities, opportunity to exercise their devotion to the public welfare.

Such a public-minded man is Judge Austin E. Griffiths, now candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. Judge Griffiths is a former president of the Municipal League and from its birth has been an earnest member of the League and active in the furthering of its work for good government in this community.

His labors have had a wide range. He drafted the original act establishing juvenile courts in this state and the acts against adult delinquency and wife desertion. He drafted a bill requiring those who platted town sites or subdivisions, to devote 10% of the area covered by the plat to public purposes, and secured its passage through the legislature. Though vetoed by the governor, it has been deemed a model act by all who have been interested in the Playground Movement. He was so successful a champion of the public playfield and of guided recreation for city children, that he has been called the Father of the Playground of Washington.

He has seen prisons become schools of crime through contact of misdemeanants with felons, and he has long been an earnest advocate of the segregation of these classes.

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

He has long favored the placing of the land-hungry citizen on farm land through the establishment of settlements on our logged-off lands and on our irrigated lands, and through the improvement and development of such lands. He has long insisted that the farmer should receive the aid of government farm credits, of cooperative marketing and of public markets.

He favored the strengthening of labor unions along constructive lines, the adjustment of difficulties between employer and employee through conciliation, the relief of the laboring man by forms of social insurance possessing proved and tested value, such as workmen's compensation laws.

He was one of the first to urge local control of port facilities and was active in the move that led to the establishment of the Port of Seattle. He early urged the establishment of a citizens' standing committee on the Skagit water power project to the end that public opinion might sustain the city's prosecution of that vitally important work.

These instances simply illustrate the character of Judge Griffiths. Whether in office or out of office he has always been studying, planning, and advancing the public good. He has always been the "public-minded" citizen.—Eimon L. Wienir.

WHAT OTHER CITIES ARE DOING

Compiled by Seattle Public Li-

Library Municipal Reference Div.

The St. Louis Municipal Outdoor Theatre is described in an article by M. Genevieve Tierney in the National Municipal Review for May. The St. Louis Pageant Drama Association, having met with great success in its production of the St. Louis Pageant Masque of 1914, decided to stage "As You Like It" in an outdoor setting to commemorate the Shakespeare tercentennial. This was done on the hillside overlooking the river Des Peres in Forest Park. The Pageant Drama Association, strong in its belief of the value of the theatre to the people, at the close of the performance of "As You Like It" gave the stage and its accessories to the city and requested that a permanent outdoor theatre should be provided. This was done. A concrete auditorium with a seating capacity of 9,270 has been constructed on the hillside, the farthest row of seats being 53 feet above the level of the orchestra pit. The stage is built on the river banks in the midst of dense shrubbery with two huge oaks forming a proscenium arch in the foreground.

"The theatre is at the disposal of the people of St. Louis for civic entertainments of all kinds, but may not be used for the purpose of obtaining revenue. All funds derived through the use of the theatre must be spent in improving the theatre — installing complete lighting devices, concrete ornamentation and comforts for the audience.

Since its completion in 1916, the Munisipal Theatre has been used on more than 1,950 occasions, the character of the performances given consisting of grand opera, choral concerts, dramatic productions, playground festivals, Greek games and now a permanent mid-summer season of light opera and a permanent late summer fashion show of fall styles."

Admission is charged for the opera and fashion show and this money is applied to the upkeep of the theatre making unnecessary any call on the city funds.

The rate of fares on the surface lines of Chicago was established at 7c instead of 8c beginning June 15th by order of the U. S. District Court. An 8c fare has been effective since July 1, 1920.

The Los Angeles Automobile Club recently had an aerial photograph of the city taken to be used in connection with traffic studies. The picture shows about 6½ square miles of the city and necessitated the making of 450 exposures at a total cost of $1625. The map is sufficiently detailed to allow a count of automobiles on the streets and those parked on vacant lots. Although this photograph was taken as a part of a complete traffic survey it doubtless will be of great value to the city in future studies of all kinds.

The National Municipal Review for May draws attention to the rapid triumph of zoning in New York City. A comprehensive zoning ordinance was adopted there five years ago. In these five years 158 applications for changes in the ordinance have been granted and 134 denied. In 1916 these pleas were entirely for the purpose of relaxing the restrictions, then came an increasing number of applications to extend or stiffen the restrictions, those which were granted in 1917 numbering 19% of those that relaxed. In 1918 it was 30%, in 1919 54%, and in 1921 153%. In other words, property owners now prefer to be restricted and have learned to prize the stability of value that real estate gains when protected from unneighborly invasions by industry.

The New York legislature has passed the Tolbert home rule amendment to the constitution which forbids any state legislation "relating to the property, affairs or government of cities which shall be special or local either in its terms or in its effect". The amendment will have to pass the next legislature and be approved at the polls in November 1923 before it becomes law.

Toledo, Ohio, at the August primaries, will be asked to vote a $3,000,000 bond issue for a new city hall, $1,560,000 of it to be used for real estate and the remainder for the building. It is planned that the city hall will be the center of a civic group. The plans are drawn for a safe building and it is hoped that a new memorial hall and municipal auditorium will be added later.

STATEMENTS TO REACH MEMBERS JULY 10

Statements for dues will reach the membership on July 10. Just about the time that you are reading this notice your statement will be lying on your desk awaiting your action. Without a moment's delay, pick up your check book and fill in a check for the proper amount and mail the check. Members who are in arrears and who are asked to pay for more than one year's dues should feel under particular obligation to heed the insistent appeal which the statement carries for; for the League has carried them on its rolls and has counted upon their dues for its maintenance. It is not necessary in public print to call attention to the League's deficit, and if the membership will act promptly the League will be able to render greater service.

BEST THINGS FOR SEATTLE

An Editorial from the Post-Intelligencer HELPFUL suggestions are coming out of the series of comments from citizens, printed in the Post-Intelligencer, on "The Best Thing That Could Happen to Seattle". Walter Fulton said something worth while the other day when he remarked:

"We should bury our differences and revive the old-time fighting spirit that made Seattle

Seattle would be regenerated

It is stated on reliable authority that the New York zoning regulations have prevented vast depreciation in many districts and effected savings in values amounting to millions of dollars in established sections. Certain districts have been rehabilitated as a direct result of the zoning ordinance. Another interesting result has been the production of a type of high building believed to be far better than the former elongated match-box type.

In an analysis of building permits issued in St. Louis in the first fourteen months under the zoning ordinance it was found that residences tended to follow the residence district and did not even attempt to seek locations in industrial or unrestricted areas.

THE NEWS AS A NEWS-PAPER

Frequently expression has been made to the fact that the Seattle Municipal News, in order to give the best service, become an organ for the dissemination of more civic news, and that its circulation should be extended so as to reach hundreds and even thousands of readers irrespective of whether these readers be members of the League or not.

The argument is made that in this wise the reports of the League, its attitude on civic questions, its spirit of civic loyalty and its devotion to Seattle's good can have a greater effectiveness.

With this suggestion no one can have any fault to find. Every friend of the League—and there are thousands—would like to know what it is doing—and what is doing.

But how to accomplish this object? How shall we do it with limited finances at our disposal? Have we a reserve fund to spend in advertising the "News" to Seattle, to employ solicitors, to send sample copies, etc., the thing might be done. But can we get done without such means? Definitely yes! By and with your cooperation. That is the answer.

Every man has friends whom he would like to have read this paper. Get them to subscribe. Tell them that the News is placed in the reading room of your club, in your lodge, the library in your district.

The membership can help decidedly, too, in making the 'copy' of the paper! Of course we can't have "bathing girl beauty contests" and a first class yellow, slanderous, salacious journal. Get enough of that kind of stuff in any American newspaper and you will increase its circulation. John H.

NO APPEAL WITH STATEMENT

No enclosure was mailed to you with your statement for dues—the small slip of paper in the Municipal League envelope (carrying a two cent stamp) is sufficiently strong, we believe, to call to your mind the insistent obligation which you owe to the League. A small sum, indeed, is noted in the right hand corner. Because of the work which you will expect the League to do this year you must not delay in sending your check.

No appeal is enclosed with the statement. The statement of the League to you is a sufficient appeal.

NOTE:—The news articles and editorials appearing in the News this week were written by Eimon L. Wienir, Secretary of the Municipal League. The League in no way assumes responsibility for them, and his expressions of opinion have not the endorsement of the League.

INDICTMENTS BY THE GRAND JURY

The indictments of the county commissioners and Captain Anderson and his brother by the Grand Jury was the most sensational piece of civic news we have had in Seattle in many a long day. We must not, however, come to any hasty conclusions nor must we allow ourselves to prejudice our minds as to the guilt of these men. It is difficult indeed to believe that a man of the standing of Claude C. Ramsey would be guilty of the charges made by the Grand Jury, and not only must every citizen keep in mind that rule of law which presumes every man to be innocent until proven guilty but, in addition, Mr. Ramsey's long residence in this county and his public service must be taken into consideration. A great injustice may have been rendered him as well as the other two commissioners and the Andersons. Until the trial when these men will put in their defense to the charges, the Municipal League as an organization and as individuals must and should withhold the expression of any opinion concerning the indictments.

In the meanwhile, of course, Seattle suffers the disgrace of having its county officials charged with so serious a crime. Seattle has suffered before in having the chief executive of its city and other officials charged with graft, and no doubt there will be such charges as long as popular government prevails.

When this issue of the News reaches you, the campaign to raise $2,700,000 for Seattle's new hotel will be in full swing. A civic enterprise on so vast a scale requires the cooperation, assistance and support of every Seattle citizen. Let not any member

COMMITTEES SOON TO BE ANNOUNCED

Within the next few days President Baldwin will announce the personnel of the committees to serve the present League year. How much care was taken by the chief officer in selecting names and how painstaking were his efforts to serve can be appreciated only by those who have had the same experience in the past.

A great deal is expected of the membership this year. Many "old-timers" who did valiant service in the past will be in the harness again; and with them will be youngsters, too—young college men, enthusiastic, vigorous and feeling a sense of civic responsibility. If your name will not presently appear as one of the committeemen—do not think it an oversight or a slight. You are being saved for another very important committee. These will be special committees of various sorts, too—and you will be asked.

In order, however, to give members a chance to serve on committees of their own choosing, President Baldwin announces that he will consider the wishes of any member of the League who signifies his desire of doing some special phase of work. If you are one of such, write, phone, or see personally your president or secretary who will gladly receive you at your convenience.

P.-I. ATTACKS CITY ENGINEER

The Post-Intelligencer's attack upon Engineer A. H. Dimmock was difficult to understand. It was generally understood that Mr. Dimmock has conducted one of the most efficient and economical departments of the city government during all of the time that he was in the office as Chief Engineer. What is behind the attack can only be guessed at—and the guess is that Mr. Dimmock has incurred the enmity and the wrath of some of his fellow public officials as well as of certain prominent men to whom Mr. Dimmock's plan for the development of the Skagit was particularly displeasing. Pres. Baldwin has indicated that at the next meeting of the Board of Trustees he will present the question of appointing a committee to investigate Mr. Dimmock's record and to inform the electorate of the result of their findings.

SALARY REVISION

A large policy-making boy with an executive having but little power works clumsily and inefficiently. Consider the case of salary revision: Recognizing that the call of the various civic organizations as well as the people as a whole for the reduction of taxation could no longer be ignored, the Council, more than a year ago, charged a citizens' committee with the duty of ascertaining the facts relative to salaries paid by this city in comparison with other cities, and making recommendations relating to the same. This the citizens' committee, headed by Mr. R. C. Erskine and containing in its personnel Miss Brugerhoff, Rev. Mason, Mr. J. H. Carter and Mr. Clise, did. That is, they made an exhaustive study and brought in their report—and in time! But the gentlemen composing the Council declined to consider the report for the year 1922 but stated they would consider it for 1923. However, they omitted one little account. They failed to make a formal request to the Civil Service Commission to bring in his citizens' report to the Council, and as a result the matter lay dead. And now, when the Council is ready to take up the budget, the report the citizens' committee made, at such personal sacrifice and at such pains, has no standing in court.

Why is it that the court house bunch should be strong enough to have such a death clutch on the elected officials of this city? Why is it that so much inefficiency exists? Why is it that so many employees on the pay-rolls of this city who are unfit and improper persons to be employed by the city should be allowed to remain? Is civil service at fault? Yes, partially but not completely. Civil service does not compel the city to employ unnecessary people, and even with the present machinery of civil service, a weeding out and elimination of employees could be had if those who are elected to do the city's business would have enough nerve to do it; and after they are elected by the will of the people, if they only would have the courage to make a cut where a cut is necessary and give an increase where a raise is necessary. And if the council would pay a little more attention to the scientific data and a little less to politics, the shameful situation which exists in the courthouse would be improved a thousand fold.

Committed, as they are, to maintaining salaries at their present level, the Mayor and the Council do not see their way clear to make other economies. The very frank statement of Councilman Fitzgerald before the

MODERN CITY PLANNING

ITS MEANING AND METHODS

By Thomas Adams

INTRODUCTION

SCRAWNY CITY PLANNING

We plan our houses and factories. Is it not then absurd that we let our cities grow without plan?

Cities do not grow—all of them are planned. Most of them are planned in piecemeal fashion by surveyors acting for real estate owners, by railway engineers acting for their shareholders and traffic superintendents, and by individual architects or builders acting for their separate clients. The ultimate result is a haphazard collection of plans of land, means of transportation and buildings. But the city interests are not ignored, because every city has more or less power to control these separate plans in the interest of safety, health and convenience. Such control, however, is within restricted limits and the evils that arise from dealing with related parts and problems of the city, as if they were unrelated and disconnected, must remain in the absence of any planning of the city as a comprehensive whole.

Yet in as correct a sense as some houses or factories are planned—cities are now planned. As the lady planner in Sinclair Lewis' town of Gopher Prairie said—"the planning of many towns is not left to chance. I must have taken genius to make them so scrawny". It is the method of planning that is the fault—not the absence of planning. We want scientific an-

League a year ago will be remembered. He said then that in the nature of things the Council could not know the inner operations of every department and therefore had to take the word of the department chief. It is up to the civic organizations, therefore, to show where a cut in expenditures can be made; and this some of the organizations are now doing, and the Budget Committee of the League, headed by Dr. E. C. Kilbourne, will point out further subjects for economies.

orderly planning—not scrawny planning.

NEED OF PRACTICAL METHODS

While the ideal we wish to attain by city or town planning is that of a more prosperous and wholesome life for the people, the methods adopted must be intensely practical. There is no real inconsistency between what we called the “long” and “short” view of things. The question is to have the right sense of proportion in regard to both. While we should aim high in ultimate achievement, we should not seek to build today beyond what we can complete and render useful with the materials we have. If a man has only sufficient money and materials to build a cottage he would be stupid to start the building of a castle even if he thought he could ultimately find means and material for such a structure. We should, therefore, plan and build according to our needs but make the contribution of the day part of what we want to achieve tomorrow.

Having in view, therefore, the broad objects of the improvement of the city as a social organization wherein we wish to have healthy citizens and as an industrial plant wherein we want to have efficient working conditions, we should plan to get these things and not leave them to chance.

The first duty is to define a programme of what can be practically done and to avoid fads. One party will be interested in playgrounds, another in civic centres and beautification generally, another in what is called “zoning” for the purpose of stabilizing real estate values, another in traffic and another in housing. With all the special leaders for different parts of a plan there will be constant difficulty to maintain a proper proportion and to look at the city as a comprehensive undertaking. The usual difficulty in getting a comprehensive plan is due to the lack of appreciation of the reciprocal relations between different actors in city development. It may be that in a certain city the question of grade crossing elimination is a most pressing problem and yet to attempt to solve it by itself may be to lose half the value of eliminating the crossings.

IS IT EVER TOO LATE TO PLAN?

It is no argument that “it is too late to plan”. A city is a thing of growth. When a city ceases to grow, either in the quality of its structural improvements or in the quantity and quality of its population it will become a dead city. So long as growth continues, the need of planning prevails. It is equally idle to argue that no one can foresee exactly how the city will grow, and, therefore, any plan will be defective for lack of accurate foresight. There is no question that is beyond the power of any man to plan a city exactly as it is going to grow. The best he can do is to bring to bear upon the problem accumulated knowledge and his art and the least he will accomplish will be to prevent the recurrence of mistakes, to give “vision” to the problems of the city and to show how the wasteful results of haphazard development can be avoided. The automobile has introduced new problems in city growth that make the present time specially appropriate for planning or re-planning cities and towns.

* * *

FUNDAMENTAL ELEMENTS AND SERVICES OF CITY

The three main problems in developing and planning a city are:—

(a)

Economic Conditions and Control of Land Development

The method of laying out and regulating the subdivision of land including the assessment of land values for taxation, and delimitation of areas for open space and agricultural use, has an important bearing on all problems of civic growth and the health and prosperity of the citizen. To secure economic development and healthy industrial and housing conditions, it is necessary to plan the land in large areas and regulate its use in advance of building.

(b)

Adequate and Proper Facilities for Industries

These include convenience in development of land and the reservation of the most suitable sites for industrial plants; room for expansion, proximity of plants to homes, and efficient services.

(c)

Wholesome Housing Conditions

The city plan should secure pleasant surroundings for the homes; the restricting of areas for use for residences of different character; the encouragement of the ownership of homes; and the efficiency of those services necessary for health and recreation.

* * *

CITY SERVICES

The services which we require to make industry and homes prosperous and wholesome are (a) good sanitation (drainage and water supply), (b) convenience for transportation by railroad, waterway, etc., including railroad lines and terminals, (c) power and light, (d) communication by road including the major street plan and adequate provision for trolleys and vehicular traffic, (e) zoning or delimiting of areas to regulate the kind of use and the density and heights of buildings on the land, (f) the civic features of monumental structures which express the civic spirit of the community, (g) the parks and recreation grounds and the placing and grouping of schools and churches to serve essential social needs. No plan should be prepared which does not take into consideration these six groups of services, all of which are essential for efficiency and economy.

The efficiency of industry depends, for instance, not only on a good system of railroads and streets or on the proper relation between the industrial and residential area, or on recreation facilities for the employees and their children. It depends on the connection or relation established between these things by a properly balanced plan. The approaches to the railroad terminal have an important bearing on the location of the terminal. No one can determine the proper width of a street without regard to the height and density of buildings permitted to be erected upon their frontage, as well as the amount of traffic they have to carry. Even the character of the paving of a street cannot be settled without some study of whether it is to serve the purpose of industry or of residence.

SUITABLE AREAS FOR PLANNING

The following are suitable geographical units for planning:—

1. The Region. Comprising metropolitan areas or any large industrial or mining area having a distinctive character or a common centre, consisting of several municipal areas, or parts of such areas.

2. The City. The administrative area of an incorporated city.

3. The Town. In general a small city incorporated as a town but in some of the United States equivalent to a township or incorporated rural area forming part of a county.

4. The Township or Rural Municipality. A subdivision of a county, perhaps including small towns and villages.

5. The Village. Small populated place not having reached the status of a town.

What is called city planning and town planning may be said to have to do with one of these kinds of area. It is important that study be made of regional areas as it is only by the study of such areas that there can be a proper appreciation of the distribution of industry and the interdependence of town and country. We hear much of city planning and something of country planning, but what is most wanted is the planning of the town-country which is comprised in the region.

The planning of the small growing towns and villages and the regional areas in which they are situated presents most scope and opportunity for effective work.

In America, the term of “city planning” has sometimes incurred odium because it has been associated with expensive remodelling of areas already built upon. It has also been too often regarded as being restricted to reconstruction schemes whereas it should deal to the greatest extent with the problems of new growth. To carry out surgical operations on areas already covered with buildings is a difficult and costly process. For instance, the widening of a street on which extensive office buildings are already erected or the creating of a new diagonal street through a congested area are operations that are almost prohibitive in cost. To apply the same amount of money to the work of prevention in areas in course of development or not already built upon is the cheapest and more effective method of planning. Moreover, the proper planning of suburban areas indirectly helps to relieve the congestion and lessen the difficulties of replanning the crowded centers which they adjoin.

(To be continued in a future issue of the News).

Mr. Stauffer: How does it come that all you fellows have the same answers to all those problems?

Pupil (baseball player): Team work, sir, team work.

Perry and William Randolph Hearst will tell you that!

But seriously, a letter from a member on some phase of civic life, an article on this or that civic news value—and a sound, wholesome, and even sharp, criticism will have interest and spice to readers of the type the "News" appeals to.

Here, unlike your metropolitan daily controlled by one man, you have your chance. Truly, this is your newspaper. Make it—at least help in making it—to your liking.

Then the influence of the News as a newspaper will be greater—and of a lasting benefit.

Keep one consistent plan from end to end.

The ragged thorn shall bear the fragrant rose.

When you face a difficulty never let it stir you out of countenance.

CITY MANAGER PLAN GROWING

Results Under City Manager In Sacramento

Issued by San Francisco Bureau of Governmental Research.

II.

The remarkable and steady growth of the city-manager form of government is pointed out in a statement issued by the San Francisco Bureau of Governmental Research. The list of cities operating under this form, according to the Bureau, has grown to 265; 24 other cities are now conducting city-manager charter campaigns, and 56 additional cities are active with the preliminary steps leading to city-manager charters. Approximately 5,000,000 people now live under city-manager government.

Nation-wide interest was attracted to the plan by its adoption in 1912 by Dayton, Ohio, immediately following the Dayton flood. The Research Bureau states that the plan is identical with the corporation form of organization—a governing board, elected by the people for the determination of questions of policy; and a trained expert manager or administrator, appointed by the board and holding office at its pleasure, who exercises complete authority over and is held solely responsible for all administrative activities.

The city-manager form of government has practically supplanted the commission form, according to the Research Bureau, which goes on to say that this is due to the inherent defects of the commission form, under which the same officials serve in the dual capacity of legislators, as a board, and executives of the several municipal departments, as individuals. According to the National Municipal League, "The

THAT LITTLE SLIP

That little slip—the same being the statement of the League for annual dues—was received by the membership last Monday. In response thereto, a number of checks have been received by the League. Was yours among this number, or have you put the statement away thinking that you would send that check tomorrow? The League needs that check of yours—do not delay sending it. DO it NOW!

AGAIN THE MATTER OF LEGALS

There are approximately thirty-five lawyers who have membership in the League. A hundred legals a year would keep the League out of debt, so far as the publication of the News is concerned. Gentlemen of the Bar, your legal to the "News", please.

Except commercial buildings which were built partly in commercial and partly in industrial districts, the development of St. Louis is said to be fitting itself very closely to the zoning plan.

To avoid the common condition that industrial plants encounter of having to do business on a "residential basis," denied large-scale facilities in their vicinity on account of protests by residence owners, Alameda, Cal., among other cities, has established industrial zones in which no new permits to build residences will be granted. A leading municipal engineer is quoted as saying that the prohibition of residences in industrial zones is one of the most important protections to put in a zoning ordinance. This method is being relied on to develop Hoboken, N. J. as a great industrial terminal.

In New Jersey it has been found that the unzoned suburban town is at a distinct disadvantage as compared with the community protected by a zoning ordinance. People are asking themselves why they should invest money in a home or lend money on a mortgage in an unprotected, unzoned locality. The zoned towns are actually absorbing the better grade of development. The result has been that builders, architects, and real-estate owners in unzoned towns are persistently urging their local councils to adopt zoning, so that they have as good a selling proposition to offer prospective clients as their competitors in the zoned towns.

Where To Get Information

Information concerning zoning progress in states and cities of the United States will be made available by the Division of Building and Housing of the Department of Commerce at Washington, D. C. A Selected Bibliography of Zoning is issued by the Division, and may be secured on application.

MODERN CITY PLANNING

Order of Studies and Planning

By Thomas Adams

Some writers suggest that transportation and zoning are the two factors that need to be considered first and that a plan of the park system and of the civic centre can be left to be dealt with at a later stage. In making this statement, they are suffering from the natural disappointment that has followed from the excessive emphasis that has been placed in the past on the park system and the civic centre. They are proposing, therefore, to go to the other extreme with a view to avoiding too many complications and are seeking to cut up the plan into water-tight compartments as if they could be separated. They cannot be separated if a good result is desired. At the same time, if a city must limit its operations to one or two things at a time, undoubtedly transportation and zoning are the two most necessary things to consider. In the judgment of the writer, however, the distribution of work should not be made between the different parts of a city plan but in the following order, namely:—

1. Reconnaissance survey of the city and surrounding region;
2. Tentative skeleton plan of the region based on the survey;
3. City survey;
4. Complete working plan of the city adapted to the law of the state or province.

If a beginning must be made on a small scale, it should be made by making a survey of the existing conditions. This survey should not be too elaborate. A mistake can be made by aiming to make too complete an analysis of a city just as well as by omitting essential investigation. The most necessary things should be done for the purpose of getting a proper plan and the successful planner is the one who knows what to eliminate as well as what to include.

Then there are problems like railroad location and relocation regarding which it is idle to put forward a counsel of perfection. The most that can be done in this connection is to persuade the railroad engineers to fit their schemes in with the plan of the city. It is useless to propound a plan over their heads and to attempt to force the railroad companies to spend money for the benefit of the city if the expenditure produces no benefit to themselves.

Relative Importance of City Planning and "Zoning"

The most intricate problems in city planning are those which are least popular and least spectacular. The "zoning" plans which are now being prepared for many cities require less specialized knowledge than the other matters which need to be dealt with and may involve the suppression rather than the exercise of imagination. To a large extent they depend for their successful application on intimate local knowledge. The zoning expert may have acquired the knowledge to present his data in an intelligent form. He may know the argument to use to "put it over" with the citizens and he may have collected information in other cities which enables him to give valuable advice regarding the many cases that require special treatment. On the whole, however, a plan that is limited to "zoning" can be prepared by an intelligent city engineer with comparatively little expert assistance. But no plan should be limited to "zoning" and no "zoning" should be done with the main object of stabilizing real estate values. A plan should increase real values and not stabilize unreal values based on speculation.

NOTES BY THE SECRETARY

At the Board meeting last Monday, the matter of the cost of publishing the News was brought up for discussion, and finally it was referred to the Editorial Committee.

* * *

A special committee was appointed by President Baldwin to investigate the various charges made against City Engineer Dimock by the Post-Intelligencer. The committee is headed by Dan Earle. It is expected that it will have its report ready by September.

* * *

To the Health and Sanitation Committee headed by Henry Landes, Chairman, was referred the matter of the garbage collection costs. It has been stated on good authority that the cost of collecting garbage in Seattle is considerably higher than it should be—in fact, by about $150,000 too much. Mr. Landes' splendid committee will go into the matter thoroughly and will hand in a good report.

THE HIGH COST OF GOVERNMENT

by William H. Nanry Director, San Francisco Bureau of Governmental Research

The great increase in the cost of government in recent years is due to: (1) the low purchasing power of the dollar; (2) the cost of debt incurred in previous years, deferred during the last decade; (5) the inequitable distribution of the tax burden; and (6) the losses and waste due to irresponsible organization, archaic methods and complicated procedure. The first two are not subject to our control; the third and fourth can, at best, be only temporarily postponed; only the last two are within our power to correct.

It must in all fairness be recognized that changing conditions and community sentiment during the last twenty or thirty years have required a tremendous expansion in governmental activities. This condition has been general and is not peculiar to any one city or section. Census Bureau compilations show that governmental cost payments for the 146 largest cities of the United States have risen from $514,200,000 in 1903 to $1,113,600,000 in 1919; from $24.34 per capita to $34.60.

A large part of the increase is in reality only a "book cost." Expenditures for education, playgrounds, sanitation, widows' pensions, child hygiene, fire prevention and similar functions which have been initiated by municipalities, produce returns in better citizens, lives and property saved, crime prevented, misery abated, etc., more than commensurate with the amounts expended. The average citizen has little complaint of expenditures for purposes such as these. His complaint is of the cost of politics, waste, and ineffectiveness in government where these exist.

No article such as this can adequately analyze a number of cities. It can only point out how they vary from each other, and from averages, in their expenditures for the many functions incidental to municipal government. Each city is peculiarly itself, with many of its problems strictly local. One point should be stressed however and that is that the popular rating of a city's economy or extravagance according to its tax rate is worse than misleading. A city tax rate depends on the ratio of assessed value to full value, the amount of revenue from sources other than taxation, whether state, county and school taxes are raised by the city, and whether all current expenses included in the tax rate or are partially covered by the issuance of bonds.

The only measure of the efficiency of governmental expenditures is the return in service to citizens for taxes paid; this can be accurately evaluated only by scientific survey. Comparative expenditures of various cities, reduced to per capita costs, are valuable principally because the questions they raise as to the soundness of the municipal program—whether too much or too little is being spent for schools, health, fire, police, highways, etc., and whether the allotments to each are disproportionate.

The only basis for such fiscal comparison is furnished by the Census Bureau's "Financial Statistics of Cities"; these have been developed and improved over a long period of years and are strictly authentic. One of the charts, based on these Census Bureau compilations, shows the "Per Capita Cost of Government" for six Western cities for 1920 and for 1909, and the increase from 1909 to 1920. "Per capita cost of government" includes all costs—expenditures based on the annual budget which are funded by taxation and miscellaneous revenues, and in addition improvements financed by special assessments, utility enterprises financed out of revenues, etc.

The six cities shown and their "per capita cost of government" are Los Angeles, $69.20; San Francisco, $53.04; Seattle, $107.72; Oakland, $38.74; Salt Lake City, $56.23; and Spokane, $53.20. Denver and Portland are not shown as data for these are not included in the Census Bureau's 1920 advance sheets. The average amount of increase for 1920 over 1909 is 43 per cent. Only one city shows a decrease—Spokane, from a per capita cost of $38.74 in 1909 to $35.20 in 1920. Seattle is still far the highest, with a per capita cost of government of $107.72. In 1909 its per capita cost was about 72 per cent greater than that of Los Angeles, the second highest city. In 1920 this excess has dropped to 55 per cent.

The principal disparity in the per capita costs of the various cities is occasioned by the varying amounts expended by each for "outlays" or capital expenditures. This item is the only one of the four that shows a decreased per capita cost for 1920 as compared with 1909, San Francisco furnishing the only exception. The decrease in this item is probably due to the fact that increased costs for routine activities had to be met and new services had to be provided for; the funds required for these were provided, partly by increased taxation and partly by decreased capital expenditures. This has involved the deferring of municipal improvements, and structures; to the extent that construction has been postponed beyond actual needs, it has tended toward public inconvenience and higher operating costs, and will require material additions to the cost of government in the near future.

Seattle, with the highest total per capita cost, is also highest in each of the four main divisions. The disparity in "expenses of general departments" is not as great as for "outlays" and "interest payments" but the disparity in expenditures for public service enterprises is very marked. These jumped from $1.84 per capita in 1909 to $25.01 in 1920. Seattle in 1920 spent almost 50 per cent per capita more for public service enterprises than the other five cities combined.

Of greatest interest to taxpayers from the standpoint of reducing costs, are the per capita "expenses of general departments". Those include, in the approximate order of size of expenditures: schools and libraries; fire, police and other protective agencies; highways, including lighting; general government (executive, legislative, judicial, fiscal, etc.); health and sanitation; charities, hospitals and correction; recreation; and general and miscellaneous (widows' and employees' pensions, etc.). The greatest increase is shown for schools. Los Angeles' expenditures for this purpose have more than doubled; San Francisco shows the smallest increase, approximately 25 per cent. The major increases, after schools, have been registered by the so-called social expenditures, such as health, charities, hospitals, correction, recreation, etc.

The best measure of cost to the property owner is the "per capita tax levy". By the use of this factor, variations in the assessment ratio are equalized and costs that are borne by sources other than taxation—such as special assessment or bond fund improvements, and utility operations which are supported by users and rate payers—are eliminated.

The 1920 "per capita tax levies" for seven Western cities are tabulated below to show comparison with and increase over similar figures for 1915 (1909 figures not available). "Per capita tax levies" for State purposes are omitted to facilitate comparison, inasmuch as the three California cities levy no taxes for State purposes. These per capita levies for State purposes by cities outside of California are as follows: Seattle, $10.01; Denver, $5.02; Salt Lake, $8.63; and Spokane, $12.59.

PER CAPITA TAX LEVIES

		Increase
	1920	1915 %
Seattle	$46.60	$29.28 59
Los Angeles	45.48	28.47 60
Salt Lake	45.24	23.71 91
Spokane	39.36	23.27 69
San Francisco	36.06	27.89 29
Oakland	35.59	21.11 69
Denver	31.87	20.23 57

The statistics in the foregoing are not offered in any critical sense. If they will serve to interest some of the business, technical or professional men in the several communities, their full purpose will have been served. The time has long since passed, when community affairs could be considered, by reason of public apathy, as the sole business of the politician. Increased tax bills have forced public interest in public affairs; there is a general feeling that something is wrong, but a lack of knowledge as to just where the defects lie and how they can be corrected.

If business men will take the time to familiarize themselves with the government under which they live—assuming that they live in an average community—they will readily recognize that the root of the whole trouble lies in the uncoordinated, clumsy organization, in which no one is wholly responsible, which actually develops the procedure known as "passing the buck", but which blunders along despite its cost and lack of reasonably-to-be-expected effectiveness only because it is supported by the bottomless well tapped by the power to tax.

city-manager government is growing much more rapidly than the other forms. Monthly it is necessary for us to add cities to this list, whereas it is only occasionally that from our clipping service we are able to add to the commission list."

Akron, Ohio, 208,000 population, is at present the largest city operating under the city-manager form. Cleveland, 797,000 population, the fifth largest city in the United States, voted in favor of the plan last November, to become effective in 1924. Twenty California cities operate under this plan, the largest of which are San Diego, Long Beach and Sacramento.

Sacramento's first six months operation under City Manager Clyde Seavey, formerly Chairman of the State Board of Control, has shown phenomenal results. The new government inherited a deficit, but at the end of six months this had been wiped out and a surplus of $29,000 had been established. The budget for this fiscal year is $123,300 less than that of last year, and the tax rate has been decreased eight cents in spite of the fact that assessments were decreased 15 per cent or $3,330,000, fire and police salaries were increased and increased improvements amounting to $150,000 were provided. A plan that makes such accomplishments possible surely meets with the public desire for "more business in government."

UNIVERSITY HISTORY

The University of Washington was established by an act of the National Congress, July 17, 1854, and was located in Seattle by the Legislature of Washington Territory in 1855. After a time the act was repealed but in 1860, the university was once more placed ownships were devoted to its establishment.

In 1861 the site was selected and part of the land sold in order to start building. May 20, 1861, the cornerstone was laid at Fourth and University streets, on the very ground now occupied by the Metropolitan theatre. At that time a dense forest of fir timber stood in what is now Seattle's business section.

Within a year instruction began. A. S. Mercer was engaged as "professor and teacher." Twice the school closed for lack of funds.

Today the university occupies 350 acres of land on the peninsula between Lanes Union and Washington, where it was moved in 1893.

MODERN CITY PLANNING

The principle of restricting a district to residential purposes is already recognized by private owners of land who frequently dispose of lots for the erection of houses under certain restrictions. These may fix the minimum cost of each dwelling or define the character of dwellings. The application of this principle has been more or less confined to houses of well-to-do people and has been mainly used to prevent small working-class dwellings or stores being erected in proximity to larger houses. In a sense, it has been based on class distinction and on the assumption that a comparatively cheap house erected adjoining a dearer one would have the effect of depreciating the value of the latter. What matters most, however, is not the amount of money spent in building a house but that the dwelling be tastefully designed, and have spacious and agreeable surroundings.

The control of the surroundings of homes by city planning regulations is more important than the fixing of a minimum cost. As the principle of restricting a residential district has been adopted in private covenants by owners of land, it is only extending an existing practice to impose restrictions on residential property by law. But under the law, a different method must be pursued. It would not be proper even if desirable to restrict the value of houses erected in a particular district by statute. Reliance must be placed, for the purpose of getting good conditions, on provisions governing the sizes of lots; the prevention of structures of unsightly character; the securing of proper sanitary conditions and the limita-

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSIONER CRITICISES EDITORIAL

J. Y. C. Kellogg, Civil Service Commissioner, took exception to an editorial on Salary Revision, written by Secretary Eimon L. Wienir, in the issue of the News of July 15. Mr. Kellogg's letter together with a reply from Mr. Wienir follows:

"July 25, 1922

"The Seattle Municipal News

"Leary Bldg.

"Seattle, Wash.

"Gentlemen:-

"I have just read with interest your editorial entitled 'Salary Revision', in your issue of July 15. This editorial is inaccurate in several particulars and as the subject is an important one, I feel it my duty to set you right.

"The city council did not charge 'a citizen's committee with the duty of ascertaining the facts relative to salaries paid by this city'. What the council did do was to ask the civil service commission to do this work. The civil service commission on its own initiative created the citizen's committee for the purpose of arousing public interest and thus aiding in the adoption of any report that might finally be decided upon.

"The council made its request to the civil service commission not on account of any public clamor but as a direct result of the suggestion of members of the civil service commission to members of the finance committee of the city council.

"Your statement that the report of the citizen's committee at this time 'has no standing in court' is also incorrect. The report is at present in the hands of the city clerk, who is also the clerk of the city council. The report is just as much a part of the files and records of the city council as any other of the documents which it constantly has before it. The report is up-to-date to the fall of 1921. The only thing the council has failed to do is to ask the civil service commission to bring it up-to-date to the summer of 1922. However, the change in conditions between the fall of 1921, and the present, are apparently minor and the report should therefore be worthy of careful consideration at this time.

"The latter part of your editorial contains quite a number of questions followed by the suggestion that the council should pay a little more attention to scientific data. This may be a new idea to the Seattle Municipal News, but it is an old one to the civil service commission. Perhaps some persons outside of the city service are partially responsible. At any rate, some three months ago, the civil service commission decided to enter upon an educational campaign and sent out letters to dozens of the various civic organizations throughout the city offering to supply speakers to explain the workings of the civil service and its relation to the different departments of the city government, which explanation, of course, would include the question of salaries, which is the subject of your editorial. Less than half a dozen organizations took advantage of the offer which indicates very clearly that there must be a lot of people who have not time enough to find out the real facts about their own affairs.

"I note your statement that civil service is 'partially, but not completely' at fault for so many employees being on the payrolls who are unfit and improper persons to be employed by the city. While I have not consulted my fellow commissioners in writing

LEWIS SUGGESTS GRADE SEPARATION SCHEME

L. D. Lewis, former president of the Municipal League and one of the most active of its members in recent years, has written to President Baldwin suggesting a grade separation scheme for Seattle. His letter which follows has been referred by the Board of Trustess to the City Development and Planning Committee, of which J. D. Blackwell is chairman. Before very long a report on this matter will be received by the League.

Mr. Lewis' letter follows.

July 20, 1922

Mr. Julius L. Baldwin
Pres. Municipal League of Seattle
Central Bldg.

Seattle, Wash.

Dear Baldwin:-

As you probably know, I have given a lot of study for a good many years to the growth and planning of cities. But in addition to that, I have emphasized the effect of congestion in hampering their growth. For a long time I have been working on a re-routing of street car traffic through our central business district, and two or three groups of grade separations which would, in my opinion, prepare traffic facilities for a long time to come, and admit of a very large growth without any serious congestion. To my mind the two problems are inter-related, and I have wanted to finance the construction of a model of down-town Seattle, before I attempted much in the cultivation of public sentiment with a view to accomplishing some of the necessary changes. I believe my plan would finance the cost of construction and maintenance of the facilities to the great satisfaction of everybody concerned. Some time in the next year, I would like to get my material in shape, and talk to the League about these things.

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

I am writing to you now because I believe that the construction of the new hotel, with the accompanying desirability of getting traffic up and down the hill on University or Seneca street, and the accompanying problem of increasing available parking space near the hotel, seems to make the time opportune for a small part of the contemplated grade-separation construction. It can easily be demonstrated that a few grade-separations will quadruple the traffic capacity of the streets so separated, and proper regard for the earth formation, which is the foundation of Seattle, makes it practically certain that grade-separation, rather than subways, are our only practical solution. A little study of the surface damages awarded because of the subways in New York, together with a knowledge of the history of our Great Northern Tunnel, should convince any person of intelligence, that a subway is an idle dream for Seattle. Therefore the grade-separation must come, and some of them should come soon. Ultimately, there should be provision for University Street to pass above First Avenue, and somewhere west of that street to have two diagonal outlets to the waterfront. Ultimately, Second Avenue will, I think, be taken over entirely for motor traffic—the street cars being looped on First and Third, and Second will then be depressed from Union to Stewart, so that it will pass under Pike and Pine. But for the present, University Street need only be attended to so far as that portion from Second to Fifth Avenue is concerned.

I believe study will demonstrate the advisability of passing it over First and Second, and under Third and Fourth with ramps, of course, to admit of access from the streets named, and that at Fifth Avenue it should reach about the present grade, and therefrom a raised separation should pass north on Fifth, across Pike and Pine to Olive, or preferably Stewart, with provision for motor traffic and pedestrians. In conjunction with this improvement, there should be a moving sidewalk from Second to the hotel, and provision for a lot of additional parking space west of Sixth Avenue, as well as whatever space could be provided in conjunction with the completion of the grade-separation.

I am only suggesting these things, so that a City Planning Committee, if you still have one, can give it the necessary study and provision can be made for it while the excavation and foundation of the hotel are being planned.

I am sending a copy of this to Douglas, because, while I have never talked over the matter with him, I felt sure that he will be favorable to the facilities suggested, and see the great increase in accessibility which they will provide for the hotel, and I know he had some such idea long ago, when he was agitating for either University of Seneca Street.

I have been so busy with other things for a long time,* that I have not been able to give attention to it, and I hope any plan that is put through for the development of Olive Way, will provide a grade-separation at Broadway, as the failure to have opportunity for that improvement in the not-distant future will reduce the traffic capacity and greatly diminish the real and ultimate usefulness of that street.

With apologies for troubling you and the hope that the work is going to your liking, I am with best wishes,

Sincerely yours,
L. D. LEWIS

SECRETARY'S NOTES

Have you paid your dues yet? This year it is particularly important that members pay their dues promptly. The League not only needs the money with which to meet obligations, but it must have some definite knowledge in advance of what its revenues are going to be, and so the writer, who has the responsibility of collecting the dues, makes now an urgent appeal to each and every member who has not mailed his check thus far. Please do it now!

* * *

A "Who's Who" column is to appear in the News each week for a number of issues to follow. A general invitation is now given to members to mail the secretary a write-up of himself so that the same can be published in the News in some issue in the near future, particularly giving all the data relative to your birth-place and date, education, business experience, length of residence in the city and state, etc.

* * *

Already thoughts are turning to autumn activities. More than two-thirds of the summer has been spent, and now but one short month remains before the League will resume its work. This year--The year of 1922-23--will be a banner year for the League. Certainly the officers are working hard with that end in view, and if the membership will give them the co-operation due their efforts "all will be well".

MR. KELLOGG'S LETTER

this communication; I feel safe in saying that the entire board would be very pleased indeed to have you point out to us where we are at fault in this matter in any degree whatsoever.

"I make the claim that the city service department of this city has been for some time past and is now conducted in an economical and efficient manner; that it is supplying to the various departments of the city high class competent help; that its rules are being so interpreted that any incompetent help can be immediately dispensed with; that unnecessary help can be laid off instantly without consultation with the commission; that through checking the payrolls the commission is responsible for the saving of thousands of dollars to the city; that through an efficiency plan now being worked out, initiated solely by the commission, the matter of advancing meritorious employees and denying advances to those who do not merit it will before long become a reality; the city council continues its indicated policy of cooperation.

"I will thank you if you will give this letter space in your valuable columns.

"Very truly,
"J. Y. C. Kellogg,
Civil Service Comm.

THE SECRETARY'S NOTE

The writer admits certain inaccuracies in the editorial, but insists, however, that the same were of minor importance. For example, Mr. Kellogg, in the second paragraph of his letter takes exception to my statement that the city council charged the citizen's committee with the responsibility of securing data on salary revision. He points out that the civil service commission on its own initiative created the citizen's committee. Admitting the correctness of Mr. Kellogg's statement, it will be remembered, however, that the citizen's committee accepted the task only after it had appeared before the Finance Committee of the city council and asked it point blank whether, after the report was brought in, the Finance Committee would give it the consideration it deserved. Upon such a insurance being given, the citizen's committee went to work on its investigation and report. When this report was brought in by the committee, neither the Council nor the Finance Committee of the council treated the report with any consideration at all. So, irrespective of the correctness of Mr. Kellogg's assertion that it was the commission and not the council that actually appointed the citizen's committee, nevertheless, the Finance Committee of the council in fact, if not in theory, was as much responsible for the citizen's committee functioning as the civil service commission.

Mr. Kellogg denies that the citizen's committee was created as the result of any public clamor but states its appointment was due directly to the suggestion of members of the commission. Be this as it may, it cannot be denied that there was considerable agitation in the city at about that time for reduction of taxes; the Tax Reduction Council was formed in the early part of 1921 as the direct result of agitation.

The writer is very pleased to learn from Mr. Kellogg's letter that he, the writer, was incorrect in saying that the report of the citizen's committee "has no standing in court", and is particularly impressed with Mr. Kellogg saying that the changes in conditions between the fall of 1921 and 1922 are apparently minor "and the report should therefore be worthy of careful consideration at this time". That is exactly what the League's Budget Committee hopes to accomplish. It will endeavor to focus public attention upon this citizen's committee report and compel the council to pay attention to it.

Mr. Kellogg's complaint that less than one-half dozen organizations took advantage of the commission's offer to explain the workings of civil service in the city, certainly does not apply to the Municipal League. The League had the pleasure of listening to Mr. Kellogg last year and his address was exceedingly illuminating. In addition, the League's Civil Service Committee has brought in several reports throughout the year. It cannot be said that the League is indifferent or ignorant on civil service matters.

Mr. Kellogg took exception to the writer's assertion that civil service was "partially but not completely" to blame for many incompetent employees remaining on the city's payrolls. Mr. Kellogg, in his letter, states that the commission would be pleased to learn wherein it is at fault in this matter in any degree whatsoever. He points out that even under the present law, unnecessary or inefficient help can be laid off instantly by the heads of the departments, and that under the efficiency rating any employee receiving a grade under 70% can be discharged by the head of the department. "The only penalty which the head of the department must pay to get rid of such an employee," personally suggested Mr. Kellogg to the writer, "was to take time enough to come up to the hearing before the civil service commission". It must be borne in mind that the writer did not criticise or attach any blame for the retention of incompetent employees upon the civil service commission, but rather upon the "system". True enough, under civil service rules an employee who is no longer necessary or who is incompetent can be laid off, but under the "system", it isn't being done! It can be argued that civil service is not to blame because the head of a department refuses, for reasons best known to himself, to do that which by law he can do and which in equity he ought to do. Here, perhaps, lies the entire weakness of the civil service. At the present time, the civil service is a sieve through which a mass of people must pass in order to successfully attach themselves to the city's payrolls. It also is constituted as a court to which an employee discharged by the head of the department can appeal to resist the discharge. What is needed—and this applies not only to Seattle but to many cities throughout the country—is to increase the functions and powers of civil service so that in addition to being an agency for the election of proper employees it shall also be an agency for the elimination of improper employees. The commission should also have the power to fix the compensation of employers. Manifestly, a legislative body such as the city council, elected at large, having no direct or expert knowledge on matters of this kind, and, being subject to political influences, cannot fix salaries scientifically as can a civil service commission. That, the writer thinks, is the fault with civil service, and that idea is responsible for his saying that civil service is partially to blame for the condition of affairs existing today.

It must not be understood, however, that the writer criticised or is in any wise criticising now the civil service commission. Mr. Kellogg especially has been a keen student and an efficiency executive. He, perhaps more than anyone else, is responsible for the high standing that civil service enjoys in the city, and for many of the improvements, and much of the legislation that has repeatedly been passed to make civil service better.

MODERN CITY PLANNING

tion of height and use.

Cities need to have control of the subdivision and building development of land outside of their own boundaries or what is the same thing, the inclusion within their boundaries of areas of agricultural land.

Many cities find it difficult to

The following letter from S. G. Davis of Hyaburg, Alaska, sounds the keynote of one of the greatest tragedies of the Pacific, the ruination of the salmon industry:

"I am an Indian fisherman. I am 55 years old.

"The best fish that swims in the waters of Alaska is the red salmon. Ever since the Indian came to Alaska, it has been his food. He has dried them and smoked them for winter use. But the salmon is a thing of the past in the rivers where he once caught them for his children to eat.

"The salmon are now caught in large traps before they go up the river to spawn. So the Indian must go hungry because the traps get the fish first. These traps are built so the salmon swim into a large pocket. There are times when the canneries cannot touch the fish for days, and the pockets get so full the fish kill each other for want of space. Salmon must be cleaned at once to be of any use; it cannot lie around. Trapping fish is not cheap; it only wastes them, and keeps them from the fishermen.

"I saw an article that President Harding has written asking the people to be kind to animals. I wonder what President Harding would say if he saw all these fish penned up in these traps. I do believe President Harding has too much heart to see even fish suffer.

"Let me say a word about cannery managers in Alaska. In the eyes of the Indian fisherman these managers are mighty big men. The manager goes around in a fast power boat, and goes to the best hotel. If the truth is known, he has learned about fishing from the Indian fisherman.

"I often wish some kind gentleman would come up to Alaska and start a Human Association, and have things so the Indian and salmon would be treated right.

"If the Alaska salmon is going to be cleaned out by fish traps, what are the Indian and his children going to live on?

"The Alaska Indian must ask Congress, not for money, but to take the fish traps away from Alaska, so the Indians can get something to eat. It has gone so far that he has to battle for food with the fish trap owners.

"Let me ask you with lifted hand: Are you going to see children tugging at the empty breasts of starving mothers? Are you going to see men taking their lives that their families may live? The Stars and Stripes never teaches, let capital live, and let men and mothers and children die because they are poor.

"Are the people of the United States going to see the fish trap owners starve out the Alaska Indian and his children just because fish traps are easy methods of making money?

"We are not asking for something belonging to fish trap owners.

"We are asking for something belonging to God, who made it for all mankind."

incorporate outside areas because they have waited too long and allowed undesirable and insanitary forms of building development to take place over their borders. If they had taken in the land when it was used for agriculture they could have imposed restrictions which would have prevented wasteful and scattered development. Not having done so, they wait until the district is built up with scattered houses, in some cases without sewers or water or other local improvements, and they find that to take such districts it means the expenditure of large sums of money in bringing them up to the standards of the city.

On the whole, it is better to either take in land before it is subdivided or else make it a condition on the occasion of incorporation that the outside land shall be provided with proper sanitary services before it is added to the city. A third plan is to make it a condition of incorporation that no charge shall fall upon the city at large in respect of the cost of bringing up the standards of the outside area to the standards of the city.

Under the law of several states, cities and towns have been given power to control, in a measure, the subdivision of the areas adjacent to their boundaries.

BLACKWELL, NEW CITY ENGINEER

By Eimon L. Wienir

The appointment of Mr. J. D. Blackwell as City Engineer will meet with general approval by members of the League. Mr. Blackwell is a member of long standing and has given exceptional service to the organization. He has at various times served as chairman of the Public Utilities Committee, Candidates Investigating Committee, City Development Committee, and had, prior to his appointment, accepted the chairmanship of the City Development and City Planning Committee. Mr. Blackwell is a true friend of the League and will cooperate, I am sure, to the best of his ability with the League's committees.

Many wondered what the effect of Mr. Blackwell's appointment would mean to the Skagit. It will be remembered that Mayor Brown, in his address at the annual dinner of the Municipal League, unequivocally stated that he was for the project, and for its speedy development. And while it is known that Mr. Blackwell was a severe critic of the project and was for delaying work until a business survey was made, it cannot be doubted but what, now that he is charged with the responsibility, he will carry through the desires and policies of his chief. Moreover, the project is at a point of development now where it would be fatal to halt the work. Whatever Mr. Blackwell's personal criticism may have been, it must give way to the present necessity for completion of the project.

LIVE TO FIGHT

By Eimon L. Wienir

As autumn approaches, and the League meetings begin, it is proper to express one's innermost thoughts concerning the League. Every individual, as well as every organization, should, upon regular and stated intervals, take an inventory of himself or itself. The League has been in existence for more than twelve years. Is it existing now by reason of the inertia of action, or is it meriting to right to exist? Has it contributed to the general civic welfare of the community to the extent entitling it to function, or has it become stale and fossilized? Has it ceased to render a service to its members and to the citizens as a whole?

Occasionally the writer has heard the expression: "Well, if the League has done nothing else this year, it has owned its right to exist". That was so in the case of its Candidates Investigating Committee reports; its investigations of the Skagit; its action on the transportation of the city.

Frankly, the writer believes that the League, during every year of its existence, has done something which in itself alone was worth while. "But there is so much more that it could have done!", say others. Yes, truly. But if every individual should ask himself that same question, would not the answer be the same? Could he not have done more that year—or this?

And as we look ahead for the coming year, I am convinced that the League will earn for itself the right to live even if it contributes but one major thing of importance. I shall feel disappointed, however, if we do not live up to every expectation and to every hope that is held out. If every member of the League will feel—as he should feel—that he is an integral part of the organization, that he must participate in the League's affairs, share the League's burdens, use the strength and vitality he has to up-build and strengthen the League's influence—then, unquestionably, the League will realize its ambition to render service.

The thing we must fight against this year is indifference. Old members who have won for themselves distinguished places in civic life, who contribute nothing but their money to the League, must be made to feel that this is not enough. They must be made to understand that, though they have in the past worked splendidly on League committees, that that does not excuse them from acting on committees now.

Every member of the League must be made to realize that it is his duty to share, with the officers, the responsibility for the financial stability of the organization. No leadership can be successful unless the morale of the organization that is led is high enough and great enough to support the program of its leaders.

Let us do as Victor S. Yarros said recently in The Survey: "Civic bodies must democratize themselves, take up civic issues, face them boldly—even if members may be lost—and make sure that they live in the present, not in the past."

WHO'S WHO IN THE LEAGUE

PRESIDENT BALDWIN

Julius Lyman Baldwin came to Seattle fifteen years ago to begin the practice of law. He received his training in the high schools of Rochester, New York, following this with a college course at Princeton University. He studied law at the George Washington University Law School, Washington, D. C. He was secretary to Mr. Justice Harlan of the United States Supreme Court. After coming to Seattle he was for several years the attorney for the Seattle Merchants' Association and was for a time Secretary and treasurer of that institution. For some time past he has been practicing law at 405 Leary Building, Seattle.

Mr. Baldwin is an active member of the Pilgrim Congregational Church and of the Y. M. C. A. He is also a member of the Arctic Club, the Princeton Club of Seattle and the Bar Association. He was one of the original group out of which grew the Municipal League and has been a member of the organization since its founding.

MUNICIPAL RESEARCH AGENCIES

Municipal research is founded on the incontrovertible assumption that facts and information furnish a better basis for conclusions and actions, than opinions, misinformation and lack of information. At no time since its inception sixteen years ago, has the movement taken on the aspects of a fad—rather its development in each of the various communities has been due to the civic interest of a few earnest citizens, and the principal difficulty has been to rouse the general interest of a large number of citizens in their municipal affairs.

The Municipal League assumes no responsibility for the sentiments expressed in the Municipal News unless it is expressly stated that such sentiments have the endorsement of the League.

With the greater development of the feeling in the last few years the governmental organizations are not functioning as well as they might and that tax bills are probably higher than they should be, municipal research has apparently assumed much larger proportions in the minds of business men. The need is no greater than it has been. It has simply been rendered more acutely perceptible to those people who pay the bulk of all tax bills.

Scientific municipal research had its inception in New York City in 1906, when a group of interested citizens, unable to learn the facts as to the amount of New York City's indebtedness, were forced to the conclusion that an independent citizens' agency was necessary to develop facts relative to municipal business, as a basis for sound administrative action. A private organization operating for profit, but lacking similar essential facts relative to its own affairs, simply could not survive.

The operations of the New York Bureau of Municipal Research produced such worthwhile results that citizens in other communities were attracted and the movement spread. Today there are 31 municipal research agencies, and 14 others ized, not as citizen agencies, but as branches of the various governments. The most noted of these, the office of the Com- York City, designed to function missioner of Accounts, in New as "The eye of the mayor" is stated to have fluctuated between high usefulness and routine, depending upon the character of the administration. The field and function of the Los Angeles Bureau of Efficiency was restricted, following a highly controversial disagreement in regard to a Board of Public Works motor-sprinkling contract.

The value of a research organization is not lost even where administrative hostility or lack of interest prevent immediate realization of ordinarily to-be-expected results of scientific municipal research. Local research organizations have often pointed out the fundamental defects that have made local governments irresponsible, with the ultimate result that public interest has been aroused and proper charter changes have been effected. The City-Manager form of government in Dayton was largely the result of the work of the Dayton Bureau of Municipal Research; the home-rule powers finally extended to Philadelphia by the State legislature in 1920 were principally the results of the efforts of the Philadelphia Bureau of Municipal Research; and other similar instances might be cited.

Considering the size of the municipal organization in a large city, the many functions and restrictions peculiar to government, its expenditure program, its many departments, and its uninterrupted operation, it will be realized that the full development of facts thereon cannot be expected of citizen-committees by reason of the time required and the other time-consuming interests of members of such committee. It follows, therefore, that if citizen scrutiny of public business is to extend beyond consideration of matters of policy, and is to include administrative affairs, a 365-day-in-the-year organization, specifically organized for the work, cannot be dispensed with.

PROCTOR ADVOCATES
LARGE PUBLIC MARKET

Criticisms against the Health Department granting to the Public Market and Department Store Company concessions denied the city, are contained in a report filed with Mayor Brown Thursday by Robert L. Proctor, Superintendent of Buildings. The market company reserves for itself the best stalls in the market, declared Proctor.

Proctor's statement will be considered along with reports from several other department heads at a conference which Mayor Brown said Thursday he is planning. The views of the Superintendent of Public Utilities, City Engineer and City Health Commissioner will be exchanged.

MR. TAYLOR

The latest attack upon School Director Taylor comes both as a surprise and as a shock to Mr. Taylor's friends and the friends of the school officers. It was well known when Mr. Taylor voted for reduction of teachers' salaries, that he and Superintendent Cole were not in agreement. As I wrote in a recent issue of the News, Mr. Taylor really wanted to obviate the necessity of cutting teachers' salaries. What he wanted was to reduce the cost of supervisory overhead. In this, however, Mr. Cole, it is said, did not agree. His reason for not doing so, it is said, was because he was too closely linked with the prior administration to sanction such a step being made. The writer then expressed his opinion that it might have been better had the school board appointed an outside man who could put his own ideas into effect and who by reason of his strangeness to the city would have no personal obligations to fulfill.

There is just a sneaking suspicion that the recent attack by Mr. Cole upon Mr. Taylor is really the out-cropping of the difference in opinion upon revision of teachers' salaries. In view of the fact that the school board has undertaken an investigation of the charges made, the public should refrain from condemning Mr. Taylor. Tinged, as I believe the accusation is with a personal feeling against the school director, all the more care should be exercised before one allows himself to pass judgment.

BAR ASSOCIATION MEET

President Baldwin and Secretary Eimon L. Wienir attended the Washington State Bar Association meeting at Tacoma. A number of members of the League were present at the meeting some of those seen being Edward W. Allen, Frank P. Helsell, Louis B. Schwellenbach, Dean John T. Condon, Nelson R. Anderson, Dan Earle, Donald A. McDonald, O. B. Thorgrimson, A. J. Balliett, Malcolm Douglas, Judge Austin E. Griffiths and Cassius E. Gates.

One of the papers read to the Bar Association by Mr. H. H. Parsons of Missoula, Montana, called attention to the menace of the foreign element to the public welfare. Mr. Parsons charged that this element could not be Americanized and was responsible for many of the political industrial and social evils of the day.

The paper by Justice Lawrence Harris of the Supreme Court of the State of Oregon dealt with the recent attack upon the Supreme Court of the United States by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin. Judge Harris, in an exhaustive resume of the basis of American government—the American Constitution—traced the history of that document and quoted eminent American and foreign authorities on the point that it was the greatest instrument protecting the liberties of a people that the world has ever known. In a remarkable report, the Secretary of the Association, W. J. Millard, pointed out the necessity of legislation in forcing all of the lawyers of the State to become members of the State Bar Association. "The strength of the wolf is the pack, and the strength of the pack is the wolf", quoted Mr. Millard. He declared that the legal profession was maligned unjustly and that the way to overcome that was by organization. He called upon every member of the profession to assist the officers and thus strengthen the Association.

SECRETARY'S NOTES

In the August number of "Current Opinion" is an article entitled "The Next Great Social Change". In this article Charles A. Coffin, one of the foremost electrical engineers of the country, is credited with saying that the next great social transformation is decentralization. Electricity, he feels justified in saying, will be the instrumentality through which the next great social change is to be wrought. "Heretofore we have been compelling it to take us to the city, and it has done so beautifully, more quickly and comfortably than we have ever been moved about before. Hereafter we shall simply touch a button and have it take the city out to us." Mr. Coffin, among other things, argues that the city has almost destroyed the home, but that it has provided other advantages which the modern man can hardly do without. If only these advantages could be brought to the country village and the farm—for it can—it will unmake the city.

MODERN CITY PLANNING

By Thomas Adams

Before the work of selecting the area to be planned or of preparing plans is proceeded with, a city or town council should decide whether or not to appoint a city planning commission under the state law, if such a law exists. The objections to the appointment of a commission are not such as to counterbalance the great advantages to be obtained by having a body giving exclusive attention to the work, but its expenditures should be under the control of the city council.

EMPLOYMENT OF EXPERT ADVICE BY CITIES

The work of preparing a plan will probably involve the employment by the city of an expert consultant or group of consultants to collaborate with the city engineer. The expert should be engaged to direct the making of the preliminary survey as this is really part of the whole operation requiring continuous expert direction through all its stages. While an expert consultant is needed he should be employed on the understanding that the survey and plan are not to be his work but the work of the engineer and himself.

It is necessary to take full advantage of the knowledge of local conditions possessed by the engineer and also to make the engineer feel that he is to be given both responsibility and credit for preparing the plan. This is needed for the sake first, of economy in making the plan and second, of assuring that when the plan is prepared it will be sympathetically carried out by the man on the spot.

A good plan must be capable of variations to suit change of conditions, and is never complete. The continuous work of carrying out the plan and the important task of adjusting it from time to time to suit new conditions are matters that can only be dealt with by a permanent officer of the city working under the direction of the town planning commission. While, therefore, it cannot be questioned that valuable aid can be given by an expert consultant, who has made a special study of city planning over a long period of years, his services should be employed under circumstances which mean that he will collaborate with and not supersede the engineer.

No detailed guidance as to the methods of making a survey or plan in a particular city can be given, but a summary of matters to be studied is given in an appendix. Actual operations must be under some directing head. Methods of carrying out these operations will vary according to the qualities of the adviser and the local circumstances in each case.

EXISTING MAPS and DATA

The first practical work to be done in planning a city or town, after the appointment of a city planning commission, is to collect copies of the existing topographical and subdivision maps and other data available. Where federal maps on a scale of one inch to one mile are available, they should be obtained to show the city and surrounding region.

A second map should be prepared showing the city and adjacent metropolitan area or urban zone up to from three to five miles of the city boundary. This should be on a scale of 1,000 to 2,000 feet per inch. The main street and highway system, waterways, railways, and other broad features in the development of the area should be drawn on this small scale map. A map of the city area on a scale of from 200 to 400 feet to one inch showing the buildings and topography within the city should then be prepared, similar to the topographical survey map of the city of Baltimore. This should show the existing streets and blocks as accurately as possible and the levels of the land in the form of contour lines at five foot intervals. With the aid of the insurance maps and special surveys, all buildings and other physical features should be added to this map. If this map is properly prepared it will give as good an idea of the distribution of the population as can be obtained in any other form and, at the same time, show the density of distribution of the buildings. It is more desirable to spend time on getting the existing buildings shown on the maps than on working out maps of population densities which are of comparatively little value in diagrammatic form when the character of the buildings is not shown.

There will now be three maps: Map No. 1 of the region, one mile to one inch; Map No. 2 of the city and surrounding urban zone, 1,000 to 2,000 feet to one inch; and Map No. 3 of the city, 200 to 400 feet to one inch. All subdivisions in the metropolitan area as well as in the city should be shown in broad outline on Map No. 2. On this map it is intended that a skeleton and tentative plan of the main highways, railways, parks and parkways (existing and proposed) should be drawn.

Where a city can afford the expense it will be of great value to have a special topographical survey map made of the whole city. Such a map will be of special utility in cities where there are considerable areas of undulating land. In some cases where there are exceptional difficulties caused by hilly ground, an accurate and complete survey of the city or part of it will be essential.

AERIAL MAPS

A topographical map should also be supplemented by an aerial map. Aerial maps are of great value for town planning purposes, especially in visualizing the natural features and densities of buildings of the city. The Canadian Government, probably more than any other government, has recognized the importance of civil aviation as a means of mapping territory and the Air Board of Canada is giving assistance to other branches of the Civil Service and to cities in making mosaic sheets. Referring to this matter the annual report of the board for 1920 says:

The value of such mosaics to the general public can hardly be estimated, as they will be far more easily read and understood than a map and infinitely more interesting. They are invaluable to the town planner and go a long way to solving most of his problems.

The aerial mosaic should not, of course, be relied upon for accuracy of measure. A ground survey is necessary for this purpose, but the mosaic is a most valuable addition to maps prepared on the basis of an actual survey and should be obtained by cities for city planning and other purposes.

SECRETARY'S NOTES

At the last Board of Trustees meeting the special committee of which Dan Earle was chairman, appointed for the purpose of investigating the City Engineer A. H. Dimmock's record, was discharged upon the request of Mr. Earle. The Board felt that the matter was now a closed incident and that it would not be advisable to proceed further with the investigation.

Dr. E. C. Kilbourne, Chairman of the Parks, Buildings and Grounds Committee, reported that he has been keeping the Chief of Police informed regarding the litter on the streets. Many of the candidates in the past years have been making it a practice to throw dodgers on the sidewalks and streets of the city. This is contrary to a city ordinance, and in the interest of cleaner streets Dr. Kilbourne's committee has been making every effort to have the law observed.

Dan Earle has accepted the chairmanship of the Candidates' Investigating Committee which will investigate candidates for county offices as well as the candidates for the legislature from Seattle. Shortly the names of the remaining members of the committee will be announced.

WHO'S WHO IN THE LEAGUE

VICE-PRESIDENT SANDALL

Robert F. Sandall is vice-president of the Municipal League. He was born in York, Nebraska, where his father was engaged in farming and stock raising on a large scale. Mr. Sandall followed the same occupation for a number of years, but found it impossible to forego a college education. He sold his interests in his business, to enter Nebraska Wesleyan University, where he finished the preparatory course in two years, then entered the university. While at Nebraska he was manager of the fraternity house, business manager one year of the college annual, on the 'varsity' debating team, and three years tackle on the football eleven.

From Nebraska Mr. Sandall went to Boston, for the purpose of getting one year's schooling in the East. He entered Boston University, completed the year's work, then went to Chicago University from which institution he graduated in the summer quarter of 1915. That fall he came to Seattle, presented his credentials to the Dean of the Washington Law School, and was permitted to graduate with the class of 1916.

Mr. Sandall has practiced law continuously in Seattle since the summer of 1916. He has offices in the Alaska Building. He is a member of the Beta Theta Pi college fraternity, an Elk, a member of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce and a graduate of the Ten O'clock Club of that institution. He is also president of the Chicago University Club of Seattle.

LUNDIN TAKES EXCEPTION

August 8, 1922.

"Mr. Eimon L. Wienir, Secretary Municipal League, 405 Leary Building, Seattle, Washington.

"Dear Sir:

"In the issue of the News under date of August 5, 1922, appears an editorial headed 'Mr. Taylor' which I assume was written by you.

"While your article was evidently intended to be fair to Mr. Taylor it was very unfair to Superintendent Cole. A biased statement favoring either party to a controversy should never be made in the News. The League's committees never take action without an investigation; neither should its officers. You condemn the selection of Mr. Cole in your article, which in my judgment, you have no right to do in the columns of the News. There are many members of the League, of whom I am one, who approve of the school board's selecting Mr. Cole. You should not condemn the school board or any other public body without investigating the facts.

"You say, 'There is just a sneaking suspicion that the recent attack by Mr. Cole upon Mr. Taylor is really the outcropping of the difference in opinion upon the revision of teachers' salaries.'

"If you would be fair enough to interview Mr. Cole and investigate the evidence he has in his possession there would be no sneaking suspicion even in your mind. Mr. Cole has rendered the public a service in publishing the fact that a member of the school board is trying to use his office to sell his company's books. The attempt made by that member was clearly a vio-

PRELIMINARY RECONNAISSANCE SURVEYS

Maps 1, 2, and 3 should be prepared at the same time as surveys of the region and city are made. In making these surveys, it is essential to have clearly in mind the maximum use to which the knowledge collected can be put. The amount of money available will to some extent influence the character and scope of the survey. The following are among the points that should be borne in mind in approaching the survey:-

1. As already stated, the first question is the selection of the territory to be surveyed and planned. Where it is practicable under the law to ignore the arbitrary municipal boundary, careful attention should be given to the selection of the regional area. If the city boundary must be adhered to, it will probably be found that the best area is the total area of the city.

2. In planning physical alterations within the territory, a constant balance has to be kept up between what are called the interests of the community and the interests of the individual.

3. Different problems should be dealt with by specialists in each problem, a group of four specialists being desirable in ordinary cases—one dealing with railroad transportation and termini, the main highway system, street traffic, sewerage and water supply, distribution of power and light and other engineering problems; a second with the question of finance, particularly in relation to assessment and land values, and legal problems; a third with the general physical layout of the city, the park and recreation system, and a fourth the civic centre, and the control of building development. This group will usually include an engineer, a lawyer, a landscape architect and an architect.

The lawyer will not be a planner but a consulting member of the group. The other three will be responsible for the plan. One of the three should co-ordinate the work of all. The width and complexity of the field to be covered requires that at least three should be employed in the larger cities. One expert with the aid of competent local officials will suffice in the smaller cities and towns. Care has to be taken not to endanger the plan by too much specialization and consequent lack of co-ordination.

4. The city plan should have the effect of encouraging rather than of restricting growth. It must be elastic and capable of modification but only under conditions based on principles and not on local expediency. Even slight changes may cause injustice and should only be made with the aid of expert advice.

5. The city officials and citizens should be definitely pledged to assist with the preparation of any plan so that their permanent co-operation may be assured.

6. While the survey may be made to relate to different questions such as "zoning", or railways, with advantage, the final plan should be comprehensive and deal with the features of city development.

7. As in one sense city planning is control of the use and development of the land for the purposes of industry or residence, the system of assessment should be adjusted to conform to the restrictions affecting use.

8. The present indiscriminate mixing of buildings destroys land values, but it is possible that too arbitrary a system of zoning might have the same effect.

9. Too much detail should be avoided. Much that comes under the head of city planning can be best dealt with in a building or housing ordinance.

10. Buildings should diminish in depth from front to rear as they rise in height, but no standard can be recommended as every city requires special treatment.

11. Limitation of the number of houses per acre is not usually practicable on this continent. Therefore, the lowering of a density has to be obtained by limiting the amount of each lot that can be built upon. This is better than the fixing of the sizes of lots.

12. In districts where it is practicable to make a partial regional survey, this should be done, even if the plan to be prepared has to be restricted to the area of a city or town. In any case, a complete city survey must be prepared as a basis for a city plan. While the maps to be prepared are generally the same in all cities, sometimes it is necessary to prepare different maps to suit different local conditions.

CITY SURVEY

After a survey and tentative skeleton plan of the region is made, a more ample survey of the city will be required.

Map No. 3, already alluded to, having been prepared will show the topography as precisely as practicable, the buildings, streets, boundaries of blocks and railways within the city. From the tracing of this map, a number of prints should be obtained by litho process so as to get a clear reproduction. Probably a dozen copies will be sufficient for most purposes. With the particulars thus obtained, the following colored cartoons should be prepared:-

Map 3 (a). Transportation map, showing existing railways, stations, waterways and harbors, markets, etc.;

Map 3 (b). Street services map, showing existing street railways and proposed extensions, water mains, sewers, power lines and different kinds of street pavement;

Map 3 (c) Street traffic map, showing main arteries and focal points, level crossings, street railway intersections, street collision points and (if census be taken of traffic) number of points with reference to figures in report. On this map lines should be drawn in color showing the areas within a quarter of a mile of any street railway;

Map 3 (d). Land valuation map, showing the assessed valuation of land in blocks, at the different values per square foot or per foot frontage. Thus blocks $5 to $10 per square foot or $500 to $1000 per foot frontage would be shown in one color and at $1 to $5 per square foot or $100 to $500 per foot frontage in another color;

Map 3 (e). Existing conditions map, showing the existing industrial, business and residential areas, parks and parkways, and sites of public and quasi-public buildings.

By careful presentation with a prearranged notation of colors and markings in Maps 3 (a), 3 (d) and 3 (e) may be combined as one "existing conditions" map.

III.

THE CITY PLANNER'S PROBLEMS

The Street and Transit System

With the information available on the above maps, it will be possible to proceed to the next stage and prepare a plan of the city. The first matters to be considered are as follows:-

(a) Proposals for the alteration of railway trackage, questions of union terminals, removal of grade crossings and questions of levels in railway approaches involved.

(b) Arterial highways, their alignment, width and connections.

(c) Approaches from the centre of city and main means of communication to the railway termini and proposals for relief of traffic congestion.

(d) Questions of widening existing highways, erecting bridges or subways and creating by-pass roads and of relieving of traffic congestion by rounding street corners and widening a intersecting streets.

(e) Alternative proposals to (d) in regard to obtaining more traffic room in streets by placing sidewalks in arched way through the buildings, building subways, rerouting street cars etc.

In studying these problems the emphasis should be placed on obtaining results which will combine the greatest convenience and permanence without excessive cost. It is not always the most extensive scheme that is the best and a "radical" solution may be suspected if it happens to follow the line of least resistance and is put forward without a thorough consideration of more simple alternatives.

The planning of intervenin areas (site planning) should as a rule be left to be dealt with by the local city planning commission acting in cooperation with the owners of real estate. The commission should, however, have certain principles drawn up for its guidance so as to secure that the intervening areas will be laid out with due regard to the general plan. Any proposed new highways should be correctly shown. Where there is an absence of accuracy, it will be necessary to provide for limits of deviation of the highways.

The general problems of circulation and traffic and of distribution of freight and supplies are among the most important to be studied. Too much expense is involved in the modern city in the moving of persons and the distribution of supplies, owing to bad location and inconvenient approaches to the railway depots. On this continent more attention requires to be given to rapid transit by trolley and street car than in Europe. The long distance railroad is not adaptable for local traffic. City streets in America have to handle much of the traffic by automobile truck that is handled by the smaller railroads in places like England.

The transit facilities have much to do with the problem of housing and the values which people have to pay for land as sites for dwellings. In considering the case of widening the streets for purposes of rapid transit, the relative cost of trolleys, elevated roads and subways should be considered. The elevated roads cost over three times as much as the trolley, and the subway lines over ten times. Congested traffic is not the result of one thing such as a narrow street but is the result of defective planning of a city in a number of its features. Similarly, no one remedy is likely to be satisfactory. In some cases where a drastic remedy like widening a street seems to be necessary, a more simple operation like rounding the corners of the intersecting streets may be sufficient, along with better control of the traffic. One of the most pressing problems of modern times is to find a means of decreasing the cost of distribution. This involves the study of markets in relation to the railroads and highways.

The street system may be broadly classified as consisting of main traffic arteries, major streets and minor streets, the latter being purely residential. The first would consist of those which form the main arterial system of the city and the links between the city and other populous centres. It should also include circular roads connecting up the radial lines so as to distribute traffic before it reaches the centre. The second would include all business and connecting streets in the city. The third would be mainly confined to residential districts. The desirable widths might be classified as follows:- Main arterial highways, 80 to 120 feet wide; major streets and parkways, 60 to 100 feet wide; minor streets, 30 to 66 feet wide.

All forms of street or sidewalk obstructions should be prevented and the setback of buildings should be arranged so as to enable business premises to have their signs and other projections on their own property. All public garages should be set back at least 30 feet from the street line.

In the planning of the sewerage and water-supply systems, it is necessary to study these in relation to the highways, the topography of the land and the use to which the land is put, but the plan of these and other underground services should not be mixed up with the general plan of the city.

CITY OWNS VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

Perhaps but few people realize the fact that the City of Seattle owns at present real estate in the aggregate book value of $2,504,600.40. The land alone is 504,600.40. (Exclusive of parks and buildings. The land alone is valued at $1,730,721.34 while the improvements are valued at $773,879.06.

MODERN CITY PLANNING

By Thomas Adams In National Municipal Review

The "Zone" Plan

The next stage in preparing the plan is to consider the question of "zoning." In "zoning," we have to deal with three kinds of regulations. First, restrictions as to use; second, as to height and third, as to the "area of occupancy" or the density of building per lot. A usual and not undesirable classification of uses is:-

- (a) Heavy industrial and general purposes areas;
- (b) Light industrial, including warehouses;
- (c) Business, comprising retail trading, offices, banks, etc.;
- (d) First residential district comprising detached and semidetached houses;
- (e) Second residential district comprising in addition to detached and semidetached houses, duplex houses, apartments and small neighborhood business centres.

Residences should not be excluded from (b) nor light industries from (a). Public garages and billboards should be excluded from (d) and (e) by implication. Public buildings, churches, schools and houses used for professional purposes should be permitted in (b), (c), (d) and (e) but the areas in which they are allowed to be erected in (d) should be definitely defined on the plan. It might be arranged, if so desired, to exclude public buildings, churches, etc., from district (d), in cases where a majority of the inhabitants so decided.

With regard to height there is still room for a great deal of improvement in the public attitude towards the limitation of height of buildings. There should really be no restriction of height in business districts, subject to there being adequate open space and width of street surrounding the building. Height should not be governed by an arbitrary figure of a number of feet or number of stories but by the relation between the open area adjacent to the building and the height. Different percentages should be adopted according to local conditions. Where the area of the occupancy in a business district is 100 per cent, part of the building should not be allowed to exceed one storey, and rear entrance from a back street or lane should be required. In the case of industrial and business buildings 90 per cent might be permitted to go up to a height equivalent to the width of the street where they front. Beyond that height the building should be required to set back as it increases in height. In residential districts the heights should be limited to two and a half or three stories in (d) and six stories in (e) but in the latter case, the question of the amount of open space surrounding the building would determine the height permitted. The ideal is to secure a 45 degree angle of light to the front and rear walls of all buildings.

Parks

The third stage in the planning of the open spaces, water fronts, architectural features, grouping of public buildings and where practicable, reservation of a productive agricultural belt. In this third stage the architect and the landscape architect are chiefly concerned. The existing and proposed parks and parkways should be mapped. The park system, consisting of parks, recreation grounds and parkways, should be studied in relation to the street and railroad system. The city should plan this system

LEAGUE MEETS SEPTEMBER 5TH

The League's first meeting of the year 1922-1923 will be held Tuesday noon, September 5th, at the L. C. Smith Bldg. Restaurant. President Julius L. Baldwin will greet the membership with a brief address after which the Candidates Investigating Committee, headed by Dan Earle, will read its report on county and legislative candidates.

There is every indication that the active work of the new League year will start off vigorously. Many committees have been at work all through the summer preparing reports and making investigations. The Charter Revision Committee has been working very hard preparing a new charter, which if it secures the approval of the League membership, will be presented to the voters.

The Harbor Development Committee, headed by Col. O. A. Powell, has been assigned the task of investigating the needs of the Seattle Port Commission, especially with reference to its need of a port manager. It has also been asked to check comparisons of rates charged between Seattle's port and that of San Francisco.

If the membership will support its officers and committeemen by their regular attendance at meetings and by responding to calls for committee service, no one need fear the success of the League this year.

Remember that Tuesday noon, September 5th, is the first meeting. The place: L. C. Smith Building Restaurant.

Marjory came home from a neighbor's house munching a chocolate. "Now, Marjory," said her mother, "how many times have I told you not to ask Mrs. Brown for chocolates?"

"I didn't ask her," returned the child calmly. "I don't have to. I know where she keeps them."

The principal items include, among others, the old City Hall site, valued at $550,144.50, the Public Safety Building site and improvements, valued at $371,163.89, the Lake Union Stables, valued at $81,880, and Charles St. Stables valued at $63,500, and unplatted property in Section 16, Twp. 24 N., R 4 E, valued at $110,000. This latter is a section of land in Skagit County, purchased by the city a few years ago for stockade purposes. The city has not, however, been able to make use of this land because the law does not permit it to take city prisoners outside county limits.

Seattle's fire stations and sites are valued at $947,281.59, land value being $510,354.60 and improvements $436,926.99.

Seattle's Library Department properties are valued at $698,693.45.

Seattle's 45 improved, unimproved, and partially improved parks are valued at $5,163,739.69. These parks have a total area of 1,298 acres, and their improvements cost up to January 1, 1921, $1,083,214.94.

Seattle's 25 playgrounds are valued at $984,068.04. These have a total area of 139 acres. The cost of improvements up to January 1, 1921, totaled $327,533.12.

Seattle's 18 boulevards are valued at $1,829,015.78, of which sum $1,228,034.52 is for improvements.

In addition Seattle has 43 squares and places valued at $307,893.62.

tions.

The cost of library service is not large. The American Library Association recommends $1 per capita as a proper amount for good library service. The amount available in Seattle this year is only 83 cents per capita. The library's portion of the total tax is less than 2 per cent.

The library is an essential link in the city's educational system. With its present income, it can not hold the ground already gained. It should have sufficient funds to permit a normal growth and the development of new services.

MODERN CITY PLANNING

well in advance and maintain rural parks as well as city parks. They should not be less than three per cent and should if practicable be ten per cent of the city and should form a connected system. Wedge-shaped parks are better than circular parks. Parks are essential to the preservation of the city as well as for the recreation needs of its citizens. A city may obtain revenue from a wild or natural park if it plants it with trees or grass for pasture and trains it as a productive park.

Each city should carry out a campaign in educating public opinion as to the commercial value of parks. Mr. Flavel Shurtleff in his book on "Carrying Out the City Plan" gives a table of the percentage of increase in the value of 943 park areas in New York between 1908-17. This showed that 19 parks increased in value over 2,001 per cent, 273 parks increased in value from 201 to 2,001 per cent, 154 from 25 to 154 per cent, and 91 less than 25 per cent.

The increase in value of the park areas themselves should be accompanied, if the parks are properly selected and planned by an increase in the value of adjacent real estate. Indeed, it is profitable for large owners of real estate either to give parks or to submit to special assessment on adjacent land to cover their cost. Kansas City, Missouri, has had the greater part of the expense of its parks paid by special assessments on abutters in six park districts. A magnificent park system has thereby been built up at a little cost to the city; and land owners compete with each other to secure parks for which the themselves must pay. The Board of Park Commissioners of Kansas have shown figures to prove that parks enhance values "in excess of the entire cost" and that constant pressure has been brought to bear upon the board for the extension of the park boulevard system.

But care should be taken not to burden either the city or the real estate owners with more unproductive park area than is economical for the size of the city.

The Civic Centre

The civic centre needs to be planned in connection with the other physical features of the city. In a sense, it should be subordinate, because of the expense of constructing monumental buildings. It is bad for the public interest to erect extravagant structures. Most cities lack beauty, not because they lack public buildings but because of an untidiness arising from want of care in controlling the surroundings of the buildings they have. There is no reason, however, why a beautiful building should cost more than an ugly one. It is simply a case of getting the right kind of advice. The surroundings of the building are just as important as the building itself. They should be spacious, but not to an extent which will dwarf the building. There should be a relation between the space and the height of the building.

One important problem to be always considered in planning is the proportion of cost of improvements which should be borne by the city at large and the owner of the land. The Somers system of real estate valuation suggests the spreading of the cost on the basis that the frontager should pay the total for a sixty-foot street. This, however, is rather high. A forty-foot street is sufficient to meet the local needs of residential areas, and sixty-foot of industrial and business areas.

Site Planning

As already indicated, it is undesirable for the attention of the city planner to be diverted from the consideration of the general city plan to detailed development of subdivisions. There will be occasion to deal with subdivisions that occupy strategic sites or have some peculiarity which makes them important in relation to the general plan. For instance, it may be found that a subdivision is already laid out and registered in a position which occupies the best line of approach to the city by an arterial highway. In such a case, the city planner requires to bring all his powers of persuasion to bear upon the owner of the land to have the subdivision changed. It would probably be easy to convince such an owner that the change would be desirable in the interests of his property, but everything will depend on the way in which he is approached and the tact shown in bringing forward the advantages of the proposal.

In the course of preparing the general plan, the city planner should not ignore applications of owners to help him with the planning of their subdivisions. While it may be a mistake to initiate detailed work of site planning, he should be ready in all cases to accept opportunities to plan sites so as to fit them in with the general plan of the city.

In site planning, that is, the planning of small areas for industries or houses, the governing features may be said to be the relation between the street plan of the site and the main lines of communication of the city, adjoining or intersecting the property. Here we have to deal with the points of connection, the directness of route of the streets across the property, grade, best locations for crossing railways or rivers by bridges or subways. In considering directness of route in relation to grade, it is preferable to have easy curves rather than sharp turnings or jogs. This is particularly true in the case of the main highways. Connections with main arterial highways should be at right angles as far as practicable. In dealing with hilly land, it will often be found better to have steeper grades rather than side-cuts.

In planning minor streets, the planner should introduce varieties in the form of development such as quadrangles and small squares. An effort should be made to secure the subdivision of the corner lots so as to encourage those erecting buildings to have an orderly and pleasant treatment of the building elevations at the corners. Nothing condemns the orderly rectangular subdivision so much as the ugly effect which is produced by corner houses having their gables on the side street with long flankages not occupied by buildings. Road junctions require to be specially studied. Where roads meet at one point ample room must be given for distribution of traffic.

Alleys or Lanes

One of the important problems that will have to be considered is the question of alleys or rear lanes. There are those who advocate that rear lanes should be provided under all conditions and for all classes of building. There are those who condemn them unless they are paved and lighted in the same manner as the front street which practically makes them back streets. There are those who condemn them as only being essential in business centres and crowded residential areas. It is impossible to lay down any rule regarding the desirability of having lanes. Everything depends on the local considerations. It is conceivable that even in a widely-scattered residential district, lanes would be desirable on condition that all the public services were placed in the lane. On the other hand, it should not be overlooked that the cost of making a street and a lane may be higher than the owner of the property can pay. We must recognize that a lane is only desirable when it has some form of pavement, is properly drained and is free from nuisance. It is the opposite of being desirable if it is used for dumping garbage or if, owing to laxity of control, habitable buildings are permitted to be erected upon its frontage.

The cost of providing lanes may be greater than the cost of providing extra frontage to enable the householder to get access to the rear of his property for vehicles by the side of his dwelling. If the cost of the side entrance does not greatly exceed the cost of providing the lane, it should be preferred in residential districts. A lane is not necessary for providing air space at the rear of buildings, whereas the side entrance for vehicles has the double benefit of giving access to the rear of the building and giving adequate light and air where it is most needed. There can be no question as to the need for lanes in districts where houses are erected in continuous rows or in areas where the lots are devoted to continuous business development.

Depth of Lots

Important considerations arise in connection with the depth of lots. When blocks of building land between streets are too shallow, the tendency is to use the whole depth for the business occupying the frontage on one street, thus making the frontage on the second street practically a back entrance. In such a case, the shallowness of the lots is a source of loss to the property owners because it is compelling them to use two streets where a street and a lane would have done. An example of a very good arrangement for a business section is shown in Craig's plan of Edinburgh. Here the main business streets of Princes Street and George Street have between them a narrow parallel street. This narrow street is used for second class business and for rear access to the principal hotels and department stores on the main business thoroughfares. Although this narrow street is only about 30 feet wide and is therefore little more than a lane, it combines the uses of a secondary business street and a lane, it is properly paved and lighted and is more economical than having a third street of full width or a narrow lane of no use except for rear access.

Intersections

What should be the length of intersections between streets is not always easy to determine. One main street in a city has forty intersecting or tributary streets over a length of less than a mile. From the point of view of business, the number of intersections probably tends to increase the frontage that is available for business uses. Many people argue that numerous intersections are necessary to spread business off the one main thoroughfare into the side streets. On the other hand, when a street is used for street cars and these have to stop at every cross street, it becomes a serious objection from the point of view of rapid transit. These are matters which are, for the most part, settled when the original subdivision is made.

PARK COMMITTEE WILL INVESTIGATE

The Park and Grounds Committee of the League, headed by Fred W. Burt, Jr., is to investigate the desirability and the advisability of the city purchasing the so-called "salt-water park" at West Seattle.

The Park Board has proposed to the City Council that the municipality acquire 130 acres at Williams Point in West Seattle for about $1000 an acre. The stretch has approximately a mile of water front. Backing up the beach is an upland said to be large enough for playgrounds, an auto camp and picnic grounds.

The Park Board advises the Council that payments can be made over a period of ten years at 5 per cent. An additional levy of one tenth of one mill would be sufficient to cover the initial payment and the interest for the first year.

Looked suspicious.—A hearse returning from a funeral skidded on approaching a corner and chased a pedestrian halfway across the street, over the curb, across the sidewalk and finally pinned him against a brick wall. The driver at the hospital afterward gave the excuse that his car skidded. "Skidded, Hell!" said the victim, "business is getting bum with you birds."

Committee Reports on Cole vs. Taylor Charges

Secretary's note—The report which follows was presented to the Board of Trustees of the Municipal League last Monday and was accepted. The report will be presented to the membership at an early meeting.

August 21st, 1922

Board of Trustees
Municipal League
Seattle, Washington

Gentlemen:

In accordance with your request the Educational Committee has investigated the charges made by Superintendent Thomas R. Cole against Mr. E. F. Taylor, a member of the School Board of the Seattle District. In making this investigation we have secured from both parties statements in writing setting forth their contentions and we are attaching hereto the copies of the said statements. A brief resume of the facts involved in the controversy follows:

E. F. Taylor is a member of the Board of Directors of School District No. 1, comprising the city of Seattle. Mr. Taylor is engaged in the business of selling books under the name of The Taylor Book Company, with offices at 4041 Arcade Building, Seattle, Washington. He is the district representative of Dodd-Mead & Co., publishers of the New International Encyclopaedia. He has in his employ as a sub-agent Mr. R. C. Miller, who works out of his office and who sells the books of Dodd-Mead & Co. and of the Wheeler Publishing Company. The Wheeler Publishing Company is a Los Angeles concern and is apparently the distributing agent for Webster's New International Dictionary. On the sales made by Mr. Miller the Taylor Book Company receives a commission as a branch office, but since his election to the School Board Mr. Taylor has made arrangements with the publishing companies whereby he will secure no commission on any books sold to the Seattle School District.

On July 28th, 1922, Superintendent Cole filed with the School Board a report in which he charged Mr. Taylor with having attempted to use his influence as a member of the Board in securing the purchase by the School District of certain books published by companies for which Mr. Taylor was the Seattle representative. The charges referred to two sets of books and we will take them up in the order in which they were presented:

FIRST

On May 24th, 1922, R. C. Miller filed with the School District a bid on behalf of the Wheeler Publishing Company for the sale to the School District of twenty-five copies of Webster's New International Dictionary. Two other bids were presented, one by J. K. Gill & Company of Portland and one by John W. Graham of Spokane. These bids were considered by the Board on July 21st, 1922, and it was unanimously agreed that the bid of J. K. Gill & Company would be accepted and J. L. Moseley, Superintendent of Supplies, was authorized to purchase fifteen copies of Webster's New International Dictionary from J. K. Gill & Company. On the next day Mr. Moseley was requested by Mr. Taylor to hold up the purchase of the books. Mr. Moseley says that Mr. Taylor told him that when he voted for the purchase of the books he understood that fifteen copies were to be purchased from J. K. Gill & Company and fifteen copies from Mr. Miller. The order was held up until the next Friday when Mr. Taylor withdrew his request. In answer to this charge Mr. Taylor admits that he did hold up the purchase as was stated by Mr. Moseley. He states as his reason the fact that the order was given to a Portland firm rather than a Seattle firm and that he wanted to delay the placing of the order until such a time as he could consult with the other members of the Board. He does not, however, deny the statement of Mr. Moseley to the effect that he had told him that the reason why he wanted the order held was that he had thought it included fifteen copies from Mr. Miller. This fact, coupled with the fact that no bid was made by a Seattle firm leads the Committee to believe that Mr. Moseley's contention is correct. In addition to this direct statement in reference to the first charge, Mr. Taylor has furnished us with correspondence which we believe proves conclusively that he had no financial interest in the sale by Mr. Miller. Arrangements had been made with the publishers that on all sales to the Seattle School District made during the time that Mr. Taylor is on the Board the commission is to be paid to the salesman direct and no branch office commission is to be received by Mr. Taylor.

SECOND

The second charge of Mr. Cole is that Mr. Taylor attempted to use his influence in having the New International Encyclopaedia installed in certain high school libraries in place of the Americana as requisitioned by Miss Mary Lytle, the head of the High School Libraries in the city of Seattle. On May 24th, 1922, R. C. Miller submitted to the School District the bid of Dodd-Mead & Company for the sale of two sets of The New International Encyclopaedia. Mr. Cole charges that on several occasions during the time that the purchase of the encyclopaedias was contemplated, Mr. Taylor urgently discussed with him the question of purchasing the New International Encyclopaedia rather than the Americana. He states that on July 20th Mr. Taylor went to his office and told him that he expected him (Cole) to take care of the matter of the purchase of encyclopaedias for him. That on July 25th, 1922, Mr. Taylor "upbraided" him for the purchase of the Americana rather than the New International. That shortly after the requisition was placed Mr. Taylor insisted that Mr. Cole send to Mr. Taylor's office Miss Lytle to discuss with him the question of the purchase of encyclopaedias and that he did send Miss Lytle to Mr. Taylor's office. Mr. Cole attaches to his statement a letter from Miss Lytle and one from Miss Elizabeth Rowell, who accompanied Miss Lytle to Mr. Taylor's office, in which they set forth that Mr. Taylor at great length and in an unfriendly manner questioned them as to the purchase of encyclopaedias and urged upon them the purchase of the New International Encyclopaedias.

Mr. Taylor in answering the second charge denies that he has ever taken up with Mr. Cole the question of the purchase of encyclopaedias but says that the question had come up casually during the course of two or three general conversations concerning school matters. He emphatically denies that he insisted upon Mr. Cole sending Miss Lytle to his office and says that the suggestion came exclusively from Mr. Cole. He also emphatically denies that he at any time either in his conversation with Mr. Cole or Miss Lytle urged the purchase of the New International and insists that his discussions on the question were purely impersonal and were of the same character as he would have on any other question of interest to the schools. In addition to this Mr. Taylor includes in his statement a reference to the various differences of opinion which have arisen between himself and Mr. Cole since he has been on the Board and calls attention to the fact that he has opposed a number of measures in which Mr. Cole was particularly interested and asks that the inference be drawn that Mr. Cole's attack is not made in good faith but because of the spirit of unfriendliness which has been aroused between them and states that he believes that the sending of Miss Lytle to him was simply a part of a plan conceived by Mr. Cole as the foundation for an attack upon him.

We are not in this investigation interested in any prior controversies between Mr. Cole and Mr. Taylor and they are not in any way relevant to the issue which we are considering. We are not interested in the motive which Mr. Cole may have had in filing this charge except insofar as it may bear upon the determination of the correctness of the statements made by the two parties. There is a direct conflict between the two statements on this second charge and your Committee feels that there is a possibility that the antagonism which Mr. Cole and the other teachers had towards Mr. Taylor because of his attitude on the Board on questions involving the teachers may have influenced them in their interpretation of the language he used in discussing with them the purchase of encyclopaedias and this spirit of unfriendliness and antagonism may have unconsciously caused them to have drawn certain inferences from his conversation which were not in fact intended. We do not care to pass upon the question of Mr. Taylor's charges that Mr. Cole "framed" him in sending Miss Lytle to his office further than to state that in our opinion Mr. Cole, believing as he did that it was improper for Mr. Taylor to discuss the question of encyclopaedias, should not have sent Miss Lytle to Mr. Taylor's office.

In view of all these facts your Committee has decided to disregard all of the second charge except the bare fact that Mr. Taylor did discuss the purchase of encyclopaedias with Mr. Cole and Miss Lytle and did favor the purchase of The New International.

CONCLUSION

The foregoing facts bring us to a consideration of the question as to whether or not the acts of Mr. Taylor should subject him to criticism. In passing upon this question we must consider the statute governing the acts of school directors, which provides, as follows:

"It shall be unlawful for any director to have any pecuniary interest, either directly or indirectly, in the purchase of school sites, or in the erection of school houses, or in the warming, ventilating, furnishing, repairing or insuring of the same, or to be in any manner interested in or connected with the furnishing of supplies for the maintenance of schools, or to receive or accept any compensation or reward for services rendered as director or be employed for hire by said district or by any person having a contract with said district."

Remington's 1915 Codes and Statutes of Washington, Sec. 4487

Your Committee does not believe that Mr. Taylor intentionally violated either the letter or spirit of this statute. We do feel, however, that his acts were certainly not in accordance with the spirit of the law. The statute is plain and says that the directors shall not be in any manner interested in or connected with the furnishing of supplies and its purpose was clearly to protect the school district against having directors enter into contracts which would not be to the best interest of the district. Mr. Taylor we believe acted in good faith. He felt that when he made arrangements with Dodd-Mead & Company which made it impossible for him to secure any commission from the sale of books to the district that he had fully complied with the provisions of the statute. He evidently felt that his experience in the book business particularly qualified him in passing upon such questions and this probably caused his interest in the purchase.

If the statute read merely that it shall be unlawful for any director to have any pecuniary interest, Mr. Taylor's opinion might have been correct. But there are a number of ways that the Taylor Book Company could be benefited by Miller's sale of books to the school district. For instance, it would increase the number of sales in the State. The fact that the Seattle School District had just bought a number of sets of the New International might aid in the sale of the books to other districts in surrounding communities. Further it is very probable that Mr. Taylor having been a representative of Dodd-Mead & Co., for a number of years and having sold The New International would be prejudiced in favor of his own book and could not pass upon its merits impartially and with the unbiased mind that is absolutely necessary that a person in the position of school director should have. We believe that Mr. Taylor's mistake in these acts was one of judgment; that he had no intention of violating the law and that he was simply indiscreet in his acts. We believe, however, that it is absolutely necessary in the future that there be no misunderstanding as to the purpose of this statute and we recommend that the League suggest to the school board that this incident be considered a closed one and that hereafter the statute above quoted be strictly observed and that no director having any interest in any business shall in any way or to the slightest extent participate in the deliberations of the board or in the informal consideration by the employees of the district of the purchase of supplies from companies with which the director has any connection however remote.

COLE'S STATEMENT

Seattle, Washington
July 28, 1922

To the Board of Directors
Seattle School District No. 1

Re-Selection of Textbooks

The usual procedure in the selection of texts, reviewing of same, making eliminations, calling for bids and recommendation of awards to the Board has been followed this year. In the list of books there are two items to which I wish to call your attention, (1) the Webster's New International Dictionary and (2) the Americana Encyclopaedia.

The original order for dictionaries called for 25 copies which, when reviewed by the Educational Department, was cut to 15. Three bids were received for the dictionaries:

J. K. Gill and Company
15 Webster's New International Dictionaries bound in Buckram.....$16.00 ea. $240.00
John W. Graham Company
15 Webster's New International Dictionaries bound in Buckram.....$16.00 ea. $240.00
Wheeler Publishing Company
15 Webster's New International Dictionaries, with reference history and atlas, bound in Fabrikoid.....$26.00 ea. $390.00

J. K. Gill and Company and John W. Graham Company bid on the New International Dictionaries as called for, while the Wheeler Publishing Company bid on the Dictionary with reference history and atlas included. In the reviewing of the bids the Educational Department adhered to the original selection of the Dictionaries now in use in the schools, feeling from investigation that there is not sufficient difference in the utility of the books for school purposes to justify the additional expenditure of $10.00 per copy.

In the library list the original order called for three sets of Americana Encyclopaedias which when received by the head librarian, was cut to two sets. Two bids were received for encyclopaedias:

Baker and Taylor
2 sets 30 Vol., Encyclopaedia

Americana, Buckram, each set.....$144.00 $288.00
Dodd, Mead and Company
2 sets 24 Vol., New International Encyclopedia, Second Edition, 1921 Copyright, each set

Cloth Binding.....$136.80 $273.60
Buckram binding.....$159.60 $319.20

Owing to the fact that all of the encyclopedias in active use in the high schools are the New International Encyclopedias, and one of the new sets must be used in conjunction with the old, the Americana Encyclopedia was recommended. The Americana was selected, also, for the other set needed after a favorable report was made by Miss Lytle, the head librarian, and my own investigation. A third reason was that in the buckram binding it is $15.60 cheaper than the New International Encyclopedia.

The award for the dictionaries was authorized on Friday of last week by the Board of Education to J. K. Gill and Company, their total bid being the lowest. Action on the library list, which included the encyclopedias, was deferred for one week. The order for all of the books authorized to be purchased by the Board on Friday of last week has been placed, with the exception of the dictionaries, which was held up by Mr. Moseley, Superintendent of Supplies, at the personal request of Mr. Taylor.

Subsequent to Friday's meeting, when the vote on the purchase of textbooks was unanimous, Mr. Taylor alleged in conversation with Mr. Moseley that he understood, when he voted on Friday, that 15 of each of the dictionaries mentioned were to be purchased and included the 15 dictionaries which were priced at $26 per copy. When he found that was not true, he made the request referred to above.

It should be understood that the bid, under the name of Wheeler Publishing Company, for the Webster's New International Dictionaries with reference history and atlas, priced at $26 each, was submitted by R. C. Miller, who gave as his address 4041 Arcade Building, Seattle, which is one of the rooms occupied by the Taylor Book Company, E. F. Taylor, a member of this Board, being manager. The bid for the New International Encyclopedia was also submitted by R. C. Miller, who gave as his address 4041 Arcade Building, one of the rooms occupied by the Taylor Book Company, which represents the Dodd, Mead and Company in Seattle.

When Mr. Taylor learned shortly after being elected to the School Board that a requisition had been placed for the Americana Encyclopaedias, he insisted that I ask Miss Lytle, head of the high school libraries, to come to his office and explain why the Americana Encyclopedia was specified instead of the New International. Miss Lytle was greatly surprised at this request, but in company with Miss Elizabeth Rowell, head of the history department of the Broadway High School, she went to Mr. Taylor's office and held an interview with him. If the Board desires, Miss Lytle and Miss Rowell will reveal the character of the conversation that occurred at this interview.

This is mentioned to call the attention of the Board to the fact that Mr. Taylor began over two months ago to attempt to influence the requisition for books to be purchased of the New International Encyclopedia, which is published by the firm he represents.

On Thursday of last week, July 20th, Mr. Taylor came to my office and in his conversation regarding the purchase of encyclopedias made the following statement, after he had learned that the Americana and not the New International Encyclopedia had been recommended: "I expected you to take care of that matter for me."

On Tuesday of this week, July 25th, Mr. Taylor again came to my office and asked if I were responsible for the selection of the dictionaries and the recommendation of the encyclopedias. I stated I had investigated the matter and had recommended them. He then began to upbraid me for my decision. I felt compelled at this point to inform Mr. Taylor that it was the first time in the 20 years of my school experience that I had ever been approached by a Board member on a matter of his own personal interest. I stated to him that I did not care to deal with him further as an individual but only as a member of the Board at a regular meeting.

Respectfully submitted,

THOMAS R. COLE,
Acting Superintendent.

Gentlemen:—

At the last Board meeting, Friday, July 21st, the order for "Library Books" was deferred; also, certain items of "Sheet Music." It is asked that these matters be given consideration so they may reach here at as early a date as possible.

All of the "Text Books" which were authorized at this meeting have been taken care of with the exception of "15 Copies Webster's New International Dictionaries." I was requested to hold up the purchase of these Dictionaries by Mr. Taylor. Your decision regarding this matter is also requested in order that the Books may be received in time for the opening of school.

Seattle, Washington, Aug. 10, 1922.
Mr. Carl E. Croson,

Leary Building,

Seattle, Washington.

My dear Mr. Croson:

I have informed Mr. Cole that I will be out of the city during the fore part of the ensuing week, and he suggested that I make a statement regarding Mr. E. F. Taylor's interview with me before the close of school at his office, relative to the merits of the Americana Encyclopedia and the New International Encyclopedia.

Mr. Cole informed me a few days previous to my visit to Mr. Taylor that in an interview with Mr. Taylor regarding school matters, Mr. Taylor had asked regarding textbooks, and he had told him that in the annual requisition for books that I had included a requisition for the Americana Encyclopedias. Mr. Cole said that Mr. Taylor insisted on my calling at his office to explain my reason for requisitioning the Americana Encyclopedia. I reluctantly accepted the call from Mr. Taylor to come to see him, and owing to the fact that I did not know him, I asked one of the teachers to accompany me. The teacher who accompanied me was Miss Elizabeth Rowell, of the History Department of the Broadway High School. We went to see Mr. Taylor at his office, 4041 Arcade Building.

Our reception at Mr. Taylor's office was not cordial. He did not shake hands with us or ask us to sit down. I introduced myself and explained my errand. I then said, "The lady accompanying me, Mr. Taylor, is Miss Rowell, the head of the History Department at Broadway." Mr. Taylor's greeting to her was, "And what are you here for?" Miss Rowell replied that as a teacher of history, she was particularly interested in the library and the choice of books for it, and besides, was a friend of mine, and came with me at my request.

I then explained to Mr. Taylor my reasons for having requisitioned the Americana Encyclopedia. I gave these reasons somewhat in detail. After listening to me for some minutes, Mr. Taylor said, "And you didn't get any advice on this matter, I suppose." I replied that I had talked to Mr. Munn of the Seattle Public Library and Miss Calkins, who is in charge of the Reference Room there. Mr. Taylor said, "And who is Mr. Munn?" I answered, "Mr. Munn is at the head of the Reference Department." "Where did he come from?" I replied that I did not know. "How long has he been here?" I replied that he had not been here very long, possibly a year. Mr. Taylor's next remark was, "Well, if you had consulted Mr. Compton, who was formerly Reference Librarian, you would have found that he would have recommended the New International." Mr. Taylor then said, "You didn't ask Mr. Jennings advice about this?" I replied that I had not, that I consulted Mr. Jennings very frequently in regard to library matters, and valued his advice very highly, but that in a matter relating entirely to reference books, I thought that the logical person to talk to was the head of the Reference Department.

Mr. Taylor said, "You came from Tacoma, I believe, and you know Mr. Kizer, the Librarian there, but you didn't consult him." I replied, "Do you mean about the encyclopedias for the Seattle high schools?" He replied, "Yes." I replied, "No, I did not. It didn't occur to me to consult Mr. Kizer about this matter regarding the Seattle schools." He replied, "You would have found that Mr. Kizer always recommends the New International." Mr. Taylor then said, "Where did you get the idea that the last edition of the New International is 1916?" I replied that I had always understood that there had been no edition since then, but that to confirm my opinion, I had asked at the Reference Department of the Seattle Public Library, and they had told me the same thing. Mr. Taylor then said, "Well, I can tell you that there is a 1921 edition of the New International. Did you know that?" I replied, "No, Mr. Taylor, that is news to me, but I will be glad to see a copy of the 1921 edition." Mr. Taylor said that he had none at hand just then,—that they came in boxes, and were shipped out again so rapidly that he did not happen to have any on hand. I felt that this was strange, since he had a number of volumes of his encyclopedia in the bookcases in the room where we were.

Mr. Taylor then said, "Are you a Protestant or a Catholic?" I replied, "Mr. Taylor, I do not see that that has anything to do with the matter we are discussing." Miss Rowell said, "Mr. Taylor, we are not accustomed to having any such question as that asked of us in our work in the public schools. We are expected to be entirely unbiased and unprejudiced in such matters, and they are never even inquired about." Mr. Taylor did not press the point then, but went on to say that he himself was a Methodist, and that the reason he inquired was because the last edition of the Americana played up the Catholics very strongly. He said that in an edition which they had sold through Utah, they had played up the Latter Day Saints, and in this edition they played up the Catholics. Miss Rowell inquired as to just what he meant by that. He replied that they had a large number of articles pertaining to Catholic matters. Miss Rowell then remarked, "I should think, Mr. Taylor, that that would be rather an additional reason for placing this encyclopedia in our libraries, for in my work as a teacher of history, I often find that our reference books are somewhat lacking in articles explaining points pertaining to the Catholic Church." He said, "Do you mean to say that you would place a book in the libraries which is biased?" Miss Rowell said, "Could you prove your statement, Mr. Taylor, about the Americana Encyclopedia being biased?" He replied, "No, perhaps not, but it devotes a large amount of space to Catholic topics." Miss Rowell replied, "Well, from what you say of it, I should think that it would be valuable for us to have." Mr. Taylor then said, "Well, Miss Rowell, I should say that you are not a good person to be teaching history in our schools."

At no time during the interview did Mr. Taylor express any interest in our school work or in the library, but confined himself exclusively to a selling talk on the merits of the New International, and the faults of the Americana Encyclopedia. Mr. Taylor's attitude to us during the whole interview was anything but friendly. I never came away from an interview feeling so indignant over the way I had been treated as I did in this case.

Dear Sir:-

On Saturday forenoon, July 22nd Mr. Taylor phoned me asking for information regarding the Text Book list which was passed by the Board at the meeting of July 21st. Mr. Taylor stated that he wanted to know who was responsible for the selection of Text Books included in this list. I told him the Educational Department selected all Text Books. Mr. Taylor then stated that he wished me to hold up the order for Dictionaries. I told Mr. Taylor that he could have objected to the recommendation on Dictionaries at the time it was reported to the Board. He stated that he thought the recommendation was for 15 copies of each.

Yours very truly,

TO THE MUNICIPAL LEAGUE OF SEATTLE:

INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE REPORT IS APPROVED BY MUNICIPAL LEAGUE

Note:—The following report was submitted by the Candidates Investigating Committee to the membership of the Municipal League at its special meeting yesterday noon. The report was adopted without a dissenting vote.

EIMON L. WIENIR, Sec.

To the Municipal League of Seattle:

Your committee for the investigating of candidates for County offices in King County has held numerous conferences with candidates appearing before it and on the basis of these conferences and the questionnaires submitted, we make the following report.

Some candidates have neither appeared nor submitted questionnaires, and as to them no report can be made.

In this report the names come in the order as they appear on the official election notice.

On account of the large number of candidates these reports have been cut down to the minimum.

COUNTY AUDITOR—

D. E. Ferguson, candidate for County Auditor on the Republican ticket, is 48 years of age, a Canadian by birth but a resident of Seattle for 16 years. His business is that of an accountant; he is the present County Auditor, filing for re-election; at the time of taking office he was not a candidate of the so-called Court House "ring" and from some reports it appears that a deliberate attempt was made to count him out as a result of the close contest in that election. His record indicates that he has conducted the office in a very efficient manner and has surrounded himself with an organization which has given prompt and courteous service to the public; impresses the Committee as being able to give a good account of his stewardship and they believe he deserves favorable consideration in view of the services already rendered in that office.

Phoebe M. McCherty, candidate for County Auditor on the Republican ticket, was born in Waukesha, Wisconsin, and has resided in this city for 17 years past where she owns her home. She is a graduate of the Broadway High School, a student of law at the University of Washington and a member of the Board of Trustees of the Seattle Federation of Women's Clubs; since the death of her husband in the Argonne, she has continued his business in this city; in the conduct of her office she has become quite familiar with the Auditor's office and claims her policy to be to conduct the office with more economy and efficiency.

Norman M. Wardall, candidate for County Auditor on the Republican ticket, has lived in the State 16 years, of which 12 years were spent in the County Auditor's office, 4 years as Auditor and 8 years as Deputy; his record as Auditor is probably as familiarly known to the public as to this Committee.

COUNTY ASSESSOR—

Samuel H. Chase, candidate for County Assessor on the Republican ticket, has been for 12 years Deputy Assessor for King County and has had two years experience as a Civil Deputy in the Prosecuting Attorney's office; was born 58 years ago and educated for the law. Mr. Chase has been 16 years in Washington, is married and owns property here. He has had considerable experience in executive capacities and the legal business pertaining to the Assessor's office. The Committee considers Mr. Chase well qualified for the office to which he aspires.

George W. Roberts, candidate for County Assessor on the Republican ticket, is at present United States Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue; was for several years with the General Appraisal Company doing business in Washington, Oregon and California, and has been Naturalization Clerk in the King County Clerk's office; Mr. Roberts is 48 years of age, married and owns his own home. His education ran through one year in college. Believes his experience as stated would qualify him to get all property listed and fairly assessed.

Arohie B. Coon, born in Nebraska, age 44, resident of this city for 14 years; high school and university education; has been employed by various mercantile and shipping concerns.

PROSECUTING ATTORNEY—

Malcolm Douglas, present Prosecuting Attorney and running for re-election, is sufficiently well known to make unnecessary any details of introduction; he is running on his record in office and the Committee believes that record to be one of ability and efficiency which entitles him to the favorable consideration of King County.

Susan A. Hohmann, candidate for office of Prosecuting Attorney on the Republican ticket, was born in Minnesota and came to the state of Washington in 1914; has had a college education and was admitted to the bar on July 1, 1921; prior to taking up the study of law she was engaged as a school teacher and was superintendent of schools. She has had but limited experience in the practice of law, but states that her efforts will be directed toward strict enforcement of the law.

Lady Willie Forbus, candidate for office of Prosecuting Attorney on the Democratic ticket, was born in Mississippi and has resided in Seattle four and a half years; she strongly advocates co-ordination of the juvenile department with the divorce department of the Superior Court with the end in view of ultimately establishing a court of domestic relations. Her practice has been general in its nature and she was moved to run for the position of Prosecuting Attorney as an outgrowth of her experience in the Legate case. She states it to be her purpose to break up the alleged conspiracy between the Prosecuting Attorney's office and the Police Department of the city.

COUNTY CLERK—

George A. Grant, candidate for County Clerk on the Republican ticket, has served one term in that office and has no opposition on the Republican ticket. Committee believes Mr. Grant's record entitles him to re-election.

W. E. Chambers, candidate for County Clerk on the Democratic ticket, is 39 years of age, a native of Texas, and has lived in this County for the past 9 years. His actual business experience has been on newspapers and he has held no public office, but in his work as reporter has kept in close touch with many branches of political activity.

COUNTY TREASURER—

William W. Shields, candidate for County Treasurer on the Republican ticket, was born in Canada 44 years ago and has lived in this city for 33 years, having been educated in the public schools and a business college here. For past 6 years he has been cashier in the King County Treasurer's office and for 4 years previous thereto was Chief Clerk in the Sheriff's office.

Albert E. Parish, candidate for County Treasurer on the Republican ticket, was born in Ontario and has lived in Seattle 21 years; was County Assessor from 1909 to 1914 and for the last 4 years has been engaged in an editorial capacity on the Post-Intelligencer. He says that $35,000 a year can be cut from the County Treasurer's budget but did not definitely indicate how it could be done.

Clark J. Munger, candidate for County Treasurer on the Republican ticket, age 49, resident of this city and county for the past 22 years, stated to the committee that his principal business experience has been in operating hotels. He now looks after the interests of the Masonic Club in the Arcade Building. The only public office he has ever held is that of Hotel Inspector for 8 months under Governor Hay.

C. E. Vilas, candidate for County Treasurer on the Republican ticket, is a banker and expert in appraisals of land values. He was one of the founders of the institution which has since become the Washington Mutual Savings Bank of which he has been an executive for 30 years. He points out that a savings bank is not eligible as a depository for public funds. Mr. Vilas is 65 years of age, was 8 years Assayer in charge of the United States Assay Office of Seattle, and also served in the State Legislature. He is especially proud of having aided in the passage of the law creating a juvenile court. The judgment of the committee is that Mr. Vilas is well qualified for the office.

Mrs. Mary Avery Wilkins, candidate for County Treasurer on the Democratic ticket, born at Atlanta, Georgia, has lived in King County for 15 years during which time she has successfully carried on a contracting, real estate, insurance and loan business, at the same time carrying on a great amount of civic organization work. She promises that if elected there will be no more employees than necessary in her office and they will earn their pay.

COUNTY SHERIFF—

Joel F. Warren, candidate for Sheriff on the Republican ticket, has resided in the state of Washington nearly all his life. He occupied the position of Chief of Police in Seattle during the shipyard strike and stands upon his record. He announces as his policy the strict enforcement of the law against all roadhouses in the County.

Robert T. Hodge, candidate for Sheriff on the Republican ticket, was born in Scotland, is 45 years of age and has resided in the state of Washington for 30 years, the last 12 of which have been spent in the City of Seattle. Has had a high school education and for the past three and one-half years has been engaged in the practice of law. Prior to that time he was Deputy Sheriff and Sheriff of King County, occupying the office of Sheriff for three terms. His contention is that he will remove the sheriff's office from politics and place it on a different basis, materially reducing the expenses of the office. Mr. Hodge stands on his past record which is well known to the voters of this County.

Matt Starwich, candidate for re-election to the office of Sheriff on the Republican ticket, was for many years previous to his election known as a fearless and efficient deputy. His record for economy in the sheriff's office has been unique and a model for other County offices. This economy has not been attained at any cost of efficiency. The Committee believes that Mr. Starwich' record indicates that he will, if re-elected, continue to render exceptionally satisfactory service.

J. K. Jensen, candidate for Sheriff on the Democratic ticket, born in Chicago, is 44 years old, has been a resident of Auburn for 9 years where he is now engaged in the freight department of the Northern Pacific Ry. Co. He is also Police Judge at Auburn, previous to which he was for a short time Deputy Sheriff under Stringer and has been Chief of Police in Auburn. He is strongly in favor of the prohibition and motor vehicle laws being enforced and seems to the Committee to be good material.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF COMMON SCHOOLS—

A. S. Burrows, candidate for County Superintendent on the Republican ticket, is 50 years of age, and has been a resident of Seattle for 30 years. He is a graduate of the University of Washington, was born in Iowa, and has occupied the position of County Superintendent and Deputy Superintendent for the past 17 years. Prior to his election as Superintendent of Schools he was a school teacher. Mr. Burrows is married and has a family of six children and in the Committee's opinion Mr. Burrows is qualified for the office.

Nina O. Buchanan, candidate for Superintendent of Common Schools on the Democratic ticket, was born in Illinois and has been a resident of Seattle for 20 years. She was educated in the common schools of Illinois, High School of Vincennes, Indiana, a graduate of the Illinois State Normal University; has also taken a number of summer and extension courses in the University of Chicago and the University of Washington. Miss Buchanan has the reputation of being a good teacher and the fact that she is at the head of the organization shows she is a good organizer and popular with the teachers. She is particularly interested in the primary work and if elected will bring, she says, intelligent effort to bear on the one-room school problem and would endeavor to eliminate the "fol-de-rol curricula". She is in favor of the proposed 30-10 plan for collection of school funds.

COUNTY ENGINEER—

Thomas R. Beeman, candidate for County Engineer on the Republican ticket, age 41 years, resident of Seattle for 16 years, is a graduate engineer and well known as King County Engineer for the past two years, and previous to that as Assistant County Engineer. He has had a wide experience in charge of railway and highway construction and for two years on the French front was Captain of Engineers in the United States Army. The Committee believes he has operated the Engineer's office efficiently and economically and recommends him for re-election.

Samuel J. Humes, candidate for County Engineer on the Republican ticket, has formerly served in that office. Mr. Humes freely admitted practices followed in his former term in the matter of expenditures of County funds and in the use of County automobiles which, in the judgment of the Committee, disqualify him for the office.

COUNTY CORONER—

Dr. W. H. Corson, candidate for County Coroner on the Republican ticket, 42 years of age, and has lived in Seattle more than 30 years. He is the present coroner and has filed for second term. Is prepared to stand upon the record of his first term of administration. Has been a practicing physician for some 17 years and claims to have an organization at the present time which is administering the affairs of the coroner's office at a minimum cost to the County considering the importance and extent of the work.

Dr. E. A. Gerhart, candidate for County Coroner on the Republican ticket, has resided 4 years in the city of Seattle; born in Colorado and has practiced his profession for 21 years. Prior to coming to this city he resided at Billings, Montana, and occupied the position of Mayor from 1914 to 1916. It is his belief that there has been too much politics in the office in the past and his policy will be to see that the coroner's verdicts are based on facts found at the inquest and direct evidence then submitted, and that politics shall have no influence during his administration.

Dr. D. Sylvester Wilhelmy, candidate for County Coroner on the Republican ticket, was born in Illinois and has lived in Seattle 11 years; practiced medicine 21 years. Dr. Wilhelmy believes that the office of Chief Deputy Coroner is unnecessary and that the number of employees in the coroner's office may be materially reduced with a total possible saving of $10,000 per year.

Dr. Andrew J. Nelson, candidate for County Coroner on the Democratic ticket, is a native of Virginia, 60 years of age, and a resident of this city 15 years during most of which time he has been a practicing physician and surgeon. Dr. Nelson confesses that the office would be desirable to him as a "side line".

COUNTY COMMISSIONER IN THE FIRST COMMISSIONER'S DISTRICT—

R. M. Dyer, candidate for County Commissioner from the City District on the Republican ticket, is a native of Iowa and a resident of Seattle for 17 years. At present he is a member of the Seattle Park Board and for 5 years was president of the Automobile Club of Western Washington. As Vice President and Treasurer of the Puget Sound Bridge & Dredging Co. he had a wide business experience along construction and contracting lines and he has had 31 years experience as an engineer. At present Mr. Dyer is retired.

Wm. A. Gaines, present County Treasurer, candidate for County Commissioner from the City District, age 42, has lived in Seattle 14 years and has never held public office prior to his election as Treasurer. His principal business experience has been in banks and in the general detail work of office and financial business administration. He has definite ideas for economy and efficiency and has illustrated some of his ideas in the conduct of his present office, the records of which show a cost of .56 of 1% as the cost for every $100 collected as taxes during his present term which is a very creditable showing.

David McKenzie, 63 years of age, candidate for County Commissioner from the City District on the Republican ticket, was born in Scotland but has been a resident of this County for 27 years. From 1910 to 1914 he occupied the position of County Commissioner of this County. Since that time he has been Right of Way agent for King County, which position he now occupies. Prior to his election as County Commissioner, he was engaged in Railroad and Steamship business. He stands upon his former record and for the reduction of taxes.

R. H. Thomson, candidate for County Commissioner from the City District, has been too long and too well known to require extended report. As City Engineer for many years, as a consulting engineer in private practice, and as City Councilman, Mr. Thomson has achieved and maintained a high reputation in his office and as a citizen and public official.

The Committee has no recommendation to make as between Mr. Dyer, Mr. Gaines and Mr. Thomson, all of whom are highly qualified in the estimation of the Committee.

William Corcoran, candidate for County Commissioner from the City District on the Democratic ticket, age 59, has been a resident of Seattle for 28 years; is now in the real estate business; has served as Deputy County Clerk and Under Sheriff for 8 years; for many years represented the real estate interests of the Seattle Brewing & Malting Company; is a believer in municipally owned and operated public utilities; was admitted to the bar in New York State and Washington, but has never practiced here.

COUNTY COMMISSIONER IN THE SECOND COMMISSIONER'S DISTRICT—

Frank H. Paul, candidate for County Commissioner from the Second, or South, District, was born in Michigan 60 years ago and has resided in Seattle, or its suburbs, for 38 years, finishing his education at the University of Washington. He has been engaged in the real estate and insurance business as a member of the firm of Kinnear, Paul & Co. for 20 years. Mr. Paul is a successful business man, familiar with King County affairs, and has been closely connected with King County politics for over 30 years, serving as County Assessor, City Comptroller, and as a member of the Board of Appraisers in the Duwamish Waterway condemnation.

James T. Jones, of Kent, candidate for County Commissioner from the South District, was a member of the State Legislature 1919 to 1921, president of the Simplex Bed Company, has done some road building for the city of Kent and was formerly Supervisor of Roads under Lafe Hamilton when he was County Commissioner. Mr. Jones is 58 years of age, has lived in Seattle 18 years, resident of the County 41 years, and is now engaged in the hay and grain business in Kent.

George McFarlane, candidate for County Commissioner from the South District, was born in Scotland and has lived in King County 32 years. At present is assistant Property Agent of King County and in the past has been engaged in dairy farming, saw milling, street contracting and general teaming, in which business he has been successful.

G. E. Hallock, candidate for County Commissioner from the South District, resides in Kent and was born in Michigan in 1856, resident of King County 30 years. At present he is assisting his son who owns a Ford Automobile Agency. Was educated at Hillsdale College; was for years Confidential Agent of the O. & W. R. R. and the C. M. & St. P. He is well posted on County affairs and takes a firm position for reduction of taxation, and for economy of administration.

S. F. Woody, candidate for County Commissioner for the South District, is a native of Kentucky and a resident of King County for 20 years, engaged in the real estate business. He is president of the Seattle Real Estate Association, vice president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and has served with credit for two terms as Mayor of Bothell; now lives in West Seattle. Mr. Woody is a man of experience and ability; is very familiar with County problems and especially matters which call for a change and in the estimation of the Committee can render valuable service to the County as Commissioner.

I. G. O'Harra, candidate for County Commissioner for the South District, on the Democratic ticket, is a native of Indiana, age 48, has been a resident of Seattle for 20 years, now resides at Rainier Beach where he operates a retail grocery and wharf business. During the war he was employed by Skinner & Eddy as foreman of construction and served the industry by effecting adjustments of working plans between the Government and the shipyard workers. He was State Senator in the last Legislature from the 31st Senatorial District and relies upon his present political strength in that District to elect him as County Commissioner.

Fred Nelsen, candidate for County Commissioner for the South District on the Democratic ticket, is a native of Denmark, age 50, a resident of King County for 33 years. Has been a farmer all his life and is now living with his family on and operating a dairy farm near Renton Junction. Represented the 40th District one term in the State Legislature and has been a School Director 8 years in his district. Has had considerable experience in road building and maintenance. Promises to devote his entire time to the work.

COLE-TAYLOR EXHIBITS

In a previous issue the report of the Educational Committee on Cole-Taylor controversy was published together with certain exhibits submitted by Mr. Cole. Space did not permit the publication of Mr. Taylor's statement and his exhibits. This following contains such statement and exhibits:

* * *

(copy)

Seattle, Washington,
Aug. 16, 1922.

Mr. Carl E. Croson,

Leary Building,

Seattle, Washington.

My dear Mr. Croson:

I have read Miss Lytle's statement of our interview with Mr. Taylor, and I heartily subscribe to all that she says.

As regards the religious question which arose in the interview over the Americana Encyclopedia, I would like to add that though I am a Protestant and a member of the Plymouth Congregational Church for many years, as a history teacher I have no religious bias.

Respectfully yours,

ELIZABETH ROWELL.

TAYLOR'S STATEMENT

Seattle, Washington,
August 18, 1922.

To the Board of Directors,

Municipal League,

Seattle, Wash.

Gentlemen:

I submit herewith a copy of my reply dated August 4, 1922 and filed with the Board of Directors of School District No. 1, to Mr. Cole's charges against me which he filed with the Board on July 28th.

I also submit a copy of my letter to Dodd, Mead & Co. dated August 9th and Dodd, Mead & Co.'s reply dated May 15th, confirming my statements during the campaign, that I would have no dealings with the School Board during my term of office in which I had any profit in any way.

I also submit a copy of an affidavit made by Mr. R. C. Miller who made a bid on dictionaries and encyclopedias. Mr. Miller has a contract direct with Dodd, Mead & Co., New York, and has had such a contract for a number of years.

I was not pleased with the action of the Board in ordering nearly $25,000.00 worth of text books on what purported to be a report of the "Purchasing Committee." was not aware that the School Board had a "Purchasing Committee." The action authorizing this purchase was taken in a period of not to exceed three minutes of time. I have never yet seen the list of books that was purchased. The report was signed by J. L. Moseley, Supt. of Supplies, and R. W. Jones, Secretary of the Board, neither of whom are members of the Board or members of the "Purchasing Committee." The report was handed to the Board by Assistant Supt. Cole. I asked Mr. Moseley to hold up the purchase of fifteen dictionaries from the J. K. Gill Co. of Portland, until I could consult other members of the Board regarding it. These books could have been purchased from Lowman & Hanford Co. in Seattle at the same prices that the order was given to Portland. At least two other Seattle dealers could have furnished the same books at the same price.

I believe, as a member of the Board of Education, I have a perfect right, in fact, I believe it is my duty so far as possible to question employees regarding their recommendations concerning the work of the schools and particularly concerning purchases of any kinds for which the taxpayers must pay, and I questioned the Librarian that Mr. Cole sent to my office upon his own suggestion and I questioned Mr. Cole regarding his knowledge of reference books, and the questioning developed the fact that neither one of them knew much of anything about the books they were recommending, and the reasons for changing from the New International Encyclopaedia, which had been the one previously purchased, to the Americana, was not well founded.

Mr. Cole's whole charge against me is to the effect that I was trying to influence the School Board, of which I am a member, to purchase books from the sale of which I would have a profit, and evidently his sending the Librarian to my office, and a teacher with her, was the foundation for the attack he planned.

The papers herewith submitted should prove conclusively that I could not have had any profit if the books on which Mr. Miller bid had been purchased by the Board, which they were not.

Your very truly,

E. F. TAYLOR.

August 4, 1922

To the Board of Directors,
Seattle School District No. 1.
Gentlemen:

At the last meeting of this Board on July 28th, an employee, Supt. Cole, filed a "special report pertaining to dictionaries and encyclopedias" copies of this Board and the PUBLIC PRESS.

The purport of these charges being that I attempted to influence the purchase of these books from the firm that I represent for my own profit.

He further stated that I had said to him on July 20th, "I expected you to take care of that matter for me" referring to his recommendation of the New International Encyclopaedia.

I wish to brand these statements of this employee as MALICIOUS FALSEHOODS.

I have never asked nor sought to influence any member of this Board since I became a member to recommend or vote for any book published by the firms with which I am connected.

Upon my selection to the School Board I immediately notified Dodd, Mead & Co., in writing that I had been elected to the School Board and could not therefore represent them in any matters of dealings with the Board, and that I could not be and would not be in any way interested in any sales to the Board, and since that time I have not had, and have not now, any interest in any sales of publications by Dodd, Mead & Co., to the School Board of the city of Seattle and if any purchases should be made from Dodd, Mead & Co., I would not profit thereby a single cent.

I direct your attention to the fact that these personal charges were no part of his regular report and had no place in it, and that Supt. Cole seems to have deliberately gone out of his way to make an attack upon me as a member of this Board, and it is a well known fact to you gentlemen, members of this Board, that from the time I came on this Board to the present time I have been in almost constant opposition to the extravagant program of Supt. Cole and that nobody but a crazy man would think for a minute that I would go to him to try to bribe or influence him in any matter in which I had a personal profit.

This report of Supt. Cole may have been partly inspired by the fact that I opposed his extravagant recommendations and budget for the Educational Department.

I opposed his recommendation and the election of some twenty high priced supervisors believing that half that number would be sufficient.

I opposed his special hobby of supervised study in our high schools which is costing the taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars and which in my judgment is not bringing reasonable returns.

I opposed his recommendation that we drop 75 teachers from the rank and file of the workers, to save on the budget, while at the same time he proposed keeping all the high priced supervisors, etc.

I opposed jumping his salary up from $5100 to $7500, an increase of $2400 while the Board was unwillingly compelled to require every teacher to accept a cut.

I have vigorously opposed his continued employment of non-resident teachers sincerely believing that there are plenty of qualified teachers residents of Seattle to fill all vacancies.

At a meeting of this Honorable Board the week before these charges were made I declined to vote on a list of names of teachers that he was recommending for election because I had been given no opportunity to look over the applications and recommendations of the people I was asked to vote for.

A more formal and complete statement will be filed by me in the very near future.

Respectfully submitted,
E. F. TAYLOR.

OUR EVER RECURRING TAX PROBLEM

BY JAMES T. LAWLER

Chairman Taxation Committee, Municipal League

Our tax problem is up again. It will always be a live issue where there is money to spend and people to spend it. It is axiomatic that the farther removed the employer is from the employee the less likely is the latter to give efficient service. In the case of private corporations or individual employers those on the payroll know that if they do not render efficient service they will forfeit their jobs. In the case of municipal corporations on the other hand this fear does not exist. The public servants and employees trust to the short memory of the public and say to themselves: "this sudden commotion or uprising will soon cease and all will be calm again." It would be amusing if it were not so serious for the average taxpayer to consider the antics of those entrusted with the operation of our municipal machinery. Passing the buck still seems to be the favorite passtime. Notwithstanding the great fight made by the taxpayers of the city last year, particularly by the Tax Reduction Council (which represented over fifty civic and fraternal organizations,) for tax reduction, there appears to be a tendency on the part of our City Council to get back into the old rut of allowing practically everything demanded by the heads of our different departments. They seem to experience great difficulty in holding the levy down to 26 mills, where it now stands. The preliminary budget estimates submitted total $6,683,513.68; these figures do not include the abandonments and savings of the departments to be paid back, which approximate $250,000.00; deducting this item leaves the estimate at $6,433,513.68. The total levy for 1922 was $6,319,342.00, showing an increase for 1923 of $114,171.00. This does not include an additional $225,000.00 loss in revenue due to a reduction of $11,000,000.00 in the valuation of our City property; thus we have on the showing to date an approximate increase for 1923 over 1922 of approximately $350,000.00.

From my knowledge of the tax situation I believe there is nothing published which we read with greater interest and more absorbed by the taxpayers than articles or editorials on taxation. But like the street car problem it ramifies into so many directions and twists and turns and becomes so involved that unless one is an expert he throws up his hands and trusts to luck. Recently however, one of the best things stated by our Mayor was the following: "I shall get in communication with the heads of the departments and tell them to help the council to cut off from ten to twenty per cent in every department except police and fire." This was followed by Councilman Cohen's announcement that the Mayor was stealing his thunder or words to that effect, adding however that it is up to the Mayor to designate the positions he wishes abolished. And on the heels of both of these announcements comes the gratifying news that Chairman Blaine of the Council Finance Committee has ordered slashes aggregating $250,000.00 in the preliminary budget estimate of municipal departments. This seems to be getting somewhere. There must be co-operation between the Council and the Mayor in the matter of insisting upon the heads of the departments getting along with less and then staying within their budget. When the heads of the departments are told that they must get along with 10 or 20% less money they will then begin to weed out the "political incurables." This has been the attitude of the Tax Reduction Council from the beginning.

Referring briefly to the Tax Reduction Council, while the members of the council have not been as active as last year, yet they are observant of every move of the council and the Mayor, and will be of the other taxing units at the proper time. It cannot be expected that men and women will volunteer their services year in and year out preparing and submitting reports. This should not be necessary. Our elected officials were elected to represent the people and to carry out the people's mandate. This called for lower taxation. 26 mills for the City is too high and yet there is hesitancy to keep the millage at this figure.

Here are a few facts and figures which should be constantly kept in mind by our city officials. In the ten year period between 1913 and 1922 inclusive the city gained 36 per cent in population, yet it costs 80 per cent more to run the city's government. And if the proposed 1923 budget goes through the increase will be 86½ per cent.

Before we can get our taxation on a scientific basis we must have a bureau of municipal research to be on the job all the time. Anything else is mere makeshift. Because of the absence of machinery engaged in a constant study of our taxation problems, there are a few people competent enough to step in and act when an emergency arises, and because of the absence of authoritative information the public has little opportunity to arrive at a unanimity of opinion in regard to the subject. Nothing short of a comprehensive and continuous fact-finding and fact-reporting agency is sufficient. Such an agency would be a bureau of municipal research.

Respectfully,

JAMES T. LAWLER.

SECRETARY'S NOTES

Next Tuesday's program should be a particularly appealing one to the members of the League. The Educational Committee's report on the Cole-Taylor controversy which was referred back to the committee last meeting will be brought on again for hearing next Tuesday. The committee under the acting chairmanship of L. B. Schwellenbach has met repeatedly during the past week, and while at this time the writer does not know the nature of its report, it is to be taken for granted that there will be a lively discussion.

In the event that this report is not ready by Tuesday, the Program Committee, under the acting chairmanship of Mr. Orway Pardee, will put on a program on zoning. This subject, which is one of extreme importance to the city of Seattle at the present time and which affects every section of the city, should receive the earliest consideration of every member of the League.

It is hoped that a large attendance will be present at this meeting.

Several reports are in prospect for the coming weeks. Mr. Haight's committee on the Skagit will soon render its report. The Civil Service Committee will shortly submit a report on the pensioning of employees. The Charter Revision Committee which has been at work all summer is also expected to make a preliminary report, and so on.

Several matters noted from time to time in prior issues of the News have been referred to committees and the membership can expect reports on various civic phases to be submitted to it in the near future.

* * *

The value of the Municipal News to the League, and I believe to the citizens as a whole, is of inestimable value. Witness the case of the report on candidates. The report was submitted last Friday and adopted by the membership of the League without a dissenting vote. Copies of this report were sent to all of the newspapers immediately upon its being approved. Not one paper printed the report in full or substantial extracts from it. The Times in its Saturday edition did have a few inches devoted to a summary of the report—the other papers had nothing. More than one thousand copies of the News were ordered by candidates who received favorable mention in the report. In addition to that, scores of copies were called for by private citizens. It is safe to say that at least five thousand people saw the report as it was printed in full in the News.

* * *

Newspapers cannot frequently be trusted to keep their word. Take the case of the Cole-Taylor report. At a meeting of the Board of Trustees on August 21 it was decided that the report should be turned over to the Seattle Daily Times on the condition that the report be published in full or not at all. The City Editor accepted the condition and the Secretary in submitting the report confirmed the understanding by writing the following letter:-

"August 22, 1922

"Mr. Richard W. Buchanan,
"City Editor, 'The Seattle Times'
"Seattle.

"Dear Buchanan:

"The following report of the Educational committee was presented to the Board of Trustees of the Municipal League at its regular meeting yesterday noon at the Elk's Club. The Board accepted the report and ordered the same presented to the membership of the League Tuesday noon, Sept. 12. (The first meeting of the League takes place Tuesday, Sept. 5, at which time the Candidates Investigating Committee report on county and legislative candidates will be presented). The Board instructed me to turn over a copy of this report to 'The Seattle Times' on condition that the report be published in full. In the event you can do this in today's issue, well and good, otherwise you are at liberty to hold it over until such time as it can be published in full.

"The committee consisted of L. B. Schwellenbach, chairman, H. A. Woodcock, and D. D. Johnson.

"Very truly yours,

"Eimon L. Wienir,

"Secretary"

That afternoon a brief article appeared in the Times quoting but a portion of the report. A committee called upon the Editor the following morning and waited on Colonel Blethen for something like an hour. Finally word came that Colonel Blethen would be unable to see the committee until the following day. Of course, this would have made the interview useless in so far as correcting the mischief done was concerned, for by that time the other newspapers had also articles on the report and the subject would no longer be "news". Thus, the value of the Municipal News to the League becomes of increasing importance. Members should aid in making this publication the best possible and see to it that their friends subscribe to it whether they be members of the League or not.

COLE-TAYLOR REPORT IS REFERRED BACK TO COMMITTEE

The report on the Cole-Taylor controversy which has appeared in full in previous issues of the News was submitted to the membership of the League at a special meeting on September 12. Mr. H. A. Woodcock, in the absence of acting chairman L. B. Schwellenbach, read the report. A motion to adopt the report was made and seconded. Mr. James A. Haight then moved an amendment to the motion that there be included a commendation of the action of Superintendent Cole in bringing to the attention of the School Board and to the attention of the people the matter which is the subject of this report. Mr. Cole has rendered a great public service in so calling attention to the matter under consideration and he deserves the commendation of the League. Dr. Walter Kelton then spoke at length favoring the tabling of the report and later so moved, but finally withdrew this motion. Mr. Haight then withdrew his amendment and the report was ordered referred back to the committee for further investigation and report.

It is expected that the Educational Committee will have the new report ready by Tuesday.

SCHWELLENBACH STATE AMERICAN LEGION COMMANDER

At the annual meeting of the American Legion of the State at Wenatchee, L. B. Schwellenbach, a member of the Board of Trustees of the Municipal League, was elected State Commander of the Legion.

Mr. Schwellenbach will represent the state at the annual National meeting of the Legion at New Orleans early next month. His work, too, as State Commander, will require him to make numerous visits throughout the State during the course of the year.

Edward H. Dodd,

New York, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Dodd:

I thank you for your letter about the campaign for the School Board and I have already mailed you a printed account of the result and I have already been sworn into the job. Under the laws I am not allowed to have any business dealings, of which I make a profit, with the School Board, so long as I am a member thereof. Therefore, any orders from the School Board may give will never have to be given direct to Dodd, Mead & Co., New York, or sent to Mr. Miller, and you must be in a position to make affidavit that you have not paid me any commission in any way on orders from the Seattle Board of Education during my term of office. There is no reason, however, why our salesman could not receive his regular commission on any orders that the Board may give through him.

Yours very truly,

E. F. TAYLOR.

Dear Mr. Taylor:-

From your letter of May 9th, we understand that as you are a school board official, you are not allowed to make any profit on the sale of the new International Encyclopaedia, but as you say, there is no reason why our salesman cannot work diligently on his business and report sales to this office, you shipping out the sets from our office and we paying your agents their proper commission but paying you no branch office commission.

If this understanding is correct, will you kindly confirm it and act accordingly on any such orders received? We should then be in a position to make affidavits to the school board that you personally have not made anything from these sales.

Yours very truly,

Gentlemen:

At a meeting of your Board held on July 28th, Superintendent Cole presented a report in which he criticized and made charges against Director Taylor with reference to my bids for encyclopaedias and dictionaries.

In as much as my name has been brought into the controversy I wish to submit herewith a copy of my original contract with Dodd, Mead & Company of New York showing that I am employed directly by this publishing firm.

My business connections with the Wheeler Publishing Company are similar to those with Dodd, Mead & Company except that they do not have written contract with salesmen, but the conditions of employment are identical.

When I proposed submitting a bid on encyclopaedias and dictionaries for the publishing houses that I represent I discussed the matter with Mr. Taylor and he told me distinctly that he would not have any connection whatever with any such bid, that if the bids were submitted it must be in every way a matter between myself and the publishers, and that if the bids were accepted I would have to make arrangements to have the books delivered direct from the publishers and not through the Seattle branch office.

THE CITY CLUB OF MILWAUKEE

By L. Tiefenthaler, Civic Sect'ry.

The general purpose of the City Club, in the words of its articles of incorporation, is to bring about a closer union and co-operation among citizens who sincerely desire to study municipal affairs, to acquire and disseminate accurate information concerning these subjects and generally to promote, in a practical and effective way, better social, civic and economic conditions.

A small group of men interested in promoting civic welfare got together twelve years ago and organized the City Club. At first it had no headquarters, but met at any convenient place. Three years later it rented quarters. They were small, but so was the club. In 1917 the club took a lease on its present quarters. These are much larger, but have already become inadequate for the constantly growing membership, which in the last four years has grown from 750 to 2,026.

Almost from its inception the club admitted both men and women. At present about 30 per cent of its membership consists of women.

The club carries out its purpose in three ways: Through its social life, its speaking forum, and its civic work.

The club's social life centers about its quiet, pleasant lounge with its many current periodicals, and its dining room, at which luncheon and dinner are served and where members develop a personal acquaintance with one another. In small dining rooms committees of the club and other groups meet for discussion of public questions and to plan for specific effort in the current interest of the community.

The club's speaking forum keeps members in intimate touch with modern thought on political, economic and social questions. This has been so successful that the club is now recognized as the chief and most useful forum in the city and state. When the club quarters are inadequate to meet the demand to hear noted speakers, the addresses are delivered in larger downtown halls. On these occasions each member is permitted to invite a friend. During the past year fifty-four lectures were given. These addresses, many given by famous men and women of this and other countries, have exerted an influence far beyond its own membership because of the city-wide and even state-wide publicity that is given them through the newspapers. The City Club has found that there is no more effective way of building up a membership and reining it than to give its members an opportunity to hear the best speakers available. The club spends several thousand dollars a year to maintain a forum of the highest class and its experience proves this is a good investment.

Preservation of Trees and Open Spaces in New Subdivisions

In the preparation of city plans, it is important to preserve sufficient trees, particularly in residential areas, to give a certain amount of furnishing to the area and to prevent the bare uninteresting effect produced by looking on a number of new buildings without any of the natural relief obtained from foliage. The advantage of trees for shade and to some extent as a protection against fire cannot be questioned. Every new subdivision should have recreation space to the extent of one acre for every 100 houses. In certain provinces, of Canada, there is a regulation that requires that one acre in every ten acres be left as an open space and dedicated to the public. This is a good rule even if it cannot be applied consistently without some injustice. If a section of land is crowded thickly with buildings, it should have more open space than a section which is sparsely occupied. One acre in every ten means the provision of a playground to every fifty houses, allowing about five and a half houses to the acre. It is a good average, however, because as time goes on it will be easy to build 80 to 90 houses on nine acres.

If the general plan of the city includes provisions to prevent the erection of buildings on marshy or flooded land, these will automatically become part of the breathing space. Open spaces can frequently be provided on land that is not adaptable for building. The saving in construction of narrow roads next to open spaces is often sufficient to justify the loss of area of building land which results from providing these open spaces.

The Problem of the Outskirts

One of the tragedies of modern city life and the development of industrialism has been the conflict or aloofness that has grown up between the city and the country. We have ignored the fact that agriculture, as Gibbons says, is the foundation of manufactures. This is truer in modern times in a commercial sense than ever before. It is also true in the sense than physical and mental deterioration in the city has to be balanced by maintaining a healthy and vigorous race in the country.

Unfortunately in many country districts the conditions are productive of deterioration as much as in the crowded city. The proper ideal is to make the city more healthy by introducing more of the attractions of the country, and to make the country more healthy by extending to it more of the attractions of the city. The present tendency continues, even politically, towards further conflict between city and country interests. Often the worst building development takes place in the rural areas surrounding large cities. The greatest difficulties of obtaining effective control of highways, sanitation and of land development are probably to be found along the fringes just over the boundaries of cities. The rural municipality, very often having the outlook of a purely farming population, regards the suburban exrescence of the city as an undesirable encroachment, even if it has the redeeming feature of bringing some added revenue. The rural council has not been accustomed to deal with that class of development and it leaves it uncontrolled or governed by rural standards, quite inadequate to meet urban conditions. On the other hand, the city looks upon the overflow into the rural territory as something to be discouraged because it naturally does not favor the loss of its inhabitants. For that reason, it avoids extending its water supply or its sewerage system to the outside areas when it can do so.

Thus the selfish interests of the city and of the country mean the neglect of the very territory that most needs planning and the laying down of the soundest conditions of development.

To make matters worse, the extension of cities takes place in a haphazard way and on no definite principle with the consequence that the township authority suspends improvements as long as it can in the hope that it will be able to escape its obligations altogether, while the city authority defers as long as possible any movements for extension.

LEAGUE ADOPTS COLE-TAYLOR REPORT

At the meeting of the Municipal League Tuesday noon, September 12th, the report of the Educational Committee, headed by L. B. Schwellenbach, on the Cole-Taylor controversy, was adopted. The League also passed a resolution to the effect that "commended the action of Mr. Cole in bringing the matter to the attention of the board and the general public." Mr. Haight, who fostered the resolution, stated that in his opinion the incident is a valuable one as it brought active discussion as to the duty of the members of the board and would have a wholesome effect upon the conduct of the school affairs.

Dr. Walter Kelton spoke at length against the adoption of the report, as did Fred Catlett who charged that the letters written by school director Taylor to his publishing house were a subterfuge to permit the violation of the law. Several motions to amend the report of the committee proposed by Dr. Kelton failed of passage.

Those who spoke for the adoption of the report were Jackson H. Baugh, James W. Reynolds, and James A. Haight.

The special Educational Committee to which the question was referred for further report brought the following report Tuesday noon, which was adopted.

September 11th, 1922.

Municipal League,
Seattle, Washington.
Gentlemen:

Your Special Education Committee, appointed for the purpose of investigating the so-called Cole-Taylor controversy, met last Friday and considered the action of the League in referring the matter to the Committee its report

Tuesday Noon, September 19th
at the L. C. Smith Building Restaurant
Illustrated Address on Zoning by Mr. E. L. Gaines, Engineer and Executive Secretary of Zoning Commission.

Tuesday Noon, September 26th

at the L C Smith Building Restaurant

for further action and decided to resubmit the report without amendment. It is our understanding that there were three points of criticism of the report:

First: That Mr. Cole was not given an opportunity to reply to the answer of Mr. Taylor.

Second: That the parties were not given an opportunity to appear personally before the Committee; and,

Third: That the report did not commend the action of Mr. Cole in filing his charges against Mr. Taylor.

Taking up the criticisms in order we desire to say: First, we did not feel there was any affirmative matter contained in the answer of Mr. Taylor that called for a reply on the part of Mr. Cole. We believe that a careful analysis of our report will show that there was no controverted point considered in the conclusion reached except the question as between Mr. Moseley and Mr. Taylor and that was decided against Mr. Taylor. Second, we felt at the time of the original investigation and we still feel that the best way to handle this matter was on written statements. There is so much bitterness involved in this controversy and so much antagonism between the parties that it is impossible for either side to discuss the matter without taking up irrelevant and immaterial questions. The persons who criticize our report do not seem to realize that the only question submitted to us was this one controversy, that we were not instructed to pass upon the general question of Mr. Taylor's record or any of his acts except those specifically involved in the charges of Mr. Cole. We do not feel that any benefit could come to any one by having a general discussion on the part of each of the parties concerning the character of the other party. There was a clear cut issue presented and we considered it and met it. Third, we do not feel that it was necessary to commend Mr. Cole for making the charge, he was not under fire and we do not believe it was either necessary or proper to include in our report any commendation of Mr. Cole.

Yours very truly

SECRETARY'S NOTES

The writer made an earnest appeal at last Tuesday's meeting for better attendance. He called upon those present to assist in the increase of attendance by inviting other members of the League and friends of the members to participate in the programs. Nothing, he said, encouraged the officers of the League, the committees and the speakers who come to us, so much as a large attendance. He also pointed out the fact that the Municipal News is the newspaper of the League and that each of its members was not only privileged to write articles of opinion concerning the municipal government in the columns of the "News", but that each member was particularly and urgently invited to do so. He further illustrated the value of the "News" in so far as the publication of the reports in full were concerned, by pointing out that the daily newspapers of the city had scarcely a mention of the candidates investigating committee report. Some fifteen hundred copies of the "News" were distributed broad-cast throughout the city. "If more citizens, irrespective of whether they are members or not, would subscribe to the "News" the influence of the League would be broadened and the projects that the League hopes to carry thru successfully this year would be encouraged," declared the Secretary.

Mr. James A. Haight joined with the Secretary in the appeal stating that the program for the city-manager government which the League had inaugurated and upon which it was now working was the greatest single piece of constructive work that any civic organization in the city had promulgated. The citizens of this city will find in the League

FACTS ABOUT REVENUE & EXPENDITURE SITUATION

Secretary's Note.—The following resume of the revenue and expenditure situation appearing in the published report of the State of Washington Tax Investigation Committee appointed by Gov. Louis F. Hart is so concise and yet comprehensive that we deem it of value to those who desire information on the tax situation of the state.

The revenue problem which confronts the State of Washington is not one peculiar to this state alone. Every state in the union is seeking, in one way or another, to meet satisfactorily the same problem. In some it is no doubt more acute than here. Everywhere the costs of government are rapidly mounting, and tax rates are rising to unprecedented levels. No fewer than eight states have recently created special committees of investigation similar to this one.

In some respects the situation in Washington is quite different from that which prevails in the older states, or those with markedly different economic characteristics. Potentially this state possesses vast wealth in lumber, minerals, fisheries and soil, but these resources are as yet not fully developed. Their full development must wait for population and capital. The state is in its infancy economically. It therefore lacks the immense reservoir of tax paying power to which older and more wealthy states have access.

Nevertheless, in Washington we have been under the necessity of providing the agencies of organized government and of modern social organization on a comprehensive scale. Our school system extends to every corner of the state, and we have provided in many places facilities for the education of a few children which would be adequate to care for larger numbers at little or no additional cost. We have covered the state with a magnificent system of arterial highways, hundreds of miles of which traverse sparsely settled districts. In various other ways we have been obliged, by the pressure of public opinion and drift of the times, to provide those governmental facilities which make most of the difference between pioneer conditions and comfortable modern life, small population and on a relatively small basis of taxable wealth. The state and local financial problems are at present serious, largely because of the gulf between the enormous physical territory to be served and the limited available taxable resources. The tax duplicates of many cities in the East exceed the entire duplicate of the state, yet we are endeavoring to provide governmental services on a scale and of a quality comparable with the East, for an area of 69,127 square miles.

The act which created this committee indicated a definite problem to which an answer was to be sought. This problem is stated, in the terms of the enactment, as that of relieving real estate and tangible personal property of a part of the tax burden which these classes of property are now carrying. Your committee understands this to be, in other words, the problem of the more equitable distribution of the tax burden. This problem may be approached from two angles, both of which have been given careful consideration:-

First: The more equitable distribution of the tax burden thru improved administration and enforcement of existing tax laws.

Second: A redistribution of the tax burden through the development of new sources of revenue.

We have been unable, however, to confine our inquiries wholly to this rather limited view of the state's revenue problem. We have realized that the tendency towards further increase in the outlays made by the state and local subdivisions is steady and more or less inevitable, so that the question of the future increase in the total revenue needs cannot be entirely avoided. The full consideration of the state's future revenue requirements would carry us beyond the scope of the problem committed to us, and we have undertaken no forecast of these needs, nor have we deemed it proper to formulate a complete revenue program to meet the public requirements for an indefinite time. A thorough study of this larger problem would require more time and more ample resources than were at our disposal. Farther on in this report will be found some suggestions which look toward the development of a model taxation system for the State of Washington.

Seattle, Sept. 5, 1922.

The annual spasm is on for reducing the salaries of City Clerks and for reducing the force and thereby, to my mind, lessening the efficiency of the service.

While the taxpayers of course want expenses cut down and their taxes reduced, yet to those who have a broad view of the whole situation, it seems that the energies of the officials might be directed in better channels.

Come, let us take stock. Why should we reduce a few clerks and discharge others and at the same time buy expensive park that we do not need.

The so-called Salt Water Park of 130 acres just south of Lincoln Beach at the extreme Southwest corner of the city is referred to. The city of Seattle is not short of parks; it has 30 parks containing 1155 acres, well distributed throughout the city, 2 playgrounds containing 87 acres and 9 unimproved tracts. This is quite a modest acreage for a city of 340,000 people. Of the parks 12 contain more than 10 acres each, and of these 12, 4 contain from 20 to 60 acres and 4 contain over 100 acres each.

Seward Park has 194 acres; Woodland, 179; Washington, 163; Jefferson, 101; Ravenna and Cowen which are together, 50; Volunteer, 48, and Interlaken, 46,—the others are smaller. When it is remembered that the parkways or boulevards and squares contain 228 acres and the water area 240 acres, it is apparent how generously we are provided with parks and playgrounds. Where, then, is the necessity for buying another park of 130 acres in the extreme southwest corner of the city? Rather it is an extravagant waste when so much of the people's property is sold every year for non-payment of taxes.

It would be far better business for the city to sell some of the 600 lots which we do not need and the 327 acres of land on the side of the city, some of which is outside of King County.

JAS. E. BLACKWELL.

Edward W. Allen, chairman of the Educational Committee, returned this week from a month's visit to Alaska. He is now prepared to assume active chairmanship of the Educational Committee work.

Forgetfulness Was Mutual

Seeing an advertisement of a safety razor company in the papers, a young man wrote the following letter to the firm:

"Gentlemen: Enclosed please find for which send me a safety razor.

P. S.: I forgot to enclose the money but no doubt a firm of your reputation would not hesitate to forward a razor.

To which he received the reply: "Dear Sir: Your order received. We are enclosing one safety razor which we hope will prove satisfactory. P. S.: We forgot to enclose the money but we think that a fellow of your cheek does not need one of our razors."—Capper's Weekly.

WHO'S WHO

Member Board of Trustees

Dallas D. Johnson was born in Iowa where he attended high school. He completed his undergraduate work at the Iowa State Teachers College, coming to Seattle in 1908 to assume his duties as an elementary school principal. In 1913 he resigned from the public schools in order to accept a scholarship at Columbia University where he completed his graduate work, receiving his M. A. degree in 1914.

During 1914-15 Mr. Johnson was director of Teacher training in the Bowling Green (Ohio) State Normal School. He returned to Seattle in September 1915 to serve as assistant professor of Education at the University of Washington teaching Educational Sociology.

In 1917, he resigned his position at the University of Washington to become assistant secretary of the Lincoln Trust Co., Spokane. Soon after that, however, he was invited by Dr. Charles A. Prosser, Director of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, to accept an important position on his staff at Washington, D. C. Mr. Johnson was identified for over three years with the work of vocationally rehabilitating men and women who were disabled in the service, serving the major portion of that time as assistant to Mr. Claude H. Anderson Chief of rehabilitation Division for this district; Mr. Anderson was president of the Municipal League during the past year. April 1st last, Mr. Johnson was appointed special agent for the Aetna Life Insurance Company. His office is 244 Central Bldg.

Mr. Johnson is a member of the Tau Kappa Alpha, Acacia Club, and Phi Delta Kappa.

CARKEEK RETURNS FROM TRIP ABROAD

Vivian M. Carkeek, a prominent Seattle attorney and member of the Board of Trustees of the Municipal League, with Mrs. Carkeek, returned this week from a five months trip to England and the continental countries.

"I want to emphasize the fact," Mr. Carkeek said, "that the greatest problem confronting Seattle is the combining of the city and county governments. The new city and county of London, which has taken in many of the old English counties, has been an unqualified success. It has resulted in much greater efficiency and a noticeably decreased cost in government."

Mr. and Mrs. Carkeek, formerly Miss Florence Lewis, left here April 29 for their honeymoon. They spent nearly a month in the East and sailed for England May 24. They traveled through Belgium, France and Germany, and visited Oberammergau, where they witnessed the Passion Play. From there they went through Austria to Italy and then north through France and Germany to Reval, Esthonia, where they visited Mrs. Carkeek's sister, Mrs. P. G. Brenna, wife of the Italian minister to Esthonia. Mrs. Brenna was formerly Miss Gwendolyn Carkeek of this city.

From Esthonia Mr. and Mrs. Carkeek returned to England, by way of Germany and Holland. While in England they visited Sir Arthur Carkeek, an uncle of Mr. Carkeek, on his estate in Cornwall in the west of England. Mr. Carkeek, spent much of his time studying economic conditions abroad and said he believes the countries are recovering more rapidly from the effects of the war than their bankers or financiers are willing to admit.

Next Tuesday's program will consist of an address by Mr. E. L. Gaines on zoning. Mr. Gaines, who is engineer and executive secretary of the Zoning Commission of the city and who is thoroughly familiar with the zoning program of the commission will illustrate his address by a number of slides. Those who are familiar with the work already done by the commission will appreciate the arduous and extremely difficult task which has at all times confronted the commission. So municipal subject of the day touches the various residential localities so closely as does the subject of zoning. The address will take about forty-five minutes, and the meeting will start promptly at 12 so as to give all the time necessary to the speaker.

SECRETARY'S NOTES

the greatest field for patriotic service, declared Mr. Haight.

There are a number of members who are still in arrears in the dues. These should make an immediate effort to pay what is due. Perhaps no other organization of the city accomplishing the work which the League is engaged in has dues as low. Certainly it should be no burden to anyone to pay $3.00 a year. As a matter of fact, that sum is hardly sufficient at this time to carry the full financial responsibility that the organization is shouldering. The least that a member can do is to pay the small sum as quickly and as expeditiously as possible.

The absence of a uniform state system of assessment is a further cause of trouble and it is round the question of assessment that the final battle is usually fought when the question of extending a city area comes up for consideration. The final result is usually a compromise giving the inhabitants of the rural area enjoyment of a fixed assessment for a period of years and saving the city some money for development. The general interests and welfare of the community are ignored in a struggle for the best financial terms. The making of regional surveys will perhaps help us to arrive at some better method of readjusting municipal boundaries in the interests of both the city and the adjacent rural territory.

Agricultural Belts

Mr. John Irwin Bright has put forward a proposal for the developing productive belts around cities. Were this proposal followed up it would revolutionize town development in America and reestablish a proper equilibrium between town and country. The significance of such schemes, and of movements leading to the creation of Garden Cities and Farm Cities, is that they are showing the way towards a new conception of the principles on which modern cities should be encouraged to expand. The productive agricultural belt or wedge will be essential as the public park or playground in the city of the future. If the large modern industrial city is to be preserved from decay and disintegration when it grows still larger, it must develop a system of lungs on a greater scale than hitherto, and productive parks are more economical and practicable for this purpose than recreation parks. The needs of the population for open space and nature is greater than their needs for recreation space or than is practicable to provide on a non-productive basis. That is the reason for the significance of the Garden City plan with its agricultural belt.

Many years may elapse before this idea takes a full hold, but it is not conceivable that future generations will be so blind to the evil tendencies of unrestricted expansion of congested urban areas as to reject the only effective solution. The control of the development of land is essential to this solution of the problem of congestion. Large areas of land near and within cities can be more economically used for agricultural production than for building, because their levels are such as to make the cost of conversion into building land and construction of local improvements excessive in comparison with the values they create for building purposes.

The fourth and final stage would consist in preparing the provisions of the scheme or the ordinance which is to give statutory effect to the plan and make it a workable instrument. This raises the question of the law in relation to planning of the city.

The law in relation to city planning has to do with the acquisition of land for public purposes, control of public utilities, water fronts, streets, erection and setback of buildings, traffic regulations, zoning regulations governing the classification and delimitation of areas of land for different uses, heights, and densities of buildings and other matters.

In the United States it has also to do with excess condemnation governed by constitutional amendment in different states and the statutes under them.

SECRETARY'S NOTE
 The following articles on City Clubs and the other articles which will appear in the news from time to time were written especially for the bulletin entitled "City Clubs in America" gotten out under the auspices of the National Association of Civic Secretaries. The purpose of the publication of the articles is well set forth in the preface.

"The story of the American City Club, a non-partisan civic organization without economic, political or religious bias, located in a score of the great municipalities of the country, is of interest to public-minded folks in the degree in which they retain their faith in the ideals of American government.

"When people of every walk of life gather together in a great city on the common ground of a belief in the fundamental doctrines of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, and with no axe to grind and no logs to roll, endeavor through free discussion to discover the truth about their public affairs, the history of their efforts should be worth the telling—and the reading.

THE CITY CLUB OF CHICAGO

By F. B. Johnstone, President.
 Twenty-five years ago there was a group of men in Chicago, who were engaged in exploiting the franchise possibilities of the city for their own personal advantage and at the expense of the public. The city council was controlled by aldermen who could not be relied upon to protect the public interest, and the general condition of the body politic was bad. At this time a group of men organized for the protection of the city and formed what is known as the Municipal Voters' League, their purpose being to observe the council record of each alderman, to ascertain the qualifications of all candidates for the aldermanic office and to report facts and recommendations to the public.

About seven years after the Municipal Voters' League was organized, some of its members thought it worth while to organize a small club of those interested in municipal reform, and after several preliminary conferences, there was formed in December, 1903, with a membership of about 150 men, the present City Club of Chicago. Its first meeting place was in rooms over Vogelsang's Restaurant on Madison Street, west of LaSalle. In 1905 it moved to a location on Clark Street, opposite the Federal Building, where it occupied three floors. In the Clark Street quarters, which were not the most desirable in the world, its

INCREASE IN PHONE RATES IS ASKED

Announcement was made last Thursday afternoon that the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company has filed with the State Department of Public Works at Olympia a new tariff making a statewide increase in rates averaging 31 per cent. The new tariff is filed to become effective November 1st. The increases it makes in the Seattle telephone rates are the following:-

Individual business telephones, from $8.50 to $12 a month; individual residence phones, from $4.75 to $4.75; two-party residence telephones, from $3 to $4; four party residence telephones, from $2.50 to $3.25 a month.

The company explained that the rapidly increasing costs of operation made it necessary to ask for the increase in rates. The City Department of Public Utilities has announced its intention to protest the rate increase and to head a state-wide fight to block it.

The matter will be presented at the regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Municipal League Monday, announcing J. L. Baldwin, president, and committee will be asked to investigate and report on the matter to the members of the league.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer, commenting editorially on the proposed increase, says:

"The move of the telephone companies in the direction of a higher schedule is probably only backfire to check a movement for the lowering of rates.

"Out of the subsequent proceedings, the companies probably hope that the worst that will come to them will be the retention of the present scale."

Next week: J. D. Ross on "Electrical Development in Western Washington." Skagit Committee will Report.

PROCLAMATION

To the Citizens of Seattle

Electricity is one of the greatest natural economic resources of the Pacific Northwest. It is a new and tremendous force which has come into our economic and domestic life in the last generation. It turns the wheels of our mills and factories; it irrigates and brings into fruition much of our desert land; it lifts the treasures from our mines; it carries our voice over a wire from ocean to ocean at a speed greater than the sun; and it enables us to talk through the air across the seas. It gives up dependable urban and interurban transportation, thus relieving the congestion of our cities by enabling our workers to get quickly and cheaply to a house in the open air; it adds more than fifty per cent to the efficiency of our single track mountain trunk lines; and it lightens the burdens of the home by replacing the old, back-breaking methods with their drudgery, with the comfort, convenience, and efficiency of the modern electrical servants.

Electricity is a permanent factor in our existence. The State of Washington leads the entire country in potential electric energy. The engineering feats here in the west in electrical development are surpassed nowhere else on the globe, and though the fuel supply is diminishing year by year, this great force of nature goes on forever.

The City of Seattle is in the center of a vast supply of this valuable resource and it will be a big factor both in promoting our future economic development, in relieving much of the irksome toil of the home, and in adding to our general comfort.

For this reason I hereby proclaim the week of September 22nd, to 29th as "Seattle Electrical Week," during which the people of Seattle, both individually and through our various organizations may learn more of the development of this new science. The Electric Club of Seattle is preparing two Modern Electrical Homes where they will demonstrate how a house may be properly wired for the convenient use of electrical appliances and how these electrical servants may add to our home comforts. Let us benefit by this splendid educational movement.

EDWIN J. BROWN

Mayor of the City of Seattle.

A. H. DIMMOCK TO HEAD LEAGUE DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEE

A. H. Dimmock has accepted appointment as chairman of the League's City Development Committee, and his committee will begin work at once investigating the proposed Zoning law, and will report to the League at an early meeting.

COMMUNITY FUND CAMPAIGN WEEK

The Community Fund Campaign for 1923 has begun. The Seattle Community Fund is an organization of the civic and social service agencies and committees of Seattle. The major purpose of this organization is to gradually build up a real community-wide program, tending to meet and overcome the social problems of the community. This is carried out by assisting the member agencies in strengthening their work in securing more economy and in fitting their programs each into the other so that the total representation is a well rounded out community estate.

The Municipal League, interested as it is in every development, cannot help but favor the community fund plan. Every member should not only give and give liberally—a duty and privilege alike to all residents of Seattle—but should effectively co-operate with the campaign committee with the end in view of raising the total called for—nearly $800,000.

Some of the results of the establishment of the Community Fund in Seattle can be summarized as follows:

1. Better business management.
2. More equitable distribution of funds.
3. Elimination of annoying solicitation.
4. Co-operation among agencies instead of competition.
5. Elimination of duplication between agencies.
6. A public accounting by every agency.
7. Co-ordination of programs between agencies. In general, the result can be summarized in the phrase: Each for all—all for each.

SECRETARY'S NOTES

William C. Woods, Superintendent of Instruction of the State of California, will address the League Tuesday noon, at the L. C. Smith Building Restaurant. Mr. Woods is reputed to be one of the ablest educators of the country, and he is said to possess remarkable oratorical abilities. We look forward with pleasure to hearing Mr. Woods. We also hope that the members will turn out in large numbers.

* * *

Among "old" members noticed at Tuesday's meeting were Judson T. Jennings, Arthur A. Wright, Fred W. Catlett, Judge John P. Hoyt, James W. Reynolds, and James T. Lawler.

The pictures shown by Mr. E. L. Gaines, the Engineer and Executive Secretary of the Zoning Commission, were indeed enlightening. First he showed pictures of actual scenes in Seattle of how things ought not to be. The pictures showed grocery stores, garages, wood yards, and other undesirable businesses immediately adjoining fine dwellings. Mr. Gaines brought out the point, which was apparent to everyone, that property values rapidly decreased with unregulated building requirements. The hopeful thing about Mr.

Gaines' address was the fact, as he pointed out, that Seattle's problem was comparatively minor as compared to that of eastern cities. Now is the right time indeed for the city to have some definite plan with respect to the development of the city. Such a city as Milwaukee, for example, whose Zoning commission is now at work, finds its problem accentuated a thousand fold by reason of its more congested districts.

The Program Committee headed by Otway Pardee and the Skagit Committee headed by Jas. A. Haight have gotten together for the purpose of giving the program Tuesday noon, October 3rd, at which time the report of the Skagit committee will be rendered and J. D. Ross, Superintendent of the Lighting Department, will talk on the electric development in western Washington. This address is in line with the electrical week celebrated by the city and intended to stimulate the knowledge and use of electricity in Seattle.

* * *

The Educational Committee of the League will join with the Educational Committee of the Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon Monday noon at the Rainier Club to honor William C. Woods, Superintendent of Instruction of the State of California. It is expected that Mr. Woods will take up more technical education questions for discussion by the committees.

* * *

Two important matters were referred by the Board of Trustees for investigation and report by committees. First was the matter of the change in the building code as recommended by the Superintendent of Buildings, Robert Proctor. The matter was referred to the League's Parks, Buildings and Grounds Committee, of which Mr. Fred W. Bert, Jr., is chairman. Mr. Proctor had recommended that mill construction be allowed in the downtown district on First Avenue. The committee is to investigate the desirability of the proposal.

Another matter referred by the Board was that of the question of securing more permanent structures in the city's parks. Too often, it was pointed out to the Board, did the Park Board pursue the narrow policy of putting up temporary bath houses, comfort stations, animal cages, etc.; the cost of these temporary structures being in reality more in proportion to their life than a permanent structure. The Parks, Buildings and Grounds Committee will investigate this matter.

* * *

In the National Municipal Review of September, 1922, appears the following item which will be of interest to Seattle:-

"The voters of Seattle recently rejected by a vote of almost three to one an initiated measure reducing street railway fares from 81-3 cents to three cents. In opposing the measure, a committee of the Seattle Municipal League pointed out that the 3 cent fare would add $5,325,000 in taxes.

"The system is now self-supporting on an 81-3 cent fare and the picture of individuals riding at public expense was not attractive to the voters."

ZONING AS EXPLAINED BY ZONING ENGINEER E. L. GAINES

WHAT IS ZONING?

1. Zoning is an orderly plan. It controls and directs the growth of a city.
2. Zoning is a necessary law. It regulates the use, height and area of buildings for the benefit of the entire community.

3. "The whole purpose of zoning is to encourage the erection of the right building in the right place. It protects the man who develops his property along proper lines against the man who develops his property along improper lines."

4. "Zoning is a flexible business in which city expansion works; it may be adjusted in case it galls or binds at a point."

5. Zoning is a legitimate exercise of the police power and requires no additional authority for enforcement.

* * *

WHAT ZONING DOES

1. Zoning designates a place for everything and puts everything in its proper place.

2. Zoning plans homes apart from the smells, the noises, the dusts, and the grime of trade and industry.

3. Zoning provides a suitable place for stores, conveniently located, but separated from the home.

4. Zoning provides appropriate locations for factories and industries where the roar of machinery, and the dirt and the noise does not intrude upon the rest and quiet of the home.

5. Zoning requires the property owners to provide on their own lot, sufficient open spaces to supply the necessary light and air for the building on his lot.

6. Zoning regulates the height of buildings. It prohibits its high buildings from invading a district of low buildings, resulting in a more uniform development of the City.

7. Zoning gives to the property man such security from nuisances and invasions as the man buys at great expense.

8. Zoning stabilizes real estate values.

9. Zoning infuses new blood into dying neighborhoods by prescribing appropriate uses for the land.

10. Zoning so directs the growth of the city that it comes a better place in which to live and makes it more attractive to the home owner, the business man, the professional man, the manufacturer and legitimate promoter.

* * *

Mr. Lawson Purdy, Secretary of the Charity Organization of New York, says:

"The most important advance in the direction of Town Planning has been made through what is known as "Zoning".

Town Planning, Jan. 1921.

One block in New York, 800 feet long by 200 feet was worth in 1911, seventeen and one-half millions. A few years later it had declined to seven and one-half millions—loss—$10,000,000. Why? Failure of New York to have height, use and area regulations.

Mr. Purdy,—Town Planning, Jan. 1921.

"The zoning ordinance as proposed for New York was enacted in 1916 after two years study. The results of the last four years fully bear out every promise made for the value of the ordinance."

Mr. Purdy,—Town Planning, Jan. 1921.

The New York Zoning ordinance has prevented vast depreciation in numerous districts, while it has effected numerous savings in values amounting to many millions of dollars in established districts.

The club's social life centers about its quiet, pleasant lounge with its many current periodicals, and its dining room, at which luncheon and dinner are served and where members develop a personal acquaintance with one another. In small dining rooms committees of the club and other groups meet for discussion of public questions and to plan for specific effort in the interest of the community.

The club's speaking forum keeps members in intimate touch with modern thought on political economic and social questions. This has been so successful that the club is now recognized as the chief and most useful forum in the city and state. When the club quarters are inequitable to meet the demand to hear noted speakers, the addresses are delivered in larger down-town halls. On these occasions each member is permitted to invite a friend. During the past year fifty-four lectures were given. These addresses, many given by famous men and women of this and other countries, have exerted an influence far beyond its own membership because of the city-wide and event state-wide publicity that is given them through the newspapers. The City Club has found that there is no more effective way of building up a membership and retaining it than to give its members an opportunity to hear the best speakers available. The club spends several thousand dollars a year to maintain a forum of the highest class and its experience proves this is a good investment.

In its civic work the City Club differs from many other city clubs throughout the country. Through its committees it studies problems that confront the city and county government, reaches definite conclusions and then sets to work in a practical way to get results. It aids official bodies in carrying out their plans; it initiates measures that are deemed beneficial and opposes those that are deemed adverse to the public welfare. These committees number fourteen in all. They learned long ago that the most effective civic work is done, not by severe criticism or abuse of city officials, but by working, whenever possible, in close harmony with public officials and governmental bodies in the solution of the problems that arise from time to time.

Lack of space precludes mention in any detail of the public work performed by the club. A few outstanding examples are the following:

A state law was passed eliminating the national party designations from the ballot at city, school and judicial elections. This was urged by members of the City Club.

Milwaukee established daylight saving through initiative and referendum. The Daylight Saving Committee took the leadership in obtaining the very large number of signatures necessary to initiate, fifteen per cent of the vote of the last gubernatorial election, or 18,586 signatures. The committee in fact secured 33,432 signatures. In addition the committee took the leadership in bringing the question to the attention of the electorate through extensive publicity.

The committee on City Planning did similar service when the voters at a recent election decided upon the establishment of a civic center. Thirteen thousand signatures were then secured.

The work of the committees is indicated in a general way by their names: Annexation, City Charter, City Planning, City Policies, Civil Service, County Policies, Handicapped in Street Trades, Harbor, Juvenile Court Problems, Public Education, Public Finance, Public Health, Public Safety, Public Utilities.

Citizens are not wont to become actively interested in municipal affairs except at election time. The City Club, through its forum and its civic committees, serves as the instrument to create active interest in public questions as they develop from time to time and to represent the many who, through lack of time and interest, neglect matters that vitally affect community well-being. The club constitutes itself a guardian, unofficial to be sure, but alert and indefatigable, of public interests and it strives to create and to construct as well as to stand watch and ward.

* * *

THE CITY CLUB OF NEW YORK

By Raymond V. Ingersoll, Sec.

The City Club of New York, organized in 1892, was the first of its kind in America. It was so organized by a number of well known public spirited citizens with the purpose of establishing an institution of constant and ready service in municipal affairs, both constructive and critical.

The Club has served as a congenial rendezvous for men who follow in a disinterested and non-partisan spirit local questions of general public interest. It has furnished also a convenient meeting place for many other civic organizations. It is valuable for its contribution to the free discussion of public questions, and for the training which many of its members get along useful civic lines. Its greatest contribution, however, is in positive action taken upon matters of general concern.

The club has a membership of slightly under two thousand, of which five hundred and eighty-five are non resident members, living outside the commuting zone. The yearly dues range from $20 for non-residents to $60 for residents of the Borough of Manhattan. These dues, together with receipts from the restaurant and from rental of bedrooms, are just enough to carry the fixed charges, general administration and operating expenses.

A special fund of about $21,000 per year is raised for the Club's public work. About 700 members contribute, the average amount being $30 per year. Many members make their contributions by authorizing a small monthly charge on their house accounts.

The Club House is an eight-story building centrally located on 44th Street west of Fifth Avenue. There is a lounge on the floor where a succession of picture loan exhibits has long been a feature. An attractive main dining room seats 150 persons on ordinary occasions and 200 at banquets. In addition there are two private dining rooms, a small library, a game room, forty bedrooms and a top floor devoted to Club offices. Lack of a suitable auditorium and heavy use of the dining room for regular service limit the Club considerably in the holding of large meetings. The keynote of the Club has always been the taking of definite action on pending public questions.

Years ago the Club co-operated in the framing of the Greater New York Charter with its strongly organized Board of Estimate. Since then many helpful amendments have been promoted and there has been vigorous resistance to a number of attempts to put through dangerous changes in the system of local government. An official Charter Revision Commission is now in session and the Club has submitted to it a forty-page report containing comprehensive plans for revision.

The club was one of the prime movers in the preparation and passage of the Tenement House Law which established certain minimum standards for all multiple-family dwellings. Later on it co-operated actively in the framing and passage of the Zoning Law. There has been constant watchfulness for the preservation and enforcement of these laws. During the past year or two a great deal of study has been given to present problems growing out of the acute shortage of living accommodations. The Club has been particularly insistent in presenting the constructive side of housing work as distinguished from the enactment of merely restricted legislation. The one measure of importance which has been adopted both by the State Legislature and by the local authorities for securing an increased supply of housing accommodations was worked out in the City Club.

The City Club is obliged to do a great deal of work at the State Capitol. This arises partly from the fact that the City Charter and other local laws are being constantly amended by the State Legislature. It arises also from the fact that New York City contains more than one-half of the population of the state and that more than seventy per cent of the state revenues are derived from sources within the city. Every year a great mass of legislation affecting New York City is examined and the city is often protected from ill-considered or vicious legislation. The greater emphasis, however, is put upon work of a positive character. An illustration has been the recent work by a Club Committee on State Retrenchment and Reorganization. This Committee was headed by Hon. Charles E. Hughes. It aided the Reconstruction Commission in the drafting of proposed constitutional amendments for modernizing the administrative side of the state government.

LEAGUE IS ADDRESSED BY GREAT EDUCATOR

Reported by Eimon L. Wienir

Will C. Woods, Superintendent of Instruction of the State of California, addressed the Municipal League last Tuesday at the L. C. Smith Building Restaurant. President Baldwin, introducing Mr. Woods, said: "It is quite evident from the large number of members who are here today that the League has not lost interest in education."

Mr. Woods said that he came as a representative of the school system of America. The time has come, he said, when the people who made the system should understand it and the place it occupies in the life of the American people. Although California is for tax reduction, California is not for the curtailment of expenses on education, and every candidate in the recent election held in the state stood on that platform, declared Mr. Woods. Mr. Woods then launched into a vigorous explanation as to the necessity of increasing school costs. He said: "With the expansion of trade and industry came the need for skilled mechanics. The trade had no time to train them, and so in California, which is typical of the rest of the country, industry came to the schools and said, 'Here is your problem'. The schools proceeded to cope with the problem, and this cost money."

"Industry today is far behind in vocational training. The schools are doing that work, and any time industry wants to take over the job it can do it. As a matter of fact, however, while it costs a good deal to train men vocationally, the cost of the public schools in so doing, is far less than that which it would

Let us show our appreciation for the services rendered by J. D. Ross, Superintendent of the Lighting Department of the City of Seattle, by turning out en masse to hear his address to the League Tuesday. Mr. Ross needs no introduction to a Municipal League group, as he has appeared before us in the past. He has withstood many severe attacks by the vested interests. He has worked long and faithfully for the city's good until today he has built up our municipal plant to the point where we are all proud of it.

J. L. BALDWIN, President.

ACTIVITIES OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Owing to the fact that several members of the Board, also members of the Educational Committee, met with Mr. Will C. Woods at the Rainier Club last Monday noon, only six members of the Board attended the Trustees meeting. Those present were: Vivian Careek, William G. Mann, Howard A. Adams, Walter L. Nossaman, J. L. Baldwin and Eimon L. Wienir.

The minutes of the meetings of September 11 and 18 were read, corrected and approved. The application of Prof. Frank J. Laube was accepted. William G. Mann, a member of the Civil Service committee, read a minority report on pensioning of Civil Service employees. The majority and minority report of this subject will be presented at the meeting of the League October 10th. There was referred to the Public Utilities Committee, headed by Robert Howes, the matter of the application of the Telephone Company for increasing the rates. Mr. Howes was instructed to make a thorough investigation and to bring his findings and conclusions to the Board at an early date.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE OF LEAGUE MEETS

A meeting of the Editorial Committee of the League was held Wednesday noon at the Northold Inn upon the call of Howard A. Adams, chairman of the committee. Those present were: Fred W. volving the financial and editorial policy of the Municipal News was discussed. A suggestion which will result in the improvement of the value of the News to the city was made by the committee: namely, that the various standing committees of the League report on the activities of the governmental bodies of the city. An effort will be made by the Editorial Committee to carry this suggestion into practice.

CHAMBER CALLS FOR A CENTRAL CLUB HOUSE

On Wednesday of this week a meeting was called by Pres. Frank Waterhouse of the Chamber of Commerce and Commercial Club to consider the feasibility of securing a building in the city for a central club house or home of the various civic organizations. The presidents of about fifty organizations were invited, the chairman announced, and only twenty appeared.

Mr. Waterhouse stated that he had not intended to include any of the purely business or professional clubs, but only those of a civic nature. It was thought that by such an arrangement the various organizations working for the good of the city might become better acquainted with each other, and be better able to function towards a united front in attacking their common problems, and could also get quicker united action than is now possible through the Inter-Club Council, or otherwise.

A committee was appointed consisting of the chairman, Mr. Worrall Wilson, President of the Rotary Club, and Dean Stephen I. Miller, President of the Kiwanis Club, to work out more definite plans and particularly to make a list of the clubs or societies that would be eligible to join such an association. At the same time the heads of the various organizations were requested to discuss the matter with their directors, and report back what their several requirements in such a building would be if they should join in the movement.

The matter will be presented to the trustees of the League at their next meeting.

cost private industries."

Mr. Woods then gave an example by relating his experiences with the repairing of his automobile. By virtue of his position, Mr. Woods is required to travel from one part of the state to the other, and, consequently, claims to have considerable experience along that line. He contends that twenty per cent of the cost of repairing an automobile is for "tinkering". There are 700,000 cars in the state of California. Allowing $25 a year for tinkering, there would be an approximate cost of $17,500,000 which would represent that state's cost per year in training auto mechanics. Mr. Woods continued:

"Not so long ago the average schooling which pupils in this country had was between the fifth and sixth grades. When the people found this out, they immediately demanded more education.

"There are three types of intelligence—1. the abstract, 2. social, and 3. mechanical. Formerly we educated only the first type—the abstract, which represented about 13 or 14 per cent of the students. The age in which we live is coming to be recognized as a mechanical age; we must, therefore, train the other two classes. 'The riches of a nation are the talents of a people'. The United States today has the largest per capita wealth not only because we come from superior stock, not only because of our large natural resources, but in the final analysis, the success of the people is due to the American public school; and our future success depends upon the training we shall give our children".

Mr. Woods then cited the efficiency of the school system of America in the recent war, and particularly pointed out the injustice of the criticism that the American school system did not produce discipline. Other nations were in the war two years before they were able to put conscription into effect, and yet America was in the war a week when the conscription law was passed; and the American boy met the test of discipline.

Mr. Woods then ended his address with an eloquent appeal for the preservation of our sacred institutions, which, he said, depended upon education for their maintenance and support.

Educational Committee Meets

The Educational Committee of the League met at the Rainier Club last Monday noon to honor Will C. Woods, Superintendent of Instruction of the State of California. Edward W. Allen, D. D. Johnson and H. A. Woodcock represented the committee.

ROSS TO SPEAK OCT. 3

J. D. Ross, Superintendent of the City of Seattle Lighting Department, will address the League Tuesday noon on the subject of "Hydro-Electric Development in Western Washington". Mr. Ross is a recognized authority on the subject, and is perhaps one of the best informed men on the subject of electrical development in this state. A public official of long and distinguished service to the city, he will present a subject which is of the utmost importance to our community.

The special League committee on the Skagit, headed by James A. Haight, will submit to the League a report on the development of the Skagit.

City Development Committee

On Thursday, September 28th the following members of the City Development Committee met at the Zoning Commission Chamber, Dimock, Lewis, Baker, Gould and Adams.

The Committee then held a conference with Mr. Gaines of the Zoning Commission. Working sheets and use maps were studied. After studying the details of the proposed ordinance the committee will meet at an early date to frame its report.

It is interesting to learn that there is not a square foot of land within the city limits whose present use is not known to the Commission, and shown on the maps of that office.

MODERN CITY PLANNING

THE CITY CLUB OF NEW YORK

By Raymond Ingersoll, Sec.

Following are a few definite past accomplishments for which the City Club can fairly claim credit. The list is a very incomplete one and is given by way of illustration.

WATER SUPPLY—The first organization in Manhattan to take up and push the project for a Catskill Water Supply. Public support this great project was first developed at a six months' series of conferences held at the City Club. The scheme finally adopted was the one formulated at the Club.

ELECTIONS—Separation of City from State and National Elections. Election Reforms, including substitution of the Massachusetts ballot for the Party column, facilitation of independent nominations and safeguarding of enrollments and elections.

POLICE CONDITIONS—Aid in publication of facts in regard to the notorious Devery regime, upon the basis of which the widespread partnership of the police with vice and crime was abolished.

WAR WORK—Formation of the City Club Ambulance Unit, undertaken before the United States entered the war. Twenty-three members of the Club and twenty-eight cars sent to France. Work on the Federal and State censuses and in the Draft Boards. Notable participation in the Liberty Loan, Red Cross and Welfare Drives. Entertainment of soldiers and sailors. Support for a year or more of 3,000 fatherless children of France.

CITY CLUB OF CHICAGO

The membership grew to approximately 900. It soon became apparent that more space was needed, and in 1910 plans were begun for the erection of the Club's own building. These were carried to completion in December, 1911, when the Club, numbering 2,400 members, took possession of its home quarters at 315 Plymouth Court.

The City Club is, and has been since its organization, a recognized factor in the civic life of Chicago. Although comfortable and convenient, it is no mere pleasure house. It has a distinct raison d'être. Its committees, made up of club members, cover various fields of municipal activity, and their reports furnish the foundation for discussion before the club at large and for concrete action thereafter. Its original plan of Saturday afternoon discussions early gave way to the scheme of noon day addresses on topics of general interest by those having special knowledge of the subject. These addresses are summarized and published in the Club Bulletin, the weekly periodical by which the entire membership is kept in touch with the work of the Club.

In addition to the talks and discussions, the Club has organized and presented several comprehensive exhibits dealing in graphic form with such subjects as public health, the transportation problem, housing conditions, the public buildings of the city, and others of similar nature. It has published a number of reports and special volumes, including "the Municipal Revenues of Chicago," "Through Routes for Chicago's Steam Railroads," "The Railway Terminal Problem in Chicago," "City Residential Land Development," "The Short Ballot in Illinois," and "Ideals of America."

The Club has undertaken and accomplished concrete reforms. A City Club committee initiated the campaign for the adoption of the Fifty-Ward Law, which provided for the re-districting of the city and a decrease in the number of aldermen. The president of the Club served as chairman of the citizens' committee which was organized to get a referendum vote at the November election in 1920 and Club members helped materially in obtaining signatures to the petitions necessary for placing the question on the ballot.

The City Club may fairly claim credit for organizing the movement in Chicago in opposition to unfair limitation of representation in the Illinois legislature. As a result of the work commenced by the Club, the unfair limitation was defeated and the matter satisfactorily adjusted in the Constitutional Convention.

On four occasions the voters of Chicago have declined to approve a bond issue for a new jail. The City Club took the position that the County Commissioners should first determine and publish a comprehensive plan. The Club's suggestion that the Chicago Community Trust be asked to conduct and finance an expert survey, met with the approval both of the County Board and the Community Trust, with the result that the necessary survey is now under way.

Indirectly, also, the Club has been instrumental in achieving results for the city. In 1910 it caused to be organized the Chicago Bureau of Public Efficiency, a body which investigates and reports upon tax legislation, bond issues, and matters affecting the revenues and expenditures of the various departments of the city government.

Although the Club, as such, took no part in the settlement of the Lake Front controversy, every citizen who signed the petition which halted a proposed contract between Illinois Central Railroad and the South Park Commissioners, and which resulted finally in arrangements much more advantageous to the city, was a member of the Club.

So in the case of the Citizens' Terminal Plan Committee, which is entitled to credit for many of the benefits accruing to the city in the settlement of the Pennsylvania Terminal matter, including the appointment of a permanent Railway Terminal Commission — this Committee was originated in the City Club, was actively promoted by an officer of the Club, and drew from the Club the larger number of its members.

It is as an instrument of education that the Club has its chief value — it puts before its members, and indirectly before the thinking people of the entire city, the community's side of the many problems arising in municipal life. The Club tends to broaden the vision of those who come within the reach of its influence. We are all prone to lead narrow lives, bound in by the demands of our business or profession, and to adopt, without serious reflection, the views or prejudices of our particular environment. There is need to cultivate breadth and fair view. We need to see the problem not only from the accidental side of personal contact and private advantage, but from the standpoint of the community. The Club can present the whole picture.

The City Club knows neither creed nor party. It exists for the purpose of bringing together all men from whatever walk of life who are really interested in the improvement of conditions in this community. It is for the purpose of bringing the Club within the reach of the widest possible number of people that its finances have been planned and the Club itself administered in the most economical manner possible. Its dues are far below those of any other similar institution in the downtown district, and the principle will always be maintained of keeping the Club on a basis that will make it available in the very largest degree to the people of Chicago.

The Club knows no private interest — it holds the brief for the community. If it develops to the full its latent possibilities for good, if its members continue to make of it an instrument of education and, where practicable, a constructive force for reform, it will contribute in no small measure to the civic upbuilding of Chicago.

Find Ruins of Ancient City

The archeological expedition sent out by the Chicago Field Museum has discovered the ruins of an extensive city in South America. They are located in the Colombian province of Magdalena, 40 miles from the Caribbean sea and 20 miles south of Santa Maria. Dr. J. A. Mason, leading the Chicago expedition, says that the region is mountainous and practically uninhabited. He is of the opinion that this ancient city was once one of the centers of the world's population. Now even its name is unknown to history and science.

Dr. Mason reports that large areas are covered with house sites and other indications of a crude civilization which has been blotted from the pages of existence. The houses were made of wood and built on terraces with retaining walls. The entering steps are of beautifully cut stone and where the foot path is far below, the terrace is connected with steps, all the way down. Near the site of many of the houses may be seen a large slab of stone on which the inhabitants ground their corn. Fragments of pottery suggest the degree of their advancement. A few of the fragments of pottery are beautifully carved but most of them are plain. Many valuable and beautiful figures of gold and ornaments of shell, carnelian and agate were also found.

Dr. Mason had been informed of an Indian road through the mountains. To his great surprise he found dozens of these roads. They are paved with flat water-worn rocks of similar size and appearance. The smaller trails consist of a single file of these slabs while the regular roads and streets are four or five feet wide and edged with upright stones. Wherever the roads pass over a declivity, the stones are set in the members of the expedition think like steps in a stairway. Some of that the ruins resemble a collection of villages rather than a single city.

When this ancient city flourished, who it inhabitants were and how it was destroyed can at present be matters only of conjecture.

Prohibition Turned Down. As a result of the referendum vote throughout Sweden, accompanied by great excitement, a majority pronounced against prohibition. The was 550,700 against to 432,600 for. Street car traffic in Stockholm was suspended on election day owing to the congestion of the streets. Nine years ago Sweden adopted what is known as the ration law which resulted in the reduction of alcoholic consumption 50 per cent—from 24 quarts a person in 1913 to 12 quarts in 1920. Each family secures a liquor ration book, and none are issued to drunkards and undesirables. If such persons borrow a book the lender loses it. Drinks may be had at restaurants only with a meal, or may be taken home. The referendum is expected to influence further legislation on the subject.

LEAGUE TO HEAR DEBATES TUESDAY

Members had better be on hand Tuesday to discuss and to vote upon the report of the League's Civil Service committee on the pensioning of civil service employees. The majority report is opposed to any scheme of pensioning while the minority report is for it. Wm. G. Mann who is one of the signers of the minority report is going to wage a determined fight in favor of his report. Mr. Van Nuys, chairman of the committee, called a special meeting of his committee and instructed them to be present Tuesday in defense of the majority view.

The Civil Service League which originally brought the matter of pensions to the attention of the city has asked Mr. Van Nuys for copies of the report and stated that they would ask President Baldwin's permission to speak against the majority report.

The meeting Tuesday will be further featured by a report from the Parks, Buildings, and Grounds committee on Pactor's recommendation for a change in building regulations to permit mill construction in the downtown section.

The meeting will take place at the League's usual meeting place, the L. C. Smith Building Restaurant.

Mayor Brown went on record this week as being opposed to the charter amendment passed in 1920 giving preference to former service men in employment.

A number of comments have been received by the secretary with respect to the word of appreciation appearing in the last issue of the News under the signature of President Baldwin.

BUDGET REDUCED BUT MILL RATE HIGHER

Does This Mean Anything To You, Mr. Common Citizen?

By J. L. Baldwin

Last Monday afternoon the City Council passed the budget of $6,218,758.16 to be raised by taxes for the City for 1923. This is $100,000 less than last year, but it has not shrunk as fast as the taxable property in the city, so it means an increase of .87 mills over this year's tax, or a little over three per cent. The Council had promised that they would not increase the rate; the Mayor was elected on his campaign of tax reduction, promising many things in the way of economies and removal of "political incurables", etc.

After the war there had been granted to the city employees generally a blanket bonus of $20 a month. Last year the Council cut off $10 of this bonus and also refused to make increases in salary where they otherwise would have been made in the usual course for merit or length of service, sometimes called the "automatic increase". The question arose as to allowing these increases this year. It was suggested from the lobby that conditions not only did not warrant the increase in any salaries this year but that there would be removed that extra $10 a month left on the bonus.

Mayor Brown has been adamant against any reduction of wages. He appeared at this meeting and made three proposals for reducing the budget. First, by refusing the "automatic increase" to employees receiving $2,000 or over. He said this would save $44,500; but Chairman Blaine of the committee of the whole had a rapid calculation made which showed that this would save only about $13,000, whereas eliminating all increases would save about $75,000. Second, by cutting out the clerk of the street committee. Third, if they would give him his way in appointing Gassman superintendent of streets, he would save $20,000 in that department. When the Council asked him, however, how that saving could be made, he said he did not know.

Mr. Blaine again urged the elimination of free street car rides for firemen and policemen when off duty, and cutting off an extra $15,000 for street lighting, thereby saving $65,000 and bringing the tax rate under this year's. But Mr. Blaine seems to have played a lone hand in his efforts to effect economies

ACTIVITIES OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Trustees present at the meeting last Monday were: Dr. E. C. Kilbourne, D. D. Johnson, Howard A. Adams, Harrison W. Mason, Wm. G. Mann, Walter L. Nossaman, R. F. Sandall, Dan Earle, H. A. Woodcock, and J. L. Baldwin, presiding.

Dr. Kilbourne read the report of the Skagit committee which was accepted and ordered presented to the League.

Mr. Mann moved that there be referred to the Skagit committee a proposed issue of $4,000,000 bonds for the purpose of putting in dam instead of crib dam at Gorge Creek. (Supt. J. D. Ross denied that there was such a proposal in his address to the League Tuesday).

Mr. Adams reported for the Editorial committee and outlined a proposed contract with the publishers of the News.

The board referred to the Educational committee the matter of school finances.

President Baldwin reported that he attended a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce during the past week relative to a proposal to build an office and club building to house the various civic clubs of the city. At this meeting a committee was appointed to list the organizations to be invited to participate. Heads of the organizations present were asked to ascertain and report back the desire and requirements of their organizations. A resolution was passed by the Board that it looks with favor upon the general plan and favors a liberal policy as to choice of organizations to participate therein, but that it cannot assume financial responsibility regarding the building.

NO PROVISION MADE FOR THE POLL TAX

The County commissioners at the budget hearing early this week eliminated from the budget estimates three items, totaling $41,900 for the collection of the tax next year. The commissioners said they took this action believing that the poll tax will be eliminated at either the November election or by the state legislature at its 1923 session.

REPORT OF PROGRESS OF COMMITTEE FOR FRAMING CITY MANAGER CHARTER

This committee was appointed by the Municipal League in the early summer of the present year, for the purpose of framing a proposed city manager charter for Seattle. The committee held its first meeting July 7th; has held seven meetings; and holds its regular meetings Friday of each week at 4:30 p. m. A complete program has been outlined, so that at each meeting the committee confines its attention to some particular important feature and arrives at a definite conclusion on that point. So far most of the important elements of the plan for the city council (or commissioners) have been agreed upon. One of the difficult problems was the proper number of city councilmen (or commissioners) and whether they be elected at large or by ward. The committee is at present considering whether to have the chief of police appointed by and under a mayor elected by the people, or whether appointed by and under the city manager.

The members of the committee are William G. Mann, of the Federal Board of Vocational Training, Dallas D. Johnson, of the Aetna Life Insurance Co., O. B. Thorgrimson, Marion Edwards and M. H. Van Nuys, attorneys. Mr. Thorgrimson was one of the members of the freeholders commission, elected in 1914, which prepared a city manager charter which was, however, rejected by the people of Seattle at an election held in June, 1914. His experience has aided the present committee considerably. Prof. Frank J. Laube, of the University of Washington, meets regularly with the present committee. His expert knowledge and sober judgment is appreciated by the members of the committee.

It may be several months before the committee can complete its work.

Respectfully submitted, Sept. 30, 1922.

Power to Cost Less

"When Skagit Comes"

There ought to be a new book written, entitled "When Skagit Comes". It would be a book that would delight every manufacturer and every housewife in Seattle; because, according to Mr. J. D. Ross, Superintendent of the City Lighting Department, when Skagit comes, cheaper power comes. A reduction in rate is due when Skagit comes! This simple statement was made in an unassuming, quiet, confident way by Mr. Ross at Tuesday's meeting, and in the light of the League's committee report, published in another column of this issue should silence the criticism of one of our great local dailies.

The future of electricity is beyond any of our dreams, said Mr. Ross, and Seattle, in the course of the next few years will be able to sell the entire current of the Skagit. In the next ten years, we shall need twice as much power as that consumed in the last twenty five years. 100,000 H. P. is used in Seattle today, Mr. Ross said, and continued:

"California has developed 2,000,000 H. P., estimated to cost from $500,000,000 to $800,000,000. This is three times the cost of power which can be produced in the State of Washington. California's future industry depends upon hydroelectric development because it has no oil and no coal for power.

"What attitude will Seattle assume towards the people of the rest of the state so far as the Skagit is concerned? The market of outside towns is comparatively small. The principal market for Skagit's power will be in Seattle. In a comparatively short space of time we shall take over 25,000 H. P. now furnished by the private company — for street railway purposes; and it will not be long before all available power from the Skagit will be used up.

When it is borne in mind that Seattle thus far has never had an over abundance of current to sell, no one need fear of the ultimate consumption of Skagit power."

Mr. Ross then devoted a few remarks to the Cedar River Dam. He said, "Today it stands as an institution which pays its interest and protects Seattle against floods." He is in favor of the building of an eighty-five foot tunnel which, he said, would cost approximately $800,000. He does not believe that it is possible to seal the dam.

Mr. Ross estimated the revenue of the Lighting Department for 1923 at $3,600,000.

Devoting a few remarks to electrical development in homes, Mr. Ross pointed out that Seattle leads the world in the percentage of the number of homes wired, practically 99 per cent of Seattle homes being wired. Japan leads all nations with 45 per cent of homes wired; the United States next with 40 per cent; Great Britain 17 per cent, and France 12 per cent. The Pacific Coast leads the United States with approximately 80 per cent.

According to a statement issued by the city building department building operations licences by the city since January 1st, 1922, total nearly $15,000,000.

SKAGIT HALF COMPLETE

Report By League Committee

Secretary's Note.—The following report was read by Mr. James A. Haight at Tuesday's meeting and adopted by vote of the membership.

Municipal League of Seattle, Gentlemen:

Your Special Committee on the Skagit Project has been requested to make a report on the progress of the development of that project. Your committee has interviewed Mr. J. D. Ross, the head of the City Light Department, and Mr. C. F. Uhden, the engineer in charge of the project. They report that the construction work is more than half completed and that the cost of work already done is within the estimate. They report that they have every reason to believe that the entire cost will be within the estimate, $9,700,000. At the rate the work has been progressing and at which they expect it to continue to progress, the improvement will be completed before the end of the next calendar year.

It is interesting to compare the estimates in the report made by this committee in July, 1921, with the actual figures. In that report we quoted certain figures cited by city engineer Dimock to Councilman Fitzgerald on July 20, 1921. Based on figures he then submitted, Mr. Dimock estimated that the net revenue of the Light Department for the calendar year, 1921, would be $960,000. The actual net revenue of the Light Department for 1921 was $952,927. The revenues for the first six months of 1921 exceeded the revenues of the first six months of 1921 by $28,751. The increase in electricity sold in July, 1922, over that in July, 1921, was ten per cent and in August, 1922, over August, 1921, sixteen per cent. There is every prospect, therefore, that the net revenue for 1922 will considerably exceed the net revenue for 1921.

This net revenue will more than cover the interest on the bonds issued for the construction of the plant together with depreciation and cost of operation. It is not at all improbable that the saving in the purchase of fuel oil will equal the cost of operation and depreciation, thus leaving as the only added burden to the Light Department by reason of the construction of the Skagit Power Plant, the interest on the bonds which is less than $600,000.

The capacity of this first stage in the development of the Skagit River Project is 56,000 horse power. If the city develops from this project and sells 50,000 horse power, the cost to the city will be practically twelve dollars a year or a dollar a month per horse power. If it sells this power for industrial purposes even at a rate as little as one cent per horse power hour, which is far less than the average charge for industrial uses, the city would get $30 per year per horse power or $1,500,000. This would cover all expenses on account of the plant and leave a handsome surplus and at the same time would justify an exceedingly low rate for power if the competition between rival cities should compel us to make such a rate. That we shall in a few years have a demand for this additional supply is indicated by the rapid growth in 1922 over 1921 and the fact that we shall be taking over for the Street Railway 5,000 kilowatts per hour each year from the Puget Sound Power and Light Company until 18,000 kilowatts per hour shall have been taken over.

It is unnecessary to emphasize the importance to the City of Seattle of its having this vast power supply from which it can obtain power on a large scale for industrial purposes at a very moderate rate.

GOV. HART PROPOSES STATE BUDGET LAW

Governor Hart announced this week that he proposed to recommend the passage of a budget law for state expenditures at the next session of the legislature. Some of the ideas of the proposed recommendation are summarized by the Governor as follows:

"It is my idea that a budget should be submitted to the legislature by the governor on or before the fifth day of the session covering all expenditures of public funds for the biennium. Upon this budget the legislature should be required to act, and each biennium's budget should be in the form of a bill.

"The legislature should be given the power to eliminate or decrease any item in the budget, but should not have the power to increase any item except on the two-thirds vote of both houses. No other appropriation should be allowed except by a special bill which in itself would provide for the raising of the funds for the appropriation.

Allotments Proposed

"When the appropriations have been made by the legislature, the finance committee, composed of the governor, state auditor and state treasurer, should compare the requests of the departments and officials with the expenditure in previous corresponding months for the purpose of dividing the budget expenditures into monthly or quarterly allotments. This committee should determine just what portion of the appropriation is to be expended in the approaching month or quarter.

"The budget as prepared by the finance committee should then be filed in the state auditor's office, and the law should provide that the auditor could not draw a warrant in excess of the monthly or quarterly budget. With such a provision there would be no possibility of a deficiency."

THE BUDGET

and reduce the taxes.

The president of the Council, Mr. Fitzgerald, explained that the city is now paying its help—common labor, skilled labor and clerical—from 33 1-3 per cent to 50 per cent more than they could get in private employ. And their jobs here are secure and permanent. Yet, on Mr. Erickson's motion, the Council resolved, without a dissenting vote, to reject these economies, although it means a raise in the tax rate; to grant the $10 bonus to everybody; to give firemen and policemen free rides on the street cars while off duty, which adds $40,000 to $50,000 to the tax levy; and to grant increases in the wages of those people now getting from one-third to one-half more than the common citizen doing similar work, who has to raise the taxes to pay it or lose his property.

The Mayor and Council, on the other hand, reduced the salary of Supt. Ross of the Light Department, who, in the face of bitter and ceaseless opposition of vested interests and the newspapers, has made a splendid success of his department. This reduction does not relieve the tax payer, because this salary is paid by his department and not out of the general fund. I believe one other salary was reduced.

Last year in one day 4500 pieces of real estate, including land and buildings, were sold for taxes, lost to the owners and bid in by King County because of lack of other bidders. This year as many more will be sacrificed. Sacrificed to whom or for what cause?

MAJORITY COMMITTEE OPPOSES CIVIL SERVICE PENSIONS FOR SEATTLE

Gentlemen:—

In accordance with the instructions from the Municipal League to consider a retirement old age pension plan for the Seattle Civil Service League, we, your committee, respectfully report as follows:

The proposed plan has been carefully explained to us by Mr. Crell, chairman of the Civil Service League Committee, and by Mr. Van Solen, a member of same committee. We are impressed by the research and thoroughness with which Mr. Crell and his associates have prepared their report. If we, your committee, had come to the conclusion that a pension system was desirable under existing conditions, we would here devote our attention to analyzing the details of the plan. However, as we are satisfied that any pension system, under existing conditions is undesirable, we devote this report to the question of desirability of a pension system.

1. It is true that many business corporations have adopted what is called a pension system for their super-annuated employees. The principal railroads, several leading banks, and a number of the largest industrial corporations in United States now have a retirement age limit accompanied by old age annuities for their employees. With the railroads and a majority of these industrial corporations, the plan is non-contributory, namely, nothing is withheld or deducted from the employee's current salary, but the cost is paid directly by the employer. With most of these banks and a few of the industrial corporations, the plan is contributory, namely, the employee contributes one-half or less and the employer the rest of the fund.

Whatever the name or form of the pension, annuity, or insurance given by business corporations, and whether called contributory or non-contributory, the plan is in reality not a pension at all. Every dollar of the cost is earned by the employee. It is nothing but a deferred wage. It came into existence not on account of political pressure, nor on account of labor unions, nor on account of sentiment. No sensible employer increases the salary of an employee or gives him a pension because he is afraid of the employee, or because he hopes it may induce the employee to be more industrious and contented, but because of the law of supply and demand of efficient service, which gauges and fixes accurately in the long run the wage or salary, whether paid currently or part of it is deferred. Whenever a business corporation establishes such an annuity system, it makes the employees toe the mark of higher efficiency, it eliminates all inefficient men at an early stage.

But with municipal corporations, the compensation of Civil Service employees is not determined by the law of competition, but by a well sounding formula called "decent cost of living." The cost or standard of living with the great mass of people rises like mercury in a thermometer. It depends almost entirely on the actual amount of wage or salary received at any given time. Such an unstable thing is not a safe standard.

2. It is claimed that Civil Service employees are subject to restrictions and handicaps, not existing in private employment, for instance, promotions being limited to the particular class or department and up to a certain rank, lack of touch with the world, thereby hindering the employee from investing his income intelligently, the routine of work not fitting him for other occupations, and that therefore in order to induce efficient and enterprising men to enter into and to remain in Civil Service it is necessary to give them higher pay and pensions. Such an argument amounts to this: because I, a Civil Service employee, happen to be in an occupation which requires less initiative, less enterprise, less risk, and a moderate amount of work, therefore I deserve more compensation than the man out in the business or industrial world who either has to sink or swim. Working men, bookkeepers, women employees generally have no greater opportunity than Civil Service employees. Civil Service in its very nature never has and never can attract the more enterprising and ambitious young men, except in isolated cases and for temporary periods.

You may give bonuses, pensions, and make salaries so high as to induce enterprising and efficient men to enter into and to remain in Civil Service, rather than to undertake the uncertainties and hazards of business, but in so doing you tend to bring into existence and to cultivate a socialistic form of government and to suppress individual enterprise and responsibility, and drag down to the common level those who would otherwise lead and progress. Pensions and bonuses have a tendency to sap self-help and character out of the individual and out of the nation. United States owes its greatness mostly to the spirit of self-reliance and individual enterprise. England's greatness is declining because the unthinking multitude is getting control. One of the first things unthinking men, placed in power, do is to mob the watch dog of the treasury.

3. It is claimed that the heads of the city departments do and will retain super-annuated employees through pity and personal consideration, that the presence of these old men have a demoralizing effect on the efficiency of younger employees, and that these super-annuated employees earn only a part of their salaries, thereby making the balance of their salary in truth a pension. We concur in this claim, and believe a compulsory retirement age is necessary. And we recommend a retirement age for all city Civil Service employees, but without pensions. In this connection, however, it is further claimed that a pension system must necessarily accompany old age, on the ground that it would be heartless to turn out into the world without means of support employees who have given long and faithful service but who now are old. This brings us squarely to the question of justice and humanity pleaded in support pensioning Civil Service employees.

The proposition at hand is not whether the city shall establish a universal old age pension for all good citizens, but whether the city shall select out a special class of its citizens, and favor that class with pensions, paid for if not entirely, at least in a large part by the taxpayers. Let us contrast the lot of the average citizen with that of Civil Ser-

Tuesday noon, October 16th, League membership will meet at the L. C. Smith Building Restaurant to discuss and to vote upon the majority and minority report of the Civil Service Committee on the "Pensioning of Civil Service Employees." Come prepared to vote. Read committee reports in this issue.

vice employee of Seattle.

"Of one hundred average men starting at age twenty-five, sixty will have moderate resources or be wealthy by thirty-five; at forty-five all but three of those who had previously made and saved money will have lost all their accumulations; by fifty-five one will have become very rich and three will be in good circumstances; the remainder of those living are either working or are more or less dependent upon others for support; by age sixty-five one is still rich, four are wealthy, fifty-three are dependent upon children, relatives or charity. The survivors at age seventy-five number but thirty-seven; sixty of those who died left no estate; two of the five rich men have lost their money; the remainder of the thirty-seven are dependent."

Vol. 19, Modern Business, Alexander Hamilton Institute, page 91-2.

On the other hand, Civil Service employees receive more salary than received in private business or industries for similar service. A partial list of salaries, as enacted recently by our City Council, is hereto attached. They are paid regularly. Their positions are practically secure and permanent. They are not overworked. They have no overhead expenses, no financial risk. The average laboring man and business man of Seattle is as useful, as much a citizen, and as much a part of his city as the average Civil Service employee. Under these conditions, to tax the taxpayers in order to give the city employees pensions is nothing short of robbing Peter to pay Paul.

4. Let us now consider to what extent the pension system would induce contentment and good will and thereby increase efficiency. Where four men are employed to perform work which three of them could do, and these four fully perform the work within the working hours, what reason is there for stimulating these four men to work more diligently? Until Seattle adopts a city-manager form of government, or some other form for the concentration of responsibility and the elimination of surplus employees, raising salaries or giving old age pensions will, in our judgment, have little effect on efficiency.

5. The most important objection to any pension system at the present time is the expense to the taxpayers. Under the pension system, starting in operation say in 1923, the necessary fund would be larger by 1926, and still larger by 1930, and so on until the time came when those reaching the retirement age equal in number those dying every year. Again, since the plan is intended to and would encourage more employees to remain in the service until the retirement age, the number of employees retiring on pensions would be greater than the number reaching that age in the service at the present time. Any system whereby the taxpayers have to bear all or a large part of the costs of pensions for super-annuated employees creates an enormous burden upon the taxpayers. The foregoing is a condensed extract from Vol. 19 "Modern Business, Alexander Hamilton Institute, page 101-2";

"On June 30, 1914, the combined pension funds of New York City had a deficiency of over $202,000,000. On January 1, 1916 four Chicago pension funds, namely, police, firemen, teachers and municipal employees, had an aggregate deficiency of over $56,000,000. The annual pension load or cost assumed by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching amounted at the beginning of 1906-7 to about $208,000, whereas by 1919 this annual load or cost had grown to $820,280."

Unless taxes are substantially reduced in Seattle, it is unreasonable to expect business prosperity or even normal conditions in the future. The plea that pensions will merely increase taxes a mill or two is deceptive. It is on such a plea as this that taxes, assessments, and bond issues accumulate mountain high. Imagine that you were to be placed in control of a corporation, where its employees received higher pay than they could earn elsewhere for similar service, where the board of directors was afraid of these employees, where the corporation was burdened with mortgages and bonds, and where the only thing keeping the business alive was the levying of assessments against the stockholders. Would you, as manager, on top of all this burden add a pension system for the employees of such a corporation?

* * *

Due to a difference of opinion and the fact that I believe that the report is based on a false premise, I cannot concur in the findings, and there is, therefore, submitted herewith, for your consideration, a minority report.

The majority report, in its opening paragraph, disregards consideration of the plan submitted by the Civil Service League, with the following statement: "If we, your committee, had come to the conclusion that a pension system was desirable, under existing conditions, we would devote our attention to the details of the plan. However, as we are satisfied that, under existing conditions, any pension system is undesirable, under existing conditions, we would devote our attention to the question of desirability of a pension system." This conclusion of the majority is felt by the minority to be unsound, and the reverse,—a pension system for retiring aged employees—to be desirable for the following reasons:

1. Results in economy.

1. Results in economy.

(a)—Eliminates from active service, by retirement, those employees who have become inefficient, as a result of old age.

(b)—Improves the morale of the employees remaining, by eliminating the pace-makers and drones.

(c)—Retains in the service the best of the present employees, who, otherwise, will accept employment outside, in the commercial field.

(d)—Attracts to the service a higher grade of employee, as a result of the added inducements, tending to offset the killing of advancements within the service, as a result of the present system of appointments to heads of departments, rather than advancements.

2. The additional tax levy would not affect tax payers to any appreciable extent, for there would be fewer employees on the payroll, fewer in the county and state homes, fewer supported by other charities, and fewer supported by relatives.

3. The Old Age Retirement Pension is in force in approximately one hundred of our leading business concerns. This would not be a fact if the arguments under One were not true. If private concerns install a pension system for their employees, with economy only a motive, then should not the city install a similar system, when, in addition to the motive of economy, the matter of decrease in charity cases is to be considered.

4. Other cities, after investigation, have installed a pension system.

5. The United States Government, after carefully investigating the matter, has adopted an Old Age Retirement Pension System.

6. The law of supply and demand does not affect Civil Service employees have a keen sense of responsibility, seldom, if ever, appreciated by the citizens at large.

7. Humanitarian principles demand that the employer have a like sense of responsibility for the welfare of his servants, who he utilizes for the full span of their usefulness, and under the present system, discards, as soon as pretext can be found for so doing.

Believing the foregoing to be sound reasons for installing a pension system, the minority has carefully considered the majority report, and desires to call attention to what is believed to be errors in conclusion.

In Par. No. 1, the Majority hold that pensions are a deferred salary. Investigation will disclose the fact that in concerns providing pensions the salary is as high and higher than that paid by corporations not providing a pension. Furthermore, the fact that an additional allotment is made by the concerns in question, over and above the salary withheld, clearly indicates that it is not regarded as a deferred salary by the corporations themselves. It is the opinion of the Minority that the pension firms are actuated by sound business principles only, and they represent some of the largest and most efficient corporations in America, paying the largest salaries, even after the annuity payments are deducted therefrom. They discovered that the employees, under the pension system, were of a more contented frame of mind, and that the labor turnover, an expensive item in business administration, was reduced.

The Majority of the committee state that the pension did not come into existence because of labor unions, political pressure or sentiment—they feel that it came into being because of the law of supply and demand. The Minority cannot concur in this conclusion, but feel that it is installed in the leading business concerns because of the economies effected, as heretofore advanced in this report and the report of the Committee of the Civil Service League; and furthermore, as a result of the growth of humanitarian principles in business, which causes the employers to appreciate the fact that an employee was an titled to more than an existence for a period of earning years and nothing for years of dependency. It was the fact that when they had utilized the full life of an employee they had a responsibility regarding his welfare during his years of dependency. This is strikingly illustrated by the railroads actually employing maimed men even before the pension system was ever thought of; on some of the largest railroad such employees are provided for under the pension system.

The Majority state that upon establishing a pension system the employers are more exacting in their requirements. The Minority cannot concur in this opinion. The Standard Oil, one of the largest and most efficient corporations in America, has the most liberal benefits for its employees of any concern in existence, and is one of the most lenient employers of labor known. It is not, to my knowledge, as exacting as the Federal Government or the city Government. If the city heads of departments are not demanding a day's work from their employees this laxity cannot be charged to the employees, but must necessarily reflect upon the system under which they labor. This the Minority admit, and they concur in the recommendation of the Majority as to the City Manager form of government for the removal of inefficient employees in the early stage of employment, thus opening the way for advancement to responsible positions by promotions from civil service ranks of those employees found to be qualified. This will attract a higher grade of employee.

The Majority feel that civil service requires less enterprise and less initiative, with the result that it unfits men for other occupations. If this were a fact it would be another argument for the pension system; however, it is not admitted by the Minority. The city light solicitors are in competition with the solicitors of the private corporation, and the results of their efforts are the best illustration of their efficiency and enterprise. The Majority feel that the city pays higher salaries for the same service rendered outside. A comparison of the wages paid solicitors by the city and the private light corporation will clarify this statement.

A comparison of wages paid engineers by the city and the private corporation will be further enlightening. The lower grades of civil service employees are paid better than the same employees on the outside but these wages were fixed by the Council as a result of investigations relative to the cost of living.

The standard of living, in other words, is the determining factor in the fixing of wages for civil service employees, and it is the duty of the Government to maintain this standard in order to encourage private corporations to do the same. The wage scale adopted by the Government is based upon accurate studies relative to the cost of living, and a wage is paid that will sustain life. This statement cannot apply to a great many of the private corporations, whose wages vary with the law of supply and demand, like the barometer, and as a result, are often much lower than the wage needed to sustain the life of the employee, and his family. The labor turnover in these plants in my opinion will show whatever gain is made by the reduction of wages. Business concerns are discovering this to be a fact and there is a constantly growing number of pension firms because of the benefits accruing to the firms, in economies, the type of men attracted to the firm and lowered labor turnover.

Civil Service can attract enterprising and ambitious young men, if the men can see a career in prospect, as a head of a department, or a city manager; when the heads of departments are qualified from experience and not from politics.

The Majority express the opinion that the pension system is socialistic. The use of this word is usually enough in itself to condemn any progressive idea, but when used with the words "suppressing individual enterprise and responsibility, dragging down progressive employees", it is certain to mislead some.

State and City Sanatoria, almshouses, county farms, city water and light systems, etc., are all socialistic, yet the Minority cannot believe that there are any members of the League who would return to the old private ownership method of supplying water and light or disposing of our garbage. Humanitarian principles demand the retention of the charitable institutions and for the same reason it is felt that there is a demand for pension system of some kind.

There is opportunity for a great deal of argument as to whether or no: the system would result in stagnation of ambition. It is the opinion of the Minority that the pension system, if installed by the city, would result in business concerns bidding against Civil Service for the better young men, and thereby increase the standard of living in all fields of employment.

The pension system does not in itself retain men in the service. In one local department of the Government there were 113 resignations since January 1st; there were 500 resignations in the city Civil Service since January 1st. In this department of the Government there was one employee receiving $200 per month who resigned to accept a position with a Bond house at a salary of $450 per month plus traveling expenses; there was another receiving $200 who resigned to accept a position paying $4,000; and still another receiving $4,000 who resigned to accept a position paying less, because of an opportunity for advancement which in less than six month's time was paying him $200 more than the first position. Practically all of the resignations were because employees were able to secure better salaries on the outside, the working conditions were better, or the chances for advancement were more attractive. You will note that they accepted positions without pensions, in preference to those with pensions.

The Majority recommend a compulsory retirement age without pensions. To explain to you the effect of this kind of a system I shall cite a particular case falling under my observation:

Mrs. Blank (name can be given upon request) employed in my department, is the mother of three children of school age, and the wife of one of your over-paid Civil Service employees, receiving the magnificent salary of $175 per month. This for a graduate engineer! It is the opinion of the Minority that the mother of three children should be raising the children of tender years and not be forced into commercial productivity in order to set aside sufficient funds with which to care for themselves in their declining years; with no old age pension system in effect she needs must choose between neglecting her children during the years when they need her, or selecting the county poor farm as a place of abode later on in life. In either event it is the county and state that pay the bill in the majority of cases. Neglected children frequently add to the requirement of our penal institutions, or if not neglected the mother and father add to the cost of our poor farms. In either event the tax payer foots the bill. The pension would remove the fear of compulsory old age retirement without means of support and the mother would remain at home to rear the children, with the result that a higher standard of American citizenship will follow generation after generation.

The Minority accept the following quotation from Vol. 19, Alexander Hamilton Institute Course: "Of every 100 average men starting at the age of twenty-five, sixty will have moderate resources or be wealthy by thirty-five; at forty-five all but three of those who had previously made and saved money will have lost all their accumulations; by fifty-five one will have become very rich and three will be in good circumstances; the remainder of those living are either working or are more or less dependent upon others for support; by sixty-five one is still rich, four are wealthy, fifty-three are dependent upon children, relatives or charity. The survivors at age seventy-five number but thirty-seven; sixty of those who died left no estate; two of the five rich men have lost their money; the remainder of the thirty-seven are dependent." This is certainly a wonderful argument for universal old age pensions, and better argument for Civil Service pensions. No city Civil Service employee can hope to fall with the 60 classification at thirty-five, nor can he be classed in the three at 45 nor the one or three at 55. All will fall, as a result of the present system, under the heading, "still working for the city", or "dependent." They fall into these classifications from necessity and in either event are a burden to the taxpayers, individually and collectively.

This fact is recognized in 12 municipalities, the federal government, and over ninety corporations, and the pension system for old age retirement has resulted. Practically all municipalities have pension provision for the employees of the police and fire departments.

In paragraph four the Majority recommend the city manager form of government. This form of control is recommended for eliminating inefficient help by the Minority, but the Minority cannot agree that the pension system "will have little or no effect on the efficiency of the employees" for reasons heretofore stated, and the reason that the employee with the inducement of the old age pension before him will work harder to retain his job than he will under the present system with outside employment (advancement unhampered by changes in administration) bidding for his services.

The fact that Civil Service employees do accept outside inducements is strikingly illustrated by the Civil Service labor turn-over. In the city Civil Service there were 500 resignations last year. Certainly an expensive turnover when new employees have to be continually trained to fill positions formerly held by skilled personnel.

The Majority object to the old age pension retirement principle on the grounds of expense to the tax payers. The Minority feel that the Pensions Committee Report of the Civil Service League answers the tax questions, and the statement that deficiencies resulted in other municipalities as a result of improper accounting, will answer the extract from Alexander Hamilton Institute Course Vol 19, pages 101-2. But assuming that the tax levy was affected, which the Minority will not admit, the fact remains that out of 58 living at the age of 65, fifty-three are dependent upon charity or relatives for support. Would it be any additional cost to the tax payers to support the dependent from the family budget or from the tax roll, or by contributions to charity? The fact remains that they are dependent.

Under the pension system there would be an annuity; at least that would not devolve upon the taxpayer. The Minority fail to see anything in the pension system affecting the tax payers of maintaining the employee in part, who gave the full span of his life, to all the tax payers who benefited by the employee's service.

The data from Vol. 19, Pages 101-102, Alexander Hamilton Course relative to the deficiencies existing in recent pension funds, due to lack of correct use of actuarial records, can have no bearing on the question of the justice of the argument, and does not take into consideration the decrease of maintaining charitable institutions which cost would necessarily be increased were the funds for retiring old employees not in existence.

However, the plan proposed by the Civil Service League recognizes the weaknesses of the pension systems organized in the past and has made careful provision for an ample actuarial reserve.

The Majority fear for business conditions in Seattle were the tax levy increased. Increased taxes do not affect business conditions any more than increased cost affects conditions. It is a well known fact that high cost periods are periods of prosperity. If proof of the above statement is needed, refer to the Chicago tax rate and compare the same with the Seattle tax rate.

These cities have the highest tax rates and their growth is not affected by the tax levy. Furthermore, a comparison of city tax levies cannot be accurately made. For example Los Angeles has a higher minimum charge for water and light than Seattle, and furthermore, the city maintains an individual charge system for garbage disposal. To the tax statements of Los Angeles citizens, add the additional cost of garbage disposal per resident, increased light rate and increased water rate, then compare with the Seattle tax rate, and the figure would prove conclusively that Los Angeles is dead, were one to believe that tax rates affected the growth of cities! If Seattle thinks that industries are influenced by tax rates, then establish an individual charge for garbage disposal, increase the light rates, increase the water rates with their minimum charges, divert these revenues to the general fund, and reduce your taxes to nothing. In fact, show people that we will pay them to live in Seattle, tax rate is not the determining factor and then the city will boom. It is all a matter of bookkeeping, but it would not affect business in Seattle one iota.

The cost of government has to be paid, and by the residents, and the tor.

Having from the foregoing arrived at the conclusion that an old age pension retirement fund is economical, will not affect business, and is, humanitarian, the method of fixing the payments under the fund is then to be considered.

The Pension Committee of the Civil Service League has carefully covered one method of raising the fund. This method is recommended for the careful consideration of the League membership but the Minority feel that the fixed rate annuity system, based upon the age of employee, regardless of salary, is unjust.

DAUB FAVORS PLAN OF PORT MANAGEMENT

In a letter to the Secretary of the League, Albert Daub, a member of the League's Port and Harbor Development Committee, and recognized as a student of port management, has the following suggestions to make:

"I am firmly of the conviction that the city would get better results if we had from five to nine unpaid commissioners.

"And believe that the Port Commissions chief work should be the employment of an efficient manager and probably a few other principal employees and the general direction such as wharfage and such general supervision as is usually exercised by an active and intelligent board of directors in a well managed corporation.

"The salary has only resulted in attracting men to the Port Commission because of the salary or because of the political prestige it gave them and has not resulted in attracting men who had any particular qualifications for the position.

"Three commissioners with equal authority or nearly equal authority trying to run the details of the Port Commission can never make a harmonious management.

"If the actual labor and time required of them was limited and there was no salary attached to it I believe plenty of men with a reasonable amount of time to spare who have had a business training would be willing to serve without pay. But three are not enough. Allowances should be made for sickness and absence from the state and believe that five would be sufficient.

"Yours very truly,

"ALBERT DAUB."

PENSION PLAN REJECTED BY LEAGUE

At a meeting of the Municipal League Tuesday by a decisive vote the League rejected any plan for the pensioning of civil service employees. One of the most hotly debated contests ensued before the vote. The chairman of the committee, M. H. Van Nuys, Howard A. Adams, James A. Haight, Dr. E. C. Kilbourne and W. E. Henry led the fight for the Majority report which was opposed to all form of pensions; while William G. Mann, Charles G. Cole, Walter L. Baumgartner and H. L. Glenn spoke in favor of some kind of pension system.

In a most comprehensive and forceful way Mr. Haight summarized the arguments for the rejection of the plan by saying: "This country has advanced by reason of individual initiative of its people. Any form of pension plan is un-American, and we must look with disfavor upon such tendency. Let's not give the young man the temptation of pensions, for it is sinful to take a young man in his prime and bury him alive in the civil service." Mr. Haight, however, was in favor of pensioning employees engaged in a hazardous occupation.

Mr. Van Nuys pointed out that any plan for the pensioning of employees would increase the burdens of taxation which are already too high. He doubted, he said, whether it would increase the efficiency. "The thing that stimulates efficiency is the hope and the prospect of advancement and not bonuses of pensions," declared Mr. Van Nuys. A further argument advanced by him was that every citizen is as valuable a part of the community as the civil service employee, and, therefore, if the pension system was favored it would have to be for all the citizens rather than for those of any particular class.

Mr. C. A. Reynolds, formerly a member of the State Public Service Commission, stated that, while he was not absolutely certain, he believed that the prosperity of the city was bound up in the prosperity of the worker. The bonus, while that would temporarily place a burden upon the taxpayers, would, in the long run, be economical, declared Mr. Reynolds.

Howard Adams said: "No one has provided for my future nor the future of many hundreds of others—why, when we are paying higher wages now than those paid in other employments, should we pension city employees?"

Walter Baumgartner said: "If it is good business for large private corporations to pension their employees, why isn't it equally good business for mu-

NO PLANS NOW FOR PERMANENT DAM

Municipal League of Seattle, Seattle, Wash.

Gentlemen:

Your Board of Trustees has referred to your Special Committee on the Skagit Project the alleged proposed issuance of $4,000,000 of bonds for the erection of a permanent dam instead of the crib dam at Gorge Creek. It has been suggested that in the near future this series of bonds will be put on the market by the city or that an effort to secure their issuance will be made by the Light Department. Your Committee has been assured in the most positive terms by Mr. J. D. Ross, the Superintendent of the Light Department, that that department is not planning to request the issuance of these bonds now or in the near future.

It will be borne in mind that the completion of the work on the Skagit that is now under way is only the first step in the development of the water power that is embraced in the entire project. The work now in process of completion will when finished utilize water power behind the municipal corporations to do likewise?"

H. L. Glenn said: "The Daw Commission advocated the pension system for efficiency reasons—we should do likewise."

Mr. W. E. Henry: "Nothing is so belittling to the employees as pensioning them. I am in favor of pensioning only in the event that employees are drafted into the service."

crib dam at Gorge Creek on Skagit River. The amount of this power is 56,000 horsepower. The second proposed step in the development of the Skagit project will include the construction of a concrete dam at Gorge Creek on the Skagit. The crest of this proposed dam will be one hundred feet higher than the crest of the crib dam. This will increase the total power to 112,500 horse power. Obviously the time when it will wise and prudent to enter upon the construction of this dam will depend largely on the rapidity with which the 56,000 added horse power is absorbed for industrial and other purposes. Manifestly the more speedily the demand for power in Seattle increases, the sooner the permanent dam will have to be constructed and the sooner the four million dollar bond issue will have to be marketed.

In a general way if the erection of this dam should be necessitated in the near future by the local demand for power, that circumstance would not be a matter for regret but for congratulation because it would show that Seattle was growing industrially at a rate that would meet the fondest expectations of the most enthusiastic Seattle man.

Your Committee feels no apprehension that the people of Seattle will be mislead by the Light Department as now constituted into a premature initiation into the second step of the Skagit project or the four million dollar bond issue.

JAMES A. HAIGHT

SAFETY COMMITTEE TO STUDY CRIME IN SEATTLE

President Baldwin's Letter to the Chairman

October, 16, 1922.

Mr. Charles Riddell,
1121 L. C. Smith Building,
Seattle, Washington.

My dear Riddell:

The Board of Trustees of the League at its meeting last Monday voted to refer to the Public Safety Committee for study the matter of the Cleveland Crime Survey and the Cleveland Association for Criminal Justice which is an outgrowth of it. I have some material which I transmit to herewith which was loaned to me by Mr. Chatterton, a member of your committee, when first calling my attention to it. When you have gone into the subject, if you desire, we will procure a copy of the Survey Report for the use of your committee.

It seems that there was a Cleveland Foundation fund for just such purposes as this survey. There were employed Dean Roscoe Pound and Prof. Felix Frankfurter, of the Harvard Law School, Raymond Fosdick, and others to make this exhaustive survey.

They found that in Cleveland in 1920 there six times as many murders as in London which had ten times as much population, or sixty times the rate per capita; that there were more robberies and assaults to rob in Cleveland, than in England, Scotland and Wales put together. In 1919 there were 2,327 automobiles stolen in Cleveland, in London there were 290, in Liverpool, 10. All in all, the report state, crime conditions are no more vicious in Cleveland than they are in other American cities. In this respect, therefore, Cleveland's problem is the problem of America.

A survey was made of the laws, of the police, of the prosecutors, of the courts, of the jails and penitentiary, and of the parole and pardon agencies. Recommendations for improvements were made, public opinion was aroused, and these were put into effect, and an association was formed of the leading civic organizations of the city called The Cleveland Association for Criminal Justice to work constantly at the job indicated by its name.

The results have been remarkable. The preliminary hearing in the police courts of felony cases was abolished, with its incidental delay and opportunity for the case to be fixed or lost. The time from arrest to final disposition in felony cases was reduced from an average of 67.8 days to 27.75. Even before the survey was completed, during January and February, 1922, the figures for murder and manslaughter show a decrease of during 1920. Robbery decreased by about 40 per cent and assault to rob by nearly 60 per cent. While the report does not claim credit for all of this decrease, it considers the survey entitled to nearly 50 per cent from the rate a part of the credit.

It is believed that Seattle has nothing to boast of over Cleveland in the way of scarcity of crimes committed or the administration of justice, and that from the study of this subject and Cleveland's work something may be done here to bring about some equally remarkable improvements. This is what the League exists for.

Your committee consists of Louis Schwellenback, chairman, Main 1385; yourself, as vice-chairman; Harrison W. Mason, Rainier 0024; H. I. Chatterton, Main 1730; and Jackson Silbaugh, Main 4241. As the chairman is absent from the city for the next week or two, will you kindly call the committee together and take up this matter with them. We shall watch with keen interest the work of your committee.

Sincerely yours,

J. L. BALDWIN,
President,

LEAGUE COMMITTEES FUNCTIONING

What a joy it is to the officers of the organization to know that the committees that they have appointed and have assigned tasks to, are actually functioning! Such is the case with the Municipal League committees this year with but few exceptions. Thus, the Charter Revision Committee, which is doing a tremendous piece of work, is meeting weekly under the leadership of M. H. Van Nuys, chairman, and from present indications it will not be long before that committee will have a report to submit. If the League adopts that report it will give us the opportunity of doing one of the greatest pieces of constructive work which this, or any other organization, has ever undertaken for the good of the city.

The City Manager—a model charter! Those who have despaired of the way civic governmental machinery has been operated recently have cause for hope. While not a panacea, it is reported throughout the country that the city manager is an improvement—yes, a decided improvement—over the commission form and over the old mayor and councilmanic form.

The Taxation Committee is at this time analyzing and reviewing the reports of surveys made by various organizations in this state along taxation lines. It is scrutinizing with care the recent report of the State Taxation Commission, and by the end of November or the early part of December, promises to report to the League. Professor Laube indicated that there is bound to take place in the next legislature one of the greatest fights on taxation that this state has ever seen. The farming communities are especially thoroughly aroused or their taxes have been higher than those paid by the citizens of our great cities. It is almost beyond belief the burden that the farming communities of this state are today bearing. The committee will have definite and specific recommendations to make and will subdivide its report in a way that each particular recommendation can be voted upon separately.

The Industrial Relations Committee, under the leadership of Mr. James A. Haight, and with the guidance of such men as Foisie, Lindsey, Shields, Fleming and Force, are also expected to make their contribution to the good of the city industrially.

The Public Safety Committee has, as appears in another column of this issue, been given a very important task.

And so it goes, the high idealism of the city's hopes in a governmental way can still be found in the Municipal League.

EIMON L. WIENIR.

GOOD MEETING TUESDAY

Last Tuesday's meeting was one of the best that the League has had in a long time. Not only was the attendance of a high order, but the subject under discussion, the pensioning of civil service employees, was one that seemed to touch the pulse of the membership. When anything can do that, you may rest assured that the discussion on the subject is intensely interesting and intensely alive. Those who missed that meeting not only regret that fact but should determine in their own minds to attend future meetings, for there will be many matters that touch us closely that will arise from time to time.

Next week, for example, the 30-10 plan will be reported upon by our Educational Committee. Already a number of men have indicated a desire to speak pro and con. The week following that we shall have a report on the various referendums and initiatives to be voted upon November 7th.

It is that kind of meetings—such as that of last Tuesday—that reflect credit to the organization and stimulate greater activity on the part of the directors or the organization as well as on the part of the membership.

IS IT SAFE TO CROSS SEATTLE'S STREETS?

Seattle's traffic regulations are not keeping pace with the growth of the city nor with the modern tendencies. We are laboring under the same limited regulations that existed before Seattle was a community of 350,000 people. There have been new ordinances passed, new state laws, but the principle is the same. We need some kind of a change, such as that, perhaps, which was adopted in New York City which regulates traffic for blocks simultaneously.

Member of the League, have you any suggestion to make for the better regulation of traffic?

EIMON L. WIENIR.

ON GROWING OLDER

A little more tired at close of day;
A little less anxious to have our way;
A little less ready to scold and blame,
A little more care for a brother's name;
And so we are nearing the journey's end,
Where time and eternity meet and blend.

A little less care for bonds and gold,
A little more zest in the days of old,
A broader view and a saner mind,
And a little more love for all mankind;
And so we are faring adown the way
That leads to the gates of a better day.

A little more love for the friends of youth,
A little less zeal for established truth,
A little more charity in our views,
A little less thirst for the daily news;
And so we are folding our tents away
And passing in silence at close of day.

A little more leisure to sit and dream
A little more real the things unseen,
A little nearer to those ahead,
With visions of those long loved and dead;
And so we are going to where all must go,
To the place the living must never know.

A little more laughter, a few more tears,
And we shall have told our increasing years;
The book is closed, and the prayers are said,
And we are a part of the countless dead.

Thrice happy, then, if some soul can say;

"I live because he has passed my way."

COUNCIL VOTE TO BE RECORDED IN THE NEWS

Repeated requests have come to the editor of the News that the Council's vote on important matters be recorded in the News, and the vote of each councilman be indicated in the report. Investigation at the Council chambers Friday disclosed the fact that the Council voted on routine matters this week. In the subsequent issues of the News, however, will appear a full record of Council votes on more important issues.

Initiative Measure No. 40.

Chapter 1 of the Session Laws of 1920, Veteran's Compensation Act, appropriated $11,000,000 for the benefit of Veterans of the World War. Chapter 174 of the Sessions Laws of 1921 provides for the levy and collection of an annual poll tax of $5.00. It was generally understood that the poll tax was passed to provide the revenue necessary to take care of the bonus appropriation.

Initiative Measure No. 40 repeals the poll tax law. The Committee believes that appropriation bills and revenue bills should be considered together as complementary legislation, that an unusually large appropriation should be accompanied by a measure providing the necessary funds. However, if the revenue measure adopted proves after a fair trial to be unworkable it should not be retained but another and better measure should be adopted. The poll tax is unpopular and the claim is made that it is not enforced because public sentiment is against it.

If repealed, a new source of revenue must be found or an increase in the general tax rate will result. No suggestions or proposals of new sources have been made so that a choice must be made between the poll tax and an increase in the general rate of taxation unless the next legislature devises new ways and means.

The Committee favors retention of the poll tax until a revenue measure is devised to take its place and provide the revenue required to pay the Soldiers' bonus of over $11,000,000. The law should not be repealed until a new measure is enacted to take its place, therefore the matter is peculiarly one for action by the Legislature.

Referendum Measure No. 12.

This measure provides for further regulation of public service companies by requiring such companies, before they enter a field already occupied by another company, to first apply and obtain a certificate of necessity and convenience from the Director of Public Works after a hearing upon due notice to the company already in the field and other parties interested. From the decision of the Director of Public Works an appeal may be taken to the Courts.

We believe the right method of approaching this subject is to take it up field by field, utility by utility, as fast as actual conditions demand such legislation; that is a true principle of legislation that laws should follow in the wake of actual conditions and as a demand therefore exists and not precede them or attempt to legislate in the abstract. Therefore, the committee recommends rejection of the proposed measure.

Referendum Measure No. 13.

The 1921 session of the Legislature passed a law doing away with certain regulation governing the medical inspection of school children. This law was held inoperative until the people could vote upon the question by a referendum measure. The petition staying the law received 70,000 signatures, twenty-five thousand being necessary to carry the question to the people.

Under the old law, which is still operative, a child may be inspected by a competent authority, as to his hands, face and mouth. No undressing is necessary, and no undue invasion of family confidence is practiced.

By this method a child having had measles, whooping cough, diphtheria,

SPEAKERS DISCUSS EDUCATIONAL BILL

The 30-10 plan, officially known as Initiative Measure "46", was ably presented to the Municipal League at its meeting last Tuesday. William A. Monten, a Spokane attorney and president of the Kiwanis Club of that city, spoke in favor of the measure, and Lou Staude, comptroller of School District No. 1, spoke against the measure.

Mr. Monten stressed the point that the bill equalized the burdens of taxation in so far as that applied to public schools, saying: "We believe in equalization as applied to the State University and other public institutions. Why not so far as they apply to the public school system of the state?" There are seven thousand children in this state, he said, who receive six months of schooling or less during the year, by reason of the poorness of those districts.

The worst problem, however, Mr. Monten continued, was not so much the matter of equalization, as the over-taxation of certain districts, notably the Bremerton-Charleston district. "There are inequalities in the present law that are positively improper and indecent," he said. The city of Spokane, he affirmed, under the present law secures from the state $70,000 more than it is entitled to, but it is willing to lose that sum because it really amounts to "giving up money inadvertently stolen."

Mr. Monten scouted at the idea that school districts would spend more money by reason of the fact that its funds came through the state treasurer. He said that in Western Washington the people were saying that there were no extravagant directors in that part of the state but that they were over in Eastern Washington, and in Eastern Washington they were saying that we have none such here, but that they are over in Western Washington.

Mr. Monten claimed that under the 20-10 plan the cost of maintaining the schools in this state was reduced by some $917,000, and that, therefore, since the 20-10 plan was able to effect a saving, the 30-10 plan would accomplish an even greater saving.

Staude Opposes Bill

Mr. Lou Staude took up the last statement made by Mr. Monten and unequivocally denied the claim of sav-

REPORT ON 30-10 MEASURE

Secretary's Note:—The committee appointed to report on the "30-10" brought in a divided report. Read both reports and come prepared to vote Tuesday noon.

October 27, 1922.

To Municipal League,
Seattle.

Gentlemen:

Your Educational Committee, to which was submitted for investigation and report Initiative Measure No. 46, or the so-called 30-10 School Tax Apportionment Law, submits the following report following an examination of the Measure itself, and the arguments which have been urged for and against it. While we are opposed to the Measure, we are in hearty sympathy with the end which its proponents desire, namely, the equalization of educational opportunity for all the children in the state. We are, however, persuaded that these desirable ends can be realized without resorting to what we consider the undesirable features of the proposed Measure. The following are our reasons for opposing the measure.

First—We are not convinced that an educational emergency exists at the present time. It is true that there are inequalities growing out of the present taxation system, but we believe they are less marked than at any other period of our educational history, and, further, that they are being steadily reduced.

Second—We are opposed to the Measure because it places the expenditure of $3,750,000 of funds raised by state-wide taxation in the hands of local boards which have no responsibility for levying the tax. All experience indicates that the expenditure of funds secured by taxation by a local levy and for which a local board assumes responsibility, are more carefully scrutinized and more efficiently used than where the money comes from a state-wide tax. This is but natural. A local board feels responsibility to its own community for the expenditure of funds which are produced by levy which it has made itself. At the same time, money received from taxes paid by communities in other sections are frequently regarded as not being a drain upon local resources, and hence to be expended with greater freedom.

Third—We are opposed to the Measure because it will, we believe, inevitably result not in equalization of taxation, but in an actual increase of tax burdens. While we are convinced that no funds expended bring to the community such large returns as those invested in education and that as time goes on, it may be wise that these funds be increased. For the present our tax burdens are so heavy that any further increase would result in driving both population and industries to other sections of the country where the taxes are less burdensome. This would result ultimately not in gain, but in loss to the cause of education.

It is argued, however, that the aggregate amounts now spent will not be increased but that funds will be diverted from rich and possibly extravagant districts to poor and needy ones. We are convinced that this is a mistaken view. Those districts charged with extravagance will, we are satisfied, not be disposed to lower the quality or to lessen the range of educational facilities offered. Instead, they will seek to maintain at least the existing standards and in doing so will raise local rates to an extent which will permit their continuance along present lines. In support of this view we would call your attention to the fact that after the passage of the 20-10 Act in 1920, 75 per cent of all the districts in the state also increased their local levies.

Fourth—In view of the fact that only during the present year has the 20-10 plan come into operation, we should, entirely aside from other considerations, urge the wisdom of delay until such a time as we have more actual experience of its operation to guide us. Pending further test of the 20-10 plan now being used, no radical increase is in our judgment wise or desirable.

Fifth—The 30-10 Measure is not the only way in which present inequalities can be corrected. We believe in the equality of educational opportunity, but urge the wisdom of testing the plan proposed by the State Superintendent of Education. No individual in the state has had a more extended experience in state-wide school affairs, nor more accurate statistical data available. She reports that instead of an addition of $3,750,000 from state taxation, a small matter of less than one dollar for each of the 375,000 census children residing in the state will be ample to remedy the present situation. This would seem reasonable to Your Committee in light of that fact that out of 2,400 school districts, there are only approximately 200 so-called poor school districts. $375,000 placed at the disposal of the State Board of Education and expended by them in the light of the statistical data available, or by legislative enactment classifying by limitations the districts known to be needy and by and amended apportionment system send relief where needed would, we believe, come as near to equalizing opportunity as the plan proposed.

In conclusion, we would urge the wisdom of testing this proposed plan. If it be possible to remedy the inequalities now evident in a satisfactory manner by the use of such a special fund, it would, in our judgment, be much wiser than to increase the present state tax in the amount of three and three-quarter million dollars.

Respectfully submitted,
H. A. WOODCOCK.
H. L. GLENN.

* * *

The minority of your education Committee would submit the following report favorable to the school equalization measure, Initiative No 46;

Provisions of the Measure

Provisions of the measure briefly summarized are as follows:

1. Increases the state tax from $20 to $30 per census child. (Local levy may be reduced accordingly.
2. Reduces limit of local levy from 20 to 17 mills. (Limit on local board left unchanged at 10 mills.)

3. Apportions half of state and county funds on attendance and half on number of teachers (subject to review of state board of education.)
4. Eliminates all bonuses (grants not based on recognized needs.)
5. Provides for minimum of eight months school term.
6. Creates an emergency fund of $60,000 for special relief.

The Educational Emergency

A real emergency does exist. In many localities it is a desperate emergency. It is conceded by all that there are 7,000 children in short-term schools. That is more children than there are in average daily attendance in Renton, Kent, Auburn, Sumner, Puyallup and Olympia all together; more children than there are in any one of 31 counties of the state and more than in 8 counties combined. Thousands more have teachers who are untrained, inexperienced and inefficient. Parents of 33,000 children pay a local tax of 20 mills or more and over 90,000 children are in districts with an excessive local tax. Inadequate educational advantages for the children and excessive costs for taxpayers constitute a real emergency not to be ignored or minimized.

Inequalities and Equalization

The reason for the existing emergency lies, not in the average amount spent for education in the state, which is ample but not excessive if fairly collected and fairly distributed, but in the fact that so large a proportion of school support (now over one-half) is raised and expended on the basis of the unequal local unit. Communities vary widely in their ability to finance education on a local basis,—the richest district in the state having nearly 200 times the per capita wealth of the poorest district. Ten districts with approximately the same valuation range from 12 to 820 children to educate. Forty-one rich rural districts have nearly 30 times the wealth of the same number of poor rural districts with the same number of children. Local tax-rates range from 1-2 of one mill to 4 mills, a ratio of 80 to 1 even with one-third of school support equalized by state tax.

The education of the children of every community is a community interest and concern, but it is also a state obligation and responsibility. Education is an absolute essential to good citizenship and constitutes the State's strongest foundation for efficiency and defense. This obligation was assumed by that state when it became a state and wrote into its constitution this unequivocal declaration: "It is the paramount duty of the state to make ample provision for the education of all children residing within its borders". The "Barefoot Schoolboy" Law of 1895 providing a state tax of $6 a child was the first step to meet the State's obligation. The present $20 a child goes one-third of the way. Initiative 46 means another forward step n meeting the State's full obligations.

Does Not Ask for More Money

An increase in the state tax does not mean a necessary increase in the total amount of school support. An increase in the fair state tax makes possible a corresponding reduction in the unequal district tax, a reduction which most school boards and communities will be prompt to make. The contention that local levies would not be curtailed as state apportionments are increased is not borne out in facts. Last year the first year in which the present law, which increased the state tax from $10 to $20, was in full effect. Last year, according to statement of Chas. J. Booth, certified public accountant of Seattle, the state tax was increased $1,761,346.65, but instead of a corresponding increase in total school expenditures, there was a decrease of $933,349, with increase of 7,000 children to educate, or a decrease of 6 per cent per child. What the people did under the present "20-10" law they can do under the "30-10" measure. The amount of school support will continue to be determined by the people acting through the variable local levy. The state tax is simply a fairer plan of raising and distributing whatever amount people want to spend for their schools.

Initiative 46 Based on Justice

There are two ways of meeting educational needs—one a charity method that establishes an educational "breadline" at Olympia with discretionary doles, the other the plan of justice that recognizes education for all children as a state responsibility and meets that obligation as a matter of state justice and duty rather than state philanthropy. Initiative 46 is of the latter type.

Local Consideration

In application of any equalization law it is inevitable that some districts will benefit and others will contribute. The measure benefits neither large nor small district as such but on the basis of per capita wealth and school needs, whatever the size of the communities.

The City of Seattle is but a trifle rich on the per capita basis and would be but little affected. King County including Seattle is right at the state average of per capita wealth. But the question of attitude toward Initiative 46 should be from the state-wide rather than local view-point. Seattle should endorse the principle of state-wide equalization in school costs as applied to the University, not because the state pours a million and a quarter of tax money and indirect financial benefits of about five million more into her lap, but because it is right that the state should support a university. In the same spirit Seattle should approve of state-wide equalization in the costs of common schools even if it does mean some small cost to the City of Seattle. The question is one of principle and duty that should transcend every local and selfish consideration.

In view of the foregoing cogent reasons, it is the conviction of the minority of the Education Committee that the endorsement and support of the Municipal League should be given to Initiative 46.

COMMITTEE REPORTS ON PROPOSED MEASURES

small pox or other infectious diseases may be separated from healthy children and sent home. These convalescent children may have no symptoms detected by casual inspection. Success of referendum 13 will do away with all inspection by nurses and doctors.

To accomplish this, the new law states that a parent or guardian may at the beginning of the school year file a request that no medical inspection be given the child. Then only can he be sent home from school if a teacher or superintendent observes the marks of infection on the hands or hands.

No competent person passes upon the case, and no cultures of the throat may be taken. This last often detecting disease in its most virulent form when the child shows no outward signs of disease.

The old law does not enforce vaccination against small-pox, the child simply stays away from healthy children during the contagious period. If he is exposed he has the choice of vaccination or isolation during the period he is capable of taking it and transmitting it to others.

Success of Referendum 13 will allow small-pox a rich field within our most susceptible population, the youth of the school age. It is well to remember in these years of our security that the 18th century saw fifteen million people die of this disease, but with the advent of vaccination in the last of that century the disease has retreated decade by decade until it is now found only among the superstitious and the liberal democracies.

Our children have been recognized as wards of the state, which requires them by law to receive a certain measure of education. School facilities are provided, all selected to preserve to the highest degree the mental and physical health of the children. The healthy child must have the best light to preserve his sight, and yet these proponents of 13 insist his seat mate may bring him itch, body lice, or any other filth disease that can pass the eye of the already overburdened teacher.

An answer to proponents of this measure is found in the present state of Russia. They need but read the magazine to plumb the depth of horrors in a state where so-called personal liberty has removed all restrictions over health matters.

New laws should always be a step forward in their objective; this measure your committee thinks a distinct backward in health legislation. Vote "NO" on Referendum 13.

Referendum No. 14.

Each elector is required at the time of registering, to declare the name of the political party with which he intends to affiliate at the ensuing primary election and he shall receive ballot in the primary of the party with which he is affiliated as shown on the registration books. It also provides for registration in incorporated cities and towns every two years and outside of such cities and towns every four years, etc.

The purpose of this measure is to guard against members of one party invading the primaries of any other party and participating in that other party's choice of its candidates. Such invasion tends to destroy party rule and is generally believed to be a fraud upon the party whose primaries are invaded by electors of the opposite political faith. To insure good government Republicans should nominate Republican candidates and Democrats should nominate Democratic candidates.

The Committee is in favor of this measure.

Referendum Measure No. 15

This provides, in substance, that candidates for precinct committeemen of the various parties may have their names on that ballot at the primary election; any elector duly registered may file with the County Auditor a declaration of his candidacy for precinct committeeman of the party only with which he is registered, upon paying a fee of $1.00. These precinct committeemen constitute the party committee for the County. The State Committee shall consist of one committeeman from each County elected by the County committee, providing however, the State committee may provide for the election of State committeemen of each County by the County convention.

It makes specific provision for the election of delegates to County conventions by elections held in the different precincts and provides restrictions and guarantees similar to those provided by law for other elections. Such delegates may adopt a County platform and select delegates to State conventions who in turn may adopt a State platform, etc. It also provides that a candidate must, in filing a declaration of candidacy, make an oath that he has been affiliated for at least two years past with the party for which he appears as a candidate and that he believes in the principles of that party, accepts and endorses the platform adopted by that party at its last State convention, and if elected he will support same generally.

The Committee recommends this Measure to the favorable consideration of the voters.

Proposed Amendment No. 1.

Section 22 of Article I of the Constitution of the State of Washington, it is proposed, should be amended by permitting criminal prosecution to be brought in any County of the State, traversed by any railroad coach, train, or public conveyance and the water traversed by any boat, for all public offenses committed during the trip or voyage on any such railroad car, coach, train, boat or other public conveyances.

Proposed Amendment No. 2.

It is proposed that Section 4 of Article VIII of the Constitution of the State of Washington should be amended so that no money should be paid out by the Treasurer of the State except in pursuance of appropriation by law and unless such payment be made within one calendar month after the end of the next ensuing fiscal biennial and that every law making a new appropriation should distinctly specify the sum appropriated and the object to which it is to be applied, and it shall not be sufficient for such law to refer to any further law to fix such sum.

Proposed Amendment No. 3.

By this amendment it is proposed to increase the compensation of members of the Legislature from $5.00 to $10.00 a day for each day's attendance during the session and to allow them 10c per mile of travel.

The Committee favors adoption of all three amendments. The first proposal is designed to determine whether a crime is committed in one County or another on account of the rapid movement of the train or other conveyances from one County to another.

The second proposal changes the time of payment from the first day of May following passage of such appropriation to within one calendar month after the end of the next ensuing fiscal biennial.

The third proposal is obvious upon its face.

GREAT DEBATE ON 30-10

STAGED BEFORE LEAGUE

ing as made by Mr. Monten. He said that the $917.00 saved from the apportionments received through the state treasurer were saved entirely by the districts of Bellingham, Walla Walla and Seattle. He pointed out that over 75 per cent of the districts increased their local levies, due largely to the fact that they were getting an increase under the 20-10 plan.

Mr. Staude divided the subject under discussion into two parts, i. e. (1) Will the new measure raise taxation? (2) Will it reduce the aggregate taxation? He took up the latter question first. He said "There will be an increase of $3,750,000 in our tax rolls. The contention is made that the local levy will be decreased—but will it? Human experience has shown us that where one has more automatic increase of income, he will have a proportionate automatic increase of expense. In Seattle we must get by on a ten mill levy—we could easily spend more. But if you say that the tax reducing organizations will watch the budget and see that no more money is spent than necessary, I will cite you an instance to refute that argument: At the request of a number of civic organization the School Board of Seattle published its budget in the newspapers of the city at a cost of $500. At the hearing of the budget only three persons, outside of the school board and various heads of departments attended.

"Out of the 2,600 school districts in Washington, less than 200 are what are known as "poor districts". Mrs. Preston, the Superintendent of Public Instruction at Olympia, informed us in a recent report that $215,000 will care for these "poor districts". Why then should we pass legislation assessing 2,600 districts to care for only 200 districts? In other words, since an increase in the ratio of state aid is required—that is, an increase of $315,000—why not make it proportionate, 21-10 instead of 30-10.

"The remedy, I believe, is consolidation of districts through the medium of County unit, all districts coming under one head instead of as present each district building up with no eye for the future."

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE'S RECOMMENDATIONS ON INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM MEASURES, AMENDMENTS TO STATE CONSTITUTION AND COUNTY OFFICERS

Municipal League by bare majority, FAVORS Initiative Measure No. 40 (Poll Tax), An Act providing for the repeal of the poll tax.

Municipal League OPPOSED to Initiative Measure No. 40 (30-10). An act providing for a current state school fund sufficient to produce $30.00 for each child of school age.

Municipal League recommends vote "NO" to Referendum Measure No. 14. "An Act relating to primary nominations and the registration of voters, and requiring electors to state their party affiliations at the time of registration.

Municipal League recommends vote "NO" to Referendum Measure No. 15. "An act relating to the election and powers of precinct committeemen and party committees, the nomination of candidates for public office and the holding of party conventions for the purpose of adopting platforms and nominating presidential electors".

Municipal League FAVORS all three amendments to the State Constitution:

1. An Act amending Section 22 of Article I of the State Constitution by providing that the trial of a person accused of a public offense committed on any railway car, coach, train, boat or other public conveyance may be had in any

Municipal League recommends vote "NO" to Referendum Measure No. 12 (The Certificate of Necessity Measure). An act providing for the issuance of certificates of necessity and conveniences by the director of public works to public service companies in cases where similar service is being rendered the localities proposed to be served by other public service companies.

Municipal League recommends vote "NO" to Referendum Measure No. 13 (Health Bill). "An Act providing that parents or guardians may forbid physical examination of their school children in districts of the first class except when such children show symptoms of contagious or infectious diseases; and providing that vaccination, inoculation or other medication shall not be made a condition of attendance or employment in such schools except of such persons suspected of having or who have been exposed to contagious diseases."

county through which such conveyance may pass."

2. An Act amending Section 4 of Article VIII of the State Constitution by providing that payments from state appropriations should be made within one calendar month after the end of the next ensuing fiscal biennium."

3. "An Act amending Section 23 of Article II of the State Constitution relating to compensation to be paid members of the Legislature by increasing the compensation of such members from $5.00 to $10.00 a day for each day's attendance during the session."

COUNTY OFFICERS: The Municipal League's Candidates' Investigating Committee in its report submitted to the League before the primaries and approved by the League, favorably mentioned the following for their respective offices. The committee consisted of: Dan Earle, Chairman, Willis B. Herr, H. I. Chatterton, A. K. Fiske, and Frank I. Curtis.

COUNTY AUDITOR REPORT ON CANDIDATES

The committee on investigation of candidates made a report on same before the recent primaries as follows:

D. E. Ferguson, candidate for County Auditor on the Republican ticket, is 48 years of age, Canadian by birth but a resident of Seattle for 16 years. His business is that of an accountant; he is the present County Auditor, filing for reelection; at the time of taking office he was not a candidate of the so-called Court House "ring" and from some reports it appears that a deliberate attempt was made to count him out as a result of the close contest in that election. His record indicates that he has conducted the office in a very efficient manner and has surrounded himself with an organization which has given prompt and courteous service to the public; he impresses the Committee as being able to give a good account of his stewardship and they believe he deserves favorable consideration in view of the services already rendered in that office.

COUNTY ASSESSOR

Samuel H. Chase, candidate for County Assessor on the Republican ticket, has been for 12 years Deputy Assessor for King County and has had 2 years experience as a Civil Deputy in the Prosecuting Attorney's office; was born 58 years ago and educated for the law. Mr. Chase has been 16 years in Washington, is married and owns property here. He has had considerable experience in executive capacities and the legal business pertaining to the Assessor's office. The Committee considers Mr. Chase well qualified for the office to which he aspires.

PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

Malcolm Douglas, present Prosecuting Attorney and running for re-election, is sufficiently well known to make unnecessary any details of introduction; he is running on his record in office and the Committee believes that record to be one of ability and efficiency which entitles him to the favorable consideration of King County.

COUNTY CLERK

REPORT OF LAST TUESDAY'S MEETING

At one of the best attended meetings of the year the League's special committee, reporting on the various initiative and referendum measures (with the exception of Initiative Measure No. 46, the 30-10 school tax measure), received a decided set-back.

As reported in the "Municipal News" of last week, the committee, consisting of Nelson R. Anderson, A. J. Balliet, Edgar Battle, Dr. F. R. Underwood and Andrew Willatsen, unanimously recommended the retention of the poll tax, favored Referendum No. 12 (the Certificate of Necessity Measure), favored Referendum No. 13, was opposed to Referendum No. 14 and 15 and favored the proposed amendments to the State Constitution.

After a short but pointed debate, the League by one vote went on record as favoring the repeal of the poll tax and, almost to a man, expressed its disapproval of the measures known as "Referendums No. 14 and No. 15."

With practical unanimity the League approved of the conclusions of the committee on Referendum No. 12—the certificate of necessity measure — the League voting unanimously against the measure). The findings on the proposed amendments to the Constitution were adopted, favorable to the amendments.

A surprising incident of the meeting was the absence of any discussion upon the majority report opposed to Initiative No. 46 (the 30-10 plan). The majority report which was read by Mr. H. A. Woodcock as acting chairman and which was concurred in by R. M. Dyer and H. L. Gienn, received the overwhelming approval of the membership.

It was expected that there would be considerable debate on this measure; for at the preceding meeting a minority report signed by Mr. Dallas D. Johnson and Marion Edwards aroused numerous expressions of opinion. In fact, it was expected that the reports on the other initiative and referendum measures would receive but little attention, and consequently the main order of business was the 30-10 report. Contrary to this expectation the membership discussed practically all of the initiative and referendum measures with the exception of the 30-10. The vote against the latter measure was almost unanimous.

Mr. Louis Scholl, though not a member of the League, was given a few minutes to speak in favor of Referendum No. 13.

in that office and has no opposition on the Republican ticket. Committee believes Mr. Grant's record entitles him to re-election.

COUNTY SHERIFF

Matt Starwich, candidate for re-election to the office of sheriff on the Republican ticket, was for many years previous to his election known as a fearless and efficient deputy. His record for economy in the sheriff's office has been unique and a model for other County offices. This economy has not been attained at any cost of efficiency. The committee believes that Mr. Starwich's record indicates that he will, if re-elected, continue to render exceptionally satisfactory service.

J. K. Jensen, candidate for Sheriff on the Democratic ticket, born in Chicago, is 44 years old, has been a resident of Auburn for 9 years where he is now engaged in the freight department of the Northern Pacific Ry. Co. He is also Police Judge at Auburn, previous to which he was for a short time Deputy Sheriff under Stringer and has been chief of Police at Auburn. He is strongly in favor of the prohibition and motor vehicle laws being enforced and seems to the Committee to be good material.

COUNTY SUPT. OF COMMON SCHOOLS

A. S. Burrows, candidate for County Superintendent on the Republican ticket, is 50 years of age and has been a resident of Seattle for 30 years. He is a graduate of the University of Washington, was born in Iowa and has occupied the position of Superintendent and Deputy Superintendent for the past 12 years. Prior to his election as Superintendent of Schools he was a school teacher. Mr. Burrows is married and has a family of six children and in the Committee's opinion Mr. Burrows is qualified for the office.

COUNTY ENGINEER

Thomas R. Beeman, candidate for County Engineer on the Republican ticket, age 41 years, resident of Seattle for 16 years, is a graduate engineer and well known as King County Engineer for the past two years, and previous to that as Assistant County Engineer. He has had a wide experience in charge of railway and highway construction and for two years on the French front was Captain of Engineers in the United States Army. The Committee believe he has operated the Engineer's office efficiently and economically and recommend him for re-election.

COUNTY CORONER

Dr. W. H. Corson, candidate for County Coroner on the Republican ticket, 42 years of age and has lived in Seattle more than 30 years. He is the present coroner and has filed for second term. Is prepared to stand upon the record of his first term of administration. Has been a practicing physician for some 17 years and claims to have an organization at the present time which is administering the affairs of the coroner's office at a minimum cost.

to the County considering the importance and extent of the work.

COUNTY COMMISSIONER FIRST DISTRICT

Wm. A. Gaines, present County Treasurer, candidate for County Commissioner from the City District, age 42, has lived in Seattle 14 years and has never held public office prior to his election as Treasurer. His principal business experience has been in banks and in the general detail work of office and financial business administration. He has definite ideas for economy and efficiency and illustrated some of his ideas in the conduct of his present office, the records of which show a cost of .56 of 1 per cent as the cost for every $100.00 collected as taxes during his present term which is a very creditable showing.

RESOLUTION NO. 7266

Be it resolved by the City Council of the City of Seattle:

That we appeal to the people of the State of Washington to defeat once more Referendum No. 12, known as the "Certificate of Necessity Bill", at the next state election on November 7, 1922; and be it Further Resolved that we ask for the people of the City of Seattle, and all other municipalities of the state the utmost freedom in establishing and developing electric power as one of the potent means for bringing about prosperity in the great State of Washington.

Passed the City Council the 30th day of October, 1922, and signed by me in open session in authentication of its passage this 30th day of October, 1922.

Citizens of Harrah, Oklahoma, protest the ringing of the 9 o'clock curfew, because it interrupts their slumbers. Every night after the village has settled down for a good rest and the lights are turned out, the clanging of the curfew rouses the citizenry from its slumbers and the situation is becoming well-nigh unbearable, according to the delegation that registered a complaint with the county attorney.

PAGED!!

MIDDLE CLASS RULES ITALY

The middle class does most of the constructive work, pays most of the taxes, furnishes the solid foundation on which organized society rests but only rarely does it forsake its mild and pacific course and, by asserting itself, prove its strength. The Fascisti represent the middle class in Italy.

That is why Benito Mussolini's victory is so astonishing—so amazing. He has accomplished something no other popular leader in Europe has been capable of doing. He has induced middle-class folk, who ordinarily ask only the privilege of working, living and creating and paying taxes, to assert themselves. Probably, he and his followers are as greatly surprised as others by his and their unexpected success.

Yet, it wasn't a particularly difficult task once some one had the vision to perceive the need for action, the courage to undertake the task and the ability to see it through against all the opposition or organized radicalism, bitterly contemptuous of the "bourgeoise" middle class, and of the entrenched ultraconservatism of the ruling class. The former had to be fought but they did not fight nearly so well as the Fascisti; the latter resented middle class intrusion but ultimately recognized that a kindly Providence had sent them a new friend and ally whose strength, vigor and resolution made him the most powerful of all law-abiding and law enforcing agencies in the country.

Now, one wonders whether Mussolini is merely a happenstance or a genius—whether his usefulness ended when he organized the "bourgeoise" of Italy or whether, in truth and in fact, he possesses the political sagacity and the statesman-like ability to direct the new government in successful ways.

He has wisely sought the backing of the patriotic by naming General Diaz and Admiral di Revel as ministers of war and marine, respectively. He has gained the support of the Nationalist, Democrat and Catholic Parties by selecting cabinet members from these organizations. For himself, he reserves the all-important portfolios of interior and foreign affairs.

Italy is the scene of a most interesting experiment in government. If Mussolini succeeds, there will be a complete end to extremism in Europe west of the Russian border—and, perhaps, radicalism will not last long even there.—Italian Gazette, Seattle.

Buffaloes at the Canadian federal game park at Wainwright, Alberta, have increased in such numbers that government officials state the vast tract of land set aside for them is insufficient to accommodate them. A number of the older animals are to be slaughtered, the carcasses to be sold to northern trading companies to be made into pemmican. The government will retain the hides.

Public Safety Committee Recommends Dance Halls Be Closed

SECRETARY'S NOTES OF CURRENT INTEREST

Among the new members added to the rolls of the League within the last few days are the following: Spencer Gray, Lawyer; W. Woolston, professor at the U. of W.; George H. Preston, Insurance; J. N. Bowman, Vocational Bureau, U. S. Government; Theodore Carlson, student at the U. of W.; G. L. Bos Sulpe, Cashier and bookkeeper.

Vivian Carkeek, chairman of the League's County-City Consolidation committee is convening his committee and will lay a plan for work with the end in view of having the proper kind of legislation passed this coming session of the legislature. A good deal of opposition to the consolidation of county-city governments has already been expressed by the old line politicians who do not favor any more non-partisan units in government. It will take a good deal of campaigning on the part of those favorable to the project to swing sentiment in their favor. There are few if any more competent persons to tackle a job of this kind, however, than Mr. Carkeek. We look to some tangible results of his committee's work.

W. E. Henry, the League's representative on the Narcotics Council, reported to the Board last Monday that he is opposed to the League being bound by the representative's acts unless the same be first approved by the League membership. He believes, he said, that the League's influence should be behind the work of the Council as it was a worthy cause. He recommended that the League join as a member of the White cross and urged as many of the members of the League as is possible to also join. The Board accepted Mr. Henry's report. The Secretary, in Mr. Henry's absence Tuesday, reported to the membership the substance of his report. Upon motion of Dr. Kilbourne it was approved and the League voted to join the White Cross and Mr. Henry was asked to continue representing the League at the Narcotics Council

SCOPE AND ACTIVITIES OF BUILDING DEPT.

From The Building Department,
To Mr. Eimon Wienir, Secretary,
Municipal League, 405 Leary Building,
Seattle, Washington.

Subject: Scope and Activities of The Building Department.
Dear Sir:

Responding to your request that I give you a statement concerning the general activities of the Building Department of the City of Seattle, I have the privilege of replying as follows:

Under the intention of the framers of the original charter of the City of Seattle, the Building Department was designed to be used only to enforce the laws governing the erection alteration, repair and demolition of buildings. Later, the City Council in its wisdom saw fit to place more responsibility upon it, until now the activities embrace a much wider field than originally.

The Building Department proper consists of the Superintendent, who is also a member of the Board of Public Works, two Structural Engineers, who pass upon plans as submitted by builders, checking the structural features against the Building Code and indicating any corrections necessary; one Ordinance Plan Examiner who checks the plans against the Ordinances governing heights, areas, stairways, elevators, means of egress, light and ventilation, location, etc. One Chief Electrical Inspector who checks the plans against electrical ordinances; he also has direction of the two Electrical Inspectors who inspect the work in process of erection and the completed job. One Structural Inspector whose duties are confined to reinforced concrete and steel con-

Hance H. Cleland, Supervisor of public utilities, in reply to a query from the League's Secretary, states that the Seattle Lighting Company carries no property on its books as an asset that is not such actually.

Secretary Eimon L. Wienir after hearing some complaints to the effect that the company was putting something over on the Commission wrote Mr. Cleland, who replied as follows.

Municipal League, Seattle.

Attention of Mr. Eimon L. Wienir,
Secretary.

Dear Sir:

This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 16th with reference to complaints against the Seattle Lighting Company of your city.

You state:

"One charge made is that the company is carrying certain property on its books long since passed out of usefulness. Is this true?"

The Seattle Lighting Company, as well as all other public utility companies operating in this state, are required by law to keep their books, records and accounts in accordance with an official classification of accounts or system of accounts prescribed by this Department. Our engineers and accountants have made many investigations of the books, records and accounts of the Seattle Lighting Company; and have, during the writer's membership on the Commission and the Department, submitted several detailed reports thereon. There has been nothing from any of those examinations or reports

SECRETARY'S NOTE—The following report was presented to the League Tuesday noon and was approved without a dissenting vote.

Your Committee on Public Safety has had referred to it the question of certain dance halls being operated in the South end of the City and later the general question of moral conditions in the city of Seattle. Your Committee believes it advisable to report at this time on the specific question of dance halls and not permit the issue to become clouded by a discussion of general conditions in the City. If the conditions South of Yesler Way require certain action it makes no difference what may be the conditions upon Pike Street and Pine Street and the League should not permit any one to lead it away from the consideration of the particular question which is now before us.

There are being operated at the present time two dance halls South of Yesler Way. One of them is the Liberty, 217 1-2 Second Avenue South and the other the Dreamland at 5th South near Jackson. These dance halls employ a large number of girls for the purpose of soliciting dances and the selling of drinks. The Liberty has thirty-one girls employed and in the Dreamland at least twenty-five girls are employed. These girls apparently secure their remuneration from a percentage on the business solicited. In connection with the place they run a soft drink bar and serve various kinds of soft drinks at prices running from 50c to $2.50. Your Committee has made personal investigation of the conditions that exist and is satisfied that the course of action that should be taken is for the League to request of the Mayor that he close these two places and compel them to make application before the City Council for licenses as cabarets. Our conclusion is based upon the following:

FIRST: They are being operated in violation of the law. The City Ordinance provides that cabarets must in order to operate, first secure a license from the City Council. The Ordinance No. 42395 requires them to make application, pay license fee of $100.00, have the application presented to the City Council, by it re-

THE MUNICIPAL LEAGUE WELCOMES EXPRESSIONS OF OPINIONS ON CIVIC MATTERS AND PROBLEMS. ALL COMMUNICATIONS SHOULD BE ADDRESSED TO THE SECRETARY AT HIS OFFICE, 205 LEARY BUILDING.

Public Safety Committee Recommends Dance Halls be closed—

ferred to the Chief of Police and then on its return to the Council that a hearing be had before the Council where all persons interested may appear and a full and complete investigation as to the past and future conduct of the place of business may be had before license is issued; that also by a later amendment provides for a revoking of license by the Council. Mayor Brown has taken the attitude that these places below Yesler Way were not cabarets but simply dance halls and that they did not require a license from the City Council, but could operate under authority issued by him and his Chief of Police. The Ordinance No. 42395 defines the cabarets, as follows:

"The term cabaret as used herein is hereby defined as a place of public resort, accomodation, assemblage, entertainment or amusement where refreshments of any kind are served for gain or profit and where dancing, entertainment or exhibition are given or permitted in connection therewith, or a place of public resort, accomodation, assemblage where entertainment or amusement are given or conducted for gain or profit and dancing and serving of refreshments of any kind are permitted."

Clearly these places come within the definition. Drinks and refreshments are served, dancing and entertainment are permitted for gain or profit and the Mayor is clearly openly defying the provisions of the law in refusing to close these places. Whether it is right or wrong for them to operate it is the duty of the Mayor to enforce the law no matter what he may think of it. If he believes that the law should be repealed or amended he can ask the Council to do so, but as long as it exists as it does, it is his duty to enforce it and it is the duty of our organization as one interested in the enforcement of law, to demand its enforcement.

SECOND: These dance halls are a menace to the public morals. Your Committee does not believe that it is necessary for us to enter into a controversy with the Mayor or any one else on the question as to whether or not these dance halls are immoral. We will say frankly that we believe they are and that our investigation has led us to that conclusion. But whether they are or not, the possibilities that they contain for immorality are such as to make the danger of immorality so great as to make their closing imperative. The girls employed in these cabarets are not middle-aged women but are young girls from eighteen to twenty-five. These girls are there every night, soliciting the men to either dance with them or to purchase drinks. Common sense will tell any one that no young girl can work evening after evening in that atmosphere, soliciting in that way, without being led eventually into the work of prostitution. Whether or not these places are run morally now, if they are permitted to continue, they will lead to the inevitable downfall of a very large number of girls. That consideration itself should be sufficient to compel their closing. It is a well-known fact that throughout the country dance halls and cheap cabarets are a breeding place for crime. Certainly the people of the City of Seattle should not permit their Mayor to openly disregard the law and protect place that leave open such opportunities for the propagation of crime.

Joe Marsell, who runs the Dreamland formerly ran the Breaker and the Fortola, both of which are now inoperative.

Roy Thornton has been arrested both by the Seattle Police and Federal Officials. He was confined from March to August, 1918, in quarantine.

THIRD: They benefit no one. The Mayor claims that the reason why these dance halls are permitted to operate is because they afford a place of innocent amusement for working men. In the first place they are not patronized by the working men. A person entering the hall is struck with the fact that most of the persons dancing are young boys and girls of the ages from eighteen to twenty-five. They are not of the working class. To the working men who do go to these cabarets they can not be called an innocent place of amusement. One thing we believe even the Mayor will agree upon and that is that they either are immoral or that they are not immoral. If they are immoral and lead to the opportunities for immorality they can't be called innocent places of amusement and certainly we can not justify the operation of such places. If they are not immoral and do not lead to the opportunities for immorality then any working man who visits the places certainly is a victim of highway robbery. As we stated before, the prices paid for drinks range anywhere from 50c to $2.50. The dances are exceedingly short and although the price is low the girls practically insist upon a tip and it makes the price of each dance, which only last about two or three minutes, 25c or 50c. It is impossible for a man to go to one of these places and spend an evening and participate in the frivolity for less than $10.00 to $20.00. Your Committee feels that that is too much expense for innocent amusement on the part of a laboring man and certainly the City should not encourage the operation of any such highway robbery from resorts like this. We are unable to see where the Mayor is doing any great favor to the working man by permitting him to spend anywhere from $20.00 to $30.00 a night on such class of innocent amusement.

Your Committee therefore recommends that the Secretary be instructed to orward a copy of this report to the Mayor with a letter on behalf of the League requesting that these places be immediately closed and that they be compelled to make application in regular form to the City Council as is required by law.

meetings.

As showing the thoroughness with which the Charter Revision Committee is going at its work: Wm. G. Mann, a member of the committee, asked the Board of Trustees, its opinion as to what the minimum and maximum salaries ought to be for the six most important department heads of the city government. This under the city-manager plan. A majority of the Board considered $4,000 as a minimum and $10,000 as a maximum.

The Fire Apparatus bids, which was the subject of an article in last week's "News", has not as yet been settled by the Board of Public Works, though the indication at this writing is that all bids will be rejected. One member of the Board told the writer that he considered the Stutz apparatus the best of all. That company bid the sum of $165,720.00 for the 17 pieces. As this is under the appropriation made by the ordinance the Board could, of course accept the bid, even though it is not the lowest bid, if it is satisfied that the apparatus is the best for the money. Why there should be much heckling over these bids is definitely known. It is a matter common knowledge, however, that the companies who sell equipment of this kind, play the political game. Witness the fact that two of these companies have retained counsel who know city politics. A League committee will shortly have something to say about this matter.

As an upshot of the Fire Apparatus bids matter Mayor Brown in a communication to the State Auditor at Olympia, asked for the investigation of the city purchasing agent's department. The Mayor said he had no specific charges to make but wanted an investigation.

The Rockefeller Institute is studying the causes of yellow fever in Mexico and a special commission has been appointed to gather data on the work done by other medical societies and institutes at work in the fever districts.

indicating that the books were kept in any other manner than that prescribed by law and by the Department. Under this system of accounting, every item of plant is accounted for; and, if the same passes out of public use, it is charged off on the books of the company; and, if not charged off, our accountants make a special report thereon, and the same is disregarded by the Department in firing the company's rate-base or valuation.

For your information further, there is enclosed herewith copies of our last order relative to the rates of the Seattle Lighting Company and of my letter to the King County Legislative Federation and the Women's Civic Club of Seattle in response to a letter from them.

In view of the proceeding, which, I understand, is to be instituted by the City of Seattle against the Seattle Lighting Company, I do not deem it advisable to discuss other features which might be of interest to your members for the reason that we will be called upon to determine those matters judicially when that case has been submitted.

Trusting that the information given will be informative and in line with what you had in mind in making your request, I am

Yours respectfully,

Supervisor of Public Utilities.

BUILDING DEPARTMENT

struction throughout the city. Two Building Inspectors assigned to the office to issue Building Permits and serve the public. One Chief Building Inspector having direction of the eight Building Inspectors for field work. Their duties involve the inspection of the work on the job and during construction. Three Clerk-Stenographers who, in addition to their duties in connection with the Building Permits, take care of the stenographic work incidental to the activities of the Department.

The Building Department has charge of all the new construction for the City, the repair and maintenance of all the City buildings, including police stations, fire stations, hospitals, Firlands Sanatorium, Comfort stations, markets, etc., the direction of which is handled by the Superintendent of Construction and Repair, under whom are employed plumbers, carpenters, painters and various other building mechanics.

The Building Department has supervision of the City Hall telephone operators, janitors, elevator operators and steam engineers at the Public Safety Building, custodians and matrons at comfort stations and the janitors of the Old City Halls at Ballard and Georgetown.

The Boiler Inspection division is under this department and has one Chief Inspector and one assistant, part-time. The Architectural Drafting Department, while inactive at present, is one of the responsibilities of the Building Department. The Building Department is also charged with responsibility for safe elevator service in all buildings of the city and it is our hope to convince the City Council of the necessity of appointing an Inspector for that division.

Under the Auditing Department we have one Chief Clerk and one assistant. The Chief Clerk, in addition to his other duties, has supervision of the janitors, elevator operators, engineers, telephone operators, auto mechanics and custodians of comfort stations. He has charge of all the supplies for the various departments and in addition has supervision of all real estate owned by the City and is responsible for the collection of all rents and proceeds of sales of all real property belonging to the City, as well as custodian of all buildings and real property taken under condemnation proceedings, and the disposal of these buildings prior to the physical improvement of the streets.

We also have one truck driver who delivers fuel oil to the Firlands Sanatorium and to the Public Safety Building; two auto mechanics who have the repair of all cars of this Department and the Department of Public Utilities. We also pay all rents for all departments in the City except the Library and Park Board. We employ an average of one hundred twenty people and disburse an average of $26,000 a month.

Beginning September fifteenth, and continuing for eight months of each year, the office of this Department is kept open Saturday afternoons with full force on duty, and it is our wish that those concerned take advantage of this period to secure such information as may not be convenient to obtain during the other days.

The Superintendent and Chief Structural Engineer are members of the Building Code Commission, and meet with other members of the Commission on an average of two evenings a week on the revision of the Building Code; the Superintendent is also a member of the Zoning Commission and, upon adoption by the City Council of the Zoning Law, this Department will be charged with its enforcement.

Since assuming charge of this office I have been able to reduce the personnel by two employees, and beginning January 1st, 1923, will reduce by three, all without reduction of service or efficiency. My recommendation to the Finance Committee of the City Council for the 1923 Budget shows a reduction from 1922 of $45,894, or 14.8 per cent. My recommendations, however, were not all sustained by the City Council and our Budget now shows a reduction of $40,720 over the present year.

During the past few weeks we have been successful in having adopted by the City Council modifications of the Building Code, which modifications, without a reduction of safety standards, permit of less costly construction in the business district, and which we feel will give added impetus to new construction and continued employment to our skilled mechanics and laborers, than which there are none better.

It is the purpose of this Department to dispose of some six hundred pieces of property belonging to the City and get it on the rolls for taxation purposes. This list includes some very desirable residence and industrial property, as well as three parcels of acreage aggregating 350 acres, and should admit of ready sale at a reasonable figure.

In conclusion I want you to know that we appreciate the opportunity you have extended us in getting the facts concerning our Department before the readers of your newsy weekly.

Yours very truly,

ROBERT L. PROCTOR,

Superintendent of Buildings.

COMMENTS ON EVENTS
From Nat'l Municipal Review

"Make Politics Your Job" is the slogan adopted by The American Boy in a campaign to educate and interest boys in politics. The series of stories and fact articles, which is to direct them to their civic responsibilities, began with a story of a high school "ring" which was quickly vanquished (too quickly almost) when the high-minded boys asserted their power.

"Make Politics Your Job" is a healthy slogan for a democracy and is good for young and old alike. Unfortunately, as described in the article in last month's "Review" entitled "The Political Ambitions of College Students", the advice usually is, "John, keep out of politics."

The American Boy deserves our thanks for a well planned effort to improve government by restoring a sound interest in politics. The world has fallen upon evil days but it is time that it was restored to respectability. Citizen and politician ought to be synonymous.

The Regional Planning Conference of Los Angeles county held its fourth annual meeting at Verdugo Canyon last September. We predict that this organization will make history make all material easily avail

Its purpose is to plan and regulate the development of Los Angeles and surrounding communities. The physical make-up of this area consists of a metropolitan center surrounded by many satellite communities, all to be connected by suitable transportation facilities, to be supplied with pure water, to be provided sanitary sewers and given easy access to parks and boulevards.

What is advocated is a "metropolitan system" which will give to suitable county agencies control over matters of general concern but which will encourage the individual identity of the constituent parts.

What is aimed at is a new federalism in the government of metropolitan areas. During the past generation a new type of community has developed adjacent to our larger cities. Our traditional forms of local government are not adapted to it, and a new form must be designed. The problem is easy to state. "A central authority over matters of general concern but full individuality for each part in local affairs" sounds easy, but how is it to be worked out in practice?

The trouble is that, for such an area, some problems are urban while others are rural. For the government of such neither municipal or county government as we know them are satisfactory.

WOOLSTON URGES CIVIC INSTITUTE

President Baldwin, in introducing Professor Woolston, said that Seattle is fortunate in having the University at its door from which it can draw for speakers.

Howard Woolston, professor of Sociology at the University of Washington, urged the establishment of a social institute for the City of Seattle, which would contain a complete record of the city's history, material, educational and cultural resources, social surveys, and so on.

This information he said, exists in some form or other throughout the city today, but it is scattered, and few people have any knowledge of its contents.

He continued:

"Similar institutions exist in some of the larger cities of this country, notably New York, where the New York Municipal Reference Library is operative. In Edinburgh, the Outlook Tower located in that city contains a civic observatory and museum combined. In Amsterdam, Holland, a similar institution exists. The Amsterdam institution recently prepared a chart comparing the birth and death rates of that city with other large cities of the world for the past twenty years.

Many of the foreign cities bring out a Municipal Year Book, which ought to be a model to American cities in form and contents."

Professor Woolston stated, "The plan or equipment of such an institution could consist of a small building near the center of the city, or a suite of rooms in a centrally located office building. This plant should contain a select library, a lecture hall, and a statistical department.

EDUCATION WEEK PLANS OUTLINED

Next Tuesday's meeting of the Municipal League, "Three Angles on Education", is in line with Educational Week throughout the country. President Harding has designated the week December 3rd to 9th as "American Educational Week". Each national organization has been invited to cooperate. This includes all clubs affiliated with the National Municipal League, men's clubs, women's clubs, and other organizations.

It has seemed best to designate special phases of education that should be emphasized this week from the standpoint of national welfare. The members of the American Legion are particularly interested in Americanization work and they are asking that Sunday, December 3rd, be designated as "God and Country Day". Monday, December 4th, as "American Citizen Day", and Tuesday, December 5th, as "Patriots Day". The other days have been designated as follows: Wednesday, December 6th,

COUNCIL ELECTS COLONEL RICE

Mayor Brown's repeated nomination of Carl Gassman as the Superintendent of Streets has become exceedingly funny to the voters of this city.

The recent report of a special committee of this League very clearly indicated that Carl Gassman was considered a person not possessing sufficient qualification for the position as required by the charter of the City of Seattle. The committee suggested that there were so many persons in the city who were qualified and that there was no necessity for the mayor insisting upon Gassman's appointment being confirmed.

When the Council, finding itself unable to concur with the Mayor's viewpoint, and when the Mayor failed to nominate a man whom the Council could consider seriously, did appoint an engineer, Colonel Rice, for the position, the Mayor raised a fuss and stated that he will refuse to recognize him, etc.

The Mayor's attitude and his

FIVE CENT FARE AGAIN PROPOSED

By Eimon L. Wienir

From the view-point of the Municipal League, as previously expressed by its Board of Trustees and by its Public Utilities Committee, any proposed ordinance to reduce the rate of carfare, without at the same time providing for the deficit sure to follow, would be extremely poor business.

There is bound to be a deficit if the fare is reduced to five cents with or without transfer privileges.

In the first year that the city operated the street railways, 1919-20, there were approximately 122,000,000 riders. The following year there were approximately 97,000,000 riders, and, according to reports available at this time, 1922 will show about the same as the preceding year. There will be approximately 97,000,000 riders this year.

Now, if with 25,000,000 more riders in 1919 and 1920 than in 1921 the street railways were not able to pay their own way on a five cent fare, what hope is there for it to pay its own way in 1922 or 1923 with the number of riders as they now are and without any definite prospects for their being increased materially over 1919-1920.

The people of this community have at a recent election, in no uncertain terms, voiced objection to the general fund paying the deficit. If the city council desires to reduce the fare at this time it must indicate how the deficit will be taken care of.

It is extremely important to note, too, that while the street railways have been getting by so far as the operation is concerned, they will have to go on a warrant basis soon in order to meet their payments of principal and interest.

THE MUNICIPAL LEAGUE WELCOMES EXPRESSIONS OF OPINIONS ON CIVIC MATTERS AND PROBLEMS. ALL COMMUNICATIONS SHOULD BE ADDRESSED TO THE SECRETARY AT HIS OFFICE, 405 LEARY BUILDING.

Everybody would be elated if carfares could be reduced. Nobody, with any pleasure to himself, likes to pay 25 cents for three rides. But the overwhelming majority of our citizens would rather keep on paying the present high fare than get the cheaper ride and be forced to take care of the deficit by additional taxes on property.

The Municipal League has gone on record against property bearing additional burdens for any resulting deficit in operation. Let not the City Council deceive itself and the people and hastily pass legislation which would have a seriously undesirable effect upon the financial standing of this city.

It must further be borne in mind that the suit to determine whether or not the general fund can be tapped for the benefit of the Municipal Railway is now pending in the courts. Nothing, therefore, should be done to jeopardise the city's rights in that regard.

ment. Some of the rooms might contain the following data:

"The location of Seattle in relation to transcontinental travel, character of its industries, and its beauty spots.

"Another room might contain the general topography of the city, the Olmsted plans, the Bogue plans and the Zoning Commission plans.

"Another room: the general historical data of the city.

"Still another room: the character of its people—charts and diagrams would show the growth, the distribution and the character; variations in birth and death rates for the past years; the types of people we produce; and the character of our homes and buildings.

"Another room would be devoted to governmental exhibits; public service corporations, public works, harbor developments, public utilities—their distribution and use; and social control over these utilities.

"Our social resources, social welfare organizations, religious and philanthropic institutions, churches, aid organizations, and ethical tendencies,—these too, would be shown. By ethical tendencies, I mean the attempt to evaluate the forces that are quietly at work, either in building up or in destroying the city.

"Such a civic institution as I propose would have its uses. It would be an aid to social agencies, giving both to the new and old agencies direction and adjustment of their efforts. It would, too, enlighten the civic spirit of the community. It would avoid waste and duplication of effort.

"The general cost of such an institution would be approximately $25,000, and to my mind the cost would be amply repaid by the service that such an institution could render."

At the conclusion of Mr. Woolston's address, Mr. James A. Haight moved that the League refer the matter proposed to the Municipal Research Committee for investigation and report. The motion was carried.

actions in this matter have been nothing less than a slur upon the intelligence of the citizens of this city.

The Mayor seems to have lost sight of the scope of the responsibilities and the limitations of his office. He has been acting as though the mayoralty was purely a private affair, as though the Council, not having any real responsibility, was simply in his way.

While the above is the personal opinion of the writer, nevertheless, he feels that he does express the sentiment of the community on this matter. We all want to help the Mayor by suggestions and constructive criticism. We don't like to see him go off half-cocked and boyishly irresponsible.

If Mayor Brown wants to have a successful administration he must obey the law and enforce such laws as he, the executive of the city is charged with enforcing, thus setting an example to the entire community.

RUSSELL REJECTS CUT IN CAR FARE

When members of the City Council finance and utilities committees met Friday afternoon to discuss 5-cent car fare on the Municipal Street Railway, they had before them a report of Utilities Superintendent George F. Russell, indicating there will be a monthly operating loss of from $70,000 to $200,000 from the various fare reduction plans proposed.

Other developments in the car fare discussion were: Definite recommendation that the weekly pass system be rejected, in a report to the Council prepared by General Superintendent D. W.

Anderson, and announcement by Hugh Kelley, the mayor's secretary, that a move will be started to reduce fare on the Seattle and Rainier Valley Railway.

Mr. Russell's report, asked for by Councilman C. B. Fitzgerald in connection with his proposed 5-cent fare ordinance, did not take into consideration a probable increase of 13 per cent business of the railway which the utilities chief said might result from the reduced fare.

Monthly Loss of $12,101.

Superintendent Russell pointed out that under the present 8 1/4 cent fare, counting the $57,000 depreciation charge (a mere book account, for which only $20,000 is actually set aside) there is an average monthly fictitious operating loss of $12,101.

For the various proposed plans, his report indicated the following estimated operating losses: 5-cent fare, with 1 1/4 cent transfers (Mayor E. J. Brown's plan): Net operating loss of $129,226.98, and including the $70,250 monthly allotment for redemption of bonds, a loss of $199,476.98 a month.

5-cent fare with free transfers: Net operating loss of $146,880, with bond redemption, $217,130.4 a month.

5-cent fare with 2-cent transfers total operating loss of $188,25.22 a month.

6 1/4 cent fare with free transfers, total operating loss, $142,51.25.

6 1/4 fare with 1-cent transfers; total operating loss, $128,58.65.

6 1/4 fare with no transfers; a net operating gain of $16,055.03, but a total operating loss, counting bond redemption of $54,94.97.

5-cent fare and no transfers; net operating loss of $75,967.21, and with bond redemption, $146,47.21 a month.

In his report, Superintendent Russell went on to say that he had not calculated any possible increase in revenue from the reduced fare, but that he believed 5-cent fare would increase the number of daily car-riders by about 13 per cent.

In ten months of 1922, Superintendent Russell said, the expenses of the Municipal Street Railway were decreased $405,490.71 as compared with the corresponding period in 1921, a decrease of 10.91 per cent. The decrease in expense next year, he predicted, will be even greater than this.

Mayor Brown said he thought Superintendent Russell had been too conservative in his sentiments.

Croson Makes Plea For Change In School Election Law

Carl E. Croson, president of the Seattle School Board, last Tuesday made a plea that the school election be changed from May until some time in the fall of the year. Mr. Croson said in part as follows:-

"A number of elections had ensued the year that the change in the law was made, making the voters tired of repeatedly being asked to go to the polls. Other reasons urged were the matter of economy; and that a more representative vote would result. However, the change has not been practical.

"The condition which brought about the consolidated election law was temporary; it has in fact cost the school board more money than the separate elections.

"Either the budget law which requires that the school budget be voted upon in June must be changed or the election date must be changed.

"It is not fair to the board nor to any individual member of it to be required to vote upon the budget and elect teachers and not have sufficient time for their consideration and study.

"Last year the Board deferred to the numerous requests of citizens that the election of teachers be postponed until June. This was not fair to the teachers, because if not re-elected, he or she might in the interim pass up an opportunity to secure employment elsewhere.

"The matter of the budget and the matter of the election of the teachers should be settled either before the new board gets down to business or else after a sufficient time has elapsed.

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE OPPOSED TO REDUCTION OF CARFARE AT PRESENT

Secretary's Note.—The following report was submitted to the Board of Trustees by Robert Howes, chairman of the Public Utilities Committee of the League, by it accepted, and ordered presented to the League. The League approved it by an overwhelming vote at its meeting last Tuesday.

The report follows:-

In investigating the so-called "Three Cent Fare or Erickson Initiative Measure" which was voted upon at last spring's election, the Public Utilities Committee of the Municipal League obtained a copy of official operating statements from the City Comptroller's office covering the operation of the Street Railway from the time of its transfer from the Stone & Webster interests to the City of Seattle. The present Committee has obtained additional statements including the month of October 1922. These statements appear sufficient to serve as a correct basis for determining with considerable certainty the financial results of the city's operation and for arriving at reasonable conclusion as to the economic effect that would result from the operation of the system under modified rates of fare.

The studies made last spring included the consideration of the effect upon the tax rate as a result of the change from private to public ownership; an analysis of the official operating statements; reduction of this latter data to graphic curves and thereby determination of the effect produced in the past by changes in rate of fare, and the present committee has added the probable effect of the volume of traffic and cost of operation that would result from the proposed five-cent fare for a straight ride and six and one-quarter cent fare for a ride and transfer.

Quoting from the former committee report:

Effect on Tax Rate

Examination of a copy of an official report from the Comptroller's office to the Mayor, disclosed that the total expenditures from general tax revenues occasioned by the acquisition of the railway properties by the City, together with the losses to taxable property within the city limits of Seattle on account of exemption from taxation of the street railway properties, and other losses arising from the acquisition of the street railway amounted to something in excess of $591,417.74 for the year 1919; $659,073.91 for the year 1920; and was estimated or expected to amount to $772,864.38 for the year 1921.

Applying these figures to the assessed valuation for the several years, we deduce that the tax rate was advanced 2.6 mills for 1919, 2.73 mills for 1920, and 2.94 mills for 1921, or the equivalent thereof, as a direct result of the transfer from private to public ownership. If we assume the 1921 figure of approximately $723,000 as a continuing annual tax increment from this cause, we find that by the time of the final contract installment, in 1939, of the purchase price, the estimated extra taxes due to operation of the street railway by the City instead of under private ownership will aggregate about $15,000,000, or the total purchase bond issue; this without any increases resulting from growth of the city. Hence it appears in fact, that the taxpayers are actually paying in excess taxes an amount equal to the full purchase price of the street railway as a result of the change from private to public ownership and that, from the taxpayer's point of view, in order for the street railway to be truly self supporting, it is necessary that its earnings should be sufficient to pay all operating, depreciation, interest, and deficit charges together with all the installments on account of the $15,000,000 Stone & Webster purchase price item and thus accumulate city owned property equal to and in lieu of the excess taxes paid on account thereof.

Effects of Changes in Rate of Carfare

From the studies made it appears quite definitely indicated that the following conclusions are justified, to wit:

1. That the change from 5c fare to 6¼c fare was the direct cause of a decrease in pay passengers of 8.6% or 23,700 daily passengers, and the change from 6¼c fare to 8 1-30 fare was the direct cause of a further decrease of 11.2% or 27,500 daily passengers.

2. That the average daily operating expense during the last six months of the 5c fare period was decreased about $760 or 4.8% under the 6¼c while the daily operating revenue was coincidentally increased $1,750 a day or 12½%.

3. That the average daily operating expense during the 6¼c fare period was further decreased about $840, or 5.6¼ under the 81-3c fare while the daily operating revenue was coincidentally further increased $1,450 a day or 9.8%.

4. That as a net result from the change from 5c fare to 81-3c fare there was a decrease of 51,000 daily pay passengers during the year 1921, and that under a 5c fare it is reasonable to expect that there would have been one quarter more pay passengers ride than did ride under the 81-3c fare.

5. That coincident with the change in rates of fare and due in most part to that change, the operating expense of the street railway decreased $1,600 per day and the operating revenue increased $3,200 per day, making a net improvement of

$4,800 per day, and that as a result the final book account item of a net profit or loss was changed from about $4,260 a day deficit, to $620 a day profit, and the book deficit of $1,753, 457. 39 accumulated in 1919 and 1920 under the 5c and 6¼c fare was reduced by $226,588.29, or approximately 13% of the total under the 81-3c fare in 1921. Also that had the jitneys continued throughout the year 1921 the net profit item would have been reduced to about half this amount and the accumulated deficit reduced only about 6%.

6. That with 81-3c fare, no jitneys, and other conditions as existed in 1921 the street railway system would have shown a net profit of about $590,000, and the deficit reduced about 34%.

7. That with the 81-3c fare, no jitneys, and other conditions as existed in 1921, the street railway system is able to meet all operating expenses, including depreciation; obsolescence and interest, with a margin sufficient to pay about $590,000 towards the retirement of the accumulated deficit, or payments on account of principal of purchase price, and it is observed that with the reduction of interest charges as the principle becomes retired this annual amount, together with the reduction in interest, would be sufficient to retire the original $15,000,000 purchase price and the existing accumulated deficit, thus cleaning the slate as to the Stone & Webster obligations and the operating deficit as now outstanding on the Comptroller's statement.

8. That since the statements show that in 1921 the pay roll comprised about 53.5% of the total expense of the system, and about 71.8% of the total expense exclusive of the fixed items of interest and depreciation, it is evident that the most prominent place in which to effect a reduction of car fare is the pay roll, except it be at the expense of the tax payers.

The statement from the Comptroller's office covering the first ten months of 1922, shows a net profit from operation amounting to $512,067.99 which, pro-rated for the remaining two months indicates a total profit of operation for the year 1922 of $615,000, which is $25,000 or four per cent in excess of the estimate quoted in paragraph seven above, amounting to $590,000 as an estimated profit that would have occurred in 1921 had there been no jitney operation. The report for the present year shows that the number of pay passengers is almost exactly the same as for 1921. The figures for the first ten months of 1921 are 62,759,736 as against 62,113,372 for the same months of 1922. Hence it appears that while the economies of operation have caused a slight improvement, it is only a slight improvement over that estimated by the former committee, and the financial condition is practically that presented in the former report, which is to say, that under the eight and one-third cent fare the road is self-supporting and is earning a profit from operation which, with the aid of a little credit in the first years, is sufficient to meet the contract obligations. This retirement of purchase price is approximately equivalent to the loss in taxes, etc., due to transfer of the property from private to public ownership.

Under the proposed five cent straight fare, with transfers on a six and one-quarter cent token, the condition to be expected appears as follows: Since twenty-six per cent of the pay passengers use transfers the average fare would be five cents plus twenty-six per cent of one and one-quarter cents or approximately five and one-third cents, neglecting a small reduction due to school tickets. Under the same method of calculation the present fare is eight and one-third cents, so the loss in revenue would be three cents per passenger.

The conclusions quoted above from last spring's report indicate a possibility of 25 per cent increase in number of passengers as a result of the reduction in fare, and this estimate is probably high. Accordingly the total revenue will be increased by one-quarter which means that the gross revenue with the assumed 25 per cent increase in traffic would be 80 per cent of that now derived from the eight and one-third cent fare, and the loss in revenue would amount to about 1,220,000 dollars per annum. The extra cost of carrying the 25 per cent additional passengers assumed above, is derived by reverse application from the reduction in cost which occurred when the number of passengers was reduced as a result of increasing the fare. This effect taken from conclusions two and three of the former report quoted above, amounted to $1,600 a day or about $590,000 for a year, and the total, of loss in revenue and extra expense, amounts to $1,810,000 less favorable than under the present eight and one-third cent fare. Since the net profit under the eight and one-third cent fare is $610,000, the proposed change would result in an annual deficit of $1,200,000, and as there is no other apparent source of obtaining these funds, it is apparent that either the system will shortly become bankrupt or the tax payers will have to provide for the deficit as well as any payments on account of purchase price, and extensions

As the Municipal League has consistently maintained the position that publicly owned utilities should be self-supporting, it is recommended that the League go on record as opposed to any reduction in fare unaccompanied by a definite program or evidence indicating a resultant revenue sufficient to meet the operating expenses and obligations of the system; and there being no such evidence at present, that the League oppose any reduction in fare at this time, but recommend that all reasonable steps be taken towards economies in the cost of operation consistent with good service.

Those opposed were in favor of charging extra for transfer privileges, not to exceed two cents. Those opposed to the ordinance were Blaine, Hesketh, Cohen and Fitzgerald.

BANK OFFICIAL GIVES VIEWS ON EDUCATION

Ralph S. Stacy, vice president of the Union National Bank, addressed the League on "Education from the Business Man's Point of View". He lamented the fact that so few high school graduates are able to use grammatically correct English. The average business man, he said, uses only about one thousand different words during the course of a year. Therefore, it seemed to him, he said, that there was very little excuse for a high school graduate not to be able to spell those words correctly and use them in the proper way.

"It isn't a man's brain power but the force behind him that makes him go—the determination to succeed—that makes a boy or girl valuable to any institution. The business man wants people with a sense of moral responsibility—those who take a pride in getting down on time, who look ahead to the job above them."

Speaking from experience of a school board director, as well as a business man, Mr. Stacy said it is difficult to select the proper teachers; for that elusive thing which we call character and personality is absent from their applications when they are selected.

SUPT. OF SCHOOLS TALKS ON EDUCATION

Mr. Thomas R. Cole, Superintendent of Public Schools, said in part:

"The modern schools have inherited a different class of pupils. Formerly only a small proportion of elementary school pupils attended high school; now approximately 90 per cent of the pupils who graduate from the elementary schools attend the high schools."

He agreed entirely, he said, with what Mr. Stacy had said with respect to lack of fundamental knowledge on the part of many high school graduates. But the situation was rapidly improving.

Continuing he said:

"We could secure the kind of training that we want for our students by employing the proper kind of teachers. When we bear in mind that 70 per cent of the total budget of our schools is for teachers and supplies, we can well realize that any material reduction in the budget will result in a lessening of efficiency."

"In 1921 the number of Seattle teachers was reduced by 89, making it necessary to increase the number of pupils per room, with the result that at the end of that year 30 per cent more pupils were failing in their work than in any preceding year."

"Seattle has 26 high school pupils per teacher, while Oakland has 18 and Portland 19 pupils per teacher."

"The cost of elementary school education in this city has been reduced last year from $101 per pupil to $91 per pupil. We have now 43 to 50 children in a room; in practically all of the 145 elementary school rooms of this city."

"We reduced the cost of high school pupils from $149 to $133, while the City of Oakland pays $185 a year per high school pupil."

"In other words, to improve our schools it costs money. You will get what you pay for, but you must be willing to pay the price."

ECKSTEIN WILL ADDRESS LEAGUE ON TAXATION

Next Tuesday noon at the L. C. Smith Building Restaurant, Nathan Eckstein, prominent local business man and chairman of the State Taxation Commission, will address the League on the general subject of "Taxation".

By reason of his intimate contact with the business affairs of the state and his long service to civic and community interests, Mr. Eckstein should be particularly well qualified to speak authoritatively on the difficult subject selected by him.

It is to be hoped that every member of the League will turn out for this splendid meeting.

DISMISS CHARGE AGAINST BOGARDUS

The many friends of C. E. Bogardus will be glad to know that the charge which was pending against him in the Justice Court has been dismissed with prejudice.

No one who knew Mr. Bogardus took the charge seriously, for his integrity and standing in the community has been of such a high character as to negative any idea of wrong doing.

Mr. Bogardus has been actively identified with the affairs of the League for many years, and has taken part in very important committee work, and it is with sincere pleasure that we are able to inform our members that the cloud or shadow of suspicion has been removed from Mr. Bogardus' name.

SEYMOUR SAYS SOMETHING

Every now and then there bobs up a secretary of a Chamber of Commerce who knows that the prosperity of his city is dependent in great measure on good electric railways service and is not afraid to say as much. A. E. Seymour, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Washington, D. C., is one of these. He recently said:

"The Chamber takes the position that all it desires is service; that no company, no public utility, can give service unless it is in a reasonable degree prosperous.

"I believe that a city is largely known by its public utilities, and that you cannot build up a city if you attempt to cripple or injure any of those utilities. The stranger in our city who uses our street railways gets his impression of our city from the service that he gets on those railways, and for that reason we insist that we have good service and that in order to get it we must have prosperous utilities.'

Pullmans for women are being run on the Chicago and Alton and the Wabash railroads out of Chicago and on the main branches. This is an innovation and is meeting with the approval of many.

At last Monday's board meeting a motion prevailed that the secretary be instructed to write Mayor Brown asking what disposition he would make of the Public Safety Committee's report on dance halls below Yesler Way. In pursuance of this direction, the secretary wrote Mayor Brown on December 11, asking that a reply to the Board's request be in his hands by Monday noon, December 18.

Mr. James T. Lawler, chairman of the League's Municipal Research Committee, reports that a meeting of his committee was held last Tuesday evening, and that another meeting will be held the following Tuesday, and "continuously thereafter until we evolve some plan." Mr. Lawler states that the suggestion of a civic institute such as was described by Professor Woolston, was considered by the committee to be a matter of supplemental development. The main thing was to get a start on the research idea and gradually educate the people on the merits of this plan. The committee will be ready to make a report some time during January.

An interesting request has been received from the Department of Municipal Affairs of the Government of the Province of Saskatchewan. This department requests that a copy of the report of the proceedings of the last "convention" of the Municipal League be sent them. The department states, also, that it would be glad to receive a copy of the official organ of the League.

ECKSTEIN OPPOSED TO 40 MILL LIMIT PLAN

Nathan Eckstein, chairman of the Tax Investigating Committee appointed by Governor Hart in 1921, addressed the Municipal League last Tuesday.

Mr. Eckstein stated that the committee had investigated the 40 mill limit plan, but did not think it feasible or practical. "The trouble," stated Mr. Eckstein, "is not so much with the rate of taxation or the present system. The chief difficulty is enforcing the law as it exists; for property is not properly assessed or taxed. And then, too, another of our difficulties is not in our spending too much money but in not having enough taxable property in the state."

The second reason for being opposed to the plan, according to Mr. Eckstein, was the fact that limiting the tax rate does not limit the expenditures. "People today," he said, "demand of the government the performance of certain social functions, and as long as the government performs them, we must pay for them."

He also said that should the 40 mill limit plan be adopted, owners of tangible property would not interest themselves in the tax problem, as they now do, the limit of taxation on their property being fixed by law.

Mr. Eckstein praised the interest of tax payers in their endeavors to reduce taxation, and said that if it were not for such interest as was displayed, taxes would be a great deal higher at this time. "Without the interest of the tax payer in taxes the prospect would look very dark indeed, and the present manner of operating our governmental expenditures would be comparable to a business concern run by a bunch of misers."

Mr. Eckstein then summarized the recommendations of the Commission as follows:-

1. It favors the establishment of a permanent tax commission, with big men constituting its personnel, who would see to it that all property is on the tax rolls and properly assessed.

2. It favors the 100 per cent assessment so that everyone---taxpayer and stranger alike---might know what our assessment rate really is. It would make it easier, too, he said, to enforce a true assessment.

3. It favors a proper budget law, though it opposes the imposition of penitentiary penalties for exceeding the amounts fixed in the budget.

4. It favors the taxation of public utilities by one central body---the tax commission.

5. It favors the establishment of a permanent board of equalization who would be experts in their work and should have necessary time to attend to it.

6. It favors the collection of inheritance taxes by the tax commission instead of as at present by the Attorney General's office.

Pity the Sorrows of a Too-Big-Hearted Man

Mayor Brown, being safely inducted into office, sat him down to think what he might do to lighten the lot of the Toiler and presently concluded that it was necessary to his (the Toiler's) peace of mind that there should be provided some place where he might trip the light fantastic toe with company provided, of a sort to which he might be considered to be accustomed, and with liquid refreshments after his arduous labors. It should be a place, also, where the fettering conventions of "society" should be conspicuous by their absence.

Forthwith, or soon after, the Mayor, being determined that he would, even against the possible opposition of a whole city, meet this crying demand which the Toiler made (or, in any proper frame of mind, should have made) slightly bent the law and proceeded, in his own proper person, to license the Liberty and the Columbus (?) They were located south of Yesler Way where, perhaps, a slight aroma of the "good old days" still lingers and where the Toiler might feel free to cut loose.

Presently, it began to be noised about that the Liberty and the Columbus were not all that some ultra-critical folk thought that they should be. Mayor Brown rose to their defense instantly and has continued to defend them against all comers ever since.

First the Municipal League, an organization which includes at least a fair proportion of persons who would like to see the decency of Seattle maintained, appointed a committee to investigate and report. The committee investigated and re-

ECKSTEIN OPPOSED TO A 40 MILL LIMIT PLAN

7. It favors the increase of filing fee of corporations. A smaller fee, of course, would be placed upon the small corporations and a correspondingly larger fee upon the larger corporations who can well afford to pay.

8. It favors the increase of the annual license fee from $15 to $30.

9. It favors a 3c tax on gasoline.

Mr. Eckstein dwelt with considerable emphasis on this proposal and justified the commission's recommendation thereon. "You don't hear people complaining about the cost of automobiles, but you do hear them complain about the cost of gasoline. Many automobile owners fail to realize that the state has been forced to expend vast sums of money not necessarily for them as auto owners, but certainly on account of them.

"There is nothing to the argument," he said, "that the increase of the cost of gasoline would result in a lessening of the number of users of cars, as evidence of the fact that the cost of gasoline has gradually increased from 10 or 11 cents per gallon till it is now more than twice as much, and yet the number of automobile owners has been constantly increasing.

10. It favors the increasing of all recording fees so as to enable the various offices to be self-sustaining.

11. It favors the establishment of a highway law court such as that now in existence in New Jersey, which would be empowered to impose adequate penalties for the violation of the traffic laws and enforce compensation to the state for any injuries to the highway by auto owners and truck users.

12. It believes that the personal exemption of $300 should be applied only on household furniture and wearing apparel.

"This," stated Mr. Eckstein, "would apply to many apartment house dwellers who rent their furniture but own their automobiles."

13. It favors a tax on cemeteries.

So many cemeteries, stated Mr. Eckstein, are business institutions that a tax upon them would be justified.

14. Our laws should be changed so as to prohibit the refunding of bonds, all bonds to be serial bonds and limited to the life of the improvement. These should be retired without refunding.

15. That the state carry out a proper re-forestation policy.

16. That the automobile truck owners should pay more taxes as they are not in competition with the railroads, and the railroads are paying less and less taxes.

17. That the recommendation that a constitutional amendment be passed allowing the taxing of intangible property. (At this point Prof. Frank J. Laube asked Mr. Eckstein whether intangible property couldn't be taxed indirectly thru a state income tax. Mr. Eckstein stated that he would cover that question a little later).

18. The inheritance tax is too low, stated Mr. Eckstein, and could well stand more increasing.

19. The commission also objected to the County Assessor sitting on the board of equalization, in that way acting in the capacity both as prosecutor and judge.

20. Taking up the matter of the income tax, Mr. Eckstein contended that it would produce but little revenue. "Small incomes," he said, "will always be exempt from taxation and any law passed compelling the small man to pay taxes will meet the same fate as the poll tax law—it will be repealed by the people. We must remember, he said, that we now pay an income tax to the Federal Government. Congress is now taxing the people as much as they can stand. Until Congress reduces the rate, we should not attempt to pass a state income tax law—rather, I favor a classified tax on intangible property."

21. We should memorialize Congress to pass a law prohibiting the further issuance of tax-exempt securities.

In conclusion, Mr. Eckstein insisted that not the 40 mill limit plan was a cure for the present evils, but rather a strict enforcement of the present tax system and a more rigid adherence on the part of the taxpayers of the tax-spending bodies to economy.

At the conclusion of Eckstein's address, Mr. C. A. Reynolds moved that a rising vote of thanks be extended to the speaker. The motion prevailed.

SECRETARY'S NOTES

of Chicago has been received at the League office. The association styles itself "The Oldest Civic Reform Organization in America". Its main purposes, as set forth in its constitution, adopted July 24, 1874, read as follows:-

"To insure a more perfect administration in our municipal affairs; to promote the general welfare and prosperity of the city; to protect citizens, so far as possible, against the evils of careless or corrupt legislation; to effect the prompt enforcement and execution of the law; to correct existing abuses, and to prevent their future recurrence."

Such a purpose may well be adopted by every municipal league organization in the country.

Among its accomplishments for the past year, states the report, are as follows:-

"During the last year the Citizens' Association won two taxpayers' suits in the Supreme Court, which nullified unconstitutional state appropriations amounting to $520,000. Its work added more than $600,000 to the revenues of the County and State during the year, by increasing the interest rates on public funds. It also accomplished other important results for the public. Such results have been made possible by its increased financial strength, which is largely due to the action of 306 of our members in becoming Contributing Members, with dues of $25 a year. Other $10 members are urged to do likewise, in order to finance our growing work, as the Association's income is still sadly inadequate."

ported that the place was illegally maintained and was calculated to skin the Toiler with neatness and dispatch if he ventured there in search of entertainment; furthermore, they stated, the Toiler did not seem to be able to stand the gaff, or perhaps he did not duly appreciate his privileges, for he did not seem to be present, on the occasion of the committee's visit, in any large numbers. Mayor Brown dismissed the report of the committee with a gesture of disdain; they were "high brows"; they could not understand his purpose or the purpose of the dance halls or the needs of the Toiler.

Next, the Council of Churches represented by a committee of reputable citizens, not all ministers, appeared before the Mayor and was received with scant courtesy, with many evasions and they went their way, sadder but wiser and with nothing accomplished. They were "good" people and with them the Mayor had no sympathy and desired to have no dealings.

Next, at the Mayor's request, the Central Labor Council appointed a committee to investigate and report. Horrors! This report by toilers on a Toiler's resort was unfavorable! Nothing daunted, Mayor Brown jauntily announced that he did not believe the report; the committee was prejudiced, and he had secured the appointment of another committee from the same Labor Council which would shortly tell the people what was what.

Since this committee would seem to have been hand-picked, it is no wonder its report satisfied its creator.

Last, several ministers, (conceded by some people to be sincerely interested in the good of the community) have individually investigated and reported that the conditions here, including the dance halls, are startlingly bad. Their report is backed by the opinions of attorneys and others some of whom have had occasion to know, expertly, of moral conditions. It is also borne out by the common statement of men on the streets that the town is wider open now than it has been for a long time.

Mayor Brown still continues to struggle valiantly for the best interest of the Toiler, even without the Toiler's support or approval. He displays, in this fight, a warmth of enthusiasm, a fertility of resource and an indefatigability which most men reserve for enterprises in which they have a financial interest.

The National Municipal Review for December publishes a commentary upon the comparative tax rates of thirty-two states. The table of comparative tax rates was compiled by the Detroit Bureau of Governmental Research. The article written by C. E. Rightor states that to arrive at a comparable tax rate basis the varying legal basis of assessments in different states are adjusted uniformly to 100 per cent basis. Seattle, on the basis of a tax rate per $1,000 assessed valuation, is stated to have a tax rate of 63.37 divided as follows: 22.49 for city purposes, 13.37 for school purposes, 4.51 for debt, 10.00 for county purposes and 13.00 for state purposes.

Under the heading of Adjusted Rate 100% Basis of Assessment, Seattle is quoted as having 34.74; and under the heading of Estimated Ratio of Assessment to True Value, 80 per cent; and under the heading of Adjusted Tax Rate on Estimated Ratio of Assessment, 27.79.

In the spring when icebergs come floating down from the glaciers of Greenland, coastguard service vessels of the American fleet go in search of them. When a berg is found the vessels wireless its presence to the boats of all nations in the vicinity. The cost of the patrol is borne by all the maritime nations using the Atlantic in proportion to the number of ships sailing under their respective flags.

LEWIS SPEAKS ON FORESTRY PROBLEM

L. D. Lewis, former president of the Municipal League and chairman of the League's Legislative Committee, followed Dean Winkenwerder upon the conclusion of his address last Tuesday noon. Mr. Lewis stated in part as follows: That he has studied the reforestation problem for some time past and has worried a good deal over the waste land situation. Shortly after the Armistice, he spent some time in Washington in an endeavor to coordinate with and secure the cooperation of some of the governmental departments in the work of reforesting logged-off lands in this state. The Spruce Division, he said, when it was demobilized, had men and equipment. The Navy department was dumping T.N.T. because it had no place to store it. The State of Washington could use the men, the equipment and the T.N.T., and yet by reason of certain jealousies that had crept up between the various Federal departments, it was impossible, Mr. Lewis said, to secure their cooperation.

He said that the logged-off lands of the state were as a whole not fit for agricultural purposes—at least it was not feasible to turn them over for this purpose.

He corroborated Dean Winkenwerder's statement that many towns and villages are being abandoned when the timber in the adjacent territory was removed. He cited instances of such towns being abandoned in Pacific and Skagit counties.

He called attention to the remarkable growth of reforested areas and stated that land which in its logged-off condition was not worth more than $10 per acre, would under a re-

A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR

On this glad holiday season, the officers and Board of Trustees of the Municipal League take great pleasure in extending to the members of the League and to the citizens of the City of Seattle their best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

We look forward to the year of 1923 hopefully and eagerly. Hopefully, because it believes that the conscience of our citizens is being awakened to a greater interest in public affairs; and eagerly, because they realize the opportunity for service which this organization, unbiased, unprejudiced and free—has in the coming year's work.

REFORESTATION POLICY PROPOSED BY U. MAN

Dean Hugo A. Winkenwerder of the College of Forestry of the University of Washington, addressed the League last Tuesday. After considerable study of the forestry problems at a conference held recently the following recommendations were made:

1. That a change in the taxation system should be made in this: That the logged-off lands should not pay taxes during the time that they are being reforested; that when the forests mature the final tax should be paid.

2. That the state should bond itself to buy logged-off lands and to reforest them. This matter, stated Dean Winkenwerder, could be worked out so that the state could pay bonds in lieu of cash to the owners of the logged-off lands, these bonds bearing a low rate of interest. Provision of course should be made to encourage the timber owners to leave their logged-off lands in proper condition. Thus, land not left in proper shape for reforestation shall get less than land which is left in good condition for it; land that has larger trees left, to get more than that having smaller trees. Thus encouraging lumbermen to aid in the policy of reforestation.

3. The reorganization of the State Forestry Department so that it should contain thoroughly trained experts who would administer the policy of the state relative to reforestation in its most complete form.

wholly or in part from wood. From the cradle to the grave wood is with us as an essential commodity at all times. Dr. Fernow has very nicely pictured this in the following words: "The forest furnishes the cooperation to market our vintage, to store our flour and fruit. The forest furnishes the plow handle and the harrow frame to cultivate, the threshing machine and the wind mill to prepare the crops, the bottoms in which they cross the ocean to foreign marts, and even the pitch and tar needed to keep the cargo safe— We are rocked in wooden cradles, play with wooden toys, sit on wooden chairs and benches, eat from wooden tables, use wooden desks, chests and trunks, are entertained by music from wooden instruments, enlightened by information printed on wooden paper with black ink made from wood and even eat our salads seasoned with vinegar made from the wood."

It is true that substitutes have replaced the use of wood for many purposes, yet new uses are being found every year and wood enters extensively into use with the substitutes. The physical, mechanical and chemical properties of wood are such that there are almost untold possibilities for the development of new uses, and of especial importance is the possibility of manufacturing from wood substitutes a very great variety of essential products. With a plentiful supply of wood we could, if necessary, dispense with large quantities of other resources. All housing and construction problems, all fuel problems, including gas and oil, clothing, including shoes, hats and fancy silk wear (fibre silk); disinfectants and preservatives, gun powder, celluloid products, wood and grain alcohol, and even certain foods may be mentioned as some of the places where wood is being used as a substitute for the products of our other natural resources.

But the forest is not only important as a resource because of the raw material it furnishes. It also has a marked influence upon the topography of the land, the fertility of the soil on the hillside and in the valley bottoms, the springs, the water powers, the equable flow of streams for irrigation and navigation, health and recreation, and perhaps even upon the climatic conditions.

The United States no longer has a plentiful supply of forests. Statements to the contrary are absolutely false. The original or virgin forests of the United States are practically exhausted in all regions except the Pacific Northwest. Unless we adopt a policy of reforestation extensive lumber operations in this state will decline rapidly within 20 years. On the other hand, we can, through the adoption of a proper policy, produce sufficient wood for all our needs for all time to come. If such a policy is adopted throughout the Northwest now the lumber industry can be kept as important forever as it is now.

The idea of forestry does not, as is often believed, mean a limitation in the use of our forest products. On the contrary, it means the creation of conditions that will insure for all time the fullest possible protection and use.

As a rule when the forests are cut agriculture soon follows the logger, but in the Northwest the forests have been cut off far in advance of the development of the land for farming purposes, and this is true to this day.

While the excellent harbors have been of great importance in bringing the cities of the West Coast to the forefront many of the towns are every day more dependent upon the forests than they are on the products of farms, fisheries and mines combined. We need only think of the tide flats of Tacoma, of Ballard and of West Seattle, of the cities of Everett, Bellingham, Hoquiam, Aberdeen, Anacortes and a host of others, but they immediately call to mind pictures of saw mills and the ever-buzzing sounds of the hungry saw. In 1910 63.3 per cent of the wage earners of the state of Washington were directly dependent upon the lumber industry for their livelihood, and although we have had a steady increase in agriculture and other industries here since then, in 1914 we still had 54 per cent of our wage earners directly dependent upon this one industry. How many more are indirectly dependent upon this industry is, of course, hard to say. Let us try to imagine for just a moment what would happen if all the logging camps and all the saw mills should suddenly be shut down forever. It would affect every channel of trade.

Many communities on the Pacific Coast are facing retrogression unless we start an immediate program for reforesting the nonagricultural logged-off lands. In Michian many once flourishing lumber towns disappeared with the disappearance of the forests. Literally hundreds of these towns are no longer existent. Some years ago Ascoda, a very flourishing mill town, bonded itself for $150,000 for local improvements. In 1915 when the bonds came due, there was no town left. Unless we make immediate provision for reforestation history will here repeat itself. There is no region in the country where it is easier to get the logged-off lands reforested than in the Douglas fir region of the Pacific Coast. We can continue logging just as we have been doing in the past. All that is necessary is to burn over the slashings during the first year after logging; this usually results in very excellent reproduction of young trees. But this must, however, be followed by rigid fire protection as these young trees can easily be killed by forest fires. We can grow from 32 M to 44 M feet of merchantable timber of saw-log size, in from 60 to 80 years, and can grow six billion feet annually forever on our non-agricultural land, not including millions of cords of wood for fuel and for the manufacture of paper pulp. This is slightly in excess of our present annual cut in the state of Washington.

Of course the state should take the lead in the reforestation movement. A state-wide forestry conference was recent-held. After working for more than a year on a thorough study of the forestry problems of the state of Washington, this Conference is now ready to present a comprehensive program to the legislature for action this winter.

The reforestation problem is welded to nearly all our most important activities, such as the development of the tourist business, our taxation problems, irrigation, transportation, labor problems, and even the welfare or collapse of hundreds of Washington communities. The state must give this problem careful consideration in the legislature this winter. If you agree with me, instruct your representatives and senators to support the legislative program presented by the State Forestry Conference. The best minds of the state have spent a year studying the problem from all its angles.

LEWIS SPEAKS ON FORESTRY

orestation policy, in a comparatively short period of time, bring a high rate of dividend. He stated that what was necessary was to bring about the active cooperation between the timber owners and the state agencies. The timber owners, he said, on the one side, had not been able to re-forest logged-off lands, and in many instances did not realize the necessity for doing so. On the other hand, the state agencies had not the money nor the incentive to do so.

He had a dream, he said, of having boys organize forestry clubs. Organizations like the Boy Scouts could establish camps and act as fire patrols, re-forestry patrols, and so on. He pointed out the Federal Government could be of great assistance in this problem if it would take an active interest in it.

President Baldwin assigned the task of investigating and reporting upon the problem of reforestation to the Legislative Committee of the League, of which Mr. Lewis is chairman, and instructed the committee to bring in its report at an early meeting.

WHY DOES THE MAYOR DO IT?

Mayor Brown is probably well pleased with the report of the Committee of the Central Labor Council regarding the South End Cabarets. Presumably, the Committee is also satisfied with the report. Aside from these persons and those financially interested in the Cabarets, it is probable that the report will commend itself to no one. The body of the Labor Council should be excluded from consideration since its members probably knew little about the subject, the report of the Committee dodged the issue by the well-known method of knocking down a man of straw and the Council, naturally, on such a showing, approved the report.

The gist of the report lies in three conclusions:-

1. The South End dance halls are no worse than those in other sections.

2. The dress of the girls there is not indecent or immodest.

3. The location of the halls in a basement is unsanitary and they should be moved to a ground-floor or higher level, or should be closed.

The Committee further unbosoms itself of a conclusion that the crusade against the South End dance halls does not seem to be sincere and that it "savors of an organized conspiracy to use any means at hand to discredit the mayor."

As to the first conclusion, it does not change the situation to admit that dance halls in other sections may be as evil in their tendencies as those now under fire. As to the second conclusion, the comment of those who have visited the South End Cabarets would indicate that the view of the Labor Council committee in the matter of dress are ultra-liberal. As to the third conclusion, there is no dispute or discussion.

The Committee's final defense of the Mayor is absurd for two reasons:- It is all but impossible to get any number of ministers to stick together for any long time to accomplish any object outside their own direct field, and, further, Mayor Brown, himself, has done more to discredit himself with the people of Seattle in this matter than could be accomplished by any number of conspiracies to that end.

The Labor Council's Committee and the Mayor both very conveniently forget the crux of this whole controversy. That is plainly stated in the report of the Municipal League Committee, viz---that these Cabarets are being operated in violation of the law upon a permit issued by the Mayor and the Chief of Police whereas they should be licensed by the City Council. The Mayor's position that these are dance halls and not cabarets as defined in the ordinance is too weak to hold water.

If these places are so necessary to the welfare of the working man and are so sweet-scented as the Labor Council Committee pretends, why does not the Mayor settle the controversy by withdrawing his permit and causing the proprietors to apply to the Council for license in due form?

If there is no more to this matter than what appears upon the surface, why does the Mayor continue so ardently to resist the report and recommendations of a Municipal League Committee (not to mention others) which consisted of three lawyers, a publisher and a minister? This Committee certainly must be correct in its statement of the law, and any who know its members will feel quite sure that Mr. Chatterton, the sole clerical member, could hardly have imposed his own opinions upon the other four members, however much he might have desired to do so.

The longer this state of affairs continues, the more do people wonder:- "Why does the Mayor act thus?"

Dear Sir:

Replying to your communication of December 18th, requesting that you be permitted to answer the report of our Public Safety Committee in person, I have been instructed by the Board of Trustees of the Municipal League to answer as follows:

Had you made such a request immediately upon receipt of the report of the committee which I sent you, we would have complied with it. However, so much time has passed since the rendition and acceptance of the report that the Board feels there is a necessity for immediate action and does not desire to further delay this matter or prolong discussion upon it.

Furthermore, the Board feels that nothing that you could say at this time would alter the facts as found by the committee; and that what is required is that the law be enforced as pointed out in the committee's report.

TO STUDY PUBLIC EMPLOYEES

To study and formulate the best methods of selection, transfer and promotion of public service employees is the primary function of the newly organized Bureau of Personal Administration at Washington, D. C. Professor L. L. Thurstone, head of the Department of Education and Psychology at Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, has been appointed Director of Research in charge of the Bureau, effective January 1, 1923.

The Bureau is to be affiliated with the Institute of Government Research, and has been privately endowed subsequent to appeals for its establishment from the United States Civil Service Commission. An advisory board of five members of the national civil service commissions will supervise the operation of the bureau.

Mr. Thurstone and his associates will immediately take up the study of the selection, transfer and promotion on a basis of merit of all public service employees; classification of the positions in public service; methods of rating efficiency; re-organization of training courses for federal employees; recommendation of postal clerk and carrier tests; organization and procedure of district offices of the Civil Service Commission; and various other personnel problems outlined by the advisory board. Its field of work covers investigations of state and municipal employee problems in addition to those of the federal service.

TEACHERS' SALARIES

Buffalo, N. Y., has a Central "Continuation School" which teaches vocational commercial subjects. It was found there were some minor imperfections in the salary schedule adopted by the Board of Education some months ago, and further that it was necessary to revise the schedule in order to meet with new conditions. The Board found that as these teachers (in vocational subjects) are paid salaries in commercial occupations which approximate the present high school classroom salary classification more nearly than any other department salary classification, it is recommended that the salary schedule adopted for this new classification be the same as that of the present high school classroom classification.

The revised schedule is as follows:-

	Min.	Max.
Vocational Teachers
.....	$1,800	$2,600
Manual training teachers
.....	1,800	2,600
High school classroom teachers
.....	1,600	2,400
Domestic art teachers
.....	1,400	2,200
Eighth grade teachers
.....	1,250	2,050
Teachers of vocational commercial subjects.....	1,600	2,400
Assistant principals
.....	1,600	2,300
Principal (elementary school, Class "A")	3,000	3,800

Assistant principals shall receive in addition to the salary provided for in the classification in which last employed prior to appointment as such assistant principal, the sum of $300.00 per annum.

THE LEAGUE IN 1923

by Eimon L. Wienir

1923 should see the League the most active power for civic good of any single organization in Seattle. The indifference to civic interests caused by the Great War has been almost entirely abated. Men are turning their attention from the struggle of the bloody world conflict, from the absorbing trials of peace conferences, disarmament and economic conferences to the more intimate contact with domestic affairs. Cleaning up one's own backyard, and mending of the fences, and a look in on the hidden mysteries of the plumbing in the home, long neglected, all are necessary it was discovered.

The League has ever led for the better things, for the progressive improvement of the city's government. Its sane, wholesome, clean point of view needs to be expressed forcefully more now than ever before. It must and will assert itself.

Controlled by no clique, group, or individual, the League, representing as it does the heart of a great city, can by its firm and determined leadership make Seattle's government the best of any city in the nation.

Every one of us should resolve to help the League in its endeavors. For without the aid, the support, and the encouragement of those who are enrolled on the roster of the League, little will be done.

You men who founded the League—who for more than twelve years have contributed your time and your energy to it—you must do it again in 1923. The League cannot function as effectively without you as it can with you.

You newer members, don't stand aloof! Don't feel that you are not wanted; that you are mere spectators. If you haven't been called on for committee work, come forward. Indicate your desire to serve and you will be assigned a task.

The League must not let itself grow old. Fresh blood new hands to give a lift, new hearts to "carry on" are needed. The privilege of bringing in recruits is yours. It is imperative. It is necessary from various standpoints. Keep this in mind and when you are called for duty, respond cheerfully.

Our committees should expedite the work assigned to them. It is difficult for volunteer, busy men to find time, but it must be done! The League is not merely a lecture course, a chautauqua. It investigates, it analyzes, it reports. It is active in fighting and seeing through what it favors and it fights to the finish what it opposes.

All this in the year 1923. Let us not forget. The good name of the Municipal League shall live in the heart of the citizens of Seattle—something to be loved, to be revered, to be followed and to be supported.

REFORMS IN WORK-MEN'S ACT URGED

Victor Zednick, District Supervisor of the State Department of Labor and Industry, Seattle, took the place of Edward Clifford, the Director of the Department, who was scheduled to address the League last Tuesday.

Mr. Zednick gave a most interesting address on the work of the department, and paying special attention to the Workmen's Compensation Act, pointed out that at present the compensation as fixed under the 1911 law was inadequate. He stated that it was the opinion of the department that compensation should be increased from 25% to 50%; also that a limitation of increased compensation on children should be removed, and that the age of a dependent child should be fixed at 18 years instead of 16 years.

Mr. Zednick called attention to Mr. Clifford's reform in the matter of collecting premiums. Prior to that time, he said, a firm would not actually be charged for insurance until 12 or 18 months after it was due for the reason that the rate of insurance could not be determined. Under this system, a good many firms escaped paying into the fund altogether by reason of going out of business, becoming bankrupt, etc. Director Clifford, however, changed the system basing the rate upon an average actual rate prevailing for the ten years last past. This immediately resulted in 50% more of the premiums being collected over any preceding year.

The branch offices which were established at Seattle, Tacoma and Spokane, proved, Zednick said, a distinct service to the employer and it has enabled the department to make more prompt and efficient collection of premiums due the state.

Speaking on the matter of industrial rehabilitation, Zednick said that it was a logical link in the chain of industrial legislation in this state. The State Safety Act which was passed in 1919, he said, really should have come first, followed by the Medical Aid Law, the Industrial Insurance Law, and logically, the Rehabilitation Act.

The last session of the Legislature appropriated $835,000 for the administration of the Department of Labor and Industry. However, the Medical Aid law contributed somewhat to lessening the actual expenditure for administrative purposes. The act being for the welfare of the employer and employee in public, the expenditure was justified, stated Mr. Zednick.

At the conclusion of his address, Mr. Frank Foisie, a member of the League's Industrial Relations Committee, stated that he wished to emphasize the present inadequacy of compensation paid to the disabled workmen. It is the duty of the Municipal League, he said, to do everything possible to have the compensation increased at the next legislature. It must be borne in mind, he said, that when you increase the cost of industrial insurance to the employer he will take care of the safety devices and see to it that accidents do not occur frequently in his plant.

Mr. J. C. Lindsey expressed appreciation for the speaker's presentation of the subject.

SECRETARY'S NOTES

Department of Labor.—While the League was disappointed last Tuesday in not having before it Mr. Edward Clifford, director of the State Department of Labor and Industry, who was prevented from coming to Seattle by important demands on his time suddenly arising, it can be said that Mr. Victor Zednick gave a singularly interesting address. Speaking with a fluency that bespoke his familiarity with the subject, Mr. Zednick left a favorable impression of the work of his department and the improvements that have been made since Mr. Clifford assumed charge. Without doubt, too, everyone was convinced that it was absolutely necessary that the Workmen's Compensation Act should be amended so as to permit increase in awards for loss of time occasioned by injuries in employment.

Dr. Hawkins.—Whatever one may think of the present moral conditions prevailing in the city, one can not help but admire the courage of Dr. Hawkins of the Plymouth Congregational Church. Ministers dislike exceedingly to enter into controversies, on questions which civil authorities are charged with solving and which laymen in their civic duties delve into. And it must have been with extreme reluctance that Dr. Hawkins took up the issue. But that issue could not be escaped or avoided. When protests from civic organizations had been made to the mayor of the city and no action was taken thereon, it became the duty of the clergy, or some one of them, to speak out. It was not a political issue. It was a moral issue. Ministers of the gospel, whatever their creed, devote their life work to the teaching of the gospel; they endeavor to make men's lives purer and nobler. The temptation to do evil must be removed as far as possible from mortals so that they sin not. Therefore when vice becomes flagrant, and men charged with suppressing it, for some reason or other, will not, do not, or are not able to suppress it, a public condition exists which should call forth expressions from those interested. Who should be more interested than the men of God?

The charges and counter charges, the innuendos and insinuations which followed and which, in fact, are being continued, are reprehensible in the extreme. Instead of taking notice of complaints of citizens, endeavoring to remedy the evil, officials charged with the enforcement of the law by a vote of confidence in them by the people, charge their critics with dishonest motives! It is indeed a shame to our city. A shame to its good name, to its people, to its laws. It is high time that such temporary outbreaks of moral indignation should become chrystallized into an effective force.

Montlake Bridge.—The people will undoubtedly have the opportunity of passing on the much discussed and much needed Montlake Avenue bridge. This will come up in the May elections. On previous occasions the League, though agreeing with the claims of the proponents that the bridge was a necessity, recommended vote against the measure on the ground of economy.

* * *

Astoria Relief.—The appropriation of $10,000 for the relief of Astoria, as was made by the city council, will meet the approval of citizens of Seattle. At a time when our neighbors' homes are destroyed and they need our help in restoring them,—there is nothing else to do but to help.

THE OTHER FELLOW

Who is the other fellow? Is he not a mere reflection of ourselves? And don't you think, therefore, that it even pays to be fair with him?

For a long time I have noticed the people who have taken advantage of others, or of their city, or of their country. Considering results at long range, all these years mighty few have really got away with it.

Also, who are they, who are today complaining most about high taxes, about bad government, or unpleasant living conditions, if not those who, instead of taking a helpful part in public affairs, are, in one form or another, taking the public's money or time under false pretenses?

But why kick afterwards? Why not elect to office in the first instance, men with a public conscience? By not voting, or not voting intelligently, you are double-crossing yourself as much as the other fellow. You are delaying good government when not backing up to the best of your ability, the class of men who ought to hold public office.

But, enough of this. You are a part of a highly intelligent nation, and already understand that, whenever you shortchange, even to the smallest degree, the other fellow, you are simply cheating yourself, your family and your friends.—Albert B. Lord, in the Roycroft Magazine, November, 1922.

"ZE CEETY PAYS"

By Harold A. Caparm

Not very long ago I sat on a bench in one of the New York City parks. Nearly opposite on another bench sat a happy, shortish and stoutish family eating lunch. You could see they were a family, they were so much alike. They were "poppa" and "momma" and several children from about 26 inches to 31 inches high. They all smiled. Why wouldn't they smile? It was a beautiful day, they had had a good lunch, and they didn't have to clear away after them.

Presently poppa gave one of the children a pasteboard box of the kind that Iwantanother biscuits come in. He took it and proceeded to tear the paper cover slowly into eleven bits and let the wind blow them in eleven different directions. Meantime, poppa looked on and smiled benignantly.

Then I thought of the way they pick up papers in the parks. You have seen how they do it. An oldish sort of man comes along with a spiked stick and a bag. He stabs each piece of paper separately and puts them all into the bag. In this way, he can pick up quite a number of pieces in a day.

Then I thought of what it costs to pay this man and all the other men who pick up papers that people ought to pick up for themselves, or that never ought to be scattered around. And I remembered the South Parks in Chicago, where it costs them $28,000 a year to pick up papers! Think of what they could buy with all this money in the way of swimming pools, or gymnasiums, or tennis courts, or other things really worth while!

So I thought it was time to say something, and I went up to him and began: "My friend —"

(It seems a little queer that if you address some people as "My friend" they get rather angry, while some others seem to like it. It seems to me to show a nice disposition to be glad to be told that you are somebody's friend).

"My friend," I said, "don't you think it's a mistake to let that boy tear up that paper? Don't you know that every piece has to be picked up, and that you and I help to pay for it?"

But he looked at me and smiled cheerfully. "Ah, no!" he said. "It is alright! Ze ceety peeck him up; we no pay."

"Yes, but," I persisted, "don't you know what the city is? It is you and I and everybody tham, Mass., the first city in the state to adopt the manager plan, became the second city in the United States to give up its manager charter in favor of a mayor and council. Manager government in Waltham had to bear the blame not only for higher taxes, but for higher rents as well.

At the same election, Springfield, Mass., refused to accept a modern mayor-council charter. The principal objections were that the proposed charter abolished party elections and introduced the initiative and referendum.

TEMPORARY ZONING ORDINANCE IS HELD INVALID IN BUFFALO

In the city of Buffalo, N. Y., a city zoning ordinance is being prepared by a city planning committee. While the ordinance is in course of reparation, variauthorized to discontinue the litigation and that building permits be issued both for the buildings in question and for other buildings in the future until the city council adopts the permanent zoning ordinance.

COMMENT

From the National

of December, 1922

DAYTON SUSTAINS CITY MANAGER GOVERNMENT

On November 7th Dayton voted down by a vote of 25,000 to 16,000 a proposal to abandon city-manager government in favor of the federal plan. On the same day, Wal-ous applications for building permits to erect stores and other business places were presented to the Council. It seems that there were many objections to these various applications by residents in the vicinity and the Council, seeking to remedy the situation, adopted a temporary zoning ordinance in accordance with the idea of the city planning committee. Some of the applications for building permits to erect stores were, under the new ordinance, denied. Thereupon, the various owners commenced litigation, alleging the ordinance to be invalid. In the various proceedings that were brought, the question was presented to at least four of the trial judges of the Supreme Court, each of whom decided against the city.

In view of the result of the litigation, the corporation counsel of that city recommended to the city council that it be
